There has been a remarkable increase in American investments throughout the Dominion within the past few years. According to figures collected for the five years' period, 1905-9 inclusive the amount of American investments was $279,075,000. In May, 1911, it was estimated that these investments were approximately $417,143,221. Since then, according to the belief of officers of the Government who have made a study of the subject, there has been an additional investment in the neighborhood of $80,000,000.

Recent reports on the subject from American consuls and other sources of information in Canada have not been collated recently, but officials are satisfied the estimate of half a billion dollars of capital invested is not far out of the way. While many of the investments are in lumber, mines, farms and natural resources of the Dominion, a very large amount of American capital has been sent into Canada in recent years to establish branches of industries already in operation in the United States or to develop new lines of manufacture.

ANALYSIS OF THE CAPITAL INVESTED.

In May, 1911, F. W. Field the subagent of the British Board of Trade at Toronto, made the approximate estimate of $417,143,221. He had previously estimated that the American capital invested in Canada was $297,000,000, and the higher amount represents a reconsideration of that estimate based on more complete information. Sub-Agent Field gave these detailed estimates of American investments:

|---|---|
| Investments in British Columbia mills and timber | $65,000,000 |
| Investments in British Columbia mines | 60,000,000 |
| Land deals in prairie provinces | 25,000,000 |
| Investments in lumber and mines in the prairie provinces | 10,000,000 |
| Packing plants | 6,000,000 |
| Agricultural implement distributing houses | 8,575,000 |
| Land deals in British Columbia | 8,500,000 |
| Municipal bonds, sold privately | 27,000,000 |
| Investments in Canada of United States insurance companies | 43,293,221 |
| Miscellaneous industrial property | 15,525,000 |
| Investments in the Maritime provinces | 12,850,000 |

According to officials whose statements are borne out by reports from United States Consuls in Canada, the high rates of the Canadian tariff have apparently caused many American manufacturing establishments to establish branches of their industries in the Dominion. One report which brings out this idea was written by the United States Consul at Owen Sound, Ontario, who said:

"Prior to the present protective policy of Canada, American firms made their goods at home and shipped their finished product here. In order to hold this business, it became necessary to establish American annexes here and manufacture the articles which they desire to sell to Canadians in Canada.

Of Causing Death of Chinese Sailor Who Was Thrown Overboard

Canadian Press Despatch.

OGDENSBURG, July 17 — John Quong, a Chinese sailor on board the steamer "Thyra Menier" which carries pulp from Anticosti, reported to the police last night, that on June 15th, while the steamer was between Montreal and Quebec, another Chinese sailor name Ap Kiow was thrown into the river by the chief and second engineers and was drowned.

CONSUMER HIT AS IS USUAL

GALT, July 17.—Local coal dealers are in receipt of a notice from Pennsylvania coal mines that after July 1 there will be an addition of 2 1-2 per cent. per ton on the market value of coal at the mines. This is in addition to the increased price charged at the beginning of each month, and will mean an extra ten cents per ton on all coal. The additional 2 1-2 per cent. is revenue demanded by the State of Pennsylvania.

Nurse Saves Drowning Boy.

ST. CATHARINES, July 17.—The feat of saving a 10-year-old boy, wearing a plaster jacket, from drowning in Lake Chapleau, is credited to Miss Mayme Taylor, formerly of this city but now a nurse for the society of St. James Street Methodist Church, Montreal. Miss Taylor jumped into the water when she saw the little fellow fall in. A Royal Humane Society medal will be applied for by friends of Miss Taylor, who was obliged to remain in bed for some time after her experience.

TSAR FERDINAND REPORTED SLAIN.

TSAR FERDINAND OF BULGARIA.

It is rumored in Vienna that Tsar Ferdinand of Bulgaria has been assassinated during a revolution that broke out at Sofia. One of the despatches reported that a mob stormed the government officials and came in contact with the troops, who fired a volley killing many persons.

U. S. WILL PROMISE POWERS TO KEEP ORDER IN MEXICO

Britain and Germany Are Said to Have Put Question to President Wilson and American Ambassador Has Been Summoned for Consultation With Authorities at Washington.

WASHINGTON, July 17.—President Wilson yesterday instructed Ambassador Henry Lane Wilson, at Mexico City, to come to Washington at once for a conference, and, in response to the summons, Mr. Wilson left for Vera Cruz last night.

Ambassador Wilson has not been "recalled," and so far as the administration knows now, will return to the Mexican capital at the close of the conference.

At the White House and State Department it was said that the chaotic and anarchistic state of affairs in Mexico, which make that country dangerous for the 40,000 Americans and several thousands of other foreigners there, was the cause of the President asking Ambassador Wilson to come to Washington at this time.

Although admitting that the situation in Mexico is worse than it ever has been since the war between the United States and Mexico, and that the United States Government will assume something more than an attitude of indifference, officials of the administration would make no further comment. President Wilson would not discuss Mexico. Secretary of State Bryan said the situation was bad, but that he had nothing more to say at this time.

It became known yesterday that both England and Germany have put up to the President squarely this question: "Is the United States going to accept its responsibility for the conditions existing in Mexico?"

The answer of the U. S. Government will be: "Yes, all other nations keep hands off."

No action looking to a change of attitude on the part of the administration will be taken by President Wilson until he has conferred with Ambassador Wilson. It will take at least ten days for Ambassador Wilson to make the trip from Mexico City to Washington.

Mexican Emissary Leaves.

NEW YORK, July 17.—"Mr. Wilson having been recalled, it is due to the courtesies of international law for me to leave this country on the same day that Mr. Wilson leaves Mexico City," declared Emetrio de la Garza, jr., President Huerta's chief emissary or "ambassador" in the United States last night.

"The American people have been misled. The Government at Washington is wrong, absolutely wrong, and it now begins to realize it too late, and to the regret of everybody. President Wilson thought that he could ignore Mexico, but Mexico is too big a country to be ignored, and the only consequence of his unfair attitude to my country has been the great losses of Americans in life and property."

Wilson Holds Back.

LONDON, July 17.—The London morning papers are interested in the possibility of the United States being obliged to intervene in Mexico.

The Morning Post in an editorial says:

"It will be a curious instance of the irony of fate if such a policy were forced on the Wilson administration and as intervention would mean a long costly guerilla warfare, it may be assumed that President Wilson will not take action until absolutely compelled to do so. But he cannot tolerate indefinitely the continuance of anarchy."

House of Lords To Go?

NEW YORK, July 17.—A cable to The Tribune from London says:

"The latest political sensation is the Asquith announcement that the Government will next year bring in a bill to reform the Lords. There can be no doubt that this will set all the present peers preparing for a life-and-death fight.

"It looks as though the Prime Minister were going to bring in a bill for the formation of a new second chamber and then dissolve and go to the country on it. The Cabinet has apparently been formulating plans for some time."

Peculiar Case For Doctors.

MARINETTE, Wis., July 17.—Every time it thunders Lucy Sephalia, 12 years old, of Dollar Bay, Mich., loses her voice. She first lost her voice six weeks ago, during a thunder storm. Shortly afterwards it was restored when she was playfully frightened by a friend. In each electric storm since that time the same thing has happened. Each time her voice has been restored by a prearranged surprise or shock. Many physicians have been studying the case.

Explosive In the Letter.

LONDON, July 17.—An explosion, attributed by the police to militant suffragettes, is reported to have occurred at the Dublin postoffice yesterday.

A sorter was stamping a letter addressed to John Dillon, Irish Nationalist member of Parliament for the east division of Mayo, when the missive blew up and badly injured the employe's hand.

Stole Electricity, Goes To Jail.

MONTREAL, July 17—Three months in jail without the option of a fine, was the sentence handed down yesterday by Judge Bazin to Francois X. Guillevin, contracting electrician, who was found guilty of the theft of electricity from the Montreal Light, Heat & Power Co. Guillevin had the wires in his store arranged in such a way that the electric current he was using for the lighting of his premises was not passing through the meter.

REV. DR. JACKSON WILL EXPLAIN

Methodist Minister Will State Views on Religion

LONDON, July 17.—Under the presidency of Rev. Luke Wiseman, outgoing president, the Wesleyan conference was opened Tuesday evening at King Street Chapel, Plymouth. Over a thousand ministers and laymen attended. An invitation to meet at Leeds next year was accepted. Rev. F. S. Collier of Manchester Mission was selected president for the ensuing year.

The evening's business was largely formal. Some doubt is expressed as to whether the question of the Didsbury appointment can be raised at all in a representative session, which is by its constitution debarred from discussion of theological issues, but it is not unlikely that Rev. George Jackson himself may ask permission to make a plain statement of his views, and if this is accorded, it is difficult to see how a general debate can be avoided. A section of the opposition are already clamoring for his expulsion from the ministry.

Must Add to Crews.

BROCKVILLE, July 17.—An inspector of the Marine Department at Washington has been on the river the past few days, and as a result of his investigations ten steamers have been ordered to increase the membership of crews. The ferry steamer Biglow, plying between here and Morristown, has come under the clause, and yesterday three man were added to her crew.

Rifled Brockville Barroom.

BROCKVILLE, July 17.—Early yesterday morning burglars forced a door in the cellar of the Continental Hotel. From there they worked their way into the barroom and carried off a large quantity of liquor [illegible], besides rifling the cash drawer.

BULGARIA TURNS TURK

The Balkan States are still in the crucible and no one can predict with any amount of certainty what will be the outcome of the sanguinary struggle that is going on among the much be-lauded victors over Turkey.

The present Bulgarian atrocities will remind the world of the campaign made by Gladstone to punish the unspeakable Turk.

Those were ringing days and the speeches of Gladstone on the Bulgarian question were models of noble passion and righteous indignation.

But what would Mr. Gladstone think of those very Bulgarians whose cause and innocence he pleaded so eloquently, having turned Turk and wading in the blood of their fellow Christians?

From the accounts that come daily from the seat of hostilities the horrible acts of barbarism perpetrated by these newly emancipated people read like a re-echo of the horrors which they suffered at the hands of the Turk a generation or two ago.

That such a squalid affair is allowed to proceed in the midst of a number of highly civilized nations who could stop the whole thing seems strange to the common mind.

But the fact is Europe is in the same condition as she was in Gladstone's day. The Powers are not united and any interference on the part of one of the parties would be the signal for an European armageddon.

To step in and attempt to stop a fight is generally a rather risky business, and often only aggravates the trouble and brings the combined forces of the combatants about your ears for your trouble.

There is a gleam of hope in the latest news from the seat of the war which states that Bulgaria is now suing for peace, and that Servia and Greece are willing to make terms, but there are so many to divide the spoil that there is bound to be a scramble among them for some time.

In the meantime the European money market is at a standstill and the London Stock Exchange men who have interests in the Balkans are heartily blessing the billigerents.

NEW ARBITRATION LAW

Much credit is due to President Wilson in his prompt legislative action which has averted a general strike on American railroads.

Railroads are the main arteries of a country, and when these get out of order or a stoppage takes place the whole system of the nation is affected, as was seen a year or so ago in England when the holding up of the railroads brought cities to the point of starvation and almost proved a national calamity.

For the most part these disputes between labor and capital have been allowed to settle themselves in Great Britain, but the folly and suicidal policy of strikes of all kinds are becoming more clearly apparent to both master and man. Arbitration is much more resorted to in the settlement of labor disputes.

In Canada we have already legislation in existence for dealing with such disputes in the Lemeaux Act which provides for the appointment of an arbitration board of three; two to be nominated by the disputants and a third to be mutually agreed upon, or failing this, to be nominated by the Minister of Labor.

In the States some attempt has been made along similar lines through what is known as the Eardman Act. But both employer and workman objected, as being composed of three, it left large powers in the hands of one man.

A new Act, assented to by the Senate this week, acting under suggestions from President Wilson, has been the means of averting, for the present, what might have proved a disastrous tie-up of the whole of the railroad traffic of the east.

The new Act will create what will be known as the United States Board of Mediation and Conciliation to be composed of a commissioner of mediation and conciliation, appointed by the President with the consent of the Senate with a salary of $7,500 and a tenure of seven years, and not more than two other officials of the Government already appointed by the President with the consent of the Senate, who shall be designated by him as the two other members of the board. There also will be an assistant commissioner with a salary of $5,000 authorized to act in the commissioner's absence. For the settlement of controversies as they arise, the act provides for boards of arbitration of six or three to be selected with the help of Board of Mediation and Conciliation wherever necessary. The latter board will pass upon any disagreements among the arbitrators. Awards made by the Board will be executed by the Federal Courts with which appeals can be filed.

It will be generally admitted that this new law is a vast improvement upon the old dispensation, where neither parties need agree to the findings of the arbitration board. This permanent commission forms a high court of appeal which ought to command the respect and confidence of both labor and capital. Canadians will watch its operation with interest and be ready to follow the example of their neighbors over the line should this new experiment prove effective in bringing about a better understanding and more reasonable relation between employer and employed.

CATTLE MARKETS

UNION STOCK YARDS.

TORONTO, July 16.—Receipts of live stock at the Union Yards were 98 cars—1543 cattle, 960 hogs, 1701 sheep and lambs, 515 calves and 10 horses.

Exporters.

William Howard bought on Tuesday 200 steers for Swift & Co. of Chicago, as follows: One hundred steers for London, 1385 lbs. each (at $6.85 to $7.15; also 100 steers for Liverpool, 1350 lbs. each, at $6.75 to $6.90.

Butchers.

Choice butchers sold at $6.75 to $7; good, $6.50 to $6.75; medium, $6.20 to $6.45; common, $5 to $6; inferior, $4.75 to $5; choice cows, $5.25 to $5.75; medium, $4.50 to $5; cutters, $3.50 to $4.25; canners, $2 to $2.50; export bulls, $5.60 to $5.55; butcher bulls, $4.75 to $5.50.

Stockers and Feeders.

The demand for stockers and feeders is not nearly as strong, and prices are easier. Steers, 750 to 900 lbs., $5.50 to $5.85; stockers, 450 to 700 lbs., at $4 to $5.25; eastern stockers, $3 to $4.25 per cwt.

Milkers and Springers.

There was a fair delivery of milkers and springers, which sold at from $30 to $80 each, the bulk of sales being made at $50 to $70. Very choice quality cows sell at $75 to $80, but there are few of these coming forward.

Veal Calves.

The market for veal calves was easier, but prices were little, if any, lower. There were more calves offered, and it was easier to get a supply at the same prices as on Tuesday. Choice calves sold at $8.75 to $9.50; good calves, $7.75 to $8.50; medium, $6.50 to $7.50; common, $5.50 to $6; eastern calves, $4.50 to $5.

Sheep and Lambs.

The sheep market remained steady, but on account of larger deliveries of lambs prices declined about 25c per cwt. in comparison with Tuesday's quotations. Light ewes, $4 to $4.50 and $5; heavy ewes and rams sold at $2 to $3.50; lambs, the bulk sold at $9 to $9.50 for choice, and good lambs at $8 to $8.75; culls, at $6.50 per cwt.

Hogs.

Selects, fed and watered, sold at $9.75 to $9.90, fed and watered, the bulk of sales being reported at $9.90 to $9.85. Hogs sold at $9.50 f.o.b. cars.

MONTREAL LIVE STOCK.

MONTREAL, July 16.—At the C. P. R. live stock market the receipts for the week ended July 12 were 950 cattle, 1425 sheep and lambs, 1126 hogs and 1500 calves. The offerings on the market today for sale amounted to 950 cattle, 925 sheep and lambs, 926 hogs and 1300 calves.

There was no further change in the condition of the market for cattle, except that really choice steers, cows and bulls were scarce, there being none on the market, and in consequence top prices were not realized, but for the quality of the stock offered the tone of the market was steady. The gathering of buyers was fairly large, and, as they all wanted some beef to carry them over for the balance of the week, the demand was fair for the best stock, but the trade in the more common grades was slow. A few good steers sold at $6.75 to $7; fair at $6 to $6.25; medium at $5 to $5.75, and common at $4 to $4.50 per 100 pounds. Butchers' cows sold at from $5 to $6.50, and bulls, $4 to $4.25. Canners sold at $3 to $3.75 per 100 pounds.

A fair trade was done in all lines of small meats, and the market was fairly active. The supply of sheep and lambs was rather small, and prices ruled firm, with sales of the former at $3.75 to $4.50 per 100 pounds, and the latter at $4 to $6.50 each, as to size and quality.

Calves were easier, and prices ranged from $3 to $8 each. Hogs were firm under a good demand, and sales of selected lots were made at $10.20 to $10.40, while heavy, rough stock sold at $9.50 per 100 pounds, weighed off cars.

CHICAGO LIVE STOCK.

CHICAGO, July 16.—Cattle—Receipts, 16,500; market steady. Beeves, $7.10 to $9.15; Texas steers, $7 to $8.10; western steers, $7.15 to $8.20; stockers and feeders, $5.60 to $7.90; cows and heifers, $3.50 to $8.50; calves, $8.50 to $11.25.

Hogs—Receipts, 21,000; market active, 10c up; light, $8.75 to $9.40; mixed, $8.60 to $9.35; heavy, $8.55 to $9.30; rough, $8.55 to $8.75; pigs, $7.20 to $9.15; bulk of sales, $8.75 to $9.10.

Sheep and Lambs—Receipts, 27,000; market 10c to 15c lower; native, $3.40 to $4.40; western, $4.40 to $5.35; yearlings, $5.75 to $7.25; lambs, native, $6.75 to $8.50; western, $6.75 to $8.50.

A Curious Superstition.

Among the superstitions of the Seneca Indians was this most beautiful one: When a young maiden died they imprisoned a young bird until it first began to try its powers of song, and then, loading it with caresses and messages, they loosed its bonds over her grave in the belief that it would not fold its wings nor close its eyes until it had flown to the spirit land and delivered its precious burden of affection to the loved and lost one.

HER SUITORS

They Wouldn't Be Refused

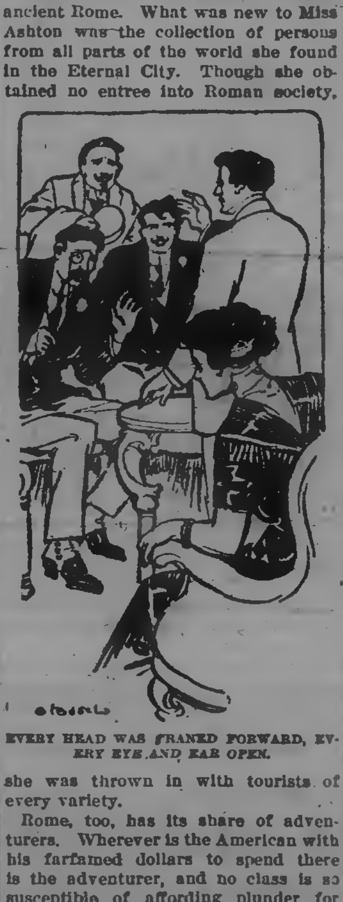
By ELEANOR TREADWELL

Miss Marguerite Ashton, a young lady of Chicago, was left alone in the world at nineteen by the death of father and mother with a fortune of two millions. Miss Ashton's brother had died several years before the others; consequently all her father's property descended to her. He had left the management of the estate to a young man be had brought up in his business, Edmond Warfield, in whose hands he felt that it would be perfectly safe and his daughter would reap the benefit of every cent, for Warfield was not only a man of excellent business judgment, but perfectly honest and honorable. At the time of Mr. Ashton's death Warfield was in his prime, being thirty-five years old.

The Ashtons were of the newly rich, Mr. Ashton having made the bulk of his fortune in a large real estate speculation shortly before his death. His daughter had no knowledge of the world or of society. There was no near relative with whom she could make her home, and she did not relish living alone. It was natural, therefore, that she should wish to see something of the world, and, being invited to join a party going abroad, she decided to avail herself of the opportunity.

After visiting the principal cities of western Europe Miss Ashton found herself in Rome at the most expensive hotel there. She was still the unsophisticated Chicago girl, but her surroundings had changed. This difference for her did not consist in the vast field of antiquity about her, for, although fairly educated, a girl of twenty is not likely to be versed in the literature that has been handed down to us from ancient Rome. What was new to Miss Ashton was the collection of persons from all parts of the world she found in the Eternal City. Though she obtained no entree into Roman society, she was thrown in with tourists of every variety.



EVERY HEAD WAS CRANED FORWARD, EVERY EYE AND EAR OPEN.

Rome, too, has its share of adventurers. Wherever is the American with his farfamed dollars to spend there is the adventurer, and no class is so susceptible of affording plunder for dissolute foreigners as American heiresses.

Miss Ashton could not long remain in one place without attracting the attention of these cormorants. She was simplicity itself. When visiting the golden house of Nero—and the guide showed her a ruined apartment as the emperor's smoking room—she did not stop to consider that some fifteen centuries had elapsed after Nero's time before tobacco was introduced into Europe. When inspecting tableware exhumed from Pompeii and the guide showed her certain dishes from which be told her the Pompeians drank their coffee it did not occur to her that a similar period had elapsed before Europe had begun to enjoy that beverage. It is not strange that a girl so easily deceived in these matters should put faith in any man who claimed that he loved her.

Miss Ashton spent a winter in Rome, and when spring came she had received a number of propositions of marriage. There are many princes in Italy, for every one descended from an ancient ruler of one of the formerly independent principalities of what is now United Italy bears the title of prince or princess. Among Miss Ashton's train of suitors were a prince, an English earl, a German baron and a French marquis.

It was fortunate for Miss Ashton that there were so many of these suitors that they balanced one another. Had there been but one it is quite probable that by persistence he might have won the prize. The prince poured into her ear tales of his beautiful home in Sicily, where they could dream the happy hours away. The earl pictured his estates in Hereford, England (loaded with mortgages); the baron his schloss in Westphalia, Germany. The marquis spoke eloquently of his chateau on the banks of the Loire that had been the home of kings and had descended to him through thirteen generations.

To this nobleman the young lady said that she could not think of marrying into the thirteenth generation, since that was an unlucky number.

Miss Ashton after her father's death became used to looking upon Edmond Warfield as a sort of manager for anything, irrespective of finances, that she could not manage herself. He had made all the arrangements for her trip. He had heard not a word from her since her departure till one day he received a cablegram: "Do please come to Rome at once. I am all tangled up."

Though she did not know it, Marguerite Ashton had been an object of interest to Warfield from the time she was five years old and used to climb on his lap to listen to stories he would tell her. She was to him the daughter of the man who had given him his opportunity for his life's work. He was busy at the time he received the cablegram, and it was difficult for him to leave Chicago. Nevertheless he sailed at once for Naples and in a few hours after his arrival in Italy was in Rome.

"Well, Margie, what is it?" he asked as soon as the two had settled down to business.

"I'll tell you. I can't imagine how it happened that so many men should have fallen in love with me at once. I suppose it's the Italian air or something, but it's so. And the worst of it is that none of them will be refused. There's Prince Bolozzi. I've told him again and again that I can't love him, and he threatens to jump into the Tiber. Baron Becker says if I won't go with him to his estates in Westphalia as his wife his life will hereafter be one dark cloud. Earl Biddleton pleaded his cause so pathetically that I couldn't help saying 'Yes.' I've half promised the marquis, and, indeed, there isn't one of them I'm not partly committed to."

"I see no way out of it for you," said Warfield, "but to go into a betrothal bankruptcy. However, I'll make inquiries about these gentlemen and report to you if any of them bears a good reputation. If so and you wish to marry him I'll help you out with the others—which as your guardian I have a right to do—and you can be wedded to the man of your choice whenever you like."

"There isn't any of them the man of my choice."

"Well, then, we'll have to get rid of the lot."

"How can that be done without the prince jumping into the Tiber and the marquis"—

"We'll have them locked up till they get over it."

"Oh, my goodness gracious! I could never look them in the face again."

"It would be just as well that you shouldn't. However, my dear Margie, having brought me over here to get you out of your difficulty, perhaps you'd better leave the matter to me."

"That's just what I'd like—that is, if you don't mind such an awful job."

"It won't be so hard for me as it would for you. Don't see any of them till tomorrow afternoon. Then I'll fix it all up so that you won't have any more trouble. Write each of them a note asking him to call here tomorrow at 3 p. m. to receive your final answer."

"All at once? Great heavens, I couldn't do that! They would kill one another."

Warfield persisted and went away with a note for each of the suitors, which he posted at once.

The next afternoon Warfield called before the others. He exacted a promise from Marguerite that she would bear him out in any statement he might make, though he was obliged to assure her that nothing harsh should be said to any of them.

The prince arrived at ten minutes before the appointed hour and was required to wait below. The marquis came next and the baron next. All were in the hotel at 3, and a few minutes later all received a summons to Miss Ashton's private parlor. Scarcely had one entered before there was a rap at the door and another stood at the opening. There was no time for conversation since they came so near together. Some of them recognized others as rivals, and they glared mutually. When they had all been admitted Warfield, who was formally introduced to them, said:

"Gentlemen, Miss Ashton has desired me to announce to you that, having been honored by a proposition of marriage from each and all of you, she has considered your propositions and come to a conclusion."

The speaker paused and cleared his throat, while the visitors were visibly agitated with expectancy.

Miss Ashton looked from her advocate to the men, whom she expected to either kill one another or commit suicide if refused, like a frightened bird. Warfield proceeded:

"Having carefully weighed the matter in her mind, Miss Ashton has decided to bestow her hand on"—

"Myself."

There was a rumbling of voices similar to that accompanying an earthquake. In another moment Warfield turned toward Marguerite and asked:

"Do you confirm what I have said?"

"Yes, I do!" exclaimed the girl as if she were casting off a burden.

The suitors withdrew in a body, to separate as soon as possible, leaving Warfield and Marguerite together.

"How did you know that?" asked the latter.

"Know what?"

"Why, that I liked you better than any of them?"

Warfield, who was amazed at the revelation, was about to reply "I didn't," but instead he said, "A little bird whispered it in my ear."

The Gentle Art of Making Enemies.

Pierre Loti's book on the Balkan war does not represent the first occasion on which he has spoken his mind in regard to a campaign. But whereas neither England nor the United States ever bore him malice for his criticism on the South African war and the Philippine campaign respectively, he has received innumerable insulting and threatening letters from Italians for his strictures on the war in Tripoli. In fact, for some months he was in the habit of throwing away unopened all letters bearing Italian postmarks. — London Globe.

Japan's Great Bronze Bell.

In the temple of Chionin, at Kyoto, Japan, is a wonderful bronze bell, said to weigh 100 tons, and when its mellow boom is heard the pedestrian stands still, and the workman pauses to listen, the vibrations being felt over a large area. It has no tongue, but the end of a wooden beam, suspended horizontally in a platform, swings forcibly against the brazen mass. There are only two larger bells in the world, that of Mindon Min, in Burma, and one at Moscow.

Four Burned By Explosion.

HALIFAX, July 16.—Three men and a boy were badly burned by an explosion on board the schooner Rolfe at Parrsboro yesterday. The schooner loaded coal for Digby and was getting ready to sail when one of the crew, Richard Willgar, went down to the forward hatch to get a tackle. When he lit a match a terrible explosion followed. Captain Leonard Rowe was badly burned about the face and hands James Llewelyn and Richard Willgar, seamen, were both burned about the hands and faces, and the captain's son was stunned and burned.

Spies Lose Their Quarry.

MONTREAL, July 16.—Two Russian spies who were watching Jan Zuklig, of St. Petersburg, on his voyage to Canada aboard the Wittekind, of the Canada line, have been quarantined at Grosse Isle owing to an outbreak of smallpox, while the man they were watching was allowed to go.

TOO BUSY TO TALK.

Two figures sat in the early night.

One was a man who was half afraid,
The other a timid, shrinking maid.

A friendly cloud came over the sky,

He reached an arm, and he turned his face
And kissed that maid in the proper place.

And all was silent except for this:
The lonely echo of that one kiss.

She may have blushed or she may have not;
She silently sat in that selfsame spot,

While the man no syllable spoke aloud,
But waited and watched for another cloud.

The cloud soon came and another, too,
And he did what any man would do.

And still that maiden, who scarcely stirred,
Just sat and uttered no single word

Until, as he gave her one on the cheek,
He cried, "Oh, tell me, why don't you speak?"

And the maiden said, with impatient sigh:
"Not now. Let's wait till the clouds roll by."

—Pearson's Weekly.

A Double Confession.

Mr. and Mrs. Justbinwed occupied the same armchair.

"Darling," suddenly whispered he into her little pink ear, "I shall never be really happy until I've told you something."

His little wife's heart fluttered wildly as she cooed:

"Then tell me, love."

"You remember the reason you married me, don't you?" resumed her reminiscent hubby. "You gave yourself to me in gratitude for my having saved your life from drowning. Isn't that so?"

"Yes, sweetheart." Little Mrs. J.'s voice was sweetly tremulous.

"Well, dearest," her better half continued, with set face and tragic calm. "I deceived you. The water was but waist-deep."

Then out of nowhere came a meek, small voice, which said:

"Don't worry, dear. I know, because I had my foot on the sand all the time."—Detroit News-Tribune.

Inside Information.

Mother — If you could have eaten that entire jar of jam without a single twinge of conscience you must be thoroughly bad.

Willie—No, mother; I am confident there is something good in me.—Yale Record.

His Business.

"Ah! A professional politician, is he?"

"Nothing of the sort. He's a barber."—Baltimore American.

RHEUMATIC SUFFERERS ASTONISHED

Anybody can afford to pay 50 cents to get rid of terrible rheumatism, Sciatica or Gout, and that's all RHEUMA costs at Warne's Drug Company and they say if it doesn't do all that is claimed for it, money back.

It's wonderful how speedily this simple remedy takes hold and how the sore muscles limber up and the swollen joints come down to normal. Make no mistake—RHEUMA costs but little, but its the best remedy you can find to drive Rheumatic poison from the system and bring back health to misery-racked bodies.

"I had Rheumatism for a long while, and tried many medicines, but was not cured until I tried RHEUMA. I cannot praise RHEUMA too highly. My advice to those suffering from Rheumatism is to use this great remedy, as I believe it will effect a permanent cure in any case."—C. B. Lanham, Sattes, W. Va., April 27, 1912.

Triple Drowning.

BROCKVILLE, July 16.—Relatives of Wesley Doran, a well-known molder of Brockville, are anxious concerning his whereabouts, as searches since Sunday have failed entirely to locate him.

Early on the day previous he went fishing with J. Empey, crossing to the American side. Returning to one of the islands the pair dined on the catch. Empey says that two men came along and Doran went out with them, and that is the last he had seen of him. There was a heavy blow on the river and it is feared that Doran and his companions have met with a watery grave.

Canoe Wrecked, Indian Saved.

COCHRANE, July 15.—An Indian guide who was one of a party accompanying J. Dobie, an official of the Indian Department, who is going in to survey a reserve at new post, had a narrow escape while running the Long Sault rapids on the Abitibi.

His canoe struck a rock and a large piece was torn out of the bottom, but the guide managed to keep afloat by clinging to the water filled craft until others in the party came to his assistance.

Solons In Session.

SASKATOON, Sask., July 16.—Mayors and aldermen with their city engineers, city clerks and other civic officials from all parts of Canada registered at Convention Hall for the union of Canadian municipalities convention which opened yesterday.

BALL CLUB TO IMPROVE LEFT FIELD AT RIVERSIDE

The use of such road scrapings not needed by the City Engineer, was given to the Baseball Club last night by the Board of Works. The club must do the teaming.

The scrapings will be used in left field at Riverside Park, so that the Petes and the visiting clubs will not run the danger of losing their [illegible] ball fielder in this treacherous territory.

It is hoped that the judicious use of these scrapings will place the left field on a par with the remainder of the grounds. Such being the case there wont be so many hits recorded in left field as it has been the custom for the scorers to deal very leniently with the fielders when the ball gets through.

CHAPDELAINE HIRES WITH THE ENEMY AND PETES LOSE

Hamilton, July 17.—The Kolts truly truly and actually broke into the victory column here yesterday afternoon, when they defeated Peterborough in the last game of the three-game series by a score of 2 to 1. "Patsy" Dougherty, who heaved on Monday, was asked to work again to-day by Manager Lee, and at all times he was master of the situation, allowing but four scratch hits, scattered through as many innings. The Kolts scored in the initial inning when Murphy received a pass, was sacrificed to second, stole third and came home on Killilea's sacrifice fly. Brant scored Peterborough's only tally in the fifth ~~inning, and~~ Chapdelaine broke the tie in the sixth by notching a run for the Kolts. Owing to injuries received in the game yesterday, Fisher was unable to catch for Hamilton, and the locals were forced to use Chapdelaine, a spare Peterborough catcher. Chapdelaine played better ball, and was largely responsible for the defeat of his team-mates. Tracey pitched good ball for the visitors, but errors at critical moments were disastrous for him.

PETES LOOK GOOD AT HAMILTON

The Hamilton Spectator says;

The way that the Rowanites hit, when hits meant runs, was the cause of the Tigers' downfall, and despite the fact that the Petes have been travelling along near the bottom of the ladder for the greater part of the season, it can easily be seen that if they keep up their present good work both at the bat, in the field and on the bases they will shortly be in the first division, fighting hard with the leaders for the bacon Davey Rowan has secured an aggregation that can hit the ball hard and far, and if they are not up fighting with the leaders before many days have passed, it will not be the fault of their batting ability. A two-bagger, three triples and eight singles, most of which were clean, is not bad for one day's picking, all of which goes to show that in order to be in the game in a position which is worth while every player on the team has to be able to take his turn and come across with a bit once in a while.

The feature of the game was the superb pitching of Sterling. The Tigers secured a hit in the first and two in the second inning, but were unable to connect for any more until the seventh, when they secured another single, and again in the ninth, when Dougherty, who batted for Donohue, managed to get credit for hit on what should have been an out if the ball had been fielded faster. The only time that he appeared to be weakening was in the second frame, when he walked two batters and allowed two safe hits and a fielder's choice, resulting in two runs being scored. Again in the seventh he got a trifle wild and allowed two men to walk, and gave a single, but he recovered himself in time to save the day, when things looked rather bad.

SPORTING GOSSIP

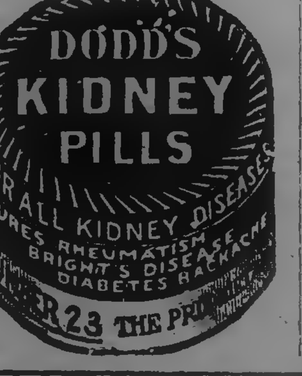
Brodie, the Peterboro cast-off, shows lack of experience, particularly in the pinches and will probably be the first to be given transportation. —St. Thomas Times.

Billy Wright failed to turn up at Berlin yesterday and has wired that he will report here Thursday. McNeal, the Peterboro catcher, who was to have reported, failed to put in an appearance, and as he is still working for Peterboro, evidently does not intend to play with Guelph. Crawley, a first class receiver, hailing from Toledo, has been signed, and will report at once. — Guelph Mercury.

Experiments by the poultry departments of the O.A.C. with Buff Orpingtons, Rhode Island Reds and White Leghorns showed that buttermilk produced the most and cheapest eggs, while no animal food in all instances gave the best eggs for hatching.



LIFE INSURANCE

THE pessimist and the prophet of woe have no rightful place in any consideration of the expediency of insuring life. But certain hard facts should be squarely faced by every man of moderate means who has anyone dependent on him. Hundreds of men are yearly rejected for life insurance who would have been accepted had they not delayed their applications until ill health had come upon them. Why do men in good condition take such a long chance of remaining well? It is an impressive fact that out of 8549 holders of policies in a leading life insurance company who died in the past year, only 64 died of old age. The remainder were carried away by disease or accident. Hence the wisdom of insuring early in life. The best years for saving are from 20 to 40, and no man should let that period pass without taking out an insurance policy. For that part of his career an endowment policy, which is likely to mature while he is still living and can secure the proceeds of it himself, is to be preferred.

There will probably always be poor old men, their ranks will be recruited from the successful men of an earlier date, and fortunate is he who has made certain provision by means of endowment insurance in the Sun Life Assurance Company of Canada.

BUILDING PERMITS IN PETERBORO'

The published review of building operations throughout the Dominion for June this year show a falling off of about 25 per cent., due largely to the stringency in the money market. Peterborough is credited with issuance of permits during June for $94,806.00, about $30,000.00 more than during June of 1812, or an increase of 41 per cent. The six months of 1913 show a total of $305,165.00 in building expenditure, part of which is to be completed.

STUDENTS HAVE A PENCHANT FOR BACKWOODS JOBS.

From the Time That the "Freshie" Hears of Wild Adventures In the Bush From His Sophomore Friend, Nothing Can Keep Him Out of the Back Country — Fraternities Find Jobs For Members.

Convocation has brought the college year to a close, and over three thousand students have been let loose from the University of Toronto. Ninety-five per cent. of them will scatter over Canada, holding down jobs and turning themselves into men. The distinguishing feature of Canadian college life is that the men and a large number of the women students either partially or wholly put themselves through. Whether wealthy or poor the popular thing to do is to get a job for the vacation.

Two things generally face students when spring comes round. They see a rough passage ahead of them through a labyrinth of examinations. Scarcely less important is the job for the vacation. "What are you going to do next summer?" This is the topic of the hour for a month or two before exam. time. The "schoolmen" discuss the question in their draughting rooms, the meds. in their dissecting room, the arts men in the library.

The fraternity houses become employment bureaus for the members—a striking contrast to the American Fraternity, where the Ippi Yi Kis are more likely to be arranging the summer resort that they will patronize during the vacation. Canadian frat. men use their connections to land smooth jobs. The graduate members have influence in the fraternity councils in proportion to their capability to furnish jobs, and they respond liberally. The fraternities usually look after their own members. The rest of the students have to dig for their own jobs and they get them, too. They scatter themselves all over Canada. They find their way into many different industries and knock down from five to fifty dollars a week.

When the spoon-fed freshman gets acclimatized he falls in line with the prevailing idea and begins to hunt up a job for the vacation. The job his friend Bill, a seasoned soph., had last year, seems good to him. Bill was up north on a survey. He ate moose-meat, saw whisky-runners, shot rapids, worked with Indians, and has a first-class Ojibway vocabulary to make his tales more picturesque. The freshman hears this in the draughtroom, in the dissecting room, in the library or in his frat. What these sophs. have been through makes a tremendous impression on him. "Honest, manly toil" never appeared to him in the same light before. He is probably up north now in the thick of it.

Then the junior comes back to his college halls in the fall. He is an experienced superior being. He hasn't made himself round-shouldered packing or pulling a chain. He sat in the shade all summer on the banks of a big northern river, watching its black waters passing on their way to Hudson Bay. He smoked many pounds of Hudson Bay Co. tobacco and incidentally used up a lot of fly oil. He was fire-ranging for the Ontario Government.

A job in the wilds is the most attractive. Northern Ontario tales will earn a man a fine reputation amongst his fellow-students. The "call of the wilds" appeals especially to a city or town-bred student. These boys go where they get deep-chested and sun-burned via hard work and an open air life. Moreover, this is a good football preliminary—an important consideration.

The student from the country, however, has seen enough of the simple life in the bush at the back of his father's hundred acres. He may work as a book agent or go out west and take a summer school, but the majority go back home and work on their farms, telling strange stories of college life which make them heroes in their community. The theological students take missions up in Northern Ontario and in the west, and get very useful experience.

A whole lot of the students take to the sea-faring life. They "rush the growler" on our lake passenger boats.

School teaching is losing its grip as summer employment. The men can make more money at other things, and school teaching does not seem very exciting. The women students, however, supply the west with a large number of teachers for the summer schools.

You find very few Canadian college men going abroad in the summer, or dangling their heels in our summer resorts, telling fibs about college life. In this respect the Canadian university presents a striking contrast to the English and American universities. The students at Oxford and Cambridge belong to the leisured class in Britain. Their examinations are held in the fall. They study and travel during the vacation. They have no opportunity to work. The American college students are of course more like ours. The poorer ones work of necessity. The majority do not.

Vacation work is certainly a feature and a fine feature of Canadian college life. The boys get a job and make no bones about it. It's the proper thing to do. The sturdy independence of the Canadian student is characteristic, and it is this vacation work which produces this desirable type. This more than anything else turns the green freshman into the worldly, independent soph., and produces graduates who are real men.—Toronto Telegram.

Child Hurt By Auto.

GALT, July 17.—Yesterday at noon at Queen's square crossing, a little son of Mr. and Mrs. Gardner, who live in Schlarbaum block, was knocked down by a motor truck and one wheel passed over his leg close to the hip. The accident was witnessed by a number of people, who say the lad stepped off the sidewalk when the motor truck was a couple of lengths away, and made as if crossing the road. The driver, G. McGavin, is not to blame.

Not a Bit Like Cricket.

The Englishman was attending his first ball game. He seemed very uneasy after the fifth inning and finally said to his American friend:

"I say, old chap, when do they serve the tea?"

"No tea between innings?" gasped the Englishman. "Then what's the object of the blooming game?"—Cincinnati Enquirer.

HE NOW BELIEVES IN "FRUIT-A-TIVES"

Because He No Longer Suffers With Headaches

TAYLORVILLE, ONT.

"I was a sufferer from Fearful Headaches for over two years. Sometimes, they were so bad that I was unable to work for days at a time. I took all kinds of medicine, was treated by physicians, but yet the Headaches persisted.

A short time ago, I was advised to try "Fruit-a-tives" and I did so, with I must confess, very little faith. But after I had taken them for three days, my Headaches were easier and in a week they left me.

After I had taken a box of these tablets, my headaches were quite cured. My appetite was always poor and my stomach bad—and now my appetite is splendid and my digestion excellent.

I had become thin and weak from the constant Headaches but now not only have I been cured of all these awful Headaches, but my strength is growing up once more and I feel like a new man"

ALL MILK VENDORS MUST HAVE LICENSE

Bylaw Applies to Small Retailer and it Will be Enforced

No person shall sell or offer for sale, or keep or supply milk to any person without a license.

H. Shurter faced Magistrate Dumble at Police Court this morning charged with violating the above clause of a by-law.

Magistrate Dumble made no conviction in the case, but said that the by-law would be enforced and that any person violating the same would be liable to prosecution.

The case was a test one, as the Sanitary Inspector has received numerous complaints regarding private parties who have been supplying their neighbors with milk for some years without paying the $1 fee for a license. Those supplying milk to people without a license may still do so by paying the fee of $1.

The licensed milk vendors of the city have complained about the practice.

Was it an Accident?

It may be that there is more truth than fiction in the story that Sanitary Inspector Spence insisted that a local scribe should take a bath, and accordingly, confined the said scribe to the cleansing waters of the Otonabee.

This is what happened:

The Inspector and Chas. Hastings a member of the reportorial staff of the Examiner, went fishing last evening. The objective point was above the Auburn dam and it was during this excursion that the mishap occurred. Further particulars are lacking.

People who think they are good looking have a warm place in the hearts of photographers.

IMPORTANCE OF PAIN SYMPTOMS

Dr. Caruthers, Osteopath Tells of the Imprudence of Attempting to Allay Pain Before Removing the Cause

Pain is one of Nature's most important signals. To remove the signal before obviating the danger is parallel to taking away the warning from a weak bridge before strengthening the bridge. Too many people think that the pain is the only thing that has to be considered and when the pain is relieved, no matter how, they assume that everything is in perfect condition.

In most of the very large buildings constructed of late, there are installed automatic fire warning apparatus, which, upon certain rise in the temperature give a signal at the central station by ringing a gong. What would we think of the man at the central station, if he took off the gong so that he would not be annoyed by its ringing? Would we feel safe knowing that the gong had been disconnected and no further attention paid to the warning? Yet this is what is being done thousands upon thousands of times every hour of the day throughout the land.

Pain is not a disease, it is simply a warning, just as the sound of the gong is not the fire itself, simply a notice that there is a fire somewhere in the building. Another simil may be drawn in this connection:— Just as the fire may be in a part of the building remote from the gong that gives the warning, so the cause may be at a totally different part of the body from the location of the pain. For instance the familiar picture of a man with a doleful countenance and his hand on the small of his back is generally supposed, and advertised, to mean that the individual has kidney trouble, when the truth is that a pain in that region is hardly every present in such cases, while a persistent headache is one of the cardinal symptoms of of serious kidney disease. Such a headache can be cured by the cure of the cause, i.e. the kidney trouble; but the latter can never be cured by deadening the nerves that report the headache. "A headache tablet is mortgage on your future health; it draws two per cent. a month and is payable on demand."

The most lamentable features of such cases is that those remedies which are most commonly self-prescribed for the headache actually tend to make the original cause worse; just as though the removal of the gong in the case of fire should open a draught to fan the fire to greater intensity. There is an old saying that "the doctor who prescribes for himself has a fool for a patient," the saying is just as true when applied to a layman.

The relief of pain before the cause is determined is about the most foolish thing a layman can do; and if done by a physician is morally criminal.

Dr. A. T. Still, the founder of the Science of Osteopathy, once said to a class of which the writer was a member:—"If you step on a cat's tail, the cat will howl. You may stop the cat's howling by giving it a dose of laudanum or a hypodermic of morphine, but what you should do is to take your foot off the cat's tail."

In these days of appendicitis, etc., after trying the laudanum or morphine, the next proceeding would be to cut off the tail. The poor cat has to suffer in some way, because the lifting of the foot is too simple to be of any good as a remedy.

Thousands of our citizens have been made mentally and morally irresponsible by the administration of pain relieving drugs and it is time that a halt be called in no uncertain tones.

The barns of Messrs. Elias Calvert and W.J. White have been covered with the Pedlar Steel shingle supplied by Mr. W.H. Kennedy of town.

Emily Council acted as a Court of Revision, pursuant to adjournment. The following appeals were presented: Wm. H. Bradburn and Robert Bailey, assessed too high.

After due examination and comparison with the assessment roll and the taking of evidence, the appellants appearing, it was moved by councillor R. Wilson, seconded by councillor S.B. Carew, that the assessment of each appellant be confirmed. The motion carried.

Moved by councillor Herlihey seconded by councillor Carroll, that the following names be added to the assessment roll: Cecil Clarke, King Wharf, George Rush, Bert V. Fee, Sara Adams, Jas. H. Chatten, Martha Thornton, Thos. G. McCague, Jas. B. Gosling, Jas. Galt, Omemee; Henry Deyell, Peterboro; Jas. McDaniel Reaboro; Wm. R. McQuade Omemee, Margaret Mann and F.H. Mann Peterboro; Valentine Tully and Deborah Shaw, Omemee. And that the necessary corrections in and additions on the assessment roll be now made by the clerk, in accordance with the decisions of the court. Carried.

The Council then proceeded to transact general municipal business with the members all present and the Reeve in the chair.

Moved by councillor Wilson, seconded by councillor Herlihey, that the following tenders for the operating and for the working of the road-grader for the coming season be accepted, that is to say, Bert Courtney to operate at $2.50 per dayday Bert Courtney for team and teamster, at $1 per day. Owen Johnston, team and teamster at $1.25 per day, said day to consist of 10 hours and three full days notice to be given on quittance of this contract. Carried.

Miss Maud Handley of Mount Pleasant was in town on Friday visiting friends.

Rev. D.H. and Mrs. Currie with their children, Thirza and Gladstone left on Wednesday for the summer rest at their cottage near their former home.

Mr T.A. Mitchell of Toronto came down on Friday night for a visit with his many freinds of Omemee, where he spent most of his life.

Of 9 candidates that tried the Lower School Entrance to Normal examination at our High School, 8 were successful as follows: E. S. Bradley P.M. Brown, E.E. Colwell, J. Corneil, F. Corneil, C.B. Dewan (H) A. G. W. Poast (H), and J. E. Woodruff, to whom we extend congratulations.

Rev W. F. Chapman returned home on Friday evening from Belleville, where he spent a profitable time at the summer school.

CAUTION!

If people would realize the value of their Eyes they would hesitate before entrusting their care to amateurs, and inexperienced so called Opticians.

The fact that some people have been careless in this regard has been brought to our attention time and again by patients who have come to us wearing glasses that were doing their Eyes more harm than good.

There is no reason why people should suffer with ill-fitted glasses when there is one of the most up-to-date Optical Parlors in Ontario right in this city, conducted by Mr. A. ### LT.-COL. PONTON IS BEST KNOWN FOR MILITARY WORK.

Deputy Registrar of Hastings Has Been a Notable Marksman In His Day, Active In Toronto University Senate, Ontario Bar Executive, Red Cross and Numerous Other Associations.

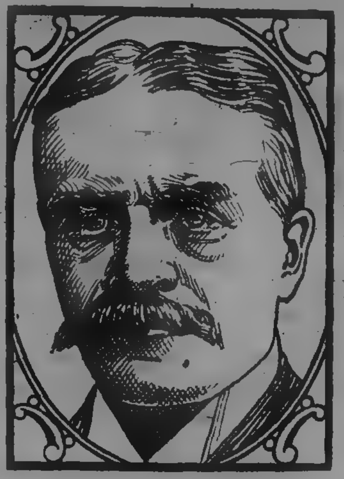
Lt.-Col. William Nisbet Ponton, one of the best-known military men of eastern Ontario, has been for more than forty years deputy registrar of the county of Hastings and comes from good old military Scottish ancestors.

Since he was a young man he has taken a deep interest in rifle shooting and has been an earnest worker on behalf of the volunteer militia of the Dominion, both by example and precept doing all in his power to encourage the force and promote its efficiency. He was a crack rifle shot himself for years and actively participated in rifle shooting contests holding three medals and a championship cup as proof of his prowess as a marksman. He is a member of the Fifteenth Regiment. He entered that body as lieutenant in 1882 and was promoted to captain in 1884, major in 1894 and lieutenant-colonel commandant in 1895. He is acting brigadier major of the Sixth Infantry Brigade and is one of the executives of the Belleville Board of Trade, president of the Bay of Quinte District Exhibition Association and president of the Hastings Law Association, the Veterans' Association and a senator of Toronto University, besides being a very prominent Mason and deputy district grand master for Prince Edward district.



LIEUT.-COL. WILLIAM N. PONTON.

Lieut.-Col. Ponton is vice-president of the local Game and Fish Protective Association, a vice-president of Upper Canada College Old Boys' Association and a vice-president for Ontario of the Canadian branch of the British Red Cross Association and one of the executives of the Ontario Bar Association.

He was born at Belleville in 1856 and was educated at Upper Canada College and Toronto University, being a medallist at the latter institution in 1877. He subsequently studied law and was called to the Ontario Bar in 1881 and has since successfully practiced in the Belleville district. In 1883 he married Miss Sankey, of County Fermanagh, Ireland

The Australian Lyre Bird.

The Queen Victoria Lyre bird is one of the rarest Australian birds, and is a most wonderful songster and mimic, far surpassing any other in these respects. Never common, it is continually becoming scarcer on account of its peculiar habits. Almost all of its life is spent on the ground, the nests are built on or very near the ground, and to make its continued existence still more uncertain, only one egg is laid. Foxes, which were introduced into Australia to furnish amusement for the early colonists who could not give up their English ideas of sport, have practically exterminated the Lyre birds, of which there are three species.

These birds are of dull, though very beautiful plumage, the tails being especially wonderful. First discovered 115 years ago, they were thought to be birds of paradise but it was soon seen that no bird of paradise had any such peculiar tail and the Lyre bird was recognized as constituting a class by himself. Only the males have the lyre-shape tail, and it is only fully developed when the bird is four years old

A Big Incubator.

The largest egg incubator in the United Kingdom, one with a capacity for 3,000 eggs, is now at work on a poultry farm in Kent. The appliance is in reality a succession of incubators joined, operated and controlled by one small automatic heater or fire-pot. The cost of running the incubator is not more than 1s. 3d. a week, as only 15 pounds of anthracite coal is used each day in the fire pot. A well-known authority on poultry culture said that these mammoth incubators should prove a boon to English poultry farmers. As one man can attend satisfactorily to them the labor and capital saved are considerable.

Well Paid Clerk.

"Any clerks underpaid?" asks a British contemporary. There is at least one who is not. Indeed, the suggestion is that he is very much overpaid, and that it is time inquiry was made into his earnings. The clerk in question is a County Council clerk who holds so many appointments that his salary amounts to $25,000 a year. The Lancashire Insurance Committee proposed to appoint him to a post worth $2,500 a year, and it was this proposal which drew attention to the gentleman who can boast of being the highest-paid clerk in the world.

NORWOOD NEWS

Special Correspondence.

Norwood, July 7.—A team of cricketers autoed over to Campbellford on Wednesday for a friendly match with the players of that town.

A baseball match was played between a Hastings nine and a picked up Norwood nine, at the park here Wednesday afternoon. On account of so many of the Norwood players being away from home it was impossible to muster a team to give the visitors an interesting match. The score on a six innings game was strongly in favor of Hastings, the score being somewhere in the neighborhood of 40 to 6.

Rev. W. H. Adams, a former pastor of the Norwood Methodist church, visited friends here a few days last week.

In the absence of the pastor of the Methodist church, Rev. G. Andrews, son of Mr. and Jas. Andrews, of town, occupied the pulpit last Sunday. His sermons both morning and evening were very much appreciated by the congregation and many were heard to remark that the young divine is certainly a coming man.

Messrs. S. Hendron, T. Watson and Ep. Laing, of town and Mr. Fred Hendren of Winnipeg, spent Tuesday of this week at South Lake fishing for bass. Although the weather was favorable yet the fish were not very much on the job, and the fishermen, while they secured some very fine fish were not able to reach their limit.

Mr. J. E. Thompson of town, purchased a fine new Ford runabout from Mr. Duffus of Peterborough on Monday of this week.

J. Stan. Weir, of the Bank of Toronto staff, is at present enjoying his holidays at the popular summer resort, Stony Lake.

Work has commenced in earnest on the new armories at the Fair grounds. Bricklayers are at work building the walls and it is expected the work will be rushed through to an early completion.

The Norwood Church of England will hold a lawn social on the grounds of Mrs. Geo. Grover on Friday evening of this week. Some special attractions are being provided and the Norwood band will be in attendance. A real good time may be expected.

Mr C. B. Coones of Peterboro was in Norwood on Wednesday of this week.

The Finlay factory has shut down for three weeks to give the men their usual summer vacation.

Norwood Board of Education is advertising for an assistant teacher for the High School. By the way applications are coming in there does not appear to be any scarcity of teachers in Ontario.

Norwood, July 14, 1913.

The Board of Education met on the above date. Those present were J. A. Finlay, Chairman; W. H. Cuthbertson, F. Anderson, J. Doherty, J. Marks, C. E. Pakenham, G. H. Niebel, E. C. Squire.

Tenders for boiler were read from the chair:

Dominion Radiator Co., $340.50

A. R. Williams, tubular, $175.00.

25 h.p. Fire Box Boiler, $440.00.

Levy & Westwood Machine Co.

E. Leonard & Son.

Moved by Messrs. Anderson and Cuthbertson, that we write the several firms explaining what our full requirements are in respect to a boiler and obtain lowest quotations on new boiler of sufficient capacity to heat the school.

Messrs. Pakenham and Doherty were instructed to go to Peterborough or Lindsay, or both places, to inspect the different heating apparatus in the schools and report at next meeting.

Moved by Messrs. Doherty and Squire, that the secretary write the Boiler Ins. Co., requesting that the school boiler be inspected at the earliest possible date.

The following accounts were presented:

Caledonian Insurance Company, $25.00.

Alliance Insurance Company, $25.00

W H Tucker, supplies $40.25.

R Lees, presiding at exams, $12.75

Moved by Mr. Cuthbertson, seconded by Mr. Niebel that the account of Mr. W.H. Tucker be referred to the Supply Committee and that the other accounts be paid.

Replies to advertisement for a teacher were read:

E V Carruthers, London; at $600.

Janet M. Morton, Ailsa Craig; at $800.

Miss W.K. Brown, Toronto; $800.

Moved by Mr. Doherty, seconded by Mr. Niebel that the applications be laid over till Monday evening, July 21st.

UNDER ADVERSE WEATHER CONDITIONS SEWER COST MORE THAN ESTIMATE

Hospital Board Billed With Extra Cost but They Refuse to Pay—Board of Works Appoints Committee to Investigate the Reason of the Extra Cost

In the month of November of last year, a duplicate sewer of 310 feet, was constructed on portions of Argyle and Sunnyside streets, to serve the new addition to the Nicholls Hospital.

The Hospital Board agreed to pay $375. The estimate by the City Engineer was $372.

Work proceeded under adverse weather conditions and the work cost $1,283.04. The account at that amount was sent to the Hospital Board, but that body refused to pay more than $375.

The matter had been discussed before but Messrs. R Hall and John Crane again waited on the Board of Works, last night.

The account in full was $1,346.61, but included in this was a bill of $63.57, sent to the Hospital Board by the Peterborough Light and Power Co., as the result of a break in the gas main and the subsequent loss of gas. The Hospital Board maintained that the damage was directly due to the sewer and refused to recognize liability.

COMMITTEE APPOINTED.

It was finally decided that Mayor Bradburn, Chairman Buller and Ald. Anderson should take up the matter with Mr. Hay and the Hospital Board, and report.

Mayor Bradburn held that the Board of Works should have been consulted, when it became known by Mr. Hay that the work could not be done within the estimate.

Ald Duffus was very decided in his opinion that the matter should be thoroughly investigated, as it was the people's money that had been used.

CARE OF INDIGENTS.

During the attendance of Messrs. Hall and Crane, Ald. Gordon turned the discussion into another channel. It was in connection with the accounts rendered to the city by the Hospital for the care of indigents in that institution.

Ald. Gordon held that the Hospital Board should not bill the City for those cases in which payment could be made by the patient. Ald. Gordon objected to the City being made a clerking agency for the Hospital.

A GIFT TO THE CITY.

Mr. Hall, however, made it quite plain that the Hospital had not cost the City a cent and if it had not been for the poor, the city would not have been presented with the hospital. Furthermore the city could have been compelled to construct the sewer at its own expense had the matter been taken to the Board of Health.

Mr. Crane remaked that the hospital had within the year cared for poor patients for a total of 4,000 days. Under the law, the hospital is entitled to $1 per day. "If a sick man comes, you have to look after him."

The general feeling was that the city should deal as liberally as possible with the hospital in view of the good work being done.

COUSIN OF LOCAL PRIEST ELECTROCUTED IN TORONTO

Funeral To-morrow at Downeyville.

No doubt many citizens of this city will regret to learn of the sudden death of Mr. Austin O'Brien, son of Mr. Jas. D. O'Brien, Downeyville. This young man has been working in Toronto for the Bell Telephone Co., and on Tuesday he came in contact with a live wire and was killed at the corner of Blantyre avenue and Queen St. The remains were to be brought home last evening and the funeral was to take place to-day but an inquest was held last night thus the sending of the body was detained. The remains, however, will be brought home to-night and the funeral will take place to-morrow morning at 9 o'clock to St. Luke's Church, Downeyville, Rev. Father Fergus O'Brien of St. Peter's Cathedral, who is a cousin of the deceased, will sing the requiem.

The unfortunate young man leaves his sorrowing parents, four sisters and five brothers to mourn his loss.

EXPOSURE OF FOOD-STUFFS

Test Case is Before the Police Court

The case of W. J. Oak, a local fruit dealer, charged with breach of by-law No. 1163, namely, the violation of the regulation regarding the exposure of food stuffs in the city, was adjourned until to-morrow morning City Solicitor Hall is acting for Sanitary Inspector Spence, while W. H. Moore K.C., appeared on behalf of the defendant.

This is a test case.

THE BY-LAW.

The by-law which was passed on the 19th day of June, 1905, is as follows:—

1. No person shall expose for sale upon any street or upon the market square or in any public place in the Town of Peterborough the carcass of any animal or any meat, poultry, game, flesh, fish, fruit or milk, unless the same be so protected as to avoid contact with or contamination from dust, water or other noxious or offensive matter or substances, which might tend to render the same unwholesome or injurious or objectionable for the purposes of food.

2. The carcass of any animal or any meat, poultry, game, flesh, fish, fruit, or milk when being conveyed from place to place within the Town of Peterborough shall be carried in a dust proof vehicle or so thoroughly protected by a clean covering as to keep the same free from contact with or contamination from dust, water or other noxious, injurious or offensive matter or substance.

3. No person dealing in or having for sale the carcass of any animal or any meat, poultry game, flesh, fish, fruit or milk in the Town of Peterborough, shall hang, place or expose the same or permit the same to be hung, placed or exposed outside of his shop or premises.

4. Any person guilty of a violation of this By-law shall on conviction thereof be liable to a fine not exceeding fifty dollars and costs.

ENRAGED BULL HAD TO BE SHOT

Animal Gained Freedom and Plunged Into River

An unusual incident happened yesterday afternoon, when an employe of John Mervin, was taking a bull to the slaughter house to be killed. The bull became enraged and broke away from the man and plunged into the Otonabee River near the lock's bridge. After the animal's rescue it became so enraged that it had to be shot.

LONG LOST SON FOUND

Henry Moorcroft of Port Hope Located by His Mother

WINNIPEG, July 17 — Henry Moorcroft, who disappeared from his home at Port Hope, August 18, 911 has at last been located, and his mother, Mrs. Elizabeth Moorcroft, 300 Bushnell street, Winnipeg is now living in hopes of soon seeing her son again. Moorcroft is, and has, been for the past 18 months working on steamers plying up and down the Pacific Coast from Vancouver. A short time ago he wrote to his uncle in Moose Jaw. The uncle, knowing that his sister was worrying her life away in the anxiety occasioned by no word from or trace of her lost son, forwarded the letter to Mrs. Moorcroft. It seems that young Moorcroft had written his mother, addressing the letter to Port Hope, Ont. As Mrs. Moorcroft had left that town for Winnipeg over a year ago, the letters never reached their destination.

Some people take themselves so seriously that others look upon them as a joke.

THE SEWER FOREMANSHIP

Ald. Johnston Thinks Wm. Ball Would Have Had a Look-in

Changes at George St. Church Grounds Call for Pavement Outside Tree Line

"If he isn't a good man, we'll get somebody else," replied City Engineer Parsons, to Ald. Johnston, at the Board of Works meeting, last night when the appointment of Martin Neary, as sewer foreman, was announced and Ald. Johnston remarked that he thought Wm. Ball, one of the other applicants, would have had a look-in, as he was considered a good man.

The Engineer stated that Martin Neary had been appointed to the position as he had been given to understand that Neary was capable of doing the work and was a good man.

It was explained that there was other work to be done and this would call for the services of another foreman.

IMPROVEMENTS.

Improvements to the grounds are contemplated by the Board of George Street Methodist Church and Ald. Johnston suggested that the new concrete sidewalk to be constructed, be placed outside the tree line. The Board, he explained intended to remove the wooden fences and utilize the property now occupied by the present wooden sidewalk on McDonnel street. Ald. Johnston pointed out that the sidewalk outside the tree line would conform with the pavement east of Water street, but the Mayor replied that the jog would be at the George street corner.

However, the members of the committee were asked to have a look at the locality and thus be prepared to express themselves when the matter came up again.

DRAINS AND SEWERS.

Mayor Bradburn, City Engineer Parsons and Ald. Buller were appointed a committee to wait on the Council of North Monaghan, in regard to the construction of drains and sewers, towards the cost of which, the Council might contribute.

Present requirements call for a surface drain, to carry the water from the property of the De Laval Co. Council promised that the work would be done and the Mayor wants to see the matter given attention at once.

MORE POLES.

The Machine Telephone Co. and the Bell Telephone Co. were given permission to locate poles. The Board followed the recommendation of the City Engineer and refused permission to the Bell Co. to locate on certain streets.

Mr. Anderson a resident on the east side of Water street, north of Dublin street, wants a real sidewalk. The present wooden structure is out of repair. The City Engineer will report.

The attention of the Reeve of Monaghan will be called to the bad condition of Lansdowne street, where the railway crosses into the Brinton Carpet Co. property.

WEDDING BELLS

HADDY—THOMPSON.

A very pretty wedding was solemnized last evening at the residence of Mrs. Sherlock Thompson, 376 Stewart street, when her daughter, Marianne Sherlock, was united in the bonds of matrimony to Mr. Byron Haddy, of Toronto. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Jas. Rollins.

MARRIED AFTER INTERVAL 35 YEARS

Visitors to the city are Mr. and Mrs J. J. Glass of Cleveland, Ohio, who come to spend a few days with Mr. R J. Sanderson, of Braithwood Avenue.

In Mrs. Glass, many of our older residents will recognize Miss Mary J. Sanderson, one of three sisters, who were for many years identified with George street church and Sunday school.

The marriage of Mr. and Mrs. Glass, which took place in Toronto two years ago, was the culmination of a pretty little romance. Mr. Glass was an admirer and lover of Miss Sanderson, in the days when both were young, but that was thirty seven years ago. Mr. Glass shortly afterwards left town to seek his fortune in the States. He married and eventually settled in Cleveland, where he is with the American Shipbuilding Company.

During thirty-five years they never met. Mr. Glass became a widower twelve years ago, and ten years after, met and married the girl of his first choice. Jacob waited seven years for Richael and seven years more, but few happy marriages are the culmination of thirty-five years constancy.

Many old friends are greeting and wishing Mr. and Mrs. Glass long years of happiness to come.

OBITUARY

Mrs. John Elliott

The death occurred this morning, of Catharine Jane Elliott, wife of Mr. John Elliott, 390 Rogers St., East City.

The late Mrs. Elliott, who was 72 years of age, had been a resident of Peterborough for fifty years, and her passing will be regretted by a large number of friends. Her illness had been of six weeks' duration.

She had been a member of Mark Street Methodist Church.

There are no children. One sister Mrs Morrison, resides in Bethany.

The funeral will be held from the late residence, on Saturday afternoon, to the Little Lake Cemetery.

Mr. Peter Gillespie

The death occurred last night of Mr. Peter Gillespie, a widely known and highly respected resident of Otonabee. The deceased was born in Edinburgh, Scotland, March 12, 1831, and came to Canada when eighteen years of age, settling in Otonabee. He has since resided in that township.

In 1864, he married Jane Thompson, who survives him, with four sons and three daughters. The sons are Richard of Hamilton; John at home, George of East City, and Peter of Ottawa. The daughters are Mrs. Alex Huston, Otonabee, Miss Jennie Gillespie of this city and Miss Julia Gillespie of Otonabee.

Mr Gillespie was an elder in St. Paul's church. In politics he was a Liberal.

The funeral will take place on Friday afternoon from his late residence Lot 24, Concession 12 Otonabee to the Little Lake cemetery.

The Late Miss O'Brien

Margaret Ellen O'Brien, daughter of Mr. Patrick O'Brien, of Douro, passed away this morning at St. Joseph's Hospital after three weeks illness.

The late Miss O'Brien was nineteen years of age. Surviving besides her parents are four sisters, and six brothers.

The funeral will be held Saturday morning to St. Martin's church and cemetery.

U. S. AMBASSADOR ON WAY TO CONFER WITH WILSON

Feeling Among Mexicans is That Intervention by the United States is Now a Certainty and Papers Are Urging Them to Unite and Fight for Their Country—Civil War Situation Serious

MEXICO CITY, July 18.—The U. S. Ambassador, Henry Lane Wilson, left Mexico City Wednesday night over the Mexican Railroad to Vera Cruz, from which port he expects to sail to-day. He will lay before the Administration at Washington the exact situation in Mexico, but not before July 27, the earliest he can reach the American capital, unless quarantine is waived, which would permit him to proceed from Havana by way of Key West.

Some of the Mexican newspapers this week have devoted considerable space editorially to such a possibility, and have urged Mexicans to forget their differences and unite for the defence of the fatherland. Impassioned letters in the same vein have also been published, and in the cafes and clubs conversations drift to the subject of an international war.

The ambassador has announced that he will be back in the Mexican capital in three weeks, but his friends consider it quite possible that he may not return.

With respect to the campaigns now proceeding throughout the country Government reports, which are practically the only available information here, indicate that the Federals in the north are meeting with success. They have occupied some of the towns formerly held by the Caranza adherents, but the rebels have not been captured and are still operating.

Every advance of the Federals is costing the Government heavily.

The rebels are cutting the railroads, and the National, which was repaired under the protection of Col. Maas, is again in ruins for a great part of the distance.

Didn't Confer In Paris.

PARIS, July 18.—The French Foreign Office announces that no such meeting of representatives of the powers to consider the Mexican situation, as reported from Mexico City, has been held in the French capital. Officials here know of no occurrence of a nature to give rise to such a statement.

At the Mexican legation it is suggested as possible that the report arose from the fact of the newly-appointed Mexican Foreign Minister, Federico Gamboa, hitherto Mexican Minister to Belgium, paying a formal call on Stephen Pichon before departing for Mexico City Wednesday.

Charged With Manslaughter.

BROCKVILLE, Ont., July 18.—Sidney Empy, who, according to his own story, was the last person in the company of Wesley Doran, the Brockville molder, who has been missing since Saturday last, was taken into custody yesterday. The warrant charges that the prisoner "did unlawfully, but without meaning to kill, cause the death of one Wesley Doran, and thereby did commit manslaughter."

The police are working on supposition and the general opinion is that Doran fell out of the boat accidentally.

Chinese Sailor Accuses Two Engineers of Murder.

BROCKVILLE, July 18.—John Quong, a Chinese sailor on board the English steamer Thyra Menier, in port at Ogdensburg, N.Y., reported to the police of that city Wednesday night that on June 16, while the boat was running between Montreal and Quebec, a fellow sailor named Ah Kiow was thrown into the river by the chief and second engineers, and drowned.

Although the alleged offence was committed in Canadian waters, the U. S. authorities will be asked to co-operate with the Canadian Government in conducting an investigation.

Besides the complainant, there are six other Chinese sailors with the crew of the Menier, which is engaged in the pulp carrying trade from Anticosti.

MISTAKEN FOR BURGLAR.

Bank Teller at Seaforth Seriously Wounded By Fellow Clerk.

SEAFORTH, July 18.—Arthur B. Mertens, a young Toronto man, teller of the Dominion branch bank here, is in a critical condition, as a result of being shot through the lungs late Wednesday night, in mistake for a burglar.

Merten went to the cellar of the bank's premises, to shut a door, and in the darkness, a fellow bank clerk, a youth named Gillies, fired at him from a few feet away, the bullet lodging in Merten's breast.

Mr. Merton is the son of Mr. W. J. Merten, the photographer at 411 Yonge street, Toronto. His father arrived at Seaforth yesterday, after a summons to his son's side.

ST. DAVID'S FIRE-STRICKEN.

Village Was For a Time In Danger of Being Wiped Out.

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont., July 18.—Fire of unknown origin threatened to wipe out the business section of the village of St. David's, near here, shortly after nine o'clock yesterday morning. The fire was discovered in the cellar of Edward Lowrey's store, and the building was quickly destroyed. Falls firemen were asked to go to the aid of the village firefighters, but the flames were beyond control before they arrived.

The Imperial Bank and other business buildings were threatened with destruction. Several small buildings near the Lowrey store were destroyed. About $5,000 will cover the loss.

Mayor Bligh gave it as his opinion that the people of Halifax would stand pat with the Minister's remarks, saying that they did not care a great deal for the officers, largely because of their tendencies along these very lines.

CHILD HELD FOR MURDER

Accused of Shooting Baby and Planing to Wipe Out Family

WINNIPEG, July 18.—One of the most extraordinary cases which have yet come before the provincial police was the one yesterday, which may result in a charge of murder being preferred against Anton Sawchuck, a nine-year-old child, who is alleged to have murdered Annie Luzy, aged 2 1-2 years, on a farm at Tyndal, Monday. At an inquest Wednesday night at Tyndal the verdict was an open one and the boy was brought to the city yesterday.

As far as can be learned the boy planned to rob the home of the Luzys. He is supposed to have entered the house when only Annie was there and to have deliberately shot her. The boy is also alleged to have planned the murder of the whole family.

U. S. BILLIONS COMING.

Gov. Foss Says He Is Not the Only Manufacturer Coming To Canada.

BOSTON, July 18.—"Gov. Foss, stung, perhaps, by the storm of criticism that has followed the announcement of his moving to Galt, Ont., yesterday issued a statement in which he estimated that the movement of at least 500 millions of U. S. capital across the border has but just begun. There are billions more to go, he believes.

The governor also points out that no less a personage than U. S. Secretary of Commerce Redfield preceded him in the Canadian immigration. Secretary Redfield was vice-president of the American company, "our principal competitor," Mr. Foss said, when that concern moved to Windsor, Ont., two years ago, adding, I believe this movement of American capital towards Canada is to continue. I believe that it will greatly increase from year to year under the present fiscal system of both countries. "Undoubtedly the development of Canada in the next 25 years will be relatively greater than in the United States. The fact impels enterprising concerns to fortify themselves by locating within the Canadian border."

EXPLORERS ARE WRECKED

Donald McMillion Expedition on the Rocks in Belle Isle Straits

ST JOHN'S, Nfld., July 18.—The Newfoundland sealing steamer Diana having on board the Donald McMillan expedition to Crocker Land, in the Arctic region, stranded Wednesday night on Barge Point, 40 miles west of Battle Harbor, in the Straits of Belle Isle.

The Newfoundland revenue cruiser Stella Maria was yesterday ordered to the assistance of the Diana, the extent of whose damage, if any, is not known here.

The news of the stranding of the Diana was received yesterday, having reached here by telegraph from Bay of Islands, on the west coast of Newfoundland, after being relayed to that point by a chain of wireless stations along the Labrador and Newfoundland shores. The message gave no details.

The Stella Maria will have to steam more than 400 miles from this port to reach the disabled vessel.

Barge Point, where the accident occurred, is on the extreme southerly portion of the Labrador from the Province of Quebec. There is no large settlement in the vicinity.

The Diana sailed from Boston after taking on a quantity of food and medical supplies on July 5 and after a stop at Sydney, N.S., sailed north on July 12.

The expedition was sent out by the American Geographical Society and the American Museum of Natural History of New York. The explorers are under command of Donald B. McMillan. They planned to remain three years in Crocker Land.

BRITAIN CANNOT TAKE UP CANADA'S LOAD SAYS WINSTON CHURCHILL

Rejection of Borden Policy Has Been a Serious Deprivation to Imperial Defence, Says Lord of Admiralty, But He Hoyes Canada Will Take Prompt Action—To Accelerate Present Ships

LONDON, July 18.—The British Admiralty has no intention of adding further warships to its construction program for 1914-15, according to an announcement made by Hon. Winston Spencer Churchill, First Lord of the Admiralty, in the course of a statement made in the House of Commons yesterday on the debate on the shipbuilding vote.

Mr. Churchill said he knew of nothing in the international situation necessitating an increase, and he did not think anything occurring in the Mediterranean in connection with the proposed Austrian and Italian warship construction would require Great Britain to depart from her present program.

As a result of the rejection of the Canadian Naval Bill the British Government, said Mr. Churchill, would accelerate the construction of three warships which would therefore be ready in the third quarter of 1915.

"There is a second important question with the general defence of the Empire," said Mr. Churchill, discussing the question. "Since I addressed the House last, a serious event has occurred regarding the Canadian ships. The rejection of the Canadian naval aid bill has, for the time at least, deprived us of aid upon which we had been depending, and unless that gap is filled by sacrifice of the British taxpayer, the general defence of the Empire, apart altogether from the defence of the United Kingdom, would be three ships short of the Admiralty requirements from the end of 1915 onward. As soon, therefore, as news was received of the rejection of the bill the Government determined that immediate action was necessary.

"There were two courses open to us. We could have laid down three extra ships in place of the three Canadian ships, and we could do so still, but it is at present clear that this step, which would mean the addition of eight and a half million pounds to the naval estimates, is necessary, and certainly it ought not to be done unless it is necessary.

Mr. Churchill added that he did not think the question of Canadian contribution to the defence of the Empire closed, and there was no reason to suppose that Great Britain would be left to face emergencies in the future unaided. There was an overwhelming consensus of opinion in Canada, he declared, that early action should be taken in one form or another.

"Whether we read the speeches of members of the Government or of the Opposition," said Mr. Churchill, "we see that although there are differences of principle and method, and although the matter is one of party disputation, there is an overwhelming concensus of opinion that action should be taken and that soon.

"The position is not yet clear, and I am very much inclined to think that harm rather than good may result from our attempt to debate it much in public, Canada is absolute mistress of her own destiny. Although I cannot attempt to forecast the course to be finally decided by Canada, I think that these speeches taken by themselves, apart from all other public and private information, plainly show that the question of Canada taking effective part in the general naval defence of the Empire is by no means closed and we have no right to assume at present that we are to be left to face the emergencies of the future unaided and left to bear the whole burden alone.

"That being so, the Admiralty recommended and the Cabinet approved the adoption of a temporary expedient. We are proceeding, not by increasing the program of capital ships, but by accelerating the construction of those which have been already sanctioned, in such a way as to secure the strength we require at the perods involved. We, therefore, accelerated three ships of this year's program, which would not otherwise have been begun until the end of the year. We invited tenders for them last month and action has been already taken and tenders have been received and those vessels will be ready, if all goes well, by the third quarter of 1915; and they will fully maintain, in the absence of new Austrian or Italian construction, those margins of Mediterranean and whole-world strength which I explained last March were necessary.

"Of course, the relief given us by the mere acceleration of ships is only temporary, but the effect of this new construction is to raise the margin at our disposal for seven or eight months from the end of 1915, and at the beginning of 1916, to the same level as would have been exacted had the Canada naval aid bill passed. But after that period is passed the advantage of acceleration will be observed and the difficulty of the shortage with which we are confronted will occur. By next year, however, it is probable that the Canadian situation will have defined itself and we shall be in a better position to judge whether further acceleration of next year's ships or, alternatively, direct addition to our program will be forced upon us. That is the policy which we recommended to the committee and which we regard as a wise, sober and adequate provision. We shall not be drawn from it by any agitation."

ISAACS TO BE CHIEF JUSTICE

Will Succeed Lord Alverstone at End of Law Court Sitting

LONDON, July 18.—The Daily Express states that Sir Rufus Isaacs' appointment as Lord Chief Justice is officially announced, to take effect before the Michaelmas sittings next October. Lord Alverstone, the present holder, owing to illness, was compelled to obtain long leave of absence. This will expire at the end of the present sittings of the law courts, and it is certain that he will then place his resignation in the hands of the Lord Chancellor. Recent reports in some American papers anent Mr. Asquith taking the Lord Chief Justiceship never had the slightest foundation. Sir Rufus Isaacs was slated for the post when Lord Alverstone fell ill, and even when the Marconi campaign was at its highest the Premier never hesitated in his intention of offering it to the Attorney-General, though the expediency of announcing it at such a time was debated.

SIR RUFUS ISSACS.

KILLED WHILE STEALING RIDE

Head and Feet of Victim Were Separted From Body

Canadian Press Despatch.

ROCHESTER, N.Y., July 18.—In a New York Central freight wreck near Chili station this morning Edward Upchurch, who was beating his way from Buffalo, was killed and it is believed that other bodies are under the wreckage. Upchurch's head and both feet were separated from the body.

AVIATION DISASTERS.

Sentry Killed In Germany and Aviator In England.

SCHNEIDEMUEHL, Germany, July 18.—The military dirigible balloon Schuette was wrecked yesterday morning after being torn from her moorings in a wind squall, when she carried up in her cordage two sentries, one of whom was killed by falling 600 feet, and the other severely injured by a jump of thirty feet.

Neither crew nor pilot was on board the air craft, which was at anchor on the military parade ground, her mooring chains buried 6 1-2 feet in the earth, when the gust caused her to break away. The sentries tried to hold her down and were lifted into the air. One loosened his hold soon after leaving earth, but the other held fast until exhausted and was then hurled to the ground and killed.

The dirigible landed an hour later near the village of Erpol.

Another Army Aviator Killed.

SALISBURY, Eng., July 18.—Major A. W. Hewetson of the Royal Artillery Corps of the British army, a member of the military flying corps, was killed at the army aerodrome here yesterday by the falling from a height of 100 feet, of his monoplane. The accident was caused by the machine taking a turn too sharply and over-balancing. On striking the ground the motor exploded and burned the aeroplane to ashes.

Rev. Dr. Henderson Recovers.

SOCIAL CONDITIONS IN TURKEY ARE BETTER

That the women of Turkey after centuries spent in social bondage are coming into their own and taking a place in the industrial world and in educational pursuits was the declaration yesterday of three American women who returned from Constantinople, where they are professors in the American College for Girls. They arrived on board the steamship Ivernia, of the Cunard line, from Mediterranean ports.

They said that "the war has not left Turkey stranded, as many persons believe. If the Turks can now be induced to go to Asiatic Turkey they will become a powerful nation. They are not the vicious persons many paint them to be. In fact, we understand that they observed Christian warfare to a greater degree than did the allies. Once they are again re-established in the farming communities and obliged to develop new territory in Asiatic Turkey, a new country will arise."

KING CONSTANTINE TELLS OF TERRIBLE ATROCITIES

Advance of the Greek Army Reveals Unbelievable Crimes Perpetrated by the Defeated Bulgars, According to Statement by Greek Monarch

SALONIKA, July 18.—"By order of his Majesty King Constantine I have the honor to address to you the following despatch in response to your telegram requesting from his majesty a full account of atrocities perpetrated by the Bulgarian army." This is a preamble of a statement addressed by Greece to the press of the world yesterday.

Without going over the motives which have led Greece, Servia and Montenegro to repulse by force of arms the unexpected but well-prepared attacks of the Bulgarians against their allies of yesterday, and which have dictated to the allied Governments their actual attitude, the atrocities committed every day by the Bulgarian armies, and the outrages, long concealed, committed by them on the Turkish and Greek peoples since the first days of the Balkan war, impose on the allies an energetic attitude and the obligation to exact and to obtain for the future all necessary guarantees.

As the Greek army advances, crimes of an unthinkable cruelty are discovered. The Bulgarian authorities have silenced the voiced of thousands of innocents who perished under horrors such as human history has never before recorded. There is not a village which has been occupied by the Bulgarians which has not had its men, women and children massacred, its young women outraged, it houses robbed and burned.

At the first invasion of Demire Hissar, in October, the Bulgarians massacred all the men of the village of Petrovo, and after having outraged the women and young girls, locked them in the mosque and set fire to it, and to cap the climax played the bagpipes.

At Petritch, before the bodies of the Mussilmans, they made the wives and daughters of the victims dance. At Dorian 30,000 Mussulmans were slaughtered and all their goods plundered; at Nevrokop the same; at Melenik, Caval, Drama, Seres, Dedeagatch, Stroumithe, and everywhere the Bulgarians have passed one sees only blood, dishonor and ruin.

To the tortures endured Wednesday by the Mussulmans come new in addition those of the Christians. Even before the new war began the Bulgarians were oppressing all the Greek population of the countries occupied by them, and at the time of their sudden attack at Panghaon they did not hesitate to quench their thirst for blood on the inoffensive Greek villagers. After their first defeats the Bulgarians turned upon the Greek population with unspeakable acts by the hundred against men, women and children. By order of the officers they were horribly mutilated, their houses burned and their goods stolen. At Dorian the Greek bishop and thirty notables were slaughtered. At Cavalla the archbishop and twenty-eight Greek nobles were likewise assassinated by the Bulgarians before abandoning the village. At Pravi the bishop and more notables perished in the same way. At Demire Hissar the bishop and three priests, [illegible] many notables and some women, were tortured and put to death.

The Hellenic Government has already protested against acts without number committed by the Bulgarians, and among the peace conditions our Government will exact genuine guarantees to assure the complete safety of the Greeks from the Bulgarians, and these guarantee, as well as all other clauses of the past, ought to be discussed and signed upon the field of battle before the end of hostilities.

Fatally Wounded, But Game.

MANITOWOC, Wis., July 18.—Although fatally wounded, Anton Novak, 27 years of age, of Sheboygan, walked six miles to Kiel, Wis., Wednesday night after a shooting affray in which he wounded his wife and her parents. He was arrested early yesterday in a physicians' office. He had a receipt for a cemetery lot, purchased July 10.

Mrs. Novak filed an application for divorce last week. Novak went to the home of his wife's parents, who are wealthy farmers at Eaton, Wednesday night and attempted to bring about a reconciliation and when his wife refused, opened fire.

Hunt Club Quarters Burned.

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont., July 18.—The camp of the Niagara Falls Hunt Club in Proudfoot Township, was destroyed by fire Wednesday, according to information received by members of the club yesterday. The loss will amount to about $3,000.

FIVE RESCUED FROM MINE

Canadian Press Despatch.

EVELETH, Minn., July 18.—After standing up to their necks in water for thirty-one hours five foreigners who were entombed at Spruce mines on Wednesday, were brought to the surface last night. Relatives cried with joy as the rescued men appeared. All of the fifteen men imprisoned on Wednesday have now been rescued.

Goes Down For Twenty-Three Months.

HAMILTON, July 18.—Archie McInnis, who got $90 from a Scotch girl under false pretences, it having been given him to furnish apartments, and who forged the mayor's name to a fake marriage license, after taking her to a house which he said was the mayor's, was yesterday sentenced to twenty-three months.

Fireman To the Rescue.

RACINE, Wis., July 18.—A large automobile driven by Walter [illegible]ger, with Thomas [illegible] as a passenger, crashed through a bridge and plunged into Root River, yesterday. Charles Doo, of the city fire department, jumped into the river and [illegible].

PETERBOROUGHS' LOVE FEAST

The Merchants of the City of Peterborough are to be congratulated upon the great success of the People's Picnic at T.A.S. Park.

The event, which was somewhat in the nature of an experiment, proved more popular than the Merchants anticipated. Consequently the facilities for dealing with the large crowds which attended were not as perfect as they might have been.

At certain times of the day there seemed to be a greater rush than at others. People who went down to the boat early in the afternoon found them very heavily loaded, and the sail down the river was, consequently not so comfortable. But the committee did their best under the circumstances and in future they will make ample provision for coping with the extra rush of people at these busy hours. The same remarks apply equally to the home-coming boats; people who are anxious to take the full day at the park leave the return to the last moment and this means an over crowding of the steamer.

All these things can be remedied and the people of Peterboro owe the merchants of the city, and all those who so ably and willingly gave their services, a debt of gratitude for providing so excellent an outing.

The chief end of these picnics is to bring the merchants and the people of the city together, to make them recognise the community of interests which binds them to each other. There is perhaps no better way in which they can do this than by assembling in such a manner as they did yesterday, for there is nothing that brings the people closer together than to have them enter into each other's pleasures.

"Tis love that makes the world go round," and the little world of Peterboro will spin all the more merrily for having spent a day of amity and goodwill together with the one object and desire, to make each other happy.

A FIGHTIMG MINISTER

The Hon Sam Hughes has been lecturing his comrades upon their lives of "idleness and profligacy," and the "profligates" in return have threatened reprisal, in the form of resignations.

It is well known that the Minister of Militia holds strong views on the question of canteens, and practically insists on prohibition in all the camps, and even banishes liquor from the banqueting table.

To these extreme views most English "Tommies" would certainly object in the strongest terms, and the officers who have been trained on whiskies and sodas would fail to grasp the situation at all.

Apart from the question of the rights and wrongs of this policy of a "dry" militia, very few people will sympathise with the men who could behave so disgracefully, as some of these officers are reported to have done, while Sir Ian Hamilton was speaking.

The Hon. Sam Hughes is nothing if he is not a fighter, and he is exercising these soldierlike qualities in the right direction. If he succeeds in putting our militia on an efficient business basis, and in proving that a man can be as true a gentleman in the militia as in any other department of national service he will deserve the support and praise of every true Canadian.

EDITORIAL NOTES

Nero's dining room has been unearthed. It seems to have been a kind of revolving affair and was worked by machinery—A sort of quick-lunch counter, we suppose.

The New York District Attorney's office shows that married and single men are about equal in the realm of crime. Stevenson says that marriage leaves nothing for a man but to be good.

The Rev. Arthur J. Francis, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church of Englewood, Chicago, appeared in his pulpit on a hot Sunday dressed in a white suit. He described the Prince Alberts and the stiff collar as "nonsense."

HOLIDAY JOYS

Oh, soon I'll bike for my holiday to a place that is calling me; I'll pack my duds and I'll haste away for a glorious fresh-air spree; I'll scamper off from my home in town from my cool little cosy flat, and hire a room where the roof comes down like the sides of a Dutch cocked hat. I'll hie far off from my bathtub white where the crystal stream runs clear and I-ll try to wash by a dim lamp's light in a dipper of stuff like beer, with a fiendist taste and an awful smell where the water bugs congregate and I'll yell a happy and gleeful yell, which signifies This is great I'll hasten down when the signal rings and rush to the table where I'll fill my innards with fearsome things from a packing-house bill o' fare; then I'll row ten miles after phantom fish in the heat of an day, with a heart as light as a man could wish, a-singing some roundelay; or I'll hie me out with my pipe and book to a sylvian dell perchance—to some grassy slope by a shaded nook—and sit on a nest o' ants, or I'll stretch in a bed of flowery ease where the scents are fresh and sweet, and lose a race with a million bees who covet my cool retreat. Oh, what can equal a fortnight's rest where the burbling bull-frogs sing, and the skeeters bite my coat and vest, and the pesky black flies sting—where the sun beats down on my blistered nose and my peeling arms and neck, and the clamshells scallop my tender toes when I go for a swim, by heck! I fain would flee from my twelve foot lot, with its citified luxury, to a regular all-wool sylvan spot—'tis there that I long to be.—Sherwood Hart, in the Daily Telegraph and Witness.

AN ARCTIC DAWN.

The Scene as the Sun Comes Up After Six Months of Darkness.

The return of the sun after the six months' night of the polar regions is a moment not to be forgotten. Ejnar Mikkelsen, in his book, "Lost in the Arctic," describes the scene and the emotions it aroused.

"The loneliness is so immense everything seems dead or in a trance, waiting, as we, for the advent of the life giving sun. At last the day arrives when it should appear, but we do not see it, for the weather is cloudy, stormy and foggy. Not until the following day, Feb. 10, do we see its red disk once more. We stand outside the house waiting. At the end of half an hour we begin to grow impatient.

"At last it comes. The glow to the southward deepens until it almost hurts the eyes; the mountain tops are tinged with rose, slowly extending downward toward us; then suddenly a red gold ray is flung out over the ice, and we give a mighty shout of welcome—a cheer for the herald of summer—summer that is to bring us our deliverance.

"And we are not the only beings that rejoice. Far up above us sounds the astonished cry of a raven. It was flying eastward, but on seeing the sun it changes its course and steers right for it, with mighty strokes of its great heavy wings, and calling, glad as we to see the sun, a fire worshiper, as also we have grown to be. We follow it with our eyes until it disappears in the eye of the sun. Happy raven! If we had but wings!"

Hard Worker.

First Employer—How long has Gotfox's boy worked in your office? Second Employer—About half an hour. He has been with us six months now. —Judge.

Surprise!

It Resulted In Another One

By CLARISSA MACKIE

A succession of darkly wrapped forms scudded up the snowy path to Mrs. Peter Weldrake's side door and disappeared within a brief glimpse of ruddy lighted room. Each time the door opened to admit another arrival there were much laughter and noisy conversation before the door became a dark blank again.

"Everybody here?" demanded Mrs. Weldrake, emerging from her kitchen, large, beetle browed and commanding of aspect. She was dressed in a stiff, black taffeta silk skirt of generous width and a white lawn waist. She wore a large white apron, and as she came into the sitting room there hovered about her a defined odor of freshly made coffee and recently fried doughnuts.

"Everybody here?" she repeated, reviewing the chattering groups of women and the awkward men hovering about the door.

"All except Althea Laden and her mother," spoke up a young girl. "They oughter been here by this time. I saw them drive away from their house long before we left."

There was an embarrassed silence before Mrs. Weldrake answered: "Well, we needn't wait for Althea Laden and her mother. They ain't coming." She vanished into the kitchen.

"Not coming?" asked the girl who had spoken before.

"They wasn't asked," whispered a woman guardedly.

"Not asked?" echoed the girl.

"'Tisn't likely, is it?" giggled a woman with a nod of her head toward the kitchen door, and the girl, glancing at Mrs. Weldrake's daughter, Stella, nodded understandingly.

"Althea Laden wasn't asked, to the minister's surprise." The words ran around in low murmured disapproval, for Althea and her mother were village favorites, and the invariable "Why?" and its answer followed. All of the women already knew that the Ladens had not been invited, but under the stern injunction of Mrs. Weldrake none had dared to break the seal of secrecy imposed upon the especially invited, for this surprise on the bachelor minister of Thornville had found its inception in the brain of matchmaking Mrs. Weldrake, and Althea Laden was not to be invited. Fat, good natured Stella Weldrake and pretty Althea Laden had always been warm friends, and according to Stella's discriminating parent that stout, amiable damsel was quite outrivaled by Althea's more delicate charms; hence this surprise party, from which the Ladens were omitted and where Stella was expected to shine undimmed and perchance capture the minister's unsuspecting heart.

"It's 9 o'clock," announced Mrs. Weldrake, bustling into the sitting room arrayed in warm shawls and with a knitted "fascinator" over her iron gray hair. "I guess we better be going. I see a lamp lighted in Mr. Whitney's study." She lifted a window curtain and peered across the snowy fields toward the parsonage. "He don't suspect a thing."

"And, so far as I know, nobody else outside this room knows about the surprise," added Mrs. Dora Hatch triumphantly as the party trooped forth, each one bearing burdens of toothsome viands. Big Peter Weldrake brought up the rear with a steaming can of coffee.

A green shaded lamp beamed from the study window, but there was no sign of the minister's dark, well shaped head outlined against the bookcases.

"He's stepped out a minute," breathed Mrs. Weldrake hoarsely. "Most likely's he's locking the door after Jennie Plumb. That's why I waited till 9 o'clock, after she'd got the dishes done. She's mortal slow."

"There she goes now!"

The group stood huddled by the back porch watching the bulky form of the black woman who came in by the day to "do" the minister's housework. When Jennie Plumb had tramped out of sight the surprise party tiptoed carefully around the path to the front door, Mrs. Weldrake leading and her husband bringing up the rear.

A dim light burned in the hall, but save for a green glimmer from the study beyond the parlors were quite dark. Mrs. Weldrake rang the bell once, twice, three times, without response.

"I guess Mr. Whitney ain't to home," whispered a doubtful voice.

"That's all the better," snapped back Mrs. Weldrake, trying the doorknob. "This door's unlocked, and we can go right in and give him the surprise of his life."

The women heaped their wraps in the hall in the manner of those who were accustomed to the business of surprising unsuspecting persons in their homes and bore their bundles of refreshments kitchenward, their mouths rounded to shout "Surprise!" at the hapless minister if he should prove to be in the house after all and should come upon them unexpectedly.

The men, feeling some compunction at this invasion, hung awkwardly about the front door as if ready to make a sudden exit in case disaster should overtake their more intrepid women folks. They might understand and enter into a surprise party upon one of the laity, but this encroachment upon the minister's privacy was more novel than enjoyable.

Dora Hatch had flitted from room to room and returned to announce that there wasn't a soul in the house, but that Jennie Plumb was outshining herself as a housekeeper, for the whole house was in apple pie order. "Even flowers in every room—carnations at 50 cents a dozen from the city," she ended.

"You don't suppose he suspected, do you?" asked Stella, who looked like a big pink and white baby in a white muslin gown with blue ribbons.

"I don't know who could have told him," said Mrs. Weldrake decisively from her executive position before the kitchen range. "I don't believe anybody would be mean enough to tell about it."

The fifteen women vociferated their innocence from tale telling, and those who were married exonerated their husbands, and those who were yet unchosen defended their sweethearts. Stella Weldrake looked troubled for a brief instant and then shook off whatever oppressed her mind and smiled across the room at Timothy Weed, who had peered bashfully in at the door.

Timothy blushed and drew back, but he had answered Stella's smile with a very betraying one, if any one had seen it.

Mrs. Weldrake blew out the light in the kitchen, and ushered the surprisers into the back parlor.

"Now, all sit around as quiet as mice, and when he comes into the front hall the boys will light the lamps and all the rest of us can holler 'Surprise!' and I guess he will be surprised. It was pretty good luck having him step off down street just at this time." Mrs. Weldrake was feeling satisfied with herself and the result of her planning. She had maneuvered the men out of the front hall, out of their overcoats, relieved them of their hats and marshaled them into the back parlor. Several of them were stationed with matches held ready to strike at the critical moment so that the full nature of the surprise might be revealed to the astonished and delighted minister on his return.

All at once there came the sound of sleighbells that stopped before the door.

The front door opened and closed lingeringly. Then the three lamps were simultaneously lighted, and thirty voices screamed "Surprise!" at the thoroughly surprised minister.

If Mr. Whitney was surprised the owners of the thirty voices were equally astonished, for their cries died on their lips, and they stood staring foolishly at the minister and his companion, Althea Laden, who had not been invited to the party! Althea stood in the doorway looking very lovely in a long pale gray cloak, beneath which showed a white dress. There were white flowers in her golden hair and on her breast. She looked like a bride, and it suddenly dawned upon the surprisers' party that Althea Laden was a bride. Nobody looked at Mrs. Peter Weldrake.

Mr. Whitney recovered his self possession and stepped forward. There was a look of serene happiness on his fine face, and his dark eyes glowed warmly as he thanked them.

"My friends, it seems that my marriage to Miss Laden has become known to you, and out of the warmness of your hearts you have come to bid her welcome as my wife. I shall ever remember this occasion with the greatest joy."

"Married?" interrupted Mrs. Weldrake, arising with a magisterial air from the chair into which she had fallen at the first shock of the surprise that had come to her share.

Mr. Whitney smiled and reddened and went on with his little speech of thanks, unconsciously stripping the surprise party of its motive and viewing it in the light of a carefully prepared welcome for himself and his bride. He explained that a public marriage would have been in order at a later date had not Mrs. Laden been summoned that very morning to the bedside of a dying relative in the west and he had urged an immediate marriage with Althea, who was to be left behind. They had all driven over to Meadville and been married by a minister there and had then seen Mrs. Laden off on her western journey.

Of course they all came forward and kissed Althea and congratulated the minister. They were heartily glad of the marriage, for Althea was a favorite, and it was something of a distinction to be one of a surprise party that had turned into a wedding party.

Mrs. Weldrake held herself well in hand, brushed Althea's cheek with her lips, majestically accepted their thanks as the organizer of the party and led the bevy of ladies who were to serve refreshments.

As they made their way homeward that evening Mrs. Weldrake felt a strange sense of defeat. The minister's brief interest in Stella had been her only hope that that babyish girl would ever be married. Her husband trudged beside her, swinging the empty coffee can. Stella was walking in the rear with Timothy Weed.

"I guess you'll have a wedding on your hands after all before spring, ma," chuckled her husband as they went inside.

And Mrs. Weldrake blushed that he had understood her scheming, but she felt strangely comforted.

His "Richt" Name.

From queer names and descriptions of things there follow as a natural sequence queer names and descriptions of people. Among a number of instances is one quoted by Mr. Fox-Davies, the well known authority on momenclature, from Blackwood's Magazine of April, 1842: "In one of the Buchan fishing villages a stranger had occasion to call on a fisherman of the name of Alexander White. Meeting a girl, he asked, 'Can ye tell me fa'r Sanny Fite lives?' 'Filk Sanny Fite?' quoth she. 'Muckle Sanny Fite?' said he. 'Filk muckle Sanny Fite?' 'Muckle lang Sanny Fite.' 'Filk muckle lang Sanny Fite?' 'Muckle land gleyed Sanny Fite!' shouted the exasperated man. 'Oh, it's Goup-the-Lift ye're seeking,' answered the girl, 'and fat the de'll for dinna ye speer for the mon by his richt name at ance?' "

A Wonderful Memory.

"You boast of your memory, Rivers! I'll bet you a cigar you can't quote, on the spur of the moment, a single stanza of any hymn you sang in Sunday school when you were a boy."

"I'll take you up on that, Brooks. In fact, I'll sing you one:

"Kind words never die,
Never die, never die;
Kind words can never die,
No, nev-e-e-e-r die!

"You win, old chap. I didn't think you could do it."—Chicago Tribune.

A LETTER TO THE JUDGE.

He Ignored the Death Threat, but One Word Caught His Fancy.

Whenever a judge presiding over a New York criminal court is conducting the trial of some notorious murderer he is sure to receive letters, postal cards and even prepaid telegrams written by cranks breathing denunciation and threatening him with death in some horrible form.

The late Recorder Frederick Smyth, presiding over a murder trial, one day beckoned a reporter friend up to the bench and handed him a letter that ran like this:

"You cruel and bloody minded old tyrent, you are trying to send this insent Man to the Chair as you sent —— ——, but you will never Live to do it for I will lay in wait for you and pounch on you and Give you death Penalty a friend of Justice."

The reporter wanted to publish it. "Oh, no," said Recorder Smyth. "I showed it to you only to call your attention to that beautiful new word, 'pounch,' which I suppose means to crouch and to pounce. If you should publish it hundreds of other cranks would be inspired to write. It's bad enough now, for their letters take up so much time in going through the morning's mail. The writers are not dangerous—merely nuisances."—Harper's Weekly.

An Art Authority.

They were newsboys and had strayed into the art museum. At the moment they were standing before the "Winged Victory of Samothrace."

"Say, Bill, what's that?" asked one of them in an awed whisper.

Like Father.

"I never saw a boy so much like his father—your husband's hair and eyes and even his manner of speech. But why does he jump when you speak to him?"

"Because he is so much like his father."—Houston Post.

MINISTER COMING

For Trip Over the Trent Waterway Next Tuesday

The Minister of Railways and Canals will arrive from Ottawa next Tuesday to take a trip over the Trent waterway on the Bessie Butler.

Municipalities who have matters of importance to discuss with the Minister, might well take the opportunity of meeting him at the various stopping places.

CHARGE OF VAGRANCY

Young Englishman of Good Appearance Remanded to Jail

A well dressed young Englishman answering to the name of Walter S. Holmes, appeared in police court this morning on the charge of vagrancy.

Very little is known of the young man except that he has been seen around the city for the past two weeks.

An Italian named S. Scarizano, appeared before Magistrate Dumble on the charge of being drunk. He was fined $2.

Jas. R. Bell was fined $2 for breach of the traffic by-law. His auto was allowed to remain on the wrong side of the street.

OBITUARY

The Late Mrs. Metcalfe

A well known and highly respected resident of Peterborough passed away this morning at her residence in the person of Annie Cox, wife of Mr. Wm. Metcalfe, 165 Stewart street.

The deceased was 70 years of age and was a member of Knox Presbyterian church. She was a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. John Cox, of Colborne.

A husband; one son, Edward, of Smith; one daughter, Mrs. J. Stewart, of this city; two brothers, Harry Cox, Peterborough; Edward Cox, of Colborne, and two sisters, Mrs. Lane, of this city, and Mrs. Collings, of Belleville, survive.

The deceased was a cousin of Senator Cox. Funeral arrangements later.

Died To-day

Mrs Lingard, of 112 Sophia street, East City, passed away this morning.

RAPID PROGRESS AT THE BONNER WORTH FACTORY

Manufacturing Space is Increased and New Equipment is Being Added,

With the completion of the new addition to their factory, the Bonner-Worth company will have one of the most modern and up-to-date dying and spinning factories in Ontario. The new addition is 72 by 66 feet, making a factory with a capacity of some 200 feet in length and two stories high.

The new spinning, winding and twining machines, along with the spinning frames double the equipment of the present plant. The new machinery is being brought here from England at a great expense. One of the features of the machines is that they are self-bobbing, thereby doing away with the necessity of girls winding the bobbins by hand. The increase of space and equipment will call for some fifty more workers. The capacity of the dye house is trebled and this alone means a greater output in business. The present spindles number 3000, and the new addition increases the spindle department to 5,500 spindles. Mr. J. W. Worth is in charge of the spindle department. A shipping department is also included in the numerous features of the new addition.

"If we had a plant three times the size of this we could more easily cope with the trade, so great is the demand," said Mr. J. W. Worth, in conversation with a Review reporter.

The Bonner-Worth company have been in business about two years and with the increase of staff and plant they expect a most successful year. Prospects are that they will extend their plant in a year or so, so great is the present demand for wool and yarn. The addition costs in the neighborhood of $12,000.

The first installment of the machinery arrived Wednesday, and the remainder will be here by the end of the month. The new addition will be in running order by the first of October.

Mr. Dyson Worth, father of the present manager, will have control of the business and Mr. E. Worth will act in the capacity of financial manager. Mr. W. Worth will have control of the preparing department and Mr. J. W. Worth will look after the spinning department.

Great praise is due the firm for their energetic spirit and remarkable success since their location in this city two years ago.

PARTICULARS OF DROWNING

Further particulars of the drowning of G. H. Burnham, in Valley River, near Dauphin, Man., are that the party attempted to cross the river in a canoe at the mouth of the river which enters into the valley, about three miles north of the railway. Here two rivers are running high as a result of the recent rains. When the canoe got into the cross current of the two rivers, according to the version of the surveyors it suddenly turned over and all four occupants were precipitated into the stream. Burnham was carried out into the river and seemed unable to make any headway against the rushing waters and when last seen by his companions his hand was up in the air as if signalling for help. The other three managed to reach shore in an exhausted condition.

A. Ferguson, one of the men who reached shore, was, at one time, the champion sculler of Ireland.

LAID AT REST

The funeral of the late John Lynch too, place to-day from his late residence on Park street south to the Church of the Sacred Heart and St. Peter's cemetery.

The high esteem in which he was held was shown by the large number who attended the funeral.

Rev. Father McCauley sang the requiem and also officiated at the cemetery.

57th BAND CONCERT TO-NIGHT

A program of unusual interest will be played by the 57th Band at Victoria Park to-night. Several new selections will be heard, one of which is a grand fantasy on "Home Sweet Home" as played in the various countries of the world.

The composer, Bowal Hampe, dedicated this selection in honor of John Phillip Sousa, and it has been found on his programs; played on both continents.

The program is as follows:

March—Rifle Regiment.

Overture—Norma.

Selection (a)—When the Girl You Love, You Know is Made for You

(b)—Under Egyptian Skies.

Grand Fantasy — Home, Sweet Home, as played in England, Spain, Russia, Hungary, China, Scotland, Ireland and United States.

Selected (a)—The Anvil Chorus

(b)—Sextette from Sousa.

Pot Pourri of Popular Songs

March— Selected.

God Save the King.

A Good Doctor.

"Sunshine and fresh air are the greatest enemies of tuberculosis," says a medical authority. So sit on the sunny side of the house, the car, the office or the fishing pool. Get out in the field with the birds and the beasts. Face the breeze and don't be afraid of the gale. Roll the window shade ever up and never down. Make your sunshade over into a cane. Remember Dr. Sunshine is not only an enemy to tuberculosis, but to more diseases than you can remember to name, including the ingrowing grouch and many other things. So let him shine in!—Detroit Free Press.

CAMPBELL IS COMMITTED TO TRIAL

Is Charged With Forgery—He Made Statements to the Police Chief

John Campbell was re-arraigned before Magistrate Dumble this morning on the charge of forging a check for the amount of $7.50.

On the evidence taken the prisoner was committed to trial.

Campbell, who claims his home to be in Toronto, would neither plead nor elect. He was also without the service of counsel.

Evidence by Chas. Kingan, a clerk in the Kingan Hardware Co., was to the effect that the prisoner on July 8th, bought goods in the store amounting to $2.75 and tendered a check for $7.50. The name on the check was Jas. McIntosh. When asked by Mr. Kingan who McIntosh was, the prisoner said that "he lived up the street."

The amount of purchase was taken out of the check and the remainder paid to the prisoner.

The check was turned in to the office but upon presenting it at the bank it was refused. The bank reported that no man by the name of McIntosh had an account.

Chief Thompson went into the box and testified that he had met the met the prisoner in Woodstock while acting as Chief of Police there a few years ago. Prisoner was convicted there on the charge of forgery, under the name of Alex. Coulter. In conversation with the prisoner, the day following his arrest here, after warning him in the usual way, Campbell admitted having been convicted in Woodstock, and, also, after a denial of the charge of forgery here, he admitted it. When asked who McIntosh was, he replied that he didn't know.

Case Was Dismissed

The case of W. J. Oke, charged with breach of the by-law regarding the exposure of food-stuffs, was dismissed at police court this morning by Magistrate Dumble.

At the Table.

Before the dessert is served the crumbs should be removed from the table, using for the purpose a crumb tray and a silver scraper. A brush is no longer considered hygienic. When luncheon is served at a polished table a folded napkin may be used to sweep up the crumbs instead of the scraper. A good waitress always tries to anticipate the requirements of the diners.

Who Calls First?

The parents of the bridegroom should call first upon the family of the bride to be, and no announcement of any sort should be made until this has been done. A man's mother naturally wishes to know something of the girl he is going to marry, and after she has called the man himself may take the girl to see his own mother.

If the oven is too hot after placing cake in it, set a pan of water beside the cake. It will keep it from burning.

LETTER FROM N. DOUROS

Soldiers Undergo Terrible Hardships He Writes

Mr. Peter Gettas, acting manager of the Boston Cafe, received a letter to-day from N. Douras, the proprietor of the above establishment, who is at present fighting with the Greek forces in the Balkans.

Mr. Douras states that the hardships they undergo are unbelievable and if he ever comes back he will have an interesting story of his adventures. He is keeping a diary and every day notes different incidents.

A Good Listener.

If you have tried and have failed in the great art of talking then be a good listener. Every one should cultivate the habit of listening well. It is one of the little amenities that we are inclined to overlook, yet it is one of the big factors in pleasant social intercourse.

In order to be a good listener you must first be willing to fix your attention on the conversation. If you are in the habit of dividing your attention you are failing. Any woman who is pretending to listen to a story and in reality is wondering whether the talker made her own dress or bought it in an exclusive shop is foolish in her attempt to appear polite. She in reality is very rude.

Public Introductions.

Introductions in public are made as a matter of convenience and since they are unsolicited need not be recognized at any future time. These are unnecessary in a hasty, casual passing between two friends and one who is known to only one of them. If, however, a lengthy conversation takes place or if there is a possibility of all persons going in the same direction or to the same place an introduction should be made. There is nothing so embarrassing to a friend as to be left out of things in an almost rude way by the lack of an introduction.

Expensive Evening Gowns

are not matters of every-day purchase, and therefore even the independently wealthy like to take the greatest care of them. Yet sometimes the functions of a single evening will ruin their appearance temporarily. We can remedy this, however, by our system of careful cleaning, and in any case we can dye the garment and make it like a new one.

HOUSE BURNED AND INMATES RENDERED UNCONSCIOUS

Image of Tree Was Printed In Red Upon Bodies of Woman and Two Children When House Was Struck by Lightning

Mr. and Mrs. Howard Dafoe and children and Mr. and Mrs. Henry Riley and children, who reside near Rockdale, on the Cordova Road, had a narrow escape from death by lightning and flames during the electrical storm on Wednesday afternoon of last week, when the former's house wherein they were all sheltered was struck with a lightning bolt and burned to the ground in a few minutes.

The inmates, to the number of ten were sitting in the kitchen when the deadly fluid struck the building. Mr. Henry Riley was sitting beside the stove with his little daughter on his knee, and Mrs. Dafoe was standing beside the stove, when a ball of fire seemed to leap out of the stove and burst on the floor. Everyone in the room was rendered unconscious by the shock except Mr. Dafoe, who, unaided, succeeded in carrying them outside before the rapid spread of the flames made it imposibles. Mr. Riley and the little girl and Mrs. Dafoe, were all burned badly about the body and limbs, and a remarkable feature of the lightning's effects was that an image of a tree, branches and leaves was distinctly printed in red upon the bodies of all three. Such an occurrence is very rare, and an authority on such matters, states that there appears to be no doubt that in all cases of lightning-prints the image produced upon the body indicates the object from which the electrical discharge emanated on its way to the person struck; in other terms that the object whose image is produced formed part of the electric circuit.

The injured were removed to Mr. Riley's house just across the road and medical aid from town quickly secured, while willing neighbors attracted by the blaze, did all in their power to save the household effects few of which were secured however.

The house was owned by Mr. W Ellis and was insured for $500. The contents were uninsured, the policy having lapsed a few weeks ago and therefore Mr. Dafoe faces a heavy financial loss, but naturally all concerned are congratulating themselves that no lives were lost.—Havelock Standard.

RUSSIA'S POLICE SYSTEM.

It Has an Assistant In Every House In St. Petersburg.

The Russian police system is extremely complicated, for it practically gives Russia an assistant policeman in every house in St. Petersburg. The landlord has a private porter or acts as porter himself. A porter has authority to make an arrest, and he is obliged to rush from the house to the street at the sound of a police whistle.

As there is a policeman stationed at every block, which is the limit of his beat, and as every policeman within a certain radius may respond with the porters to the signal, it takes but a few seconds to get a platoon of uniformed men, with almost a regiment of porter policemen together.

Russia has also a most elaborate system of training its policemen, and some time ago there was opened at St. Petersburg a fully equipped policeman's college, designed to train men in all the various duties of an officer of the law. At this college policemen are made familiar with the tools used by criminals, their teachers holding that they cannot become proficient policemen in any other way.

The Russian policeman attends lectures at which burglars' methods and instruments are explained, so that he can checkmate them, while he has the advantage of the criminal museum, which is attached to the college. There every appurtenance known to the breaker of the law must be experimented with until its every use is thoroughly understood.—London Tit-Bits.

Coming by Thousands.

Bringing with them cash and settlers' effects valued at over half a million dollars, 1,845 citizens of the U.S. crossed the international boundary to makes their home on Western Canadian prairies in one week.

These figures are for the week ending May 17 and are official amounts given out by J. Bruce Walker, commissioner of immigration and are as follows:

Total number of immigrants to come into Western Canada during the following week is 6,903, inclusive of 1,845 Americans and 3,184 British, a total of 73 per cent. English-speaking. Foreigners include 1,046 Russians, 308 Galicians, 386 Scandinavians, 93 Germans and 50 Italians.

Now that American seeding is completed, real movement of settlers into Western Canada is on in earnest, and each week until the start of harvesting toward the close of July will see increasing numbers coming northward.

MY WATER SPRITE

An Episode of a Summer Vacation

By F. A. MITCHEL

I took my summer outing in the mountains, stopping at the Cliff House. I had not been there three days when, rowing on the little lake around which all the hotels were centered, I passed a girl in another boat, who looked at me for a moment scutinizingly and seemed about to bow to me. But since I did not remember ever having seen her before and supposed she was mistaking me for some one else I gave her no encouragement. In other words, I treated her as a stranger. Since we faced each other as we receded we did not pass out of each other's sight for some time, and I could see on her features the sensitiveness of a girl who has spoken to the wrong man.

It is not to be expected that such an incident as this occurring to one who has nothing to do but enjoy himself would pass out of mind. I must meet that girl and learn whether it was she or I who had made a mistake. I had not seen her at my hotel; therefore I assumed that she was stopping at some of the others. There were more than half a dozen hotels in the vicinity, and I feared that to find a person whose name I did not know among so many summer residents would be like looking for a needle in a haystack.

But what trouble will a man not take in an adventure of this kind, especially when he has nothing else to do? I made the rounds of the hotels, beginning in the morning, when the guests first come out on the porch to sun themselves, spending some time on each porch looking for my water sprite, as I called her, but luck was not with me, and at the end of the first day I had not seen her.

I spent four days of a two weeks' vacation going the rounds of the hotels, instead of devoting myself to such summer sports as were at hand, looking for a girl in whom I could have no interest except that she had supposed she was passing some one she knew. In the evening of the fourth day I went to a dance at one of the hotels, and as I was sailing around in the waltz there suddenly appeared over the shoulder of her partner the face of my water sprite.

Dreading to lose her, I would have been glad to drop the girl with whom I was dancing and keep my object in sight, but I had just begun to dance, and experience with my partner had taught me that she would keep the floor as long as the music lasted. And she did. It was fully ten minutes before I was released, and then she said she must go out on to the porch for some cool air. What could I do? I proved myself a gentleman, wishing all the while that I was a boor. By the time the girl was ready for the next dance—with another partner, thank heaven—nearly half an hour had passed. Then it was too late. I hunted everywhere for my water sprite, but did not find her. If the girl I had been dancing with had known my feelings toward her for detaining me I would have had another adventure on my hands not so attractive as the first.

The next morning, passing the landing of one of the hotels, I saw the girl I sought, in a charming rowing costume, step into a boat and pull out into the lake. I immediately made application for a boat, but all were engaged. The girl I wished to follow could see me wildly running about trying to get a boat, and, though I was not near enough to see, I fancied there was an amused smile on her face. Then she disappeared behind an island, and I ground my teeth.

Several times after this I met her, and every time it was my misfortune to be so situated that I could not reach her. I showed so much temper over my disappointments that at last, when I was suffering under one of them, her face broke into a pleasant smile. There is nothing a girl likes so well as to be chased, and, instead of helping the chaser to reach her, she will throw obstacles in his way.

I learned enough of the girl who knew me and whom I did not know to be assured that she was devoted to boating. Indeed, I had seen her on the water, shooting along like the sprite for which I had named her. So I resolved to spend a day on the lake in a boat, trusting it would give me an opportunity to catch her. I hired a boat at 9 o'clock in the morning and, taking a luncheon, resolved not to come off the water till dinner time in the evening.

I had not been out long before my girl passed me just as she had done at our first meeting. For a moment we looked at each other, surprised; then, with a tantalizing smile on her lips, she gave two or three vigorous strokes that carried her away from me.

She had an advantage of me in this. To follow her I was obliged to turn, and, not being a skilled oarsman, instead of backing water with one oar and giving way with the other, I made a considerable curve. After I had turned I had another disadvantage in having my back to the girl, while she had her face to me. I was obliged to stop rowing for a moment to see where she was and saw her a short distance away resting on her oars.

Thinking that she had decided to grant me an interview, I pulled for her, and when I thought I had reached the point where I had seen her I stopped rowing to turn my head and have a look. She was rowing a few hundred feet ahead of me. I noticed the long, graceful sweep of her oars, the regularity of the time between the strokes, the nicety of her "feather," and saw that if she intended to give me a race, notwithstanding my superior strength, the issue would be uncertain.

Indeed, I was under a disadvantage in every respect except strength. My great drawback was that while she could see me I could not see her. Besides, the lake was a long one and full of islands, behind which she could lose herself if she wished to do so. I concluded to give up the chase for that day and plan for one later that would take away the disadvantage of chasing with my back toward my opponent in the race.

I pulled ashore, and while doing so it occurred to me that if I hastened with my preparations I might yet be in time to have it out before luncheon. I ran to my room, took down a small mirror that hung on the wall, secured some twine and went back to my boat. The looking glass I set up in the stern, and of the twine I made tiller strings that I tied to my feet. Then I pulled back to where I had left my water sprite. I did not have to turn to see her when I came near enough to her to do so. I espied her lazily moving across the water, but noticed that though she did not seem to exert herself she made very good headway.

I pulled straight toward her, and as I approached, supposing that with my back turned to her I could not see her, she pulled across my bow. I followed her by a curve. Catching glimpses of her in my mirror, I saw that this puzzled her, and at the same time I had evidence that she was bent on teasing me. Then suddenly she caught sight of the mirror, and it was evident to her that she had lost an advantage.

She was within a hundred feet of me when she realized that she could do no more fooling. It was beautiful to see her bend to her work. She had evidently been well trained in rowing, for scarcely a drop of spray did she knock up, while with every stroke her boat gained headway, skimming the water as if besmeared with the slime of a fish. My mirror worked beautifully, and, aided by my rudder strings, I had very little disadvantage except for the want of skill. It was evident that it was a matter of brute strength against training.

My hope was in tiring her, though I was so clumsy that I was as likely to tire myself. I put on all my strength for awhile, then slowed down, repeating the process again and again, thinking that I could recover after one of these spurts quicker than the water sprite. But at last, finding this did not appear to give me much advantage, I pretended to be fagged out and waited for her to fall into a trap. Fortunately for me, she gave me an opportunity. I could see the water and the shore behind both of us, while she could not. Noticing on our port side a narrow bay, I steered to the starboard to drive her into it. I succeeded, and presently she found herself in the mouth of the bay.

It was amusing to see her when she made this discovery. She gave a few furious strokes to starboard, but I headed her off. Then she made a few strokes to port with the same result. Gradually I drove her up the bay, which narrowed as we proceeded, and finally into the mouth of a creek, where she grounded.

I pulled up to her and said:

"Pardon me for my seeming intrusion, but it has occurred to me that I have had the pleasure of meeting you somewhere, and I wish to be enlightened."

She smiled and replied that I must be mistaken. To this I said I was not mistaken, and after laughing at me for some time she said:

"I must have grown awfully old that you can't place me. Three years sometimes make a great change in one. Can't you recall a starlit night on the veranda at —— Beach, when you sat with a girl in a corner? You told her that it was a case of love at first sight; that"—

"For heaven's sake, are you Miriam Reach?"

"No."

"Then you must be Alice Archard."

"Wrong again. I'm the third girl you proposed to that summer."

I remained silent for a few moments, then recovered my assurance.

"Don't you know," I said, "that, as the children say, 'the third time is the charm'?"

She burst into a merrier laugh than before, and I added:

"We don't need two boats for two persons. If you will get into mine we'll take yours in tow and—I'll put you in."

I handed her to a seat in the stern of my boat. She took up the mirror to make a place for herself. Holding it before her face, she arranged some strands of her hair that had become loose.

"That's womanlike," I said.

"And it's manlike," she retorted, "to propose to three girls in one season and forget them."

"'No more o' that an' thou lovest me,'" I said and called forth a blush. That tells the story, I said to myself.

I pulled back to her hotel, where I left her and her boat.

"Don't you want the mirror?" I asked her.

"No, thank you. Keep it as a memento of your ingenuity."

"I suppose I may call this evening?"

"Certainly. But there is no veranda overlooking a beach. Besides, I have grown wiser with age."

Her wisdom did not serve her, for when we returned to the city we were engaged.

© 1913, by American Press Association.

Like most boys of his years, Master Bud Stillman is fond of exercising in the open air. Bud is the son of James Alexander Stillman, the New York financier, and consequently does not lack equipment for the games he prefers. Roller skating is a hobby of Bud's, and during the rather cool weather that has prevailed in New York this spring he has availed himself of the asphalt walks in Central park to practice various feats on wheels. The artist snapped him while he was coasting on one skate, not much of a feat, most boys and girls will say, but Bud is enjoying his outing and perhaps does not consider that he is doing anything wonderful. Exercise is good for young people, whether on skates or simply in shoe leather.

The Blushing Tree.

Among the many wonders of the vast Florida swamps there is nothing more surprising than the blushing tree. It actually blushes when the rain falls upon it. The mysterious and beautiful glow of color which it assumes in a rainstorm baffles description.

When the cool rain drenches a tree a changing of color is noted. Gradually, yet unmistakably, the green hue gives way to pink. In a few minutes the green fades from sight. Only in a few half hidden spots beneath lower branches and on its trunk is there a tinge of green to be seen. The tree is as pink as the cheek of a healthy girl.

After an hour or more, when the shower passes over, the wonderful tree assumes its familiar green once more. As it is changing back to emerald the spectator suddenly realizes the secret of the phenomenon. Certain tiny insects and not the tree itself change. These peculiar parasites are possessed of the power of chameleons.

Guarding King George.

Though the days have gone by when the monarch was protected during the hours of slumber by an attendant sleeping in a bed drawn across the door of his bedchamber, King George of England is by no means left unprotected during the night. Not only is the outside of the palace guarded by soldiers and detectives, but several night watchmen pace up and down the corridors through the hours of darkness. They are shod in thick felt slippers, so as not to wake the royal sleeper, and one of them is always near the king's room until his majesty is called by his valet in the morning.

Every door and window in the place is frequently examined, and it would be impossible for any intruder to get in without his presence being discovered in a few minutes.

Conundrums.

In what place did the cock crow when all the world could hear him? In Noah's ark.

What word is there in the English language from which you can subtract twelve and leave ten? Pretentiousness.

Why is a young lady like a very bad batsman? Because she comes out at her first ball.

Why is a jailer like a musician? Because he fingers the keys.

LOOKING AHEAD.

By 1950 Canada Will Have Assumed Big Problems.

If Canada had a population of fifty millions then Montreal would probably have a population of two millions; Toronto a population of one and a half millions; Winnipeg and Vancouver one million each, and so on. Do you think that Montreal is planning for that population or that any other of the cities mentioned is making preparations to take care of the people which are sure to come in the next thirty-five years? asks Norman Patterson in The Canadian Courier.

When Canada has fifty million population the Canadian Government will be spending about a billion (or a thousand million) dollars each year instead of 157 millions as at present. Every member of Parliament will have five times as many jobs and positions to hand out to his followers as he has now and five times as many claimants for them. The railways will be carrying about ten times as many people every day as they are carrying now. They will require ten times the number of locomotives, passenger cars, and freight cars. They will have ten times the number of employes. If the Canadian Pacific Railway keeps on growing at the rate it has been growing it will then be paying wages to about 500,000 people a day.

In 1912 Canada produced a little over 200 million bushels of wheat; when she has fifty millions of people she should be producing 1,000 million bushels per annum, or a third more than is now produced annually by either Russia or the United States, the two great wheat-producing countries of the world.

In 1902 we had 18,000 miles of steam railway; in 1912 we had 26,000. In that ten years we added 8,000 miles of railway. If we keep on building railways at that rate we shall have 58,000 miles in 1950, or enough railways to make an iron belt around the waist of old Mother Earth; another around the poles and still have enough left to go twice across Canada.

To-day Canada has only two persons to a square mile, while the United States has 21 and England and Wales 658. By 1950, if we get the fifty million people, we will have fourteen people to the square mile.

To-day Canada has 33 million acres of land under cultivation; in 1950 we should have 150 millions under cultivation if the people do not all flock into the towns and cities. The total value of the wheat crops in Canada last year was estimated at $500,000,000. If our rural population grows proportionately we would be producing at least five times as much each year or a total of twenty-five hundred million dollars worth of grain and other field crops. Picture to yourself the number of trains and steamboats that will be required to transport these crops to their ultimate market.

Canada's foreign trade is increasing at a tremendous rate. The total of the last twelve months is just over 1,000 millions. In 1950, if we keep up our present rate of progress, our foreign trade will be somewhere between five and ten times that amount. Think of the number of steamships that will be coming and going in Canada's harbors to take care of that foreign trade, those exports and imports. It may even be that we will find it necessary to have a Canadian navy to look after and safeguard that tremendous foreign trade.

The total deposits in the chartered banks of Canada now exceed 1,000 millions of dollars. If our population mutiplies seven times in the next thirty-five years we will have 7,000 millions on deposit, and we shall be one of the richest countries in the world. In the last ten years the capitalization of the Canadian banks has increased about fifty millions of dollars. Figuring at this rate of growth the total capitalization of our banks in 1950 would be somewhere around 300 or 305 millions of dollars.

This country has been thinking in millions; it must now think in billions.

CHAP PERFORMED BEHIND THE BAT IN FAULTLESS STYLE

The Kolts played like an altogether different outfit yesterday afternoon and although they were handicapped by the absence of big Red Fisher, Chapdelaine, the spare Peterboro catcher, who was loaned by Rowan for the day, worked at top speed all the time, and looked real nice in a local uniform. Besides holding up Dougherty in faultless style, Chap. also contributed two healthy wallops, one of which resulted in the run that brought victory to the local camp. The injury which he sustained to his throwing hand Tuesday will keep Fisher out of the game for several days at least, and it is altogether likely that Chapdelaine will stick with the local club until the big boy is able to don the mask again.—Hamilton Spectator.

Chapdelaine also played with the Kolts yesterday when Ottawa trounced them. "Chap" has not been sold to the Hams and Davey Rowan can call him back to the fold at any time.

BASEBALL

To-morrow promises to be the big day in the Mercantile League, as two of the best games are to be played at Riverside. They are: Quakers vs. M.A.P.; Draft Room vs. Machine Shop. Bill Shaw will handle the indicator. At Brinton Park the Typos clash with the Bringtons at three o'clock and at the Oval the Canoe Builders will play the Bankers.

These games, more especially the two games at Riverside, should draw a large crowd.

BANKERS WON AT PONTYPOOL

Any time the bankers want a little fun and a free supper they take a little run down to Pontypool. Yesterday evening they went down and handed the baseball representatives of that burg a beating to the tune of 28-8.

"Rube Marquard" Carson did the heaving and had the Pontypool players swinging at the air. When a substantial lead was obtained he gave way to Minorgan, who kept up the good work. "Doc" Clarke pitched for the homesters, but he received poor support.

RICHES FOR BEGGAR.

How a Neapolitan Got $26,000 For Solving a Riddle.

"On May 1st every year I have a golden head." For forty years the worthy people of Naples, including the most learned of learned folk, endeavored to solve the riddle of this enigmatic inscription on a marble column, which an eccentric Frenchman at the beginning of the nineteenth century had erected in one of the chief streets of the city. On May 1st for a number of years after the erection of the column people came and peered at it, thinking that its head would at least be covered with gold, but no miracle happened, and at last the people got tired of puzzling over the riddle and came to the conclusion that it was but a joke on the part of the Frenchman.

Then it occurred to the authorities that probably the Frenchman had buried the treasure under the column. They had it taken down, but nothing but earth was found and the column was re-erected.

Then came a happy idea on the part of Annibale Tosci, a beggar as lazy and as ragged as only Neapolitan beggars can be, who early one morning passed the column and stood and stared at the inscription. It was a lovely summer morning, and the sun, in a cloudless sky, cast a long shadow of the column on the ground.

"I have it!" said the beggar.

He told nobody that he believed he had found the solution of a mystery which had puzzled men for so many years, but on the following first of May he came to the spot with a pick and shovel. He waited until the clock of the neighboring monastery of San Vito struck six, then he began to dig at the spot touched by the end of the column's shadow. He had not dug very deep before he came on a leather satchel of French workmanship, which he quickly seized, concealed beneath his shirt, and retired to a lonely courtyard to examine. Breathlessly he opened the satchel and found within the sum of $25,000. After all, the inscription was true, and the eccentric Frenchman had not lied.

Although a beggar, Annibale Tosci was a prudent man. He went away to Mantua, bought a small farm, and lived on his property, cultivating his own vines and olives, until his death a few years ago.

FOUNDED GIRLS' HOME

LATE H. J. DART BUILT MONUMENT TO DAUGHTER.

Montreal Drug Man, Who Died Recently, Spent All His Energies In His Later Years In the Work of Caring For Tubercular Girls—Lost His Whole Family In Same Merciful Task.

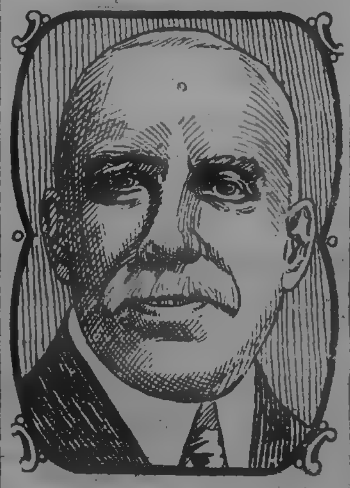
The recent death of Mr. Henry J. Dart, founder of the Grace Dart Home, removed a striking personality from business and philanthropic circles in this city. Mr. Dart had been ill since February, and was suffering from cancer.

The late Mr. Dart was president of the wholesale drug firm of Chapman Dart & Co., 155 Craig street west, and the founder of the Grace Dart Home. It is doubtful if any man in Montreal took a more active part in charitable work of practically every kind, than he did. He was bound up heart and soul in the Grace Dart Home, the work of which has been carried on mainly through his efforts and has grown from an institution which was at first only capable of caring for two or three patients until it is now regarded as one of the leading institutions of its kind in the city.

The Home was dedicated to the memory of Grace Dart, his second daughter, by his first wife. It was while this daughter was still a young woman that Mr. Dart decided to enter into this branch of work, and opened a portion of his own home for the treatment of tuberculosis patients. While it was only possible to treat two or three patients in the Home as it was then known, the work gradually grew, and Mr. Dart's three daughters by his first wife, did most of the work connected with the institution. Each of these in turn fell a victim to and died of tuberculosis.



THE LATE HENRY J. DART.

Even after the loss of his whole family, which his friends state was due to overwork and exposure in the work undertaken by them, Mr. Dart still continued, and some ten years ago moved the institution from the east end to its present home near Richmond Square. While of late years it became impossible for him to finance the institution completely on his own accord he interested friends in the project, with the result that the present Grace Dart Home is now in a flourishing condition, and capable of accommodating quite a number of patients, who are unable to procure accommodation at any of the local hospitals, the Home being reserved for those who are refused admittance to other hospitals.

It is a notable feature of the life of Mr. Dart that while he was so constantly assisting the afflicted, but very little of his work was made public. Mr. Dart was born on the Isle of Jersey, on Nov. 27, 1847, and came to this country when still a very young man, being accompanied hither by his brother, Rev. Rural Dean Dart, at present located at St. Lambert, and a sister who resides with her brother at St. Lambert, these being the only three members of the family.

On his arrival in Montreal it was his intention to study for the ministry, but after working a short time in the employ of Messrs. Cross & Bancroft, he became an employe of the Kenneth Campbell Co., and was for years general manager of that concern, which was formerly located where the new Dominion Express Building now stands on St. James street. Some twenty years ago he entered business for himself and prospered.

Only Undignified Retreat.

Possibly the only undignified retreat ever made by Lord Wolseley, Britain's great soldier who died on March 25, occurred in 1858. After a long and dusty march in the very hot season he sought the waters of one of the tanks surrounded with fine groves of trees—which are the gifts of the pious and charitable. While he was rolling about in luxurious enjoyment a yellow snake shook its tongue close to his face, and, almost paralyzed with terror, he struck out for the stepped side of the bank as fast as if, to use his own words, he "were pursued by a whole zoological garden full of hostile and man-devouring beasts and reptiles."

Three Guineas an Hour.

The Secretary of State for Britain has decided that the remuneration of the members of the Tribunal of Appeal, constituted under the London Building Acts, shall be at the rate of three guineas for the first hour, and two guineas for each subsequent hour of each day's sitting.

South African Seal Skins.

It is reported that the average number of seal skins taken from the islands lying round the southwestern coast of South Africa is 3,500 per annum. The skins are shipped to England and sold on the London market.

PATH OF THE SUN.

Its Relation to the Equinoxes and the Solstices.

The sun's path is called the ecliptic. It is a great circle of the celestial sphere, cutting the celestial equator at two points 180 degrees apart and making with it an angle of 23½ degrees known as the obliquity of the ecliptic. The crossing points are called the equinoxes, because the days and nights are then equal, and the points midway between the equinoxes are the solstices, because the sun then seems to stand still for a few days.

The ecliptic is so called because eclipses occur only when the moon is crossing it or is near it, for the moon's orbit cuts the ecliptic in two points, called nodes or knots, and at other times is above or below it. If the moon, when in either node, is in line with the sun and the earth we have an eclipse, either total or annular. If she is near her node we have a partial eclipse.

The moon's nodes are not stationary, but move backward on the moon's orbit, completing a revolution in about nineteen years, when the eclipses of the period recur in the same order and at about the same intervals as before. This period of eighteen years and eleven days is called the saros. It was known to the Chaldeans and the Greeks and gave them their data for computing eclipses.

Any intelligent person can trace the sun's path in the heavens. If the sun rises exactly in the east and sets in the west it is the time of the equinoxes. If the sunrise and sunset points are farthest north and the sun at noonday is highest in the heavens it is the time of the summer solstice. If the sunrise and sunset points are farthest south and the sun is very low in the heavens at noonday it is the time of the winter solstice.—

PEOPLE CO-OPERATED WITH THE MERCHANTS AND THE PICNIC WAS SPLENDID SUCCESS

Record Crowd at T.A.S. Park. Merchants Appreciate the Assistance Given by the Citizens

Well, it's all over and the merchants of the city, individually and collectively, are to be congratulated on the splendid success of their first picnic, held for the citizens of Peterborough.

There was a whole lot of hard and faithful work on the part of those merchants, most actively engaged in promoting the picnic and judging from the many complimentary remarks of people who could understand, their efforts were appreciated.

The citizens were given an opportunity of a holiday at a reasonable expenditure and there is no doubt, but that they enjoyed themselves.

The crowd at T. A. S. Park on Thursday is estimated by Mr. Joseph Maher—who with Messrs. D. H. Kerneghan and W. J. Oke, handled the tickets—in the neighborhood of 3,500.

Shortly after nine o'clock the steamers Geneva and Rainbow, commenced to take passengers to the grounds, and the half-hour service was given throughout the day. The heaviest traffic was in the afternoon between two and four o'clock, and while there was some waiting at the Railway Wharf, there was also some inside manoeuvres on the part of the ticket committee and the captains of the boats, and the result was that the very best possible service was given.

At the grounds, the long list of sporting events was carried out. Young and old competed in the various events. The girls had a big time in the nail-driving competition; Mothers and dads were rejuvenated by the events provided for them and the youngsters were made happy as they took part in the races and captured prizes. There was something for everybody, not even the babes were forgotten.

Business was brisk at the several booths where ice cream, soft drinks and other refreshments were on sale. At the main booth, it was possible to secure sandwiches, cakes, pies, tea, milk and innumerable other delicacies, so that those people who lacked the picnic basket could satisfy appetites no matter how small or how large.

Music was provided by a detachment of the 57th Band, under the direction of Mr. Gliddon and the Rube Band led by Mr. Walter Hughes. This latter organization was the outcome of an idea of Mr. Bob Beach. Both bands were very liberal with appropriate selections. Music for dancing in the pavilion was supplied by the Grand Opera House Orchestra.

BASEBALL MATCH.

White's All Star Bee Hives defeated Cressman's Nine by 8—4. There were some wild nad woolly plays during the exhibition, in which the Bees took an early lead. The grounds were not suitable for baseball, but the boys made the best of it and enjoyed the struggle, as well as the spectators. The batteries were:

NOTES

The prize winners are asked to call at Connal's grocery store, where the prizes are being given out.

---

Mayor Bradburn pressed the button and wished the merchants all success.

---

The young people had a good time in the dancing pavilion.

---

The committee worked unceasingly. A number of the merchants were hard at work on the grounds all day.

---

Next year, the merchants having profited by experience, may be expected to provide something even better.

---

"United we stand," seems to be a suitable application in yesterday's case

---

Mr Ralph Doyle, western representative of the Retail Merchants' Association of Canada, was a visitor to the grounds and he acted as special judge. Mr. Doyle was highly pleased with the pic-nic and congratulated the members of the local association on their success.

---

George Wesley made four ascensions but was on the job again this morning. He pulled the string on four balloons, in the presence of large crowds. This feature of the pic-nic, was for the young people but it was noticed that the older folks were on the job too.

---

Paddy Kane had a busy time with the Ocean Wave.

---

Mr. N. C. Cameron was one of the busiest men on the grounds and his prediction that the pic-nic would be a big success, came true. "It will be a bigger and better next year," says Mr. Cameron.

---

"They should have had this thing going long ago," was the comment of Mr. J. J. Thompson, who put in a busy afternoon as announcer.

Three hundred pies, 100 large loaves of bread, 50 cases of soft drinks and 70 gallons of ice cream, were sold at the booths. The proceeds from ice cream and soft drinks amounted to $400.00.

A GREEN ENGLISHMAN AT THE PICNIC

I took a George-st. car and boarded the Geneva at the street railway wharf. It was my first trip and my first view of this river.

I suppose Peterborough people believe the Otonabee to be the finest river in Eastern Ontario. Well, I cannot say as the truth of such an assertion not knowing all the rivers, but from my observation this is certainly one of the prettiest I have met with. It struck me as being very like the river Dee at Chester in England. It is a little wider and if it only had the historic association of that famous stream it would be an even more desirable holiday resort.

The country on either side of the river is pastoral and there is a profusion of trees on its banks and with its gracefully winding course it makes a beautiful picture on a clear sunny day like yesterday.

There was a cool breeze, which tempered the hot sun beams and made the sail down the river delightful and refreshing.

But what are these tents on the banks? Who are these moving about the groves? Indians? Surely not! yet this legend "TAKY EREZE KAMP" certainly sounds a bit like the "Buffalo Bill" books.

But I spy a sewing machine, and who ever read of a squaw with a sewing machine? Hark! What is that, one of the papooses singing? Alas, it is a gramaphone singing "put on your old grey bonnet." Did I come all the way to Canada to hear that? That fellow in shirt sleeves standing over a cook stove is no Indian where are the feathers?

Very pretty was the first sight of T. A. S. Park, dotted with white clad ladies, and romping children. The smiling faces of the crowd waiting on the wharf told of happiness and that the people of Peterboro can enjoy themselves in a clean and wholesome fashion.

After a feast of good things spread out on the sward, I settled down with my clan on the banks of the river to watch the canoes and launches pass, up and down the river. I envied the deftness and skill with which those young fellows, and old fellows too, would balance themselves in and manipulate their canoes like elves in a cockle-shell.

It was charming to sit there with the sweet strains of the band floating around you. "Home Sweet Home" was played and it was rather sad music to a green Englishman under alien skies, but the sense of exile was relieved by the happy surroundings. An Englishman cannot be long home-sick in Peterboro', where there are so many who hail from the Mother land, and where they hold such delightful pic-nics every year.

The boat was rather crowded coming home, but it was a fine evening; with the moon slowly rising in the east one felt at peace with all the world.

I thank the Merchants of Peterboro for a "good time."

PERSONAL

Mr. Edward Clark, an old Peterborough boy, who has been residing in Rochester for a number of years, arrived in the city last evening.

Mr. D. Potter, a former resident of this city, now of Hamilton, was in the city to-day on business.

Mr. W. Madill learned last night that the condition of Rev. Robert Pogue was favorable, and that the patient was resting comfortably.

4,000 CHINESE REBELS BEATEN BY LOYAL TROOPS

Southern Revolutionists Are Not Meeting the Success Which They Had Anticipated and One Decisive Victory By the Government Would Probably End the Rising—British Are Unpopular

PEKIN, July 19.—Four thousand southern rebels from Nanking, Province of Kiangsu, who had crossed the Yang-Tse-Kiang to attack the northerners met with defeat yesterday at the hands of 2,000 of the loyal troops near Suchowfu, in the northwestern part of Kiangsu Province, and a short distance across the northern border of Anhwei Province.

Dr. Sun Yat Sen, former provisional president of the republic, finally has taken sides in the revolt by openly proceeding to Nanking, where the southerners apparently are much disheartened by their defeat.

Wu-Chang, capital of the Province of Hu-Peh, remains loyal to the Government, and indications are that other centres, which had declared in favor of the southern revolutionists, are preparing to renew their allegience. One big defeat of the revolters practically would end the rebellion, while a substantial victory by them would result in a unanimity of sentiment in their favor in many of the southern provinces.

Britishers Not Popular.

SHANGHAI, July 19.—An extraordinary story has been brought here from Kiukiang, a treaty port in the Province of Kiangsi. During the recent fighting Mr. Duff, the storekeeper at Kuling, a mission station about ten miles south of Kiukiang, tried to obtain a pass from the northern general to send provisions to the foreign residents at Kuling.

Duff presented a card of introduction from the British consul, but the general's secretary tore it to pieces, saying there were no facilities there for Britishers. Subsequently Mr. Duff obtained a pass for the provisions with the aid of an American card of introduction to the general.

HARVESTER PLANT SHUT DOWN.

It Will Be For Four Weeks—Thousand Employes Affected.

HAMILTON, July 19.—H. H. Biggert, general manager of the Canadian branch of the International Harvester Co., yesterday made an official statement to allay the startling reports that the company would close its big plant up tight and probably not open for months.

"The manufacturing department of the plant will close to-night for three weeks. The centennial celebration following we will close for another week. That will take the slack out of the situation and we expect to resume operations on the morning of Aug. 18 with a moderate-sized staff. There is nothing unusual in our closing at this time of year. We close for two weeks every year at this period."

About 1,000 men stopped work last night.

FARMERS ANTICIPATE LIGHT CROPS

Unless Nature Asserts Herself and Sends Forth Showers

Apple Crop Will be Only One Half it is Reported

With the time rapidly approaching when the farmers begin to reap the benefits of their year's work and toil, it might be well to review the conditions of the crops and judge the amount of the products. Cavan and North Monaghan may be taken as a fair average of the surrounding vicintiy. From these points comes the cry for rain and a short period of cooler weather. Oats are badly in need of a few days rain. The heads are well filled and it is feared that as the crop is so short that it will be impossible to catch it unless a table is used. This would necessitate a large amount of extra trouble. Hay is very thin and short and also needs rain. Fall wheat was winter killed with the late cold spring, and several farmers have ploughed it up and planted roots. There will not be fifty acres of fall wheat in the country; that will average about 20 bushels to the acre, it is said.

Barley is very short, and alfalfa is a failure owing to the June frosts. Late peas is in the same predicament, as barley and hay.

Roots are in a very poor state mangles being an utter failure and though turnips are in fairly good condition yet they need the rain.

Many fields of mangles, like fall wheat, have been ploughed up, and turnips planted.

Taking everything into consideration the crops are very poor and if rain does not come within a week or ten days, things will go badly with the farmers and the cry of "back to the land" will be hushed for a while. With the grain short, which means no straw, and the roots a failure, very little live stock could be kept over the winter.

THE APPLE CROP

"About fifty per cent of the apple crop is all we will get this year. This cry is being heard considerably around local parts and pretty well throughout Ontario. Although no variety in particular is affected, according to reports from farmers in the surrounding country, the crop will only be half, as nearly all the trees at the present stage show a tendency for a light yield.

As a result, the price of apples will, in all probabiltiy, go up another notch, adding more to the high cost of living. The rumors are well founded as the reports from the Agriculture Department show a falling off of about fifty per cent.

CHOKED BY COLLAR

Western Reserve University Graduate Strangled by Pressure

PITTSBURG, July 19.—Harry D. Wingert, a graduate of Western Reserve University, was choked to death here Thursday night by the collar he was wearing.

Out of college only a short time, Wingert returned to this city on Thursday evening from a western trip, and called at the office of a friend to consult him about the purchase of an automobile. Not finding his friend in his office, Wingert went into a private room and sat down to wait.

While there the young man evidently was overcome by the heat and fell in a faint. He wore an extremely high and stiff collar, which strangled him to death.

Alton B. Parker's Son Shot.

AYERSCLIFFE, Que., July 19.—The 19-year-old son of former Chief Justice Alton B. Parker of New York, Democratic Presidential candidate in 1904, died early last evening from a bullet wound in the abdomen. The shot was fired accidentally by a companion named Lincoln, while a party of young men were shooting with a revolver at a target.

Dr. Edgar and Dr. Brown were called, but found young Parker's condition hopeless. He died while being taken to a hospital.

GOT AFTER GOMPERS.

But Manufacturers Failed to Bribe Him, Says Mulhall.

WASHINGTON, July 19.—Martin M. Mulhall yesterday gave the Senate lobby investigating committee his story of the alleged effort in 1907 or 1908 to bribe Samuel Gompers to desert the cause of labor and support the policies advocated by the National Association of Manufacturers. He admitted he had no positive information that an attempt to bribe Gompers had actually been made, but he said Atherton Brownell of New York had outlined the plans to him, and had told him of what was to be done.

Mulhall was excused late yesterday afternoon until Monday morning on the ground that he was tired after a week of continuous testimony. The committee held a session last night to hear the testimony of S. W. McClave of Paterson, N.J., now a candidate for Congress, and with whom Mulhall claimed he worked throughout the campaign of 1910, when McClave was running against William Hughes.

The committee opened the Gompers incident yesterday when newspaper clippings appeared, showing that Gompers had made the bribery charges before a court in 1908, and that President Van Cleave of the Manufacturers' Association had denied all connection with them. Mulhall said he had been referred by Van Cleave and Schwedtman to Mr. Brownell in New York, who claimed to be conducting a publicity bureau for the association.

Brownell told him, he said, that a man named Brandenberg was following Gompers; that they had a plan fixed up by which they expected to "get" the labor leader, and that they were positive they could not fail. Mulhall said he warned them they would not succeed, and later advised Van Cleave to the same effect.

This was the extent of Mulhall's knowledge of the matter, but he insisted that from the previous information he had he knew that the plan had been on foot to force Gompers into signing a document that would insure his future action.

Suicide To Escape Pain.

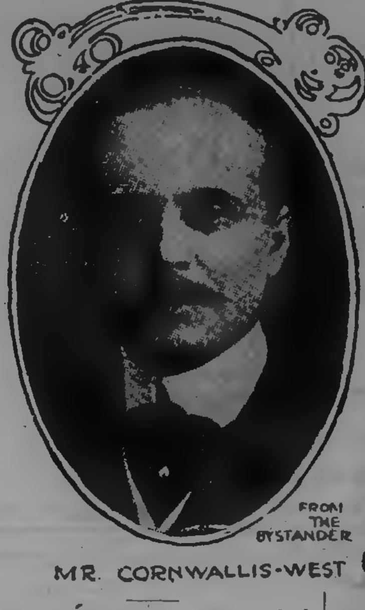
DECATUR, Ala., July 19.—Pinned beneath an overturned locomotive Huston Fleming, an engineer, put an end to his torture by cutting his own throat late Thursday night, when spectators of his plight refused his request to kill him.

Fleming, with Floyd Hamlin, an air inspector, was testing a new locomotive in the Louisville & Nashville yards when it was hurled from the tracks by a switch engine and overturned. Hamlin died yesterday.

MRS. GEORGE CORNWALLIS-WEST IS LADY RANDOLPH CHURCHILL



MR. CORNWALLIS-WEST

LADY RANDOLPH CHURCHILL

Mrs. George Cornwallis-West is Lady Randolph Churchill once again.

The President of the Divorce Court, Sir Samuel Evans, granted to her a decree nisi, with costs, against her husband, Mr. George F. M. Cornwallis-West, after a trial lasting ten minutes.

The court was not crowded, as the case was undefended and only formal and undisputed evidence was to be given.

She was nervous and ill at ease; as if performing an irksome and detestable task.

Evidence subsequently was given of the misconduct of the husband with some woman whose name was unknown, and the Judge immediately pronounced the decree.

Mrs. Cornwallis-West, after receiving the decree, annouaced that hereafter she would be known as Lady Randolph Churchill.

HAMILTON MAN SAVED FROM DEATH AT BRINK OF AMERICAN FALLS

When Young Man Falls Over Railing and Catches on Stones in Swift Current Four Bystanders Form a Chain and Drag Him to Shore.

NIAGARA FALLS, N.Y., July 19.—Truman Chapman, 22 years old, of Hamilton, Ont., was rescued from the very brink of the American falls last night by four men, one of whom took desperate chances to reach him. Chapman was sitting on the iron railing just above Prospect Point about nine o'clock when the loiterers in the park were horrified to see him suddenly topple backwards and fall into the stream.

At this point the current is swift and the pull toward the brink of the falls almost irresistible. After striking the water Chapman's body lodged against two small projections of rock and this undoubtedly saved him from instant death.

When the cry went up that a man was in the water, John Hughes and Thomas S. Winders of Niagara Falls, Thomas D. Thomas of Toronto, and a fourth man, who did not give his name to the police, leaped over the railing.

The unidentified man waded out several feet from the shore but could not reach far enough to get a secure hold of Chapman, who seemed to be unconscious or unable to help himself. Hughes, Winders and Thomas formed in a chain from the iron fence and clinging to the unknown's hand enable him to get a few inches nearer Chapman.

When the unconscious man was pulled away from the supporting hold of the rocks, there was another moment of intense suspense for the rescuers. His body was a dead weight and the pull of the current toward the brink of the falls, less than fifteen feet away, was tremendous. A break in the chain meant not only the loss of Chapman's life, but also that of the unknown man, who was then too far out to get back to the shore unaided.

Twice the man at the end of the chain was swept from his feet, but he clung desperately to the helpless burden and the united efforts of the three men nearest, who had a better footing, finally swung the two of them out of the grasp of the current.

Chapman was unconscious for over an hour after being taken ashore. Relatives said he was subject to fits and undoubtedly was stricken while sitting on the rail.

Tried To Save Greek Boy.

TORONTO, July 19.—Word was received yesterday of a brave attempt at rescue from drowning made at the Royal Muskoka Hotel, Lake Rosseau, by W. McCoskery, whose home is in this city.

A Greek, whose name is not known, had sunk in fourteen feet of water and McCoskery and several others dived for the body. After a few minutes all desisted but the Toronto boy, who kept on diving until after ten minutes had elapsed he felt the man's body in his hands. He was very tired, and it was only after a heroic struggle that he brought the Greek to the surface.

Efforts to stimulate heart action were continued for some time, but in vain, as life was extinct.

PREMIERS TO CONFER.

Whitney and Gouin Invite Provincial Prime Ministers.

TORONTO, July 19.—The Prime Minister of Ontario and the Prime Minister of Quebec have issued a joint letter to the Prime Ministers of the various provinces calling an interprovincial conference to be held in the city of Ottawa on Oct. 29, 1913, at 11 o'clock in the forenoon. In 1910 a conference was called at the request of the Maritime Provinces to consider a proposal to amend the British North America Act in regard to the representation of the Maritime Provinces in the Parliament of Canada.

This conference after some discussion was adjourned to a future date. The forthcoming conference is intended to afford an opportunity of proceeding with the business of the adjourned conference and also any other business that may be brought before it by the members.

BOLT KILLS FARMER

Thomas Stillar Dead, But Babe on Knee is Unhurt

POWASSAN, Ont., July 19.—During a severe electrical storm which occurred here yesterday afternoon, Thomas Stillar, a farmer of the vicinity, was instantly killed. Mr. Stillar was sitting in his room with his baby on his knee when the fatal bolt came. The baby was uninjured.

Big Hailstones at Cornwall.

CORNWALL, July 19.—A strange phenomenon occurred here yesterday afternoon during a temporary overshadowing of the sky. Following a moderate fall of rain a shower of hail came. The hail was of an unusual size, and a street railway conductor picked up one at the O. & N. Y. station that measured two and one-half inches in diameter. The weather was very warm both before and after the fall.

STORIES OF THE BULGAR ATROCITIES CORROBORATED

Bodies of a Hundred Women Burned Alive Are Found and Bulgarians Are Shown To Have Deliberately Poured Oil Over Them and Set Them on Fire

SALONIKA, July 19.—The Parliamentary committee assigned to visit the places at which atrocities have been committed by the Bulgarian army reports from Seres that the city has been completely ruined by fire. Seventeen notables shut up in one room were pierced in the head by bayonets and thrown into a pit half alive and covered with earth.

The committee found the bodies of 100 women who had been burned alive. The methods used were indescribable. The Bulgars poured petroleum over them and set them on fire. One body was found with the feet cut off and a rope around the neck. Girls who resisted the men attacking them were mutilated. Fifty-two were butchered in the open air. The victims numbered 200; the rest of the population escaped when the city was bombarded, and it was known that the Greek army was close at hand and advancing rapidly. On their exit from the city they were defended by the Greek and Turkish town guard.

There is documentary evidence to show that the slaughter was deliberately planned.

Twenty thousand people at Seres are homeless. Four thousand and fifty houses and 1,000 stores were burned, and merchandise worth $1,200,000 was stolen or destroyed. The number of Jewish houses burned was 2,324. All the schools and synagogues were destroyed, as well as 18 Greek churches.

At the last occupation of Guev Gueli by the Bulgars all the inhabitans who were unable to flee perished during three terrible days of martyrdom. Beside the pillage of the houses and stores, nine representative persons were massacred.

Bulgarians Make Charges.

SOFIA, Bulgaria, July 19.—The general commanding the Bulgarian army operating against the Greeks officially charges the Greek troops with deliberately raking with their cannon fire the hospital at Demir-Hissar in spite of the fact that the Red Cross was flying over the building.

A few of the hospital attendants fled, the general says, but the remainder of the nurses and all the patients were killed except a few sick and wounded who had managed to crawl out from the ruins of the hospital, being shot down by Greek soldiers.

The general also says the Greek troops were massacring the entire population of Kilkisseh.

A coalition Cabinet was formed yesterday by M. Radostavoff, the Liberal leader in the Bulgarian Parliament, to take the place of the Cabinet of Premier Daneff, which recently resigned. The new Cabinet consists of Liberals and Stambuloff Nationalists. M. Guenadieff has been appointed Foreign Minister.

Is Ferdinand In Flight.

LONDON, July 19.—The Daily Chronicle's Brussels correspondent is informed from an exceptionally well-informed source that King Ferdinand of Bulgaria is in flight. News to the same effect is also received from Paris, where it is stated that the King made a hurried flight with Crown Prince Boris.

Inquiries here failed to confirm the Brussels report. The Bulgarian legation discredited it. Last evening a Vienna despatch stated that Queen Glenore of Bulgaria with her suite unexpectedly arrived at Ernestbrunn Castle Tower, Austria, the property of her nephew, Prince Rouss, but an official denial to this is given.

TARIFF DEBATE IS ON.

Democratic Schedules Begin on Strenuous Journey.

WASHINGTON, July 19.—An average reduction of 27.64 per cent. under the rates of the existing Payne-Aldrich tariff law is proposed by the Democratic Underwood-Simmons tariff bill, upon which the Senate began general debate yesterday, according to the report of the Finance Committee majority, submitted by the chairman, Senator F. M. Simmons.

The report also shows that the bill as reported to the Senate provides rates 4.22 per cent. lower than the Underwood bill as it passed the House, and that from it, together with other Government receipts for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1914, there will be an estimated surplus in the Government treasury of $2,020,000.

A salient feature of this bill, it is pointed out, is the large increase of imports to be admitted free of duty. Under the House bill, the value of free-listed imports, on the basis of 1912 importations, was $103,000,000, whereas the Democrats of the Senate in caucus, by sweeping changes, propose to free list imports valued at $147,367,000, an increase in undutiable imports over the House bill of $43,367,000.

Upon the basis of ten months for the coming fiscal year, the report estimates that the receipts from customs alone under the new bill will be $266,730,000; from income tax for ten months, $58,330,000; corporation tax, $37,000,000; internal revenue, including tax on cotton futures, of $5,000,000, $297,000,000; and that the revenue from all other sources will bring the total for the fiscal year to $996,810,000. With disbursements estimated for the committee by treasury experts at $994,790,000, a balance is shown in favor of the Government of $2,020,000.

ALLIANCE TO MEET.

National Prohibition Convention Called For Sept. 3 and 4.

TORONTO, July 19.—Toronto is to have a national prohibition convention. The call is being issued by the Dominion Alliance. It will be held at the Metropolitan Methodist Church on Wednesday and Thursday, Sept. 3 and 4.

Representatives will attend the convention from the prominent branches of the Alliance, other provincial temperance organizations, Anglican and Presbyterian synods, Baptist and Congregational Unions, and other Canadian church bodies.

The convention will elect officers, and an executive for the Dominion Council of the Alliance.

The call says: "The developments of the past year emphasize the necessity of consultation and united action of the temperance workers in the different provinces of Canada. National legislation is needed to make local option and provincial prohibition more effective. The Canada Temperance Act, which is the only local option measure available in many places, needs strengthening and enlarging so as to adapt it to present conditions. The objective of total Dominion prohibition at the earliest possible moment must be kept steadily in view, and other lines of action made to work towards that end."

BANK SURVIVES

New Haven Savings is Victim of All Day Stampede

NEW HAVEN, Conn., July 19.—Thousands of dollars were yesterday withdrawn from the New Haven Savings Bank—regarded as one of the strongest banks in the state—in an all-day run on the institution. The bank paid all depositors promptly and during the day issued several statements, declaring that the bank was sound and that there was no cause for alarm.

Late in the afternoon a meeting of the officers and trustees was held, after which a statement was issued saying that "The officers and the trustees of the New Haven Savings Bank desire to state without any qualification, that said bank is able to pay everyone of its depositors in full, and that there is no occasion for the slightest alarm."

THE CHINESE LAUNDRIES

According to a large number of people, conditions are very bad in some Chinese laundries and in some of the Celestial restaurants. Sanitary Inspector Spence made an inspection and also laid some very astonishing facts before the Board of Health last year regarding the conditions of some of the laundries and restaurants owned by the Celestial. The Chinamen seem to have dodged back into their old ways of eating and sleeping in the same rooms.

MEXICO THE ANARCH

Mexico is a hot-bed of revolutions and insurrections, they spring up perennially and have become part of the national life. The Mexicans could no more get along without a rebellion than Spain could be Spain without its bull fights, or the United States without its baseball matches. Mexico has had over 260 insurrections within the last hundred years; that is a record unbeaten by any other country on the planet, and few nations will envy the distinction.

The country was conquered by Cortez in the year 1519 and was ruled by Spain for 300 years until the rebellion of 1821, when it gained its independence. For the first fifty years of its independent existence there was continual civil strife, and it several times waged war with the United States and with France.

In 1867 a Republican government was formed, modelled after the United States. Porfirio Diaz became president in the year 1876. Diaz proved a very masterful ruler and under his presidency the country has made some progress. But the people are very backward in education despite the fact that there are free schools in every town.

One-fifth of the people of Mexico are white, the rest are either Indian or half-cast, the language is Spanish and the religion is Roman Catholic.

The anarchy which prevails among these people is perhaps due to this conglomerate mixture of blood. There is not that cohesion and patriotic spirit which unites people of a common origin.

UNKNOWN BRIDGES

Robert Bridges who was reported to have been offered the Laureateship by Mr. Asquith, and afterward was reported to have refused the honor, has at last been prevailed upon to don the bays.

It is little use now to express any opinions as to the choice made by the Premier, for Dr. Bridges is Laureate for good or for evil.

There will no doubt be much disappointment among the minor bards who have been doing their best for some time to make themselves heard.

Robert Bridges was the last man to be thought of in connection with this position by the average man. Indeed to most people he was entirely unknown, and, even now is little more than a name. A wag in one of the papers laconically remarked upon first hearing that Dr. Bridges was appointed: "He is one of the Bridges I have not reached yet."

The new Laureate is well advanced in years and has lived a life of retirement from the affairs of the world. He might be said to be of aesthetic tastes, his poetry is of the delicately refined order and has little in it to appeal to the popular mind. Most of it is of the kind that Tennyson wrote before the death of Arthur Hallam. He is fond of triliots and love lyrics and seldom sounds a strong, manly note;

"Simple enjoyment calm in its excess
With not a grief to cloud, and not a ray
Of passion overhot my peace to oppress;
With no ambition to reproach delay,
Nor rapture to disturb my happiness."

There are many other living poets who could have "filled the bill" much better, and produced, at twenty-four hours' notice, odes and elegies by the yard. Tennyson, while he seldom failed to celebrate the chief events in the life of his queen and country, generally manged to infuse his subjects with authentic fire, and his art was always above criticism. But he was a supreme artist and a master singer, and thoroughly conversant with current, social, political, scientific and Theological problems.

It is more than likely that Dr. Bridges has only accepted the honor conferred upon him on the understanding that he will not be expected to sing because he must.

Among the many eligible poets for the position, perhaps Mr. Asquith has made the wisest choice, for he has raised a man to a position of honor and distinction, who has never sought public recognition, or appealed to the gallery, but was content to dwell in obscurity so long as he could worship at the shrine of the muses. This fact ought to fore-stall all jealousy on the part of noisier poets, and remind them of the words of Milton:

"Fame is no plant that grows in mortal soil,
Nor in the glistering foil
Set off to the world, nor in broad rumor lies;
But lives and spreads aloft by those pure eyes
And perfect witness of all-judging Jove."

EDITORIAL NOTES

When "Allies" fall out the wily Turk gets his own.

The Municipal World says: We are so accustomed to drawing a supply of water by opening a tap, emptying a basin by lifting a stopper, having our streets and roadways swept and sprinkled and safely lighted at night. We feel secure in the knowledge that a call on the telephone will bring a policeman or trained fireman with many appliances. All these and other services are so familiar that we seldom think of the complicated organization and varied kinds of skill necessary to meet the public demands.

Baroness Macdonald of Earnscliffe, is the only Canadian woman, almost the only British woman, who holds a title in her own right. The Baroness is the widow of Sir John A. Macdonald, and was created a peeress in 1891, on the death of her husband, in consideration of his public services. She was a Miss Bernard, daughter of the late Hon. T. C. Bernard, of Jamaica. Her marriage to the Canadian statesman took place in 1867, the year of confederation. Lady Macdonald makes her home in England, but continues to take an interest in things Canadian, although she has reached the age of seventy-seven. A woman of intellectual power, Lady Macdonald in earlier years did a service to Canada by writing for the English press of the resources of the country—How many Canadians knew that the famous statesman's wife was still living?

The Chinaman is too polite to say anything that might give offence to another. Here is said to be a Chinese publisher's letter of rejection. "I have read your work and am delighted with it. Nay, I swear by the sacred ashes of my forefathers that never in my life have I read anything to excel its merits. That is why I am afraid that His Majesty our exalted Emperor and Sire, would become so enthused over it, should we print the work, that he might forbid us, ever to have anything printed hereafter that did not approach this superb masterpiece. And since in the next one thousand years another work of equal value can hardly be expected, we herewith return your divine manuscript to you with infinite regret, and beg your forgiveness for doing so."

We are getting some slips run off to this effect to accompany returned MSS.

OUR DOG

"We have a dog named Goldie,
Her coat it shines like gold;
She eats food that is mouldy,
And she often catches cold.
She had three little pups,
A brown one and two blacks—"

BROOKLYN TABERNACLE BIBLE STUDY ON

MOSES CALLED TO SERVICE.

—July 20.—Exodus 3:1-14.—

"Blessed are the pure in heart: for they shall see God."—Matthew 5:4

MOSES was forty years old when he fled from Pharaoh, discouraged. He was eighty years old when God called him to be the leader of Israel. The first forty years of his life were an ordinary schooling; the last forty, a special schooling in meekness. He was now ready for service at exactly the time when God wished to use him. So thoroughly discouraged had he become that he who was ready to lead the hosts of Israel without a special Divine commission and authorization was now so distrustful of himself that even when called of the Lord he apologized, pleading his unfitness, etc. He did not realize that he had only then become fit.

Moses was tending Jethro's flocks, and perhaps considering how wise it was that forty years before he had been unsuccessful in arousing his brethren to flee from Egypt. He could now see, in the light of maturer years, what a herculean task he would have had as their leader. He could better understand the difficulties that would have attended his people in the wilderness journey and also in attempting to take possession of the land of Canaan. Quite possibly he philosophized that people unready to be delivered were wise in remaining in bondage.

The Burning Bush Consumed Not.

Thus meditating, while his flock pastured on the mountainside, Moses caught sight of something most unusual. A bush was afire, yet it was not consumed. Moses approached the bush to investigate. From it came a voice, declaring the phenomenon to be a manifestation of God's presence and power. Moses obeyed the command to take off his sandels; for it was holy ground, by reason of the presence of the Angel of the Lord. Moses then covered his face in reverence, while he listened to the Divine message.

The statement, "I am the God of Abraham, the God of Isaac and the God of Jacob," brought to this instructed man of God a clear understanding of what was signified by his experience. By it God reminded him of the Covenant which He had made with Abraham, and renewed with Isaac, and confirmed to Jacob for an everlasting covenant. Thus Moses learned that God's time had come for the deliverance of Israel and for their attainment of the Land of Promise—Canaan.

If Moses had ever wondered whether God really cared for the Israelites and why He had permitted them to be oppressed by the Egyptians, he now had God's own assurance that He did care, and that He had a purposed in withholding help so long. The Lord's explanation closed with an invitation to Moses to be His servant, and messenger, to Pharaoh, calling upon him to liberate the captive Israelites.

"Certainly I Will Be With Thee."

Then Moses, who forty years before was full of confidence and courage, and ready to lead the Israelites, but who now was lacking in self-confidence, replied to the Lord, "Who am I, that I should go unto Pharaoh, and that I should bring forth the children of Israel out of Egypt?" This meant, I am a failure; with all the educational advantages that I had, I am fit for nothing better than to be a sheep-tender.

God's reply was: "Surely I will be with thee." I shall not expect you to do it yourself. I realize that it is a mighty work.

"I am that I am."

By way of emphasis, the Lord declared that not only should Moses lead the people forth, but they should worship God in that very mountain.

Moses, remembering his previous failure, was cautious. He inquired what response he should make if the Israelites should ask, "Who? Which God? What is His name?" The Divine response was that God's name is, "I AM THAT I AM"—the self-existent One. But Moses had become so distrustful of himself that he still could not think of undertaking this great work. He urged that the Egyptians would not let the people go, and that the Israelites themselves would not believe that God had really appeared to him.

Answering these objections, the Lord gave Moses certain signs, convincing him that he was talking to the Omnipotent, and assured him that these signs would convince the Israelites and also the Egyptians.

So meek was Moses that although he fully believed the Lord and trusted His power, yet he could not feel competent to do this great work. Humility, lack of self-confidence, meekness, had become so pronounced in him that he prayed that, even if he should be used, some one else might be the spokesman. God heard his request and granted that he should have his brother Aaron for a companion and mouthpiece before Pharaoh.

Everything in the Scriptures points us to the fact that humility is a quality most essential to all of the Lord's people who would be used of the Lord in any important or special work for Him.

Ruskin and Restoration.

John Ruskin never was quite satisfied with the interior of any English cathedral; he found in them all too much vergerism, and a great deal too much restoration. Such figures, for instance, as those placed in the old niches of the South Porch of Canterbury, could not but excite his wrath.

The carving of the present choir stalls was in progress during his first visit there, and he found the work meaningless and lifeless, and he was struck by the indifference of the workmen when he talked to them about their work. He asked one man if the animal he was carving was a bear or a log; the answer was, "I don't know." The professor said, "I suppose it is a case of you pays your money and you takes your choice."

He surprised a stationer in Mercery Lane, close to the cathedral, who offered him photographs of the vast building, by saying, in a very sad tone. There is no Canterbury Cathedral now." Of course, he really found a great deal to admire in the magnificent cathedral, and he had a special love for the tomb of the Black Prince, and for the beautiful old glass of the Becket windows, and he declared the carved wooden canopy over Archbishop Kemp's tomb to be the finest he had ever seen.—Claudia E. Gale in Cornhill Magazine.

Diabetes Cured

Doctors and retail druggists of Canada are in a position to know just who are suffering from Diabetes; perhaps you know for a fact that these same people have been doctoring for years, without being cured or even relieved of their suffering. Why wouldn't you, or anyone who reads this notice, call the attention of your druggist, doctor, or anyone you know that is suffering of this deadly affliction. In the interest of suffering humanity this is requested, an act of kindness to mankind will thus be performed, for any help in alleviation of suffering disease is noble work.

CHAPTER I

In the Diamond Horseshoe.

A girl's scream clashed with the soprano's high note in the Jewel Song, and in a moment the Metropolitan Opera House was in confusion. The cry, half suppressed, broke the spell peculiar to a "Faust" night. The somewhat portly Marguerite, her voice soaring like a cage-born bird suddenly freed, was decking her mature person with the glistening stage gems left on her scenic doorstep by the suavest of devils. As the singer hung about her neck the rope of pearls with which Mephisto planned to fetter her soul, Mrs. Missioner, swinging her fan with a freer motion, struck the slenderest part of her diamond collarette. The blow was sharp. The golden thread on which the choicest of the Missioner jewels in their perforated settings were strung, snapped. Instantly most of the freed drops of frozen fire that constituted Mrs. Missioner's magnificent necklace—the one with the Maharanee diamond—were rolling on the floor of the box.

Mrs. Missioner, as the little scream broke from Dorothy March, a débutante she had taken under her wing for the evening, clutched at the few diamonds that fell into her lap. Miss March drew her skirts tightly about her ankles and shrank into a corner of the box, making room fro the man who sprang to Mrs. Missioner's aid. Before another moment sped, Curtis Griswold was on his knees scooping together the scattered jewels with snow-gloved hands. Bruxton Sands, slower of movement, bent with more dignity to the task. In the next box, separated from Mrs. Missioner's only by a low velvet rail, a man of Oriental features and complexion turned to watch the scramble for the jewels. Though he did not stir from his place, his hawk-like face seemed to thrust itself into the center of the excited group.

The confusion throughout the house died slowly. By that subtle magnetism that inspires masses of humanity, everybody seemed to know whence the scream had come, and all eyes were turned from the stage to the Missioner box. They saw the usually tranquil mistress of a hundred millions yielding publicly to emotions that her poorest sister on losing her only trinkets might have snared with her. So distracting was the excitement in the Missioner box that for a second the great soprano paused in her cadenzas, and the conductor halted the beat of his baton. There was danger of the orchestra commiting the crime of a break in its strains. But the musicians, deterred by discipline from imitating their leader's swift back glances at the auditorium, played steadily on.

"Continue! Continue!" she urged, as she bent her gaze from the box to the conductor.

"What's the matter? Go on! Go on!" the stage manager cried in undertones from the wings. Ushers in the back of the house sought to cover the confusion with ill-timed applause. The moment was big with potential tragedy. One cry of "Fire!" might have sent thousands of startled women and men battling along the aisles in an elemental fury of self-preservation Klondikers, urged again and again by the owner of the jewels.

The glittering horseshoe of the Metropolitan deserves its name. The Kaffirs of Kimberly, the pearl-divers of Polynesia, the gold-seekers of the Klondike, the diggers into earth's secrets the world over toil ceaselessly to maintain the brilliance of that big jewel show. They send their diamonds and rubies and emeralds and sapphires, their pearls and opals and gold, to gleam on the heads and breasts and gowns of women whom the industry of one generation, or the stock-market luck of another, has crowned with riches. A night at the opera is a parade of the wonders gems can work and of that which, too often, gems can buy.

In all that electric sparkle, no gems outshone the Missioner jewels, of which the necklace Mrs. Missioner wore that night was the masterpiece. For in its center blazed the famous Maharanee diamond.

"I think we've found them all," said Sands, rising and emptying his cupped hand into the miniature mountain in Mrs. Missioner's lap.

"No more in the box, that's certain," supplemented Griswold, dusting his knees studiously.

"Are you sure?" asked Dorothy.

"Please be sure," begged the widow. "I must have them all."

Sands and Griswold nodded in chorus. Neither noticed the fascination with which the eyes of the Eastener, like twin searchlights, swept the floor.

Sands and Griswold returned to their chairs. Reluctantly realizing the thrilling little by-scene was at an end, the other members of the audience again focused their attention on the stage. Mephisto befooled Dame Martha, Faust won Marguerite, and the curtain descended on an operatic triumph, only to be raised and lowered and raised again as boxes, orchestra, and balconies recalled the singers for their meed of praise.

As they passed, bowing and smiling, before the curtain, a low cry came from Mrs. Missioner's throat.

"O-o-oh!" she exclaimed, half-rising in her excitement, "the largest of all is gone! The Maharanee!"

Instantly the turmoil was renewed. Dorothy sprang to her feet and, before either of the men could anticipate her, began pushing the chairs about until all save Mrs. Missioner's were grouped in a corner of the box. Then the little débutante, regradless of her fluffy frock, raked the floor with her fan, with her free hand, her feet, in almost hysterical quest of the still missing diamond. Griswold, nearly as excited as the women, recommenced his own search.

All the energy of the thousands of women and men in the house was in their eyes, and those eyes concention. Mere prolongation of the situation without that terrible tocsin might have ended in a smaller panic. But the liquid notes of the soprano soaring again in the pyrotechnics of the Jewel Song reclaimed the attention of the audience. The conductor, evidently eager to hide his own momentary loss of poise, fairly lifted his men through the intricacies of the accompaniment. Promptness of action by the stage manager restored order behind the scenes.

Nothing of all those incidents struck the sense of anyone in the Missioner box. All four of its occupants were concerned for the immediate recovery of the diamonds that had sprung from Mrs. Missioner's neck to her lap, and then stampeded across the floor. Griswold, still on his knees, rescued the greater number. Sands, a man of action as well as of millions, picked up the larger gems. Miss march shrank further into the corner of the box and dragged her petticoats ever more closely until her immature form seemed chiseled in tulle.

"Look in all the corners—look everywhere," Mrs. Missioner urged. "There's one behind the chair," she pointed.

"There's another," cried Dorothy, pointing at Griswold's feet. A glance from the dark stranger in the next box directed the searchers toward still another part of the floor, and every move was rewarded by the recovery of a gleaming stone. One by one, by twos, by threes, the diamonds were gathered, and still the search went on. Fast as they scooped them up, Sands and Griswold poured the glittering treasure into Mrs. Missioner's lap.

"Are they all there?" asked the millionaire.

"No, no," answered the widow. "There are several more. Please look again—look everywhere. Dorothy, help me count them."

The women sorted and counted the gems, indifferent to the thousands of eyes as if in the seclusion of a boudoir.

Griswold and Sands renewed their search, peering into the remotest corners, pushing chairs about, looking, reaching, grasping with the zeal of trated on the box where the millionaire widow, half-frenzied, was sacrificing her Paquin gown to the hunt for her more treasured possession.

All the action in Sands leaped to the fore. Stretching a long arm across the bent backs of Griswold and little Miss March, he thrust a thumb against an electric button.

"It can't be in the box," he said decisively, and when a breathless usher rapped at the door, the millionaire tore it open and whispered, "Run down to the orchestra and look everywhere around this box. A diamond has fallen over the rail."

"What can be the matter?" asked a thousand women of a thousand escorts. In many parts of the audience they were standing between the seats for a better view of the box around which the little tempest of excitement swirled.

Quick questions rained on the searching usher from a group that surrounded him ten deep as he poked among the programmes that strewed the orchestra floor under the Missioner box.

"Keep cool, Doris. We'll find it," said Sands to the widow.

"Bravo," came as an inspiration from a far corner of the balcony, as the great soprano made her final vow. Instantly it was taken up by hundreds. "Bravo! Bravissimo!" screamed delirious standees over the length of the orchestra. The firemen stood tensely at their posts in readiness for a life struggle. Ushers hurried to and fro in vain efforts to quiet those nearest them. Above all the clamor in the Missioner box, the nervous inquiries of women, surged that swelling roar, "Bravo! Bravo! Bravissimo!" until most other sounds succumbed to it, and only the noise of the diamond hunt survived.

"Dorothy, Dorothy, I cannot go until we find it," sobbed Mrs. Missioner. The woman who, with a sweep of her pen, could summon all the artists who had sung their souls out on the stage to sing as soulfully in her salon, who with another pen-sweep, could recompense them beyond their most arrogant demands, was in tears because she had lost a diamond.

But such a diamond! Its prisoned fire held the history of an alien race.

"After all," said Griswold in a swift aside to Dorothy, "she has recovered the other gems, and even if she cannot find this one——"

"Don't you know?" returned little Miss March excitedly. "Don't you really know, Mr. Griswold?"

"Know what, Miss March?" asked the clubman.

"Why, the history of that stone! Don't you know Mrs. Missioner's husband bought it from a Maharanee, that they brought it all the way from India? Don't you know it's the finest diamond in America?"

Griswold shook his head. He was pursuing the search perfunctorily. His hands were busy, but his eyes roved over the house. Idly he noted the slowly-ebbing interest of the audience, the departure of hundreds by twos and threes and larger groups, the thronging toward the lobby for the usual visits between the acts. It was with faint interest that he saw several swarthy faces weaving through the crowd. Had his eyes been able to follow those faces, he would have seen them converse in the corridor behind the box—the box in which the Oriental with the face of a hawk.

The hawk watched the Missioner box. So steadily did he direct his gaze at Mrs. Missioner that she was when the stranger's flashlight gaze struck a spark from her memory. She bowed, cooly as she began the inclination of her head, but in the end graciously. Her dark neighbor was satified with this dubious encouragement.

"You are fond of your jewels as ever, I see," he said, in a low tone, as of one claiming a share in intimate memories.

"Yes," she answered with an abstracted air. She was harking back to days long gone, and evidently the recollection was not unpleasant.

"I cannot blame you," said the Oriental. "Everyone knows you have the most wonderful jewels in the world—one of them, at any rate."

"These," returned Mrs. Missioner, "are among my very best diamonds. But they are nothing to the Maharanee, and that is gone."

"You are brave," was all he said, "to wear them in public. Many a woman, save in her own ballroom, would content herself with duplicates."

"Duplicates!" There was unmistakable contempt in Mrs. Missioner's tone.

PARALYSED AND COULD NOT WALK

"Fruit-a-tives" Completely Restored New Brunswick Merchant To Health.

MR. ALVA PHILLIPS

BRISTOL, N. B., JULY 25th. 1911.

"I am unable to say enough in favor of "Fruit-a-tives" as it saved my life and restored me to health, when I had given up all hope and when the doctors had failed to do anything more for me. I had a stroke of Paralysis in March, 1910, and this left me unable to walk or help myself, and the Constipation of the bowels was terrible. Nothing did me any good and I was wretched in every way. Finally, I took "Fruit-a-tives" for the Constipation, and it not only cured me of that trouble but gradually this fruit medicine toned up the nerves and actually cured the paralysis. Under the use of "Fruit-a-tives", I grew stronger and stronger until all the palsy and weakness left me. I am now well again and attend my store every day and all day."

THE HOME PHYSICIAN

Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills Cure Most of the Family's Ills.

This Little Box is Mother's Stand-by.

Perhaps if the children, and the "grown-ups" too, always ate exactly the right quantities of exactly the right things, at just the proper times, and in every other way obeyed the rules of health, there would be no sickness in the family, and no need of medicine.

But they never have and probably never will, so in every family there are sure to be more or less frequent attacks of sick headache, biliousness, indigestion, constipation, and kidney and liver troubles, and occasionally some one is "sick in bed".

It is worth a good deal to the mother, then, to have on hand that perfectly safe and reliable remedy for these ills —

Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills.

They invigorate those organs which cleanse the body of waste and impurities, regulating the bowels, stimulating the kidneys and opening the pores of the skin.

Thus Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills cure the common ailments and keep the family healthy. This they have been doing for over half a century in every part of the world.

NERVOUS PEOPLE MADE CHEERFUL

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills Rebuild Shattered Nerves.

Good blood—rich, red blood—makes all the difference between health and sickness. If the blood is thin and watery, the health of the whole body suffers. The sufferer becomes nervous and irritable; the stomach fails in strength and the appetite becomes poor. Food does not give the necessary nourishment, and the first feeling of weakness passes, as time goes on, into a general breakdown in the health. The case of Mrs. Angelique Gagnon, of St. Jerome, Que., illustrates the truth of these statements. Mrs. Gagnon says: "I am 50 years of age and up to a few months ago always enjoyed the best of health. Then I began to feel rundown and weak, without patience or ambition. My appetite grew poor, and my nerves seemed to be on edge, and the least noise or worry would make me irritable and nervous. Life became an actual burden and I could no lonmger look after my household duties. My doctor prescribed and ordered a change, saying that I was a nervous wreck. I tried to become interested in other things but failed, and my condition was really deplorable. I continued in this condition for several months, gradually going down, and as my doctor was not helping me I was easily persuaded by a friend to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. After taking the Pills for a few weeks I could see an improvement, and I gladly continued using them for a couple of months, when I found my health fully restored. I am more than thankful for what Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have done for me, and I gladly recommend them to all who are weak, nervous and rundown."

By making rich, red blood Dr. Williams' Pink Pills cure such cases as Mrs. Gagnon's. In the same way they cure nervous headaches, neuralgia, indigestion, rheumatism, St. Vitus dance, and the ailments that come to growing girls and women of mature years. If you are at all unwell start to-day to cure yourself with Dr. Williams' Pink Pills what they have done for others they will surely do for you, if given a fair trial. Sold by all druggists or by mail, post paid, at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 by addressing The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

CAMPBELLFORD TRAPSTERS WON AGAINST LOCAL CLUB

The Peterborough Gun Club entertained the Campbellford Gun Club here yesterday afternoon in a friendly match of 25 birds each. The day being fine a splendid afternoon's sport was enjoyed by all, the visiting club winning the match by 19 birds. Mr. C. E. McGaw very kindly presented three boxes of cigars for the three highest scores. Owing to the Campbellford club having more men than the local club, two of the Peterborough men were drawn to shoot twice. Following are the scores;

DAY OF MIRACLES NOT YET PAST

Brants Defeated the Petes by 8-0 Score

Fate dealt a hard blow to the Petes yesterday as they were defeated by the lowly Brants by 8—0. Not a single counter did they get off our old friend Chubby Coose. Belting started off for the Petes, but was easy picking. It is likely that a double header will be played this afternoon.

The Rowanites return home tonight and will be seen at Riverside all next week with Ottawa and Brantford.

BEN HOBSON CALLED AGAIN

No Funds Means Ten Days at Castle Villa

"Your honor when I met you yesterday I was sober," said Ben Hobson when he appeared before Magistrate Dumble this morning on the charge of being drunk. He was fined $2, or 10 days, and not having the necessary, it means pea soup for 10 days on the hill.

Pat Toober, a local man, was remanded until Monday on the charge of being drunk, in order to give him time to sober up.

HORSE LOST LEG AND WAS SHOT

Yesterday afternoon about 5.30., a horse owned by W. J. Oke, the local fruit dealer, had one leg cut off by a G.T.R. train at Bethune street, and the animal was shot. It seems that the horse was standing at the Bethune street entrance of Mr. Oke's warehouse. A train came along and caught the rear of the wagon pulling it around in some manner and also causing the accident to the horse, which was a valuable one, and had been purchased only recently by Mr. Oke.

BIG, HEARTY BABY BOY

Mrs. Beck's Fondest Hopes Realized—Health, Happiness and Baby.

Upper Lahave, N. S., Can.,—"I wish to thank you for the benefit I received by taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for female troubles from which I was a great sufferer, so that I was completely run down in health. Other medicine did not help me, but Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound made me well and strong. I now have a big, hearty baby boy, and praise your medicine for the wonderful lot of good it has done me." — Mrs. ISRAEL BECK, JR., Upper Lahave, Lunenburg Co., N. S., Canada.

The darkest days of husband and wife are when they come to look forward to a childless and lonely old age.

Many a wife has found herself incapable of motherhood owing to some derangement of the feminine system, often curable by the proper remedies.

In many homes once childless there are now children because of the fact that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound makes women normal.

If you have the slightest doubt that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will help you, write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential) Lynn, Mass., for advice. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman, and held in strict confidence.

ON THE WINGS OF THE WIND

Largest Sail Made for the Largest Schooner

Yesterday Turner & Sons shipped a sail to Cobourg, the largest size made for lake shipping.

During the heavy storm early last week the big schooner, J. B. Kitson, owned by Geo. Plunkett, of Cobourg, while making the port of Oswego, had her forsail blown out and torn to ribands. The owner wired to Turners to make a new one, and the schooner, loaded with coal, was towed to Toronto, and after discharging cargo, to Cobourg to be refitted.

The big sail, made from the heaviest duck weighed over a quarter of a ton, and contained over 1500 square feet canvas. Some fair idea can be had of the drawing power and strain on such a sail, when it is stated that the outside edge, or leach, is bound with a four inch rope. The sail is the largest, as the schooner is the largest, on the lake waters.

Turners received a most commendatory letter from the committee at Cornwall, where they decorated for the 12th of July. Decorations were also put up at Barrie, Stayner, Port Hope, Chatham, Hastings and three other points. All these express satisfaction.

AGREEMENT CANNOT BE FULFILLED

Belleville not to Get the Wood Chemical Company

BELLEVILLE, July 19—The proposition of the Wood Chemical Company of Canada which was the erection of a factory in Belleville, seems to have fallen through. Months ago the sod was turned but nothing further was done. The president of the company, Mr. J. H. Farmouth, 250 Confederation Life Building, Toronto, in a letter to Mayor Wills, which was read at council meeting states:

"As you probably remember, the City of Belleville some months ago entered into an agreement with Wood Chemical Company of Canada, Limited, in regard to a site for a factory this company proposed building in Belleville. According to clause 8 of this agreement the Wood Chemical Company were to have their plant in operation by August of this year. We are very sorry indeed to say that we will not be able to live up to our agreement as there is no possible chance of our being able to fulfil the above mentioned clause.

"We have not succeeded in making the financial arrangements we expected to make, on account of the serious financial conditions existing during the past six or eight months consequently we are obliged to drop the undertaking as, apparently, the tightness of money is going to continue for a year at least.

"It is difficult to say what we can do with this proposition later on, but feel now we cannot ask for an extension of the by-law as matters are too uncertain. The cheque we deposited with you to cover the cost of submitting the by-law, is still in your hands and we raise no objection to the city cashing it.

"We feel extremely sorry this undertaking has not succeeded and assure you and your council we entered into the agreement with the City of Belleville in good faith fully expecting it would be our mutual benefit and we are quite confident we could have carried it through if we had not been handicapped by the condition of the money market."

Some discussion took place over the land, which the city had secured for the plant. Mayor Wills said he had had a letter written by the City Treasurer, D. Price, saying that the land which had been purchased was not worth $5,000 to the city and urged the company to take it over. Ald. Panter thought the by-law included a clause obliging the company to take the property over at cost.

If people would realize the value of their Eyes they would hesitate before entrusting their care to amateurs, and inexperienced so called Opticians.

The fact that some people have been careless in this regard has been brought to our attention time and again by patients who have come to us wearing glasses that were doing their Eyes more harm than good.

There is no reason why people should suffer with ill-fitted glasses when there is one of the most up-to-date Optical Parlors in Ontario right in this city, conducted by Mr. A. A. # BUYING A HOME LARGELY A MATTER OF SACRIFICE

Which In Turn, Develops the Habit of Saving-Renting versus Buying

There is one very important question in connection with the high cost of living that is causing the average man a great deal of worry.

Is a home a luxury? Does it pay to own a home in Peterborough? Can a man live at a smaller expense in a rented house than in a place he owns, both being about the same class?

These questions should be carefully considered before the man chooses to buy or rent, or if he contemplates building. The building or the buying of a home should be made a business transaction from every point of view especially in a case where a man has only moderate means. It is an indisputable fact that the property, which is a good investment for the owner in Peterborough, would be an equally good investment for the renter. The renter pays the taxes, the insurance, the repairs, and a reasonable rate of interest on the money invested in the property, all which crops up in the month's rental. Would he have any more to pay if the property were his own?

When, viewed in this light, owning a home is profitable aside from the fact of the satisfaction it affords. The security is as good as any life insurance policy. Still some people who own homes claim that it is more economical to rent.

ABOUT RENTS.

Our regular $15 per month residence here would cost the renter about $40 in a western city and even in Ontario there are very few cities that can come up to Peterborough in the question of moderate rent.

It will doubtlessly be found that at least seventy per cent of those who have found that owning their homes is unsatisfactory have either assumed too great a debt in making purchases or have bought homes that they could not keep up properly without a greater expenditure that they could afford. These home-owners are paying an unnecessary price for home-owning and are making it a burden.

Take the case of a man who has $1,000 and is making about $100 a month or less; is it wise for him to buy a house for a home at $3,000? He would in all probability have to pay interest on $2,000. The principal would amount to about $30 a month and then there would be the taxes and other minor bills necessary to keep his home in shape, which would probably amount to $125, making in all, at a rough estimate, nearly $500. This would have to come out of his income. Doubtless he would soon feel that he would be better off paying $30 a month rent! Look at it when he has finished paying for the house, and you will find that he has paid out an extra $1,000 for repairs, taxes and insurance which brings the total cost up to nearly $4,000.

This class of home buyer is sure to find owning a home is a failure, and you will generally find him preaching the doctrine that it is much cheaper to rent. While on the other hand, suppose the buyer made a much more conservative purchase and avoided going so deeply into debt. Suppose he were to make a purchase along about $2,000 and left unpaid about $500 or just enough to give him an incentive to save. This would make no burden of taxes and interest and the repairs would be much easier. The heating and the lighting would also be much cheaper and he would soon have a home not encumbered.

With this accomplished he could feel justified in disposing of his property if he wished, at a reasonable rate, owing to the increase in the value of his property.

But then there is the larger class that have not the $1,000 with which to begin. They have been renters all their lives or are new beginners in the struggle of life. They have not had the opportunity to save, or feeling the lack of responsibility characteristic of the renter, have spent their incomes as fast as they received them. Is this class to continue to rent and to make an effort to get enough to go ahead and buy a home, or would it be wiser to buy even if only $200 or $300 were available, and assume the task of paying the balance. The renter who has never saved needs an incentive to practice economy. Let him buy the smallest possible home, in which he can be cosy and comfortable and he will find that it is more respectable to live there than in a $3,000 house that somebody else owns. By the time that spendthrift renter has paid for his little home, he will find that he has acquired the habit of saving and will then be qualified to undertake the buying of a more expensive house. It is the renter that has never saved a cent that suddenly decides to buy a $5,000 home and going into debt for the whole amount makes home-buying a failure. At the present time in Peterborough there are real estate dealers who have sold small comfortable houses in the south end of the city to the average working man who is paying a small payment each month and it is very seldom that we hear of any such people being sold out by the agent.

No matter how they try there is bound to be sacrifice in buying a home for the average working man.

SELLS-FLOTO CIRCUS COMING

William E. Haines, contracting agent of the Sells-Floto Circus, arrived in town this morning and was kept busy enough during the day hunting up supplies, pre-empting a lot and making all the other arrangements necessary for the coming of the Big Show.

This is the 14th season that the Sells-Floto Circus has visited Canada. It might be said it has always given good performances in the past and full value for the money, especially during the last few years when the price was reduced to 25c, thereby cutting in half the tariff which has been the usual charge by the big circuses since circuses began.

This year, Mr. Haines tells us, that the show is greatly enlarged in many respects, notably from the fact that a large group of trained animals are now carried and for the first time lions and tigers will be seen performing in the same enclosure together; a company of Zouaves who execute startling maneuvres in the way of drills are also being featured and the celebrated Scotch Kilty Band from Toronto, Canada, will lend their aid make the entertainment more interesting. In addition to these fine features are a number of new attractions and all those which have been associated with the sawdust ring and have really made the lure of the circus as imperative as it is.

The Sells-Floto Circus will be here on Wednesday, August 20th, for a single day's engagement. The price to see the show in its entirety is still 25c.

BOARD OF TRADE AFTER BETTER TRAIN SERVICE

The Board of Trade has taken action that will be appreciated by the citizens as the Canadian Pacific Railway Company has been communicated with in the interests of a better service to and from Peterboro

It will be remembered that up to the first of June, two morning trains came from Toronto and Peterboro people had their mail and newspapers before eleven o'clock. The new schedule provides only one train which is due to arrive here at 11.43. This is 26 minutes later than was the second train, and now that passenger traffic is very heavy, the 11.43 train is invariably late.

The Board of Trade hopes to receive a favorable reply, and if they meet with success, the warm thanks of the citizens in general will be extended.

TRADES AND LABOR COUNCIL

The regular meeting of the Trades and Labor Council was held on Wednesday evening. President Moore occupied the chair and there was a fair attendance of delegates.

A letter was received from the Departments of Public Works acknowledging receipt of letter conveying a resolution passed by the Council at their last meeting protesting against the action of the Department in refusing to pay the union rate of wages to carpenters employed on government work in Toronto. The letter stated that the rate had been increased to 45 cents per hour, the union rate.

THE BASEBALL CLUB

With reference to the ball game which had been fixed for Labor Day the secretary reported the receipt of a communication from Mr. Denham, stating that as the Peterborough Baseball Club had been unable to make a satisfactory arrangement with Ottawa they would be unable to make the ball game a part of the afternoon's entertainment on Labor Day, and had decided transfer the game to Ottawa.

LABOR DAY CELEBRATION

The committee in charge of the arrangements for the celebration, reported progress, and full particulars will be announced as soon as an attraction has been secured to take the place of the ball game.

Satisfaction was expressed at the action of the City Council in donating $100 towards the expenses of the Labor Day celebration

A convention call was received from the Trades and Labor Congress of Canada inviting the Council to send delegates to the 29th annual session to be held in Montreal, commencing on Monday, Sept. 22nd., and continuing in session from day to day until business is completed. It was decided to send one delegate, and after a keen contest for the honor, President D. Moore was elected to represent the local Council, with H. Robertson as alternative.

UNION MUSICIANS

It was reported that Tucker's orchestra were now members of the American Federation of Musicians and that the band of the 57th Regt. would in future be composed wholly of union musicians.

IMPORTANCE OF PAIN SYMPTOMS

Dr. Caruthers, Osteopath, Tells of the Imprudence of Attempting To Allay Pain Before Discovering and Removing the Cause.

The fact that a patient is "nervous" and bears pain badly, is often advanced as an excuse for the administration of morphine or other hypnotic drugs; when really, this fact is evidence in itself alone that such drugs should not be used on a person of that temperament when any other means are practicable.

The chief action of these drugs depends on the irritability of the nervous system, the term "nervous" is applied to people whose nervous systems are especially irritable, hence these persons respond very readily to the drug, and in direct ratio is the danger of the drug habit forming. It is a well established fact that when the drug habit is once established, the original cause of the pain may be overcome, yet the pain will recur whenever the nervous system cries out for the drug. The sufferings of these poor victims are pitiable in the extreme, and as one of the first effects of these drug habits is the destruction by degrees, of the moral sense, they will stop at nothing in their efforts to satisfy the craving.

In these days, a large percentage of the insane give the history, or indications, of slavery to one of these mind destroying drugs.

Few physicians will habitually prescribe or administer to the same person these dangerous drugs, and those few can be classified as either ignorant, lazy, or grafters.

The ignorant physician probably does not know the cause of the pain, nor how to relieve by natural methods. He generally does not last long as ignorance is a hard thing to hide.

The lazy ones may know the cause of the pain and how to relieve it but lack the necessary energy to do the legitimate work so long as the easier method of temporary relief is at hand.

Take two—Importance of

The grafter, however, is more to be feared than either of the others. He is generally a man with a certain amount of knowledge and energy, but perverts these qualities to the accumulation of dollars. He knows that the only result of systematic doping is the enslavement of his patient, who must come to him. In this way he provides a source of income that is assured so long as the "hypodermic" in order to obtain a regular supply and the poor victim's money will endure. When the latter is exhausted, the State may assume charge of the patient; his usefulness to the grafter is over

A surgeon of reputation will always advise against the use of drug pain relievers in all cases of acute pain which seemingly indicate operation until a diagnosis has been made; as in many of these cases the character and location of the pain are the most reliable indication that differentiates one from several other conditions. If the pain is marked by anodynes the diagnostician is in the dark and this fact will account for many of the unsuccessful operations for which the surgeon is blamed.

Pain, then, is a most valuable symptom and should never be regarded as the real trouble. We never have pain unless some part of the body structure is at fault, and when the proper correction is made the pain subsides. In fact, the pain symptoms may all disappear—before matters are thoroughly corrected and this disappearance does not always signify that treatment of the condition is finished. The trouble may have been developing for a long time before the trouble is actually corrected. The moral is;—Don't be too economical when your health is concerned.

Modern dentistry is a good illustration; The tooth may not ache, but if any sign of decay is to be seen the dentist is put to work to save trouble in the future. The rest of the body needs just the same kind of care and will pay just as large dividends.

TURKEY DEMANDS SLICE OF BULGARIA'S TERRITORY

Roumania Has Been Offered a Concession and Servia and Greece are Expected to Content Themselves With a Section of Country, But Turkey's Move Adds New Complication—Settlement in Sight

Canadian Press Despatch.

BUCHAREST, July 21— It is officially confirmed here that Bulgaria has accepted conditions laid down by Roumania and has also agreed to terms of peace with Servia and Greece.

LONDON, July 21 -The Bulgarian Cabinet to-day formally notified the European powers of her readiness to order a cessation of hostilities immediately if the Powers can induce Servia and Greece to take a similar course.

LONDON, July 21.—The advent of a new Bulgarian Cabinet, comprising a coalition of the Liberal groups, seems to have brought a prospect that peace negotiations will soon be entered into. After vain attempts to negotiate separately with Roumania, the Bulgarian Government accepted the advice of Austria and Russia and offered Roumania an important territorial concession. Bulgaria also sent delegates to meet the Servian and Greek, and presumably Roumanian, representatives, at Nish to negotiate an armistice and peace.

It is confirmed from Athens that Servia, Greece and Montenegro are ready to participate in these negotiations. Turkey, however, has introduced a new complication, and has notified the European powers of her intention to make the Maritza River the new frontier, giving as her reasons that she has always claimed this frontier, but that the powers set the claim aside in order to facilitate and expedite peace; that the Porte would be prepared to settle the question by diplomatic means, but that the atrocities and vandalism of the Bulgarians in the occupied territories make it impossible to hope for a diplomatic settlement, and that new conditions arising from the last war between the allies make it doubly necessary for Turkrey to secure a frontier guaranteeing safety to Constantinople and the Dardanelles.

The Porte promises not to cross the new Maritza frontier, and asks the powers' assistance in establishing it so as to secure durable relations between Turkey and Bulgaria.

It is not considered likely, however, that Europe will permit the decision of the London conference thus to be thrust aside.

Fighting of no great importance continues on the Greek and Servian fronts. In a smart engagement to the north of Nexrokop the Greeks captured nine Bulgarian guns.

New Bulgar Cabinet.

SOFIA, July 21.—The new coalition Cabinet under the leadership of M. Radoslavoff, the Liberal leader in the Bulgarian Parliament, has been constituted as follows: Premier and Minister of the Interior, M. Radoslavoff; Minister of Foreign Affairs, M. Guenadieff; Finance, M. Toncheff; Justice, M. Pecheff; War, Gen. Vazoff; Commerce, M. Blatcoff; Public Works, M. Dimsheff; Railways, M. Morphoff.

Peace In Three Days.

LONDON, July 21.—A Belgrade despatch to The Daily Telegraph says that Premier Pachitch has agreed to receive the Bulgarian delegates at Nish. It is probable that the Greek Premier, M. Venizelos, and a Roumanian delegate will also meet them. Peace, adds the despatch, may be signed in three days.

A Bucharest despatch to The Telegraph says that Bulgaria has agreed to cede to Roumania the territory within the Turtukai-Doubritch-Balchik line and the new strategic frontier now occupied by the Roumanian troops, and asks for the immediate withdrawal of the Roumanian army. Roumania refuses to agree to this until peace has been concluded between all the belligerents.

Turko-Greek Treaty.

ATHENS, July 21.—Peace between Greece and Turkey is about to be concluded formally. The Hellenic plenipotentiaries started from here Saturday for Constantinople to sign the treaty.

MRS. PANKHURST'S DOUBLE LURED THE POLICE AWAY; DETECTIVES WERE FOOLED

Suffragette Leader is Believed to Have Eluded Her Guard When Cleverly Disguised Woman Made a Dash in a Motor-Car and Drew Off the Guards.

LONDON, July 21.—Again Mrs. Emmeline Pankhurst, the suffragette leader, has succeeded in outwitting the police. It was thought that she had been placed under arrest Saturday night, but it was another woman, impersonating Mrs. Pankhurst, whom the police captured in a taxicab, and took part way to Scotland Yard. Then they discovered the mistake and liberated their prisoner.

It was thought at first that the whole affair was a hoax, but it developed into an apparently well-laid scheme whereby Mrs. Pankhurst could escape from her flat by another passage while her impersonator was luring away the police. It is believed that she got away safely during the melee.

Late Saturday night a woman emerged from the militant leader's flat. She walked feebly and was supported by two friends, who assisted her into a taxicab. The detectives, who had guarded the building night and day since Mrs. Pankhurst escaped in the riot after the meeting of the Women's Social and Political Union on July 12, instantly concluded that Mrs. Pankhurst was attempting to flee. They jumped into the cab as it was driving off, and ordered the driver to proceed to Scotland Yard. Before they reached their destination they lifted the veil and discovered that their prisoner was an unknown woman. There was nothing for them to do but release her, as she had violated no law.

Mrs. Pankhurst's flat is in a narrow, dimly-lighted street, near Parliament. A cab stopped in front of the building shortly before midnight. The three detectives on duty observed two women alight and proceed to the second floor, where the Pankhurst apartments are located. Their suspicions were immediately kindled. They blew their whistles for police reinforcements and awaited developments.

Simultaneously a party of fifty men and women, including a number of stout navvies, gathered at the entrance. A veiled woman, leaning heavily on her supporters, descended the steps. Immediately there was a clash between the police and the organized forces of the militants. Two detectives managed to cling to the cab. After the taxi had rounded the corner the crowd scattered and the street resumed its normal appearance. The lights in the Pankhurst windows continued to glow, and within half an hour the detectives reappeared and resumed their investment of the premises.

In the meantime, however, the flat was unguarded, and later it began to dawn on the police that probably they had been hoodwinked. There were fights in the Pankhurst flat again last night, and there were detectives in the streets, but all information was refused.

Rochester Man Killed.

ROCHESTER, N.Y., July 21.—E. S. Ward of this city, treasurer of Ward's natural science establishment, was killed and fifteen or twenty persons injured late Saturday afternoon in a wreck on the Rochester & Eastern Line of the New York State Railways, about five miles west of Victor.

A passenger car carrying Rochesterians to Canadagua Lake for the week-end ran head-on into a combination freight and baggage car. The persons most seriously hurt were in the front part of the passenger coach, which was demolished.

CAIMANERA, Cuba, July 21.—Quarantine was declared at the naval station here yesterday on account of two cases of suspected yellow fever aboard the steamship Hydra, which recently touched at Guantanamo Bay, on her voyage from Brazilian ports. ## WOMAN WHOSE WORK BROUGHT RAILROAD STRIKE CONFERENCE

That the honor of averting the railroad strike, which threatened to tie up the commerce of the entire Eastern part of the United States, belongs to Mrs. J. Borden Harriman, niece of E. H. Harriman, late railroad king, was admitted at the White House.

Mrs. Harriman, the only woman ever appointed a member of the Industrial Commission, heard rumors of a strike before the trouble found its way into print. She went at once to the President and placed the matter before him, laying particular emphasis on the fact that the strike would tie up completely Eastern commerce and might seriously damage the record of the democratic administration.

MEXICAN-JAPANESE CELEBRATION IS STOPPED

Huerta Decides That Proposed Indication of an Entente With Japan Might Not Have the Desired Effect on the United States.

Canadian Press Despatch.

WASHINGTON, July 21—Alarming reports of an approaching crisis in Mexico have been received here by high government officials. It is authoritatively stated to-day upon unimpeachable authority that developments coming the next two weeks are regarded as fraught with tremendous importance to the Huerta Government.

WASHINGTON, D.C., July 21.—Official advices were received by the State Department yesterday from the American Embassy in Mexico City that the projected pro-Japanese demonstrations in the capital would not take place. This news is regarded here as of great importance, as it indicates a realization on the part of the Huerta Government that these demonstrations might have an effect, so far as the United States is concerned, different from that intended. President Wilson, Secretary Bryan and other high officers of the Administration are convinced that much of the anti-American sentiment in Mexico City is artificial. A Government official occupying one of the foremost positions told your correspondent that the President, after careful inquiry, had learned enough to convince him that a group of persons in the Mexican capital was responsible for demonstrations that had taken place, and that these affairs were not due to any popular feeling.

In the opinion of leading officials in Washington the efforts to create the impression that Mexico and Japan are on the point of concluding an alliance or some agreement for close mutual relationship are of the same artificial character and intended to frighten President Wilson into recognizing the Huerta Administration as the Government de jure for keeping this Government from adopting any radical course toward Mexico. No claim is made that President Huerta nor his Ministers are behind this program, but it is evident that persons close to him are suspected of fomenting the recent demonstrations.

A news despatch from Mexico that a delegation of Japanese had applied to the Mexican Government for permission to colonize in the State of Morelos does not create any apprehension in official circles here.

Gen. Felix Diaz left Mexico City Saturday night for Salina Cruz to take steamer for San Francisco, whence he is to sail for Japan to thank the Emperor and Government for Japan's participation in the Mexican centennial celebration two years ago. The steamer for Salina Crurz stops at several ports on her way to San Francisco. In the opinion of well-informed people here the mission on which Diaz has been sent means his virtual exit, and it would not surprise these people if he sought counsel with Trevino for the purpose of bringing about the overthrow of President Huerta and preventing Gen. Carranza from obtaining the Presidency. Carranza is regarded as the ablest of the revolutionary leaders, and as the man who will become President if the revolution is successful.

News reached Washington yesterday that Gen. Carranza, by a clever piece of strategy, had bottled up a federal force of 2,000 men under Gen. Maas at Monclova, a town in the State of Coahuila. A force of artillery under Gen. Rubia Navarrete, said to be the ablest artillery officer in the federal army, had been sent to attack Carranza near Monclova.

Carranza, according to the information received in Washington, made a flank movement, defeated Navarrete, capturing guns and a considerable number of prisoners, and then closed up the only two means of egress from Monclova, into which Maas had gone with his 2,000 men.

MOUSTACHE RESENTED.

British Soldiers Want To Shave Their Upper Lips.

LONDON, July 21.—The most important question in the British army at present is that of the moustache. There is agitation by officers and men for the right to be clean shaven, and the abolition of command No. 1,695 of the King's Regulations, which reads:—

"By this regulation all ranks of the army are bound, regardless of personal taste or hygienic convention, to let the moustache grow."

An attempt to elucidate the mystery of the military moustache was made at the War Office Saturday.

"If an officer shaves his upper lip it is treated as a breach of discipline, and the matter is dealt with by the commanding officer," said an official.

TURKS TAKE ADRIANOPLE?

Marched Into City After a Brief Conflict Declares Correspondent

LONDON, July 21.—The London Times' Sofia correspondent says the Turks entered Adrianople after a short conflict with a small Bulgarian defending force. Bashibazouks are burning, pillaging and committing atrocities. The Roumanian troops are advancing in an easterly direction, threatening eastern Bulgaria. Events of the last few days indicate the complete collapse of the authority of Europe. The Daily Mail's Sofia correspondent, confirming the foregoing, says that Enver Bey, at the head of the Turkish cavalry force, arrived at Adrianople. The Bulgarian garrison of two battalions, about 2,000 men, received orders not to resist the Turks. The same correspondent reports that the 30,000 Roumanian troops, advancing towards Sofia have already reached Orchantji, about twenty miles northeast of Sofia, and Etropole, about thirty-eight miles northeast of Sofia.

The Daily Mail prints a despatch from Sofia, dated Sunday 6.30 p.m., saying: "The crisis has arrived. Thirty thousand Roumanian troops advancing on Sofia have already reached Orchanije, about 25 miles northeast of Sofia, and Etropole, about 38 miles northeast.

"Enver Bey, at the head of a Turkish cavalry force has arrived at Adrianople. The Bulgarian garrison of two battalions have received orders not to resist the Turks."

In summer time it is a good rule to give a child less food at a time but oftener, and always regularly.

FURTHER CONSERVATION OF THE OTONABEE AND TRENT WATERS

Minister of Railways and Canals to Discuss Question With Power Users' Association and Others

The first fruits of the new forward policy recently begun by local men, looking to further conservation of the waters of the Otonabee and Trent, will be made evident to-morrow, when the conservationists will have a chance of laying their case before the Minister of Railways and Canals.

The reply to the report made by those gentlemen who recently went north to explore the water-shed, states that the Minister will be pleased to meet the citizens and those acting in similar representative capacity for a discussion of the further conservation of the waters.

The importance of this move cannot be exaggerated, as those capable to judge say that Trent power may be increased from 25 to 20 per cent, and may in addition be handled with regularity, which is quite desirable, as a fluctuating flow is is useless for power purposes.

Mr W. H. Denham, president of the Power Users' Association, was notified by Mr. J. H. Burnham, M.P. of the Minister's reply, this morning, and he will take measures to lay before the Minister, a comprehensive idea of the wishes of Peterborough people and presumably the whole district, with regard to power.

When it is understood that until recently there was a serious conflict of jurisdiction between the province and the Dominion, it looks as if a settlement had been arrived at favorable to the Dominion, otherwise the question would not have been taken up by the Minister in this way, since hitherto, he had jurisdiction only so far as navigation went and now he is prepared to discuss the question of further conservation of the water powers,

HON. FRANK COCHRANE.

Hon F. Cochrane, Minister of Railways and Canals, will arrive in the city to-night about 7 o'clock, motoring from Hastings.

SHOULD INTERCHANGE.

Hon. Dr. Pyne Favors Imperial Reciprocity In Teachers.

LONDON, July 21.—(C.A.P. Cable.) —Queen Amelie of Portugal successfully inaugurated an imperial union of teachers on Saturday at the annual meeting of the teachers' association, which is being attended by 3,000 delegates from all parts of the Empire. The Earl of Meath took the chair, and Hon. R. A. Pyne, Minister of the Education for Ontario, extended an invitation on behalf of his Government to the teachers' association to hold the next imperial conference in Toronto in 1916. He said he could assure them of a warm welcome and that everything would be done to make the meeting successful.

He hoped one of the subjects discussed would be reciprocity among the teachers. If some scheme could be brought into being whereby the well-trained teachers of Great Britain, Australia, Canada and New Zealand, etc., could get their qualifications recognized in every part of the Empire, it would be a great advantage.

Watson Laine of Montreal said the great obstacle to reciprocity in the teaching profession in Canada was the Province of Ontario. He would like the Minister of Education for Ontario to take the first step toward establishing reciprocity in Canada. He believed reciprocity, like charity, began at home.

Prof. Gardner of London University proposed that, in view of the great advantage to education and the teaching profession generally that teachers should gain experience in other countries than their own home and the dominion Governments be urged to grant them special facilities for gaining professional experience when visiting any part of the Empire.

The resolution was carried unanimously.

M'MILLAN TRANSFERS.

Arctic Expedition Ship Badly Damaged—New Ship Needed.

FREEPORT, Maine, July 21. — The equipment of the Donald B. McMillan Arctic expedition is being transferred at Battle Harbor, from the damaged steamer Diana to another ship. Mrs. W. C. Frogg, a sister of Prof. McMillan, received this message from him Saturday:

An earlier message received by the promoters of the expedition in New York from McMillan reported the arrival of the Diana at Battle Harbor Friday, and said that the ship was leaking badly as a result of the mishap when she went ashore at Barge Point, Labrador.

There is doubt here as to whether the Diana was taken in tow, or arrived at Battle Harbor under her own steam. Battle Harbor is a fishing settlement on a group of rocky islands above the Straits of Belle Isle, several miles from the mainland and offers practically no facilities for making a transfer.

GENERAL HAMILTON IN CITY

Distinguished Vetern of Many Battlefields Visits Peterborough

Major-General Sir Ian Hamilton, inspector of the overseas forces, who is in Canada to inspect the Canadian forces, was due to arrive in Peterboro at 4.30 this afternoon, from the east.

Col. the Hon. Sam Hughes, Minister of Militia will accompany the General, and after a brief stay in the city, they will proceed to Lindsay, where General Hamilton will on Tuesday, lay the corner stone of the new armories at that town.

Col Clegg received word to-day of the visit and made arrangements for the garrison officers to meet General Hamilton at the C.P.R. station, after which the party would take a trip around the city.

FARM HANDS

Manitoba Sends Out Appeal For Harvesters For Wheat Crop

WINNIPEG, July 21.—In response to an appeal for men to help in the harvest fields sent to the Government of British Columbia by the Manitoba Department of Agriculture, a considerable number of enquiries have been received from men, many of them married, who desire to come to this province to take part in harvesting operations.

The British Columbia Government has inserted notices in the newspapers of requirements of Manitoba for harvesters, and the Manitoba Government will interview railway companies for the purpose of securing reduced rates so as to take advantage of this help from British Columbia for harvest.

The Government is also making request that railway companies give reduced fares for farm hands from Winnipeg to outside points. To give an idea of the requirements for harvest, it may be stated that enquiries are coming in from municipalities showing that a very large number of men will be needed, especially in southwestern and northwestern portions of the province. The municipalities of Pipestone and Minnedosa have each requested no less than 500 men for harvest.

LAY BLAME ON BANKS.

Moose Jaw Paper Says Money Stringency Is Serious.

MOOSE JAW, Sask., July 21.—The Moose Jaw Times, in a front page editorial, declares that the west has never seen such a financial stringency since the eighties, and blames the banks. It declares that the city cannot get a cent from the Bank of Commerce to even pay the wages of the employes.

It states that scores of men are being discharged and wages are unpaid everywhere, and the folly of the whole matter is that a few millions would relieve the situation if circulated, allowing everybody to meet their obligations.

The Times declares that it is the duty of the Dominion Government to come to the aid of the country to prevent thousands of firms from failure in the next six weeks, and that it can do this if it chooses, and that the Government of Canada ought to be in a position to put in circulation $15,000,000 in additional currency if it can afford to advance such huge cash sums to the railways.

ARTHUR MEIGHEN, M.P.

PORTAGE LA PRAIRIE, MAN., July 20— Arthur Meighen, the new Solicitor General, was returned unopposed for the Portage la Prairie constituency. After Saturday's nominations call had resulted in no other name being put forward. The returning officer announced Mr. Meighen duly elected.

A preserve closet should be cool and dark. If it has a glass door hang a black curtain over it. It is a good plan to wrap jars of cherries, raspberries and strawberries in paper to exclude the light.

Revived After Shock.

ST. CATHARINES, July 21.—When Hugh McBride of Thorold, a Welland Canal lineman, accidentally grasped a wire bearing twenty-two thousand volts to save himself from a fall, the entire force passed through his body, but he broke the fall from the wire.

His foot caught in a bracket on the pole from which his body was suspended, saving him from a fall to the ground. He fully recovered after the application of artificial respiration. Lameness from a wrenching received when his leg caught on the pole is the only evident effect to-day of his experience.

FLEET GROWING

Australia's First Naval Unit is Completed and Ready to Sail for Home

LONDON, July 21.—(C.A.P. Cable.) —Australia is forging ahead with the preparation of her naval defence and yesterday the last section of her fleet unit, the Dreadnought cruiser Australia, was all completed for sea. She leaves Portsmouth for her new home port, Sydney, in charge of Read-Admiral Sir G. Patey, who is first admiral of the first dominion fleet. The light cruiser Sydney, which will accompany her, made a start on Thursday. Their arrival in their home waters will bring the Australian navy up to a very respectable strength.

The sister ship of the Sydney, the Melbourne, is already in commission there with three ocean-going destroyers and a third light cruiser, H.M.S. Brisbane, and three more large destroyers are now being built at Cockaloe Island yards in Sydney harbor.

Freight Trains Collide.

GALT, July 21.—Two C. P. R. freights met in collision at Barrie's Cut, a sharp curve on the road west of town, about two miles, Saturday and delayed traffic for some hours. Each train was proceeding under orders at a reduced speed and consequently the impact was less disastrous than it otherwise would have been. The crews escaped by jumping, but both locomotives suffered disaster, necessitating wreckage equipment from London. Train No. 51, eastbound, was in charge of Conductor Michael Craven, and train No. 57, westbound, of Conductor John Scrimger.

THREE PERISH IN FIRE

Children Burned to Death When Home Was Destroyed

Canadian Press Despatch.

MIDLAND, ONT., July 21— Earl Hill, Harry Hill, the children of George Hill and their cousin, William Ward all three being between the ages of ten and sixteen years, were burned to death in a fire which started from an unknown cause, and destroyed the residence on George Hill's farm, one mile from [illegible] early Sunday morning.

Hattie Hill, a daughter of sixteen years was saved, though badly burned and is in Midland Hospital, in a precarious condition. Charles Hill, uncle of the children, also sustained very serious injuries in efforts to save their lives.

CANADA'S DISHONORED CHEQUE

"Since I addressed the House last a serious event has occurred regarding the Canadian ships. The rejection of the Canadian Naval Aid Bill has, for the time at least, deprived us of aid upon which we were depending."

This was the humiliating confession which the First Lord of the Admiralty was forced to make before the British House of Commons last week.

What does it mean? Is not the position simply this: that Canada has palmed a dishonored cheque on the Mother-land?

That is a fact of which no Canadian with the least respect for himself or his country can contemplate without a sense of shame.

But there are those among us who can walk away with their tongue in their cheek, or try to salve their conscience by saying with a grin: "where's your emergency now? There never was any emergency! Doesn't Mr. Churchill tell us that the British Navy is the strongest in the world? the Empire is safe. There is not, never was and never will be any emergency."

The British Empire is doubtless safe enough; it was never in the make-up of a Britisher to quake before an invader, and to that end Britain has always prepared herself. So far as emergencies are concerned any government that is a government at all, and not a mere debating society, is up against emergencies continually. It is easy for a school boy to boast of his independence and safety, who has a wealthy and strong father at the back of him. To him there is no such thing as an emergency, these things are not his province. His chief concern is to have a good time and leave emergencies to the old man.

These may be the morals of a school boy, but they ought not to be good enough for Canadians, who are continually boasting of having grown up and come of age.

There may be differences of opinion as to the best permanent solution of the Canadian naval problem but for the present, Canada is in the position of feeling secure within the armoured circle of the British Empire and without contributing a cent to the preservation of the bulwarks, without which her independence and security would not be worth a rap.

EDITORIAL NOTES

The "Queen's Quarterly" is full of good things this quarter. Canada needs more magazines of this type

The Canadian Courier still claims to be the "National Weekly," others do the same. Where is the great Augustus these days—still nursing the Arts and Letters Club?

Lord Haldane who is to take a flying visit to Toronto is a big stout Statesman. He is a German Scholar and can talk on Metaphysics and Theology.

The Toronto Star is very tender on the subject of the Canadian Navy and resents the description of it as being "tin-pot." It is a shame to make fun of Sir Wilfrid's little hobby in that manner. He did his best.

From the ashes of the Montreal Witness has arisen a phenix in the shape of The Telegraph which is flapping its wings portentiously just now.

The Telegraph's opinion of the "ashes" might be interpreted thus: "Not that we have the slightest criticism, or would say anything that would sound at all derogatory to the deceased in the smallest degree; but there never was a paper like the Telegraph!"

The Wesleyan Methodist Conference is in progress in England. Rev. George Jackson, B.A., is to walk the orthodox plank, he will do it admirably.

"A pitiful incident connected with this storm was the complete ruin of the crop belonging to two brothers, young American settlers, named Nowlin, who came to Canada about five years ago. This is the fourth successive season in which they have suffered the loss of their crops through frost or drought or hail."

It is said that Mrs. Cornwallis West who recently got a divorce from her husband, is going to forget that she ever married Mr. West, and is again assuming the title Lady Randolf Churchill. She is a brilliant woman and may be able to hood-wink old Time all right.

Ten cents for a tail is rather a low price in these days when there is such a demand for short stories. But the tail in question belonged originally to a horse, and was cut short by some rude boys while the animal was dining in the stable, and then sold to a second-hand dealer for the sum named above. The story presumably ended with the nine-tails, for the boys were brought to court.

During the slack season in England 620 chefs, cooks and waiters left for Canada to take up positions in dining cars on the Canadian Railways. So they will be calling "Waitah! Waitah!!" in vain in Picadilly when the Autumn comes. The aristocracy will do all its own "waiting."

A writer in one of the "Stars" asks the question: "Does intellect mar beauty?" and then proceeds to answer the question. We have not read the article because we have no desire to lose conceit of ourselves.

Plumbers may be interested in the following which we cull from "The Municipal World," we don't quite understand it, but the saving of plumber's bills sounds good:

"Mr. Chas. Hopewell, ex-mayor of Ottawa, has just patented a simple 'flushing valve' whereby the whole city water pressure can be turned into a soil or sink pipe, with the result that any obstructions are at once removed. Tests have been successfully made with pipes jammed and hammered full of hair, rags, chips, etc., etc. Except when required for special use the Hopewell valve acts like an ordinary trap. It can be made for a couple of dollars and would be eagerly bought for $10 or $15, it is said, as it would save so much in plumber's bills in the cities. Those who pretend to know say the invention will bring hundreds of thousands, if not millions, to ex-mayor Hopewell. The valve has been patented in Canada, the U. S., Great Britain, France and Germany, and patents are also being sought in every other civilized country in the world. A company will be formed to handle the manufacture of the valve."

British Warship at Honolulu.

HONOLULU, July 19.—The British battleship New Zealand sailed yesterday for Vancouver, B.C., after a week of entertainment. The last affair was a dinner on board ship given by Capt. Halsey to Gen. and Mrs. Funston, Admiral Moore and Consul Rentiers and his wife. Thursday Capt. Halsey and his fellow officers reviewed the infantry, cavalry and artillery stationed at Fort Schofield.

A large crowd watched the New Zealand get under way while the American band played "God Save the King," and the ship's band played "The Star Spangled Banner."

Railwaymen Will Arbitrate.

NEW YORK, July 19.—The eastern railroads engaged in a wage controversy with their 80,000 trainmen and conductors indicated last night their willingness to leave with the board of mediation and conciliation, appointed by President Wilson, the decision as to which questions are to be submitted for arbitration under the Newlands amendment to the Erdman Act.

CHAPTER I

In the Diamond Horseshoe.

A girl's scream clashed with the soprano's high note in the Jewel Song, and in a moment the Metropolitan Opera House was in confusion. The cry, half suppressed, broke the spell peculiar to a "Faust" night. The somewhat portly Marguerite, her voice soaring like a cage-born bird suddenly freed, was decking her mature person with the glistening stage gems left on her scenic doorstep by the suavest of devils. As the singer hung about her neck the rope of pearls with which Mephisto planned to fetter her soul, Mrs. Missioner, swinging her fan with a freer motion, struck the slenderest part of her diamond collarette. The blow was sharp. The golden thread on which the choicest of the Missioner jewels in their perforated settings were strung, snapped. Instantly most of the freed drops of frozen fire that constituted Mrs. Missioner's magnificent necklace—the one with the Maharanee diamond—were rolling on the floor of the box.

Mrs. Missioner, as the little scream broke from Dorothy March, a débutante she had taken under her wing for the evening, clutched at the few diamonds that fell into her lap. Miss March drew her skirts tightly about her ankles and shrank into a corner of the box, making room fro the man who sprang to Mrs. Missioner's aid. Before another moment sped, Curtis Griswold was on his knees scooping together the scattered jewels with snow-gloved hands. Bruxton Sands, slower of movement, bent with more dignity to the task. In the next box, separated from Mrs. Missioner's only by a low velvet rail, a man of Oriental features and complexion turned to watch the scramble for the jewels. Though he did not stir from his place, his hawk-like face seemed to thrust itself into the center of the excited group.

The confusion throughout the house died slowly. By that subtle magnetism that inspires masses of humanity, everybody seemed to know whence the scream had come, and all eyes were turned from the stage to the Missioner box. They saw the usually tranquil mistress of a hundred millions yielding publicly to emotions that her poorest sister on losing her only trinkets might have snared with her. So distracting was the excitement in the Missioner box that for a second the great soprano paused in her cadenzas, and the conductor halted the beat of his baton. There was danger of the orchestra commiting the crime of a break in its strains. But the musicians, deterred by discipline from imitating their leader's swift back glances at the auditorium, played steadily on.

"Continue! Continue!" she urged, as she bent her gaze from the box to the conductor.

"What's the matter? Go on! Go on!" the stage manager cried in undertones from the wings. Ushers in the back of the house sought to cover the confusion with ill-timed applause. The moment was big with potential tragedy. One cry of "Fire!" might have sent thousands of startled women and men battling along the aisles in an elemental fury of self-preservation. Mere prolongation of the situation without that terrible tocsin might have ended in a smaller panic. But the liquid notes of the soprano soaring again in the pyrotechnics of the Jewel Song reclaimed the attention of the audience. The conductor, evidently eager to hide his own momentary loss of poise, fairly lifted his men through the intricacies of the accompaniment. Promptness of action by the stage manager restored order behind the scenes.

Nothing of all those incidents struck the sense of anyone in the Missioner box. All four of its occupants were concerned for the immediate recovery of the diamonds that had sprung from Mrs. Missioner's neck to her lap, and then stampeded across the floor. Griswold, still on his knees, rescued the greater number. Sands, a man of action as well as of millions, picked up the larger gems. Miss march shrank further into the corner of the box and dragged her petticoats ever more closely until her immature form seemed chiseled in tulle.

"Look in all the corners—look everywhere," Mrs. Missioner urged. "There's one behind the chair," she pointed.

"There's another," cried Dorothy, pointing at Griswold's feet. A glance from the dark stranger in the next box directed the searchers toward still another part of the floor, and every move was rewarded by the recovery of a gleaming stone. One by one, by twos, by threes, the diamonds were gathered, and still the search went on. Fast as they scooped them up, Sands and Griswold poured the glittering treasure into Mrs. Missioner's lap.

"Are they all there?" asked the millionaire.

"No, no," answered the widow. "There are several more. Please look again—look everywhere. Dorothy, help me count them."

The women sorted and counted the gems, indifferent to the thousands of eyes as if in the seclusion of a boudoir.

Griswold and Sands renewed their search, peering into the remotest corners, pushing chairs about, looking, reaching, grasping with the zeal of Klondikers, urged again and again by the owner of the jewels.

The glittering horseshoe of the Metropolitan deserves its name. The Kaffirs of Kimberly, the pearl-divers polynesia, the gold-seekers of the Klondike, the diggers into earth's secrets the world over toil ceaselessly to maintain the brilliance of that big jewel show. They send their diamonds and rubies and emeralds and sapphires, their pearls and opals and gold, to gleam on the heads and breasts and gowns of women whom the industry of one generation, or the stock-market luck of another, has crowned with riches. A night at the opera is a parade of the wonders gems can work and of that which, too often, gems can buy.

In all that electric sparkle, no gems outshone the Missioner jewels, of which the necklace Mrs. Missioner wore that night was the masterpiece. For in its center blazed the famous Maharanee diamond.

"I think we've found them all," said Sands, rising and emptying his cupped hand into the miniature mountain in Mrs. Missioner's lap.

"No more in the box, that's certain," supplemented Griswold, dusting his knees studiously.

"Are you sure?" asked Dorothy.

"Please be sure," begged the widow. "I must have them all."

Sands and Griswold nodded in chorus. Neither noticed the fascination with which the eyes of the Eastener, like twin searchlights, swept the floor.

Sands and Griswold returned to their chairs. Reluctantly realizing the thrilling little by-scene was at an end the other members of the audience again focused their attention on the stage. Mephisto befooled Dame Martha, Faust won Marguerite, and the curtain descended on an operatic triumph, only to be raised and lowered and raised again as boxes, orchestra and balconies recalled the singers for their meed of praise.

As they passed, bowing and smiling before the curtain, a low cry came from Mrs. Missioner's throat.

"O-o-oh!" she exclaimed, half-rising in her excitement, "the largest of all is gone! The Maharanee!"

Instantly the turmoil was renewed. Dorothy sprang to her feet and, before either of the men could anticipate her, began pushing the chairs about until all save Mrs. Missioner's were grouped in a corner of the box. Then the little débutante, regardless of her fluffy frock, raked the floor with her fan, with her free hand, her feet, in almost hysterical quest of the still missing diamond. Griswold, nearly as excited as the women, recommenced his own search.

All the energy of the thousands of women and men in the house was in their eyes, and those eyes concentrated on the box where the millionaire widow, half-frenzied, was sacrificing her Paquin gown to the hunt for her more treasured possession.

All the action in Sands leaped to the fore. Stretching a long arm across the bent backs of Griswold and little Miss March, he thrust a thumb against an electric button.

"It can't be in the box," he said decisively, and when a breathless usher rapped at the door, the millionaire tore it open and whispered, "Run down to the orchestra and look everywhere around this box. A diamond has fallen over the rail."

"What can be the matter?" asked a thousand women of a thousand escorts. In many parts of the audience they were standing between the seats for a better view of the box around which the little tempest of excitement swirled.

Quick questions rained on the searching usher from a group that surrounded him ten deep as he poked among the programmes that strewed the orchestra floor under the Missioner box.

"Keep cool, Doris. We'll find it," said Sands to the widow.

"Bravo," came as an inspiration from a far corner of the balcony, as the great soprano made her final vow. Instantly it was taken up by hundreds. "Bravo! Bravissimo!" screamed delirious standees over the length of the orchestra. The firemen stood tensely at their posts in readiness for a life struggle. Ushers hurried to and fro in vain efforts to quiet those nearest them. Above all the clamor in the Missioner box, the nervous inquiries of women, surged that swelling roar. "Bravo! Bravo! Bravissimo!" until most other sounds succumbed to it and only the noise of the diamond hunt survived.

"Dorothy, Dorothy, I cannot go until we find it," sobbed Mrs. Missioner. The woman who, with a sweep of her pen, could summon all the artists who had sung their souls out on the stage to sing as soulfully in her salon, who with another pen-sweep, could recompense them beyond their most arrogant demands, was in tears because she had lost a diamond.

But such a diamond! Its prisoned fire held the history of an alien race.

"After all," said Griswold in a swift aside to Dorothy, " she has recovered the other gems, and even if she cannot find this one——"

"Don't you know?" returned little Miss March excitedly. "Dont't you really know, Mr. Griswold?"

"Know what, Miss March?" asked the clubman.

"Why, the history of that stone!" Don't you know Mrs. Missioner's husband bought it from a Maharanee, that they brought it all the way from India? Don't you know it's the finest diamond in America?"

Griswold shook his head. He was pursuing the search perfunctorily. His hands were busy, but his eyes roved over the house. Idly he noted the slowly ebbing interest of the audience, the departure of hundreds by twos and threes and larger groups, the thronging toward the lobby for the usual visits between the acts. It was with faint interest that he saw several swarthy faces weaving through the crowd. Had his eyes been able to follow those faces, he would have seen them converse in the corridor behind the box—the box in which the Oriental with the face of a hawk.

The hawk watched the Missioner box. So steadily did he direct his gaze at Mrs. Missioner that she was when the stranger's flashlight gaze struck a spark from her memory. She bowed, cooly as she began the inclination of her head, but in the end graciously. Her dark neighbor was satified with this dubious encouragement.

"You are fond of your jewels as ever, I see," he said, in a low tone, as of one claiming a share in intimate memories.

"Yes," she answered with an abstracted air. She was harking back to days long gone, and evidently the recollection was not unpleasant.

"I cannot blame you," said the Oriental. "Everyone knows you have the most wonderful jewels in the world—one of them, at any rate."

"These," returned Mrs. Missioner, "are among my very best diamonds. But they are nothing to the Maharanee, and that is gone."

"You are brave," was all he said, "to wear them in public. Many a woman, save in her own ballroom, would content herself with duplicates."

"Duplicates!" There was unmistakable contempt in Mrs. Missioner's tone.

Mrs. Missioner had no time for more than another slow bending of her head when the usher who had gone to the orchestra hurried into the box.

"I've looked thoroughly, sir," he said to Sands. " and I can't find the diamond anywhere."

"Try again," he said quietly. "There's a good deal more than this in it for you if you find it."

Griswold, as he moved to let the usher pass, stepped backward with such abruptness as to drive his heel sharply down upon something that slipped under his tread like a peach kernel. In the very moment when Mrs. Missioner, resuming her talk with the Oriental, said, with emphasis "I leave imitations to others," that blundering heel crushed into and through the velvet carpet, crushed against the unyielding hardwood of the floor, what had been the most conspicuous diamond in all the richly jeweled collarette—crushed it until only a tiny heap of pallid powder lay there save, where a great flake had slipped from the pressure and remained to betray what the little pile of dust has been.

"Jove!" exclaimed Sands.

"The Maharanee!" gasped Dorothy.

The light in the Oriental's eyes flared to a flame. With a smile as inscrutable as his thoughts, he leaned across the low partition, picked up a pinch of the powder and the telltale flake and laid them deferentially on Mrs. Missioner's outspread fan.

"Your maid is more cautious," he said, his smile softening slightly, "or it may be, your jewel has made a mistake."

Mrs. Missioner did not faint. She only clutched the soft hand of little Miss March so tightly that the débutante with difficulty suppressed a scream. This time there was silence in the Missioner box, for Griswold even as he began to stammer an apology for his awkwardness, let the words die on his lips as he saw the cruel pallor of the widow's face. The silence of Sands was grim, that of the Oriental sauvely self-effacing.

"Then," said Mrs. Missioner at last in a low, tense tone, "this is—this is——"

"Not the Maharanee diamond," replied the Oriental. " In a s n madame, I congratulte you."

She stopped him with a look.

"This—this thing is——" She could say no more.

"Paste!" thundered Sands.

"I have been robbed," said Mrs. Missioner in a stifled voice. "Take me home, Bruxton."

CHAPTER II

The Man of Action.

The conference that followed in the quiet of Mrs. Missioner's library threw no light on the mystery of the Maharanee's disappearance. Mrs. Missioner was not of the fainting type, and when she entered her Fifth Avenue home, followed by Dorothy, Sands and Griswold, she went straight to the room in which she kept her jewels. Half library, half boudoir, the big apartment was a triumph of the decorator's art. It was lighted by slender vacuum tubes running along the walls which could flood the farthest corner with noonday brilliance or soften the gloom to the faintest twilight gleam. A grateful glow from logs of giant Georgia oak ruddied the Colonial fireplace.

Mrs. Missioner herself switched on the lights to their full radiance. She hastened across the room, her opera cloak slipping from her white shoulders, and paused in front of the safe.

"You don't expect to find your diamond there?" inquired Griswold amazedly.

She flung a glance over her shoulder.

"Perhaps all the other stones are paste," she answered. "I am going to see how many have been stolen."

She dropped to her knees before the steel door of the bank-like vault built in the wall, and turned the nickel knob right and left. The door painted to harmoize with the Flemish oak of the wainscot, was ornamented with only the widow's crest. Silence held the others as her gloved fingers whirled the little knob. Not until a click announced that the bolts were thrown did Sands speak.

"You are sure all the other stones are here?" he asked, picking up Mrs. Missioner's lorgnon bag, into which she had slipped the recovered gems on leaving the opera box.

"Yes," the widow replied, "but, Bruxton, the Maharanee, the beautiful Maharanee diamond! If you could know how I prize it!"

Sands, absently counting the lesser jewels, did not see the massive safe door swing open. His disciplined mind was working slowly, steadily. Dorothy, her small face cameo clear in the intense light of the mercury, watched the shining gems as the millionaire's strong fingers flicked them delicately from the silken bag to the table. Plainly she, too, was groping for a clew. Griswold alone, therefore, saw the widow's gloved hand tremble as, swiftly, she turned a smaller knob controlling the combination of the compartment in which she kept her jewels. His eyes still upon her, he felt for a cigarette.

The match fell from his fingers as the inner door opened to his searcing glance. Lances of many-colored light slashed the comparative gloom of the compartment as Mrs. Missioner brought forth tray after tray from the jewel vault. The steel box in the center of the safe was an Aladdin's cave in miniature. It held stones of every sort in settings of every fashion, ranging from the product of twentieth century jewelers back to the loved works of Byzantine artificers. Little Miss March gasped again as the widow spread the trays on the Persian rug.

The widows guests saw what few persons other than Mrs. Missioner had seen—all the Missioner jewels at once. The gems were the collection of a lifetime. Missioner, in the intervals of amassing millions, had devoted himself to gathering them from the earth's corners. It had been his only hobby, and he pursued it with the enthusiasm of a man to whom an extra numeral or two on a check meant little. Globe-girdling trips to which the financial and industrial press attached mysterious importance had meant nothing more than jewel hunts to Missoiner. He bagged railroads from habit, he stalked diamonds for pleasure. And, despite her fondness for social conquests the multimillionaire considered trivial, so sympathetic had been the bond between Missioner and his wife that at his death not only the great collection, but the passion of augmenting it, passed to her.

"You have an inventory, of course?" asked Sands. Even his sturdy individuality paid passing tribute to the magnificence of the collection. He left the stones of the necklace on the table and strolled over to stare at the rubies and emeralds, the sapphires and tourmalines and amethysts, above all at the unrivaled group of diamonds graded from a fierfly's sparkle to the gloryburst of radium. Little Miss March true daughter of Eve, sank on the broad rug beside the shining trays and gazed at them in an ecstasy of adoration.

Mrs. Missioner drew from a shelf in the jewel box a catalogue of her treasures. Item by item she read from it, the others checking tray by tray until the last stone was accounted for, the last save the wonderful Maharanee diamond.

"The big stone gone," mused Sands. "Then, Doris," and there was conviction in his tones, as he gathered up the jewels scattered on the table, "these others are false, too."

"Sure of it," said Sands, holding one of the suspected gems to the light. "I'm not an expert, but I haven't the slightest doubt."

"Let me see them," Griswold interposed. He scrutinized three of four for more than a minute. "They look genuine to me." He offered them to Miss March, whose fingers did not unlock to take them.

"We can be certain very quickly," said Mrs. Missioner. She was studying Griswold's whitening fingers—steady enough, but deadly white. It was a peculiarity of the man that he turned pale only in his hands. "I will send for a jeweler."

LIFE INSURANCE

THE pessimist and the prophet of woe have no rightful place in any consideration of the expediency of insuring life. But certain hard facts should be squarely faced by every man of moderate means who has anyone dependent on him. Hundreds of men are yearly rejected for life insurance who would have been accepted had they not delayed their applications until ill health had come upon them. Why do men in good condition take such a long chance of remaining well? It is an impressive fact that out of 8549 holders of policies in a leading life insurance company who died in the past year, only 64 died of old age. The remainder were carried away by disease or accident. Hence the wisdom of insuring early in life. The best years for saving are from 20 to 40, and no man should let that period pass without taking out an insurance policy. For that part of his career an endowment policy, which is likely to mature while he is still living and can secure the proceeds of it himself, is to be preferred.

There will probably always be poor old men, their ranks will be recruited from the successful men of an earlier date, and fortunate is he who has made certain provision by means of endowment insurance in the Sun Life Assurance Company of Canada.

DRAFTING ROOM CONQUERED MACHINISTS BY GRAND FINISH

Crowd Was Leaving Grounds When the Unexpected Happened---Other Winners Were M.A.P., Bankers, and Typos

To practically win the Mercantile League, to get away with some of the Machinists' money and to beat "Yebbie" Flaherty was what the Drafting Room did on Saturday afternoon at Riverside Park. Jack Pilling had the strongest aggregation that ever played amateur ball, to see their names on a paper, but when they came to deliver the goods they were so far from being ball players—well it was a joke. The Drafting Room have come from behind every game they have won and when at the first of the ninth the fans started to move, for the score was 10—8 in favor of the Machine Shop, a few of the wise ones said "wait, it isn't over," and sure enough it wasn't. O'Hern, the husky back stop of the Machine Shop, couldn't begin to hold the terrible "Yebbie," and thus the veteran couldn't speed them over. When the Draftsmen began to hit he wanted to cut loose, but wasn't able and had to be relieved by Claire Callaghan, who up to that time had been playing the game of his life at second base. Callighan succeeded in retiring the side though not till they had made seven runs, making the score 15—10. This score was final, for in the Machinists' half of the last innings, two were out and a man on bases, when Manager Pilling sent in Green, an old rugby player from Montreal, to pinch hit, and he swung at three. Callaghan and Barrie had a great day and were the fastest men on the field, while Smith, the twirler for the Draftsmen, showed more "stuff" than a lot of Canadian League twirlers.

Draft Room—Smith and Turner.

Machine Shop—Flaherty, Callighan O'Hern

Umpire—"Bill" Shaw.

M. A. P. WON.

In the other game at Riverside it was all M.A.P. The Quakers hadn't a look in and Clements seemed to have too much on the ball. Kirn the regular pitcher of the Quakers, was out of the game and the variety set out by Hagerman and Morphet was much to the liking of Nelson's Brigade. The score was 14—5. Batteries:—

M. A. P.—Clements and Fitzgerald.

Quakers—Hagerman, Morphet and Wilson

Umpire—"Bill" Shaw.

BANKERS HAD TO HUSTLE

To be given a run for their money by the lowly Canoe Builders, was what happened to the Bankers on Saturday afternoon at Nicholls Oval. The Canoe-Builders were there with the bells on and a lucky slap by Minorgan was all that saved the moneymen from their second defeat. Carson was no trouble to the Woodmen, and he was hit to all corners, good support alone keeping the score down. On the other hand, "Lefty" Ferguson was the whole works, and with any kind of support could have beaten the Bankers easily.

The score was 6-5 in favor of the Canoe Builders at the end of the seventh, but in the eighth, with two out and none on, Minorgan got a lucky home run and tied it up. In the ninth an error and a wild throw gave the Bankers the winning run. The final score was 7-6.

Umpire, M. Guerin.

SOME MISTAKE HERE

Owing to the great amount of interest taken in the games at Riverside, only a few fans witnessed the fracas at Brinton Park between the Brintons and Typos. On account of the late hour the game was started, it was decided to drop the curtain after the fifth act, but when the time came the score was 7 all, so an extra spasm was played and when the grand finale came the score stood 10-7 in favor of the Typos. "Benny" Taylor, hero of many a by-gone printer's team, was on the line-up, and marked his presence by a three-bagger. Manion had a home run to his credit, while Brodie featured the game by a spectacular catch in left garden. O'Keefe at third for the south-enders, was easily the pick of their team.

The batteries— Typos: Milloy and Swanson. Brintons: Close and Taylor.

Umpire— T. Dark.

Trout will likely be seen at third base this week as Byrne will be out of the game for a week at least.

Manager Rowan is now congratulating himself that he did not lend McNeal to Guelph.

SPORTING GOSSIP

Barrie and Callaghan are no doubt the fastest infielders in the league and Tommy Moffat did nto have them down on his "All Star Team"

Well, the Machinists are'nt sore for they invited all the Drafting Room players to their moonlight on Thursday evening of this week.

Red Rowe of the Senators has gone to the Syracuse Club to catch Fred Herbert.

Foolish Questions.

Bobbie had been allowed to sit up a little while after supper on condition that he keep quiet. But Bobbie had a lot of questions that he wanted to ask, and the sum of them sent him to bed.

"Papa," he began innocently enough, "can God do everything?"

"Yes, my son, surely."

"Can he make a two foot rule with only one end to it?"

"Don't ask such foolish questions, sonnie."

Brief silence, then:

"Pa, is it true that a camel can go ten days without water?"

"Yes," a little wearily.

"Then, pa, how many days could he go if he had water?"

And that, of course, was Bobbie's cue to go swiftly upstairs.—Chicago Record-Herald.

NOMADS WON FAST GAME WITH WARSAW

The Nomads of Peterboro were returned victors in a well contested football game, at Riverside Park, Saturday evening, when they defeated the fast Warsaw team by 3-2.

The count at half-time was 2-2 and the honor of kicking the winning goal fell to Turner, of the Nomads.

It was a great game of football throughout, and although defeated, the Warsaw boys brought credit to themselves by their clever playing in which they made a big effort to win out.

The Nomads were in their best form and won the game on their merits. They now play a series of games with the C.G.E. team, and the winners play the victors of the western division for the championship of the Midland Football League.

During the Toronto Exhibition, a local All Star team will take part in a football competition, for the Connaught Cup.

St. John's football team will play an exhibition game at Warsaw next Saturday. Arrangements are being made to make this trip enjoyable for the members of the club and their friends. A practice is called for Nicholl's Oval, next Wednesday evening.

Follis, Nomads, 3 mins.

Follis, Nomads, 6 mins.

Payne, Warsaw, 16 mins.

SECOND HALF.

Turner, Nomads, 27 mins.

PETES GRABBED PAIR FROM BRANTFORD SOX

Hilliard's Hitting Was Responsible for Both Runs in Second Contest—Byrne Out of the Game

If Brantford did beat Peterborough on Friday by a big score, the Rowan Brigade came back with revenge and took both ends of the double-header on Saturday. The first game was all Sterling, who kept the hits scattered and struck out six. Joe Byrne, who for the past few games has been showing great form, got his hand hurt sliding into second early in the game and Trout was sent in to cover the difficult corner, Tracey going to right field, where he had a putout. Sterling also had a three-base hit to his credit. The score was 8—4

SECOND GAME.

Sterling was going good so he was put in again in the second, which was billed for seven innings. In the first Trout was walked and Dave Hilliard came through with a double, scoring Trout. This score stood till the sixth when Brantford tallied one. Hilliard was the first man up in the seventh and when Gero groved one in the right spot he put the ball outside the park for a homer. It was the longest hit ever seen in Brantford. "Jo Jo" Keenan covered third for Brantford in both games. The score was 2—1.

JACK WHITE'S BERLINERS WILL BE HERE THURSDAY FOR BOOSTER'S DAY

Booster's Day will be observed at Riverside Park Thursday afternoon and it is hoped that every person in Peterborough who can do so, will be on hand.

The Berlin team, under the leadership of Jack White, a former White Cap, who has rejuvenated the Berliners since taking the management a few days ago, will meet the Petes at three o'clock, and it is possible that Kid Bradshaw, the peer of Canadian League twirlers, will pitch for the visitors.

Arrangements have been made to place tickets on sale in the hotel offices, tobacco stores, and other convenient places and each booster may purchase one 50 cents. The ticket will admit the holder to the grounds and grand stand.

While the baseball team is a success from a playing standpoint the gate receipts on the road have been very poor. For instance, in Brantford there were 164 people on the grounds for the first game. The attendances at Hamilton have also been small. The baseball team is an expensive organization and funds are needed immediately.

This is the reason that Booster's Day has been called for Thursday afternoon. Much depends upon the result. It has been the aim of the directors to give Peterboro a team playing a good brand of baseball. That has been accomplished, and the people of Peterboro can show their appreciation by giving the baseball match on Thursday and in fact all this week, a bumper house. Two thousand people at Riverside on the half holiday will be a big help.

A Mystery

"Two comical specimens were seen last night wandering about Victoria Park and thereabouts between 8 to 10 o'clock.

"One of them, about 5'2", was dressed as a young "dandy" with long "baggy" trousers, a very high collar and high silk hat. The other, about 5', was dressed in white woolen sweaters from head to foot, evidently representing a cat from the cleverly made mask, with its long white whiskers.

"These two were evidently foreigners, judging by the gentleman's bow and their low incessant gabble, and attracted considerable public attention."

COMPLAINT ABOUT THE SHOOTING AT THE NEW RANGES

By People, Adjacent to the Property=Steps Will be Taken to Bring About a Satisfactory Arrangement to all Concerned

On Saturday afternoon, there was a mix-up at the new rifle ranges, said to be due to the refusal of the shooters to observe the signals of sentries to cease firing, over the road running north and south from the Norwood Road.

It is said that there was a pretty hot time over this and the few farmers who live along the road swear vengeance against the members of the Rifle Association.

The rule usually observed on ranges on account of the excessive long range of the modern rifle, now extends over much country, is to patrol the cross-roads during hours of firing and to stop firing when teams wish to pass. Through some misunderstanding, it is said, this rule was not observed on Saturday and this had led to much indignation on the part of the three or four people who live along the road.

To the Editor,—The shooting on the range on Saturday may have been all right for the shooters, but for the travelling public it was rather dangerous.

There was no protection of any kind for people crossing the firing line. The shooters did not stop even when a buggy turned on the line, and a lady driving herself, had to turn back and go to the range keeper's house and send word to them to stop firing and give her a chance to get home. This kind of thing should be put a stop to and no shooting allowed until the range is in proper order.

S. R. PRICE.

Lieut.-Col. Clegg when seen this morning said that an endeavor was being made to bring about a state of affairs that would safeguard the public using the road in rear of the range. Trees obscuring the line of the road from the shooting stand could be cut down, giving a clear view of the road and of anyone moving along it in either direction. It might be advisable to erect a semaphore to give warning. The road is not a main artery and used by only a few who farm in the neighborhood.

Saturday's use of the range brought out these difficulties, which will be rectified. As the rifle competitions over the province are coming on, it was desirable that contestants should get some practice, and the range was made use of. Presently all difficulties will be adjusted.

WESTERN CANADA'S BUMPER WHEAT CROP

Thousands of Men Required—This Year's Harvest Promises to be the Largest in the History of Canada

According to present indications the wheat crop of 1913 will be the greatest ever harvested in Manitoba, Saskatchewan or Alberta, thus requiring the farm laborers of the East to assist in harvesting the world's bread basket.

The Governments of the respective Provinces state that many thousand men will be required for this year's harvest. These will have to be principally recruited from Ontario, and the prosperity of Canada depends on securing labor promptly. The Canadian Pacific, on which Company will fall practically the entire task of transporting the men to the West, is already making special arrangements for this year. Excursions from points in Ontario to Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta will be run and special trains operated, making the trip in about thirty-six hours and avoiding any change of cars or transfers. This will be a day shorter than any other route. Dates, rates and conditions will be announced in a few days. eod

REV. OLDFIELD AT BETHANY TABERNACLE

Former Peterborough Boy Now Pioneer in China

(By our Special Reporter)

Rev. W. H. Oldfield is a former Peterborough boy, and is at present home on furlough from the mission field in China. He conducted services yesterday at the Bethany Tabernacle on George street.

To my surprise, when I visited the Tabernacle on Sunday morning, I discovered that Mr. Oldfield was a young man. Whether it was his name or the fact that he was an old Peterborough boy that misled me, I had the notion that I was going to hear a veteran preacher. Mr. Oldfield may be thirty-five or forty, but he has the sprightliness and enthusiasm of a very young man.

He has a happy, eager manner, and his delivery, if somewhat spasmodic, is very pleasing and effective.

It may be complimentary, or it may not be, but Mr. Oldfield reminded me of Mr. Joseph Chamberlain, the late Colonial Secretary. He lacks the restraint of that great British politician, but that is a mere accident, for he has a more urgent and enthralling message to deliver and has no time for dialectics.

They are a warm lot at the Tabernacle. Mr. Oldfield's prayer was punctuated with vollies of "amens" from various parts of the congregation. Such demonstrations are a little out of date in churches to-day, but they are not afraid of being old fashioned at Bethany.

"Amid the trials that I meet,
Amid the thorns that pierce my feet,
One thing remains supremely sweet,
Thou thinkest Lord of me."

That was the second hymn, and it struck the individual note, which is the motive power of evangelism. The people who have done so much to evangelize the heathen are those who have this personal touch with the Saviour whose gospel they proclaim.

Whatever may be said of the "sentiments" of evangelicals, there is no doubt that Mr. Oldfield is one of those dauntless pioneers whose consecrated courage and enthusiasm have done much to open up the ancient empire of China and set it on the road of progress and emancipation.

Mr. Oldfield in the course of his sermon told some very harrowing tales of human torture which he had witnessed; of the cruel methods of healing, of children abandoned, and girls sold into shame. How that he was unable to sleep at night thinking about the horrors he had seen during the day.

He told of fellow missionaries who had fallen through fever and sickness. One wondered after hearing all this, how this young man, who might remain in happier circumstances at home, could so joyously contemplate returning to such dangerous and discouraging work.

But Mr. Oldfield is of the stuff that pioneers are made, the same material that opened up the rough country upon which Peterborough is built.

His native city will wish him good health, and long, fruitful years in the noble service of christianity in the new Chinese Republic.

It Was Ever Thus

Orillia Packet— The Peterboro and Millbrook districts have been much exercised of late over the doings of a certain "lady doctor" who professes to cure all diseases, and is doing as rushing a business as the average brass jewelry faker on the corner of Mississaga and Peter-sts. Orillia. A few days ago a man who applied for advice and treatment, paid a dollar for instructions to go home and put a bread-and-milk poultice on the back of his neck. His complaint was an in-growing toe nail!

An ordinary clothespin broken in two is excellent for scraping out cooking dishes.

CONSECRATION OF REV. DR. O'BRIEN

As Bishop of Peterboro Diocese on September 24

During the latter part of last week the word came through the official bulls from Rome, confirming the appointing of Rev. M. J. O'Brien D.D., to the bishopric, and also naming the date of his consecration to be Wednesday, September 24th.

At the Church of the Sacred Heart on Sunday, Rev. Dr O'Brien announced that His Excellency, the most Rev. P. F. Stagni, apostolic delegate to Canada would officiate.

Went 900 Miles by Flying Boat.

DETROIT, July 19.—Beckwith Havens completed a flying boat trip from Chicago to Detroit shortly before four o'clock yesterday afternoon. He followed the route planned from Chicago to Detroit aviation cruise and covered 900 miles. It is said to have been the most remarkable trip ever undertaken by flying boats.

J. B. Verplanck, owner of the flying boat, accompanied Havens, who started from Chicago on July 8. Roy I. Francis and Glenn L. Martin decided on the 15th inst. at Pentwater, Mich., to give up the race, as the management had withdrawn the prize money owing to the fact that there were only three starters where twenty had been expected.

Refuse To Pay $12.50.

BRANTFORD, July 19.—Lady operators at the Bell Telephone Co. here, twenty-five in number, have threatened to precipitate a strike unless their salary demands for $8 per week are met by the company.

The manager parleyed with the girls asking for a respite until Aug. 1 before making answer to the demands. In the meantime the company is advertising for new employes, and the telephone service throughout the city may be completely tied up if the girls decide on a strike at a meeting which is called for to-day. Their request is for an increase of fifty cents per week.

WEDDINGS—PERSONAL

Miss Dorothy Allan, daughter of Mr. John Allan, organist of St. Paul's, who has been in London, Eng., for the last two months and will be for another month studying with Signor Giovanni Clerici, teacher of Caruso, John McCormack and many celebrated singers, is returning to Peterborough the end of August. Signor Clerici, from whom Miss Allan is taking an hour's lesson every day, is delighted with her voice, and says she "has the true musical temperament necessary to every good singer and without which the voice is a mere machine." He said "she had been very well taught and he had nothing to undo, only develop and perfect that which already had been accomplished."

This is a great compliment to the method and training of Mr. Allan, who has been his daughter's sole teacher, as at the time Signor Clerici said this he was not aware who was her teacher. Miss Allan hopes to give a vocal recital shortly after her return to Peterborough.

Mrs. and Miss Allan are managing to combine a good deal of pleasure along with work. They enjoyed hearing a fine debate on the Irish Home Rule Bill in the House of Commons, when they heard Mr. Asquith, Bonar Law, Winston Churchill, Austin Chamberlain, Lloyd George, Keir Hardie and several others, and saw many more notables. Tickets for the ladies gallery were kindly sent them by Sir Henry Craik, M.P. These are keenly scrutinized on account of the suffragettes disturbances and it is much more difficult to obtain admittance now than it was a dew years back. They had also a most enjoyable day at the Royal Academy, where the exhibition of pictures this year is exceptionally fine. A large crowd is always to be seen in front of what is considered the finest pictures of the year, Hon. John Collier's "A Fallen Idol," which for strength and tenderness and rich, though subdued coloring, would be hard to surpass.

WAGSTAFF—MURPHY

All Saints Church was the scene of a quiet wedding on Saturday afternoon, when Miss Elsie M. Murphy was united in marriage to Mr. Arthur Wagstaff, both of this city by Rev. R. B. Grobb. They were assisted by Miss Georgian Darnley and Mrs. Chas. Friendship.

Mr. and Mrs. Wagstaff will reside in the city.

JUDD—KENNEALLY

A very pretty wedding was solemnized at St. Peter's Cathedral at 6.15 this morning, when Mr. James Judd, 217 Bethune street, was united in the holy bonds of matrimony to Miss Margaret Kenneally, 225 Sherbrooke street. Rev. Father Cote performed the ceremony.

The bride was charmingly gowned in cream silk, wearing a large picture hat. She was attended by Miss Nellie Walsh, while the bride's brother, Mr. Martin Kenneally, assisted the groom.

After the ceremony the happy couple and a few immediate friends repaired to the home of the bride where a delightful breakfast was served.

Mr. and Mrs. Judd left via C.P.R. for a wedding trip to Niagara and Detroit.

Mr. Victor Loftus, of Toronto, is in the city.

Miss Jennie Thompson returned to Toronto, Sunday afternoon.

Mrs Peter Thompson, George st., has gone to Cleveland to visit her son.

Rev. M. J. O'Brien, D.D., leaves today for Winnipeg where he will attend the consecration of Bishop Beliveau.

Mr. and Mrs. James Smith, Mount Pleasant, are visiting the home of their daughter, Mrs. W. F. Brown, 600 George-st.

Rev. R. G. Peever, pastor of George Street Methodist Church, left to-day to join his family in Pembroke.

Mr. John Hill, the popular George-st. grocer, left this morning for Montreal where he will board an ocean liner on a six weeks trip to the North of Ireland.

Misses Edna and Leone Milburn and Miss Myrtle Berry, all of Brantford, are spending their holidays with their aunt, Mrs. J. Parnell, Water-st.

Mr. Walter Miller, of Toronto, spent the week-end with his parents Mr. and Mrs. Finch Miller, Water-st. Mr. Miller is to be married in October.

ing has been visiting friends in this city. Mrs. Hilts will be joined by her husband and they will visit in Toronto before going to Chesley, Ont., a new field of labor.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Madill, Aylmer-st., left this morning for Toronto, where they will be joined by their son Dr. Stanley Madill, when they will go to Sarnia by G.T.R., and to Duluth by steamer.

Mr. W. R. Morris was re-elected a member of the Council of the Institute of Chartered Accountants of Ontario, at the annual meeting of that body which was held at Niagara Falls on Saturday.

Expensive Evening Gowns

are not matters of every-day purchase, and therefore even the independently wealthy like to take the greatest care of them. Yet sometimes the functions of a single evening will ruin their appearance temporarily. We can remedy this, however, by our system of careful cleaning, and in any case we can dye the garment and make it like a new one.

YOUNGSTER FELL INTO THE WATER

Rex. Evans Was Rescued by Men at Street Railway Wharf

What might have proved a drowning accident was narrowly averted yesterday evening at the Street Railway Wharf. It is the habit of children residing in the southern section of the city, to make this wharf a play ground. Yesterday afternoon, about 5 o'clock, the usual kindergarten brigade were around the wharf, when one of the children found an empty cherry basket. It was thrown into the river and used as a target at which to throw stones. When the basket got out some fifty feet the youngsters had to take a run to throw the full distance. One lad, who said his name was Rex Evans, of McGill street, lost his balance and fell headlong into the river.

A young man, who happened to be a few rods away, ran over and after no little amount of trouble, pulled the semi-dazed boy from the river. He recovered himself almost immediately and proceeded home.

SUNDAY AT CHEMONG PARK

Evening Service Every Sunday in the Pavilion

Permanent Chapel May be Erected at the Park

Divine service was held in the pavilion at Chemong Park at 8.30 p.m. on Sunday. Rev. Mr. Gay, who is officiating at St John's Church, during the absence of Canon Davidson, kindly conducted the service. Professor and Mrs. Giddon and Master Otto Giddon furnished the music and have kindly consented to arrange for future services.

A large congregation was present. The offertory taken up, goes to the benefit of the Chemong Park Mission Fund, which is being collected with the idea of building a permanent chapel at the Park. The services will be a fixture during the summer months and will be held at the same hour 8.30 p.m., in the pavilion, which has been kindly donated by Mr. Jobe for that purpose.

SAIL GAVE FINE SATISFACTION

Coburg Customer Pleased With Turners' Goods

Messrs. J. J. Turner & Sons have received a letter from Mr. George Plunkett, of Cobourg, who in acknowledging the arrival of the large sail made for one of his freighters, says "I cannot help but admire your good workmanship."

Mr. Plunkett also asked for information regarding a mainsail for one of his other boats and one of the firm's representatives went to Cobourg this morning.

NOVELTIES IN FIREWORKS

Motion Pictures of Flame Latest Thing at Canadian National Exhibition

Moving pictures in fireworks are surely the newest thing in pyrotechnics. And the newest thing in all lines are served at the Canadian National Exhibition. Among the motion pictures framed in fire that are on the bill are a threshing machine with wheels running and grain pouring from the spout, an auto fire engine that runs so fast it crashes into an automobile, and flying machines. Add to these the changing illumination, the colored balloons, the exploding bombs, the soaring rockets, the massive golden fountains and dispersing radiating batteries, and you have a fireworks bill more varied and more wonderful than anything ever before presented at the Canadian National. 42

Police Found Horse

A horse belonging to Mr. Geo. Giles, of Monaghan, wandered away, Saturday night, but was recovered in Otonabee this morning by the police.

BOARD OF JUDGES HERE ON TUESDAY

The Board of County Judges for Ontario will open their annual session in the Judge's Chambers at the Court House to-morrow. The usual duties of dealing with matters pertaining to procedure, amendments, acts and tariff, and other matters of a similar nature will occupy the attention of the Board.

The Board also deals with matters concerning the Surrogate County and Division Courts and is empowered to recommend to the Legislature changes in the interests of these courts. This is the second time that the Board has convened outside of Toronto and their coming here was at the instigation of the local Bar Association. During their stay in the city, the visitors will be entertained by the Peterborough Bar Association.

The members of the Board are His Honor Judge McDonald, of Brockville, the Dean of the Board, Judge Chadwick of Guelph, Judge Hardy of Brantford, Judge Harding of Lindsay, and Judge Huycke, of Peterborough. Mr. J. Bruce McDonald, Inspector of Division Courts, is also a member, and will be present, and his first assistant, Mr. W. W. Ellis, may be here. The Secretary of the Board is Mr. H. T. Locke, of Toronto.

RENOVATING THE GRAND HOTEL

Many Improvements to be Made by New Proprietor

A week ago to-day Mr. E. O. McCohan, formerly manager of Fym's house Lindsay, Niagara Hotel, Toronto, and Central Hotel, Toronto, came here to take over the Grand Hotel, formerly owned by Mr. Chas. Nixon. Mr. McCohan having had some fifteen years epxerience, at once deemed it advisable to renovate the building.

The floors will be placed in the rotunda and in the bar-room, and all the rooms will be furnished. The building will be repainted both inside and on the exterior and a new large and attractive sign will take the place of the present one.

The hotel will be managed by Mr. E. W. McCohan, Mr. McCohan's son, while, Mr. McCohan, sr., and family, will reside here in a private residence.

OBITUARY

The Late Mr. Fobert

The death occurred Sunday morning of Abel Alphonse Fobert, aged 37, at the residence of his father at Chemong Park. The deceased was well known in this city. His parents, Mr. and Mrs. Louis Fobert, a sorrowing wife, and one daughter, are left to mourn his demise.

The funeral will take place on Tuesday afternoon to Young's Point Cemetery.

Wm. Fitzgerald

A well-known resident of Indian River passed away on Sundy in the person of Wm. Fitzgerald. The deceased was in his 57th year.

He leaves to mourn his loss a sorrowing wife and family and five brothers, who are Thomas, of Douro, Michael, John, Edward and Patrick, of Otonabee. The funeral will take place to-morrow morning to St. Joseph's church, and thence to St. Joseph's cemetery.

The Late James Harrington

The funeral will be held from the family residence to-morrow morning to St. Martin's church and St. Martin's cemetery, Ennismore.

FELL ASLEEP BESIDE TRACK

G.T.R. Brakeman Met With Mishap in Unusal Way

Stanley Johnson, a young G.T.R. brakeman, met with a serious accident near the Poplars, between Peterborough and Port Hope, on Saturday morning. He was removed to the Nicholls Hospital, where he is reported to be doing nicely.

It seems that two double header freight trains were coming in from Port Hope. The injured man was working on the first one. Owing to the slow time, they were making Johnson was sent back to signal the following train in order to guard against collision. The other train being farther back than was imagined, Johnson, who was tired, sat down by the side of the track and he went to sleep. The noise of the oncoming freight train aroused him and he threw his arm up as the engine approached and as a result a finger on his hand was severed. He was also also badly bruised about the head.

If you desire to obtain a beautiful lustre on cut glass, try washing it in two quarts of fairly hot water to which one tablespoonful of turpentine has been added, and you will find the results very satisfactory.

LOCAL GREEKS SEND MONEY FOR WIDOWS

Of Greek Soldiers Massacred by the Bulgarians

That some of the local Greeks, though separated by thousand of miles from their mother country, have a warm spot in their hearts for their fellow countrymen, was amply proved to-day.

When they read of the massacres that have tacken place in all cities that have taken place in all cities ious the Staff of the Boston Cafe, Haggis' Candy store, Marathon Candy Works and Mr. F. Smith, proprietor of Smith's Shoe store and Mr. Frederick have subscribed three hundred and fifty dollars, which was sent to Queen Sofia of Greece to be used in the aid of supporting the widows and orphans of the men whom the Bulgarians has massacred.

This is by no means the first sum of money sent across to Greece since the war began.

MRS. PANKHURST TAKEN AFTER FIERCE STRUGGLE

Suffragette Leader, Who Cleverly Evaded the London Police on Sunday, Appears at Mass Meeting—When Police Seize Her a Bitter Fight Rages.

LONDON, July 22.—The police captured the real Mrs. Pankhurst yesterday afternoon, who was safely lodged in Holloway Jail after a series of exciting incidents. As rumored, Mrs. Pankhurst had planned another dramatic appearance at the Pavilion Theatre at the weekly suffragette meeting. Eleven militants were arrested in the Pavilion early in the day, and later the detectives kept vigil without expecting her to appear. The hope of sensational developments drew large crowds from the surrounding thoroughfares. The police had the greatest difficulty securing a passage for traffic. The hall itself was packed with militants, who before the opening of the meeting sat with ill-concealed impatience until the expected storm broke.

When Mrs. Pankhurst left an adjoining room and proceeded along the side of the balcony towards the platform she was immediately recognized, and a long storm of cheering broke out. The police inspector and a dozen policemen followed close behind Mrs. Pankhurst. They overtook her, and requested her to go with them. Immediately there was a scene of wildest confusion. The audience rose shrieking, booing and yelling. The men shook formidable sticks and the women made a rush at the police amid shouts of "Rescue." Women in all parts of the theatre appealed to Mrs. Mansell, who was in the chair, in an endeavor to prevent the arrest.

MRS. EMMELINE PANKHURST.

"Why do you not rescue Mrs. Pankhurst?" a female voice screamed. "Mrs. Pankhurst came here only to challenge the authorities. She has come to say, 'Take me back to prison if you dare.' Her policy is not to escape, but to continue fighting," was the answer.

The police inspector and his colleagues were struck again and again by the women, who kicked and struggled. One report says that the inspector had a narrow escape, being throttled and thrown to the ground. A detective had to use a heavy stick before the police could tear the women's hands from his throat. Battles with the police were also raging in the entrance to the hall, but finally the police were victorious, and bore Mrs. Pankhurst away, together with six others, including Major Fisher and Mrs. Marshall, wife of the solicitor to the Women's Social and Political Union. The latter was charged with assaulting the police, the others with obstructing.

Mrs. Pankhurst, when arrested, resolutely refused to walk. She was carried to a taxicab by the police and driven to Holloway. There was an exciting pursuit of the police taxicab by a taxi containing suffragettes. Whenever the former was checked, the inspector thrust his head through the window. The route was immediately cleared. The police taxi entered Holloway in almost record time, just at the moment the suffragettes' taxi reach the gates. Mrs. Pankhurst refused to leave the vehicle and was carried bodily into the prison.

Sylvia Gets Away.

LONDON, July 22.—Sylvia Pankhurst, whose license expired Sunday, dramatically defied the police by appearing at the Bromley Town Hall last night, where she was arrested a fortnight ago. She and other suffragettes made inflammatory speeches and left the hall accompanied by a protecting bodyguard. There was a violent collision with the police, but Miss Pankhurst got away in safety.

BLIND FOR FIFTY YEARS

Michigan Woman Recovers Her Vision at Age of Sixty-six.

CHICAGO, July 22.—Mrs. Mary J. Welsh, the Michigan woman, whose sight was restored last week by an operation after years of darkness, yesterday had a day of varying emotions at her home near Hillsdale, Mich. Now a feeble woman of 66, she was 16 when she last gazed on the faces of friends and relatives. Though she married at 22, she never saw her husband. He has been dead for a number of years.

Almost all the friends she knew in her girlhood are dead or have moved away. Even the landscape had changed. She could recall little. The road and a hill appeared familiar. Her own home had received alterations which she familiarly knew by the touch and step, yet when the home dawned on her vision it amazed her.

There are four of her six living children now grown men and women in the neighborhood. Two live in other states and two lie in graves beside her husband. She was overwhelmed with emotion at the sight of her family. She knew the faces by sensitive fingers, but had never seen them until yesterday.

MEN DROWNED

Big Slice of Land Slides Into Lake Carrying Three With It.

NORTH BAY, Ont., July 22.—A peculiar accident occurred Sunday night near Biscotasing Station on the C.P.R., 170 miles west of North Bay, which cost the lives of two men and delayed traffic for twelve hours. Three Italian sectionmen were sitting on the bank of a lake beside a bridge which spanned an arm of the lake about 11 o'clock for a chat before retiring to the boarding car bunks. Without warning a large section of the bank slid out into the lake, carrying the three men with it. Two were drowned. The other managed to escape. A part of the bridge was also carried away by the slide, and all the trains were held up for twelve hours. The bodies have not been recovered, being buried at the bottom of the lake under the mass of earth and wreckage from the bridge.

AUTO FATILITIES

Three Deaths Are Reported as Result of Accident.

QUEBEC, July 22.—As a result of an automobile accident, which occurred at Ste. Rose, County of Temiscouata, on Sunday night, George Gaudreau, chauffeur, and A. Proteau, caretaker of a farm at Ste. Rose, are dead.

The auto with four passengers was ascending a steep and rough hill, which is unprotected on either side. When near the top, Legaree and Drolet noticed that the chauffeur made a dangerous turn of the steering wheel, and, becoming aware of danger, jumped from the car to the road. They had hardly done so, when they saw the car capsize and roll down the embankment, pinning the chauffeur and farmer underneath.

Auto Hits Truck; One Dead.

TORONTO, July 22.—George D'Alesandro, of 33 Agnes street, 28 years of age, son of Donato D'Alesandro, inspector of immigration for the Dominion at the Union Station, is dead as the result of an accident that occurred at 3.45 o'clock yesterday morning, when an automobile, carrying five men home from the Italian National Club, crashed into a truck, loaded with twelve tons of steel girders.

ELOPED IN AN AEROPLANE

French Governess Says She Enjoyed It and Was Acquitted.

PARIS, July 22.—An elopement by aeroplane, which has yet some of the features of an old-time elopement, is reported from Nirot, in the department of Deux Sevres. Two months ago a good-looking young airman was giving an exhibition of flights at Nirot, when a prepossessing governess fell in love with him and begged him to take her up in the aeroplane. A few days later the airman eloped with her in his machine. They did not descend until they reached Issy, 250 miles away. The girl's father has now lodged a complaint against the airman, whom he accuses of abducting his daughter and detaining her against her will. The governess, when she appeared before the police commissary, said she eloped with the airman of her own free will, and declared she would be eternally grateful to him for flying away with her. She added that she was of age and was free to do as she pleased. The father's complaint was dismissed.

TARIFF BILL ATTACKED

Underwood Proposals Are Assailed by Senators.

WASHINGTON, July 22.—Republican Senators continued to bombard the Underwood-Simmons tariff bill yesterday, Senator Burton of Ohio expressing the assurance that it would fail in its purpose to lower the cost of living, and Senator Smoot of Utah, in an address, to be continued to-day, branding it as "the most injurious tariff measure ever taken up for consideration by Congress."

"This bill," said Senator Smoot, "is a partisan and sectional measure, the outcome of secret caucus methods such as never ruled before in the Senate of the United States. In his book, 'Our New Freedom,' President Wilson says there is no excuse for caucusing in Congress, and in a speech in Indiana preceding his election he emphasized that point by Congressional proceedings. Yet not in the history of Congress has there been anything equal to that record in the way of dark methods in the preparation of a tariff bill.

"Gov. Foss of Massachusetts, who has been three times elected to his present office by the Democratic party and who was supported as a candidate for President at the last Democratic national convention, denounces this bill as a sacrifice of the interests of the nation. He has purchased a site in Canada for his large manufacturing establishment in Massachusetts and says he will remove his business there if this bill become law. Mr. William R. Hearst, a prominent Democrat, mentioned as a candidate for President, agrees with Gov. Foss. We all know what Democrats of Louisiana, Colorado, Montana and other states vitally interested think of this measure. A former Democratic United States Senator from Colorado has denounced it in vigorous terms. How could he do otherwise when it sacrifices practically every important industry of that state and also of every other Rock Mountain state, as well as other states, excepting possibly some of the south.

"Manufacturing is developing all over the south, crops are more diversified and there is every reason to believe that if left alone under the protective tariff its prosperity will continue to increase with great strides. But this bill will hurt instead of helping the south, as its originators seem to think will be the case."

Analyzing the bill from end to end, Senator Smoot declared that "of the many monstrous provisions of this tariff law, perhaps the worst is the one designed to annihilate the production of sugar in this country."

Lightning Struck Barn.

BRANTFORD, July 22.—The frame barn of Andrew Muir, Elgin street, was completely destroyed by fire, resulting from the lightning here on Sunday. One horse was killed outright and the owner and a friend were rendered unconscious by the bolt. Other friends in the barn at the time escaped unhurt and dragged Mr. Muir from the building.

Orillia Carries Bylaw.

ORILLIA, July 22.—A bylaw to authorize a loan of $25,000 to the C.N.W. Shoe Co., was carried yesterday by a majority of 350, the vote being 527 to 177. The company will begin to build at once, and will be ready for business by October 1.

LATEST NEWS PARAGRAPHED

The ratepayers of Ayr, Princeton, Drumbo and Plattsville carried Hydro-electric bylaws by large majorities yesterday.

Rev. Dr. Bates Penman, lecturer at Knox College in Toronto, died in South America, according to news received yesterday.

The wet canteen at Fort McNab, N.S., has been ordered closed on account of the presence of a militia training camp there.

Owing to a pipe connecting a large gas tank and city main becoming blocked there was a gas famine on wash day yesterday in Berlin.

Pulled through a three-inch space, Jackin Nowick, an employe of the paper company at Sault Ste. Marie, met a terrible death last night.

The steamer Halifax, of the Plant Line, with 112 passengers on board, grounded on George's Island, Halifax harbor, N.S., yesterday and was stuck for nine hours.

John Waldron, the well-known bandmaster of the 10th Royal Grenadiers of Toronto, has been promoted to the rank of lieutenant by the Militia Department.

Mrs. Phoebe F. Baker, 73 years old, of Oakland, Cal., has obtained an interlocutory decree of divorce from her husband, Mr. S. Baker, also 72, on the ground of cruelty.

The funeral of the late Henry W. Peterson of Guelph, for many years crown attorney of Wellington County, and a well-known member of the legal fraternity, took place yesterday.

The steamer Ionic of the Northern Navigation Co., formerly the steamer Cuba, went hard aground on the banks of Swan Island, opposite Marine City, on the St. Clair River, yesterday.

PRIME MINISTER ASQUITH FORSEES SPEEDY TRUCE

WAR CANNOT LAST LONG

He Warns Turkey That Her Resumption of Hostilities in Defiance of Treaty of London Will be Remembered Against Her Later On.

BIRMINGHAM, July 22.—The Prime Minister characterized the spectacle presented by the Balkan states as "disheartening and repellent" in a speech at the Chamber of Commerce century banquet here last night. On the one hand, he said, were the Balkan states drenching with one another's blood the territory their united efforts had freed from Turkish rule; on the other hand, Turkey, disregarding the Treaty of London, on which the ink was scarcely dry, and taking advantage of the differences between her late enemies to recover her lost territory.

The powers, continued Mr. Asquith, were doing everything possible to bring the disputants to a peaceful conference. To-day it seemed likely that such a conference would take place.

"We believe," he added, "that it must result in the immediate suspension of arms and a speedy settlement, upon the terms of which with a view to what has happened, the great powers must and will preserve their own judgment."

PREMIER ASQUITH.

The Prime Minister warned Turkey that if she were ill-advised enough to set the provisions of the Treaty of London at defiance she must be prepared for the introduction of questions which it would be by no means to her interest to bring into the debate.

Squads of police defeated the efforts of suffragettes to mob Premier Asquith by clearing the streets in the neighborhood of the banquet hall before he entered. Hostile crowds chased the suffragettes wherever seen, forcing them to take refuge in shops and offices. The women, however, succeeded in smashing several windows of the hotel where Mr. Asquith is staying. Six of them were arrested.

Albanians May Be Wiped Out.

NEW YORK, July 22.—A private message received by the Rev. Dr. Henry Otis Dwight, secretary of the American Bible Society, from an American missionary now making his way from Scutari into the devastated regions of Albania, says that the Servians are engaged in what is there believed to be an attempt to exterminate the population of several of the Albanian districts.

Guards from the Servian army, the message says, are patrolling territory definitely assigned to Albania at a distance of as much as 25 miles from the boundary, to prevent anyone getting out of or going to the region. Thousands of refugees are in the mountains without shelter or food, expatriated and starving, feeding on roots, grass, bark and twigs.

"I found near Leah," said the missionary, "and all the way from Scutari, a great many villages burned and few fields planted. The country has been ravaged by the Servians, by the Montenegrins and by the Turkish army under Essad Pasha, who thus punished the inhabitants for refusing to help him save Turkey. At Kroya we heard of four women and 48 men who had been wantonly hanged, shot or cut to pieces with swords by the Servians."

BULGARIA HAS HAD ENOUGH

Bulgars Done With War and Are Now Seeking Peace.

LONDON, July 22.—Any idea that the Bulgarian army is preparing for a counter-stroke is now quite abandoned. It has become known that in his anxiety to bring about peace, King Ferdinand appealed to the German Emperor regarding Roumania's action. The nature of the Emperor's reply has not been disclosed.

A semi-official despatch from Sofia says that even should the Roumanians invade the capital, no resistance will be offered.

The actual occupation of Adrianople has not yet been confirmed. The advance of the Turks on Adrianople has been accompanied by considerable skirmishing. The Turks are believed to be proceeding in three columns, one from Buljar, by way of Uzunkopri, which has been occupied, and two from Tchatalja, by way of Babenski and Kilisseh, both of which places are also reported occupied.

The Bucharest correspondent of the Daily Telegraph hears, but it is unable to confirm, that Greece has waived claim on Kavala and Drama, and will content herself with the Saloniki Hinterland, which would facilitate a peace settlement. He also says that a junction has been established between the Roumanian right wing and the Servians, who crossed the mountains on the frontier in four columns.

Bulgaria Easily Satisfied.

LONDON, July 22.—Besides accepting the Turtukai-Baltchik line, Bulgaria has consented to the Roumanian troops remaining in Bulgaria, according to a Bucharest despatch to The Daily Mail, until Bulgaria has concluded peace with all her enemies.

CANADIANS LAGGING.

They Failed To Get High Places In Alexandra Match.

BISLEY, July 22.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—The best scores in the Alexandra match at 200 and 600 yards, seven rounds at each distance, were as follows: Pte. Rowlands, 6th Staffordshire, 70; Pte. Denny, London Rifles, Pte. Watson, of Harborne; Sergt. Lawrence, Argyll and Sutherland; Sergt. Burr and Corpl. Marriott of London, each 69. ## PRIEST DIES DURING SERMON

Was Stricken With Heart Failure in Pulpit.

QUEBEC, July 22.—While preaching yesterday morning from the pulpit in the chapel of the Franciscan Monastery at Montcalm, Rev. Father Victorin de la Ruelle dropped suddenly and expired almost immediately. Death is attributed to heart failure.

He was but 33 years of age, and had been 13 years with the order. He was born in Belgium.

Wallaceburg Man Drowned.

WALLACEBURG, July 22.—D. J. Downs, a well-known resident of Wallaceburg, fell off a launch Sunday evening in the St. Clair River, near Algenac, Mich., and was drowned. The body was recovered about an hour later and brought to Wallaceburg yesterday morning.

Wedding Dress Her Shroud.

FINDLAY, O., July 22.—Dressed in a homespun dress which she wove more than 75 years ago, Mrs. Frances L. Founds, 93 years old, was buried at Foutty's Landing, W.V. Mrs. Founds was married twice, and she wore this dress on each occasion.

Former Brantford Man Slain.

BRANTFORD, July 22.—Word was received here yesterday of the death of Albert P. Whitehead, a former well-known Brantford man, who was shot and killed by a masked bandit at the Monitou, Colorado Springs. Whitehead was in the rotunda of the Cliff House, a fashionable resort, which had 300 guests, at one o'clock in the morning, when the robber met him, ordering up both hands. He tried to escape through a side door, but was shot down. In the meantime the guests were aroused, but the bandit escaped.

New Filteration Plant.

TORONTO, July 22.—At one o'clock this morning the City Council unanimously decided to spend $1,000,000 for a mechanican filtration plant on Toronto Island. The decision was reached after various alternative plans had been outlined by Works Commissioner Harris, who stated that a mechanical filtration plant to supplement the existing slow sand filtration plant could be constructed and in operation within eighteen months.

Accidentally Killed In West.

BROCKVILLE, July 22.—The body arrived here yesterday of Albert Martin, son of a South Crosby farmer, who accidentally shot himself while destroying gophers on a farm near Saskatoon, Sask., He was 24 years of age.

WESLEYAN CONFERENCE VOTES TO STAND BY REV. JACKSON'S APPOINTMENT

Got the Flashlight.

ST. CATHARINES, Ont., July 22.—When some Toronto yachtsmen failed to return an electric flashlight, borrowed from a St. Catharines camper at Port Dlahousie at midnight Saturday the camper gathered eighteen friends together, who went to the yacht to recover their property. They captured a member of the yachting party ashore and held him hostage in the pavilion until his friends on the craft made good the value of the flashlight.

Stray Dog Saves Town.

IOWA CITY, Ia., July 22.—A stray dog, sheltered for the night by a kindly man, saved the town of Downey from destruction by fire when it awakened its protector, Station Agent Flynn, who found a nearby store and factory ablaze. The two structures were destroyed, but Flynn aroused the town and the citizens, improvising a fire brigade, saved the remainder of the village.

Arrested on Fraud Charges.

BRANTFORD, July 22.—Detective Chapman brought back to the city last evening E. R. Henderson, arrested in Hamilton on two charges of fraud. Henderson is charged with defrauding J. Robinson of $200 and F. C. Jamieson of $50 in June.

NEGRO PRISONERS PERISH

Convict Cage at New Orleans Penitentiary Destroyed

Canadian Press Despatch.

NEW ORLEANS, July 22.—It is reported that a convict cage at the Mississippi prison farm at Oakley, not far from here, was burned early to-day and thirty-five prisoners lost their lives.

NEW ORLEANS, July 22. (Later)—The convicts who perished last night were all negroes. The cage in which they were confined was a two storey barracks of old dry timber. The stairway was burned and the negroes ran frantically about the second storey tearing at the iron window bars and guards and other prison officials and neighboring farmers who attempted to rescue them, were driven back time after time by the heat. The negroes among them being some desperate criminals, all worked in the cotton fields on the state farm, and were housed at night in the cage, which was one of a group of penitentiary buildings. ### Manchester Clergyman Argued That He Was an Unsafe Teacher.

LONDON, July 22.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—The Wesleyan Conference yesterday discussed the problem which has arisen through the controversy over Rev. George Jackson's Fernley lecture. The discussion was confined to the question of the suitability of the appointment of Dr. Jackson to Didsbury College.

Dr. Coley, Manchester, moved that seeing that the publication of the Fernley lecture since the designation of Dr. Jackson to the staff of Didsbury had caused deep, widespread unrest, that this "representative session" respectfully requests the pastoral session to reconsider the designation. He argued that Dr. Jackson was an unsafe teacher.

Mr. Loocock, who seconded the motion, argued that the situation created by Dr Jackson's views was very serious and perilous.

Rev. George Jackson, in a lengthy statement, contended that, so far from the Fernley lecture showing that its author had sought to nullify the doctrine of the church, it was a witness that he still held fast to all that was essential in the faith of Christ and evangelical and Methodist. Quoting from his book, he asked if those were the views of a man who was recreant to the faith of his fathers. Without hesitation, he declared that in the present position of Christian thought, the position taken up in the Fernley lecture, so far from being radical and agnostic, was conservative and moderate.

Eventually Sir John Randall proposed as an amendment that the representative session of the conference having carefully considered the question of designation of the Rev. Mr. Jackson to Didsbury College sees no reason to make any further recommendation to the pastoral session on the subject. This was carried by an overwhelming majority with only seven dissentients.

C.P.R. PLANS INTERURBAN.

Fast Electric Line From Hamilton To Niagara Projected.

ST. CATHARINES, July 22.—The building of a fast electric line from Hamilton through St. Catharines to the Niagara river, by the C.P.R., was proposed by E. N. Todd, division freight agent, to the city council yesterday afternoon.

The city is asked to contribute one half of the cost of a railway bridge across the old canal. As an alternative proposition, the C.P.R. is willing to use a bridge jointly with the Canadian Northern, which also intends to build through St. Catharines. In such a case the C.P.R. would pay one-third of the cost and expect the Canadian Northern and the city to bear similar proportions. The through line would be built through the northern section of St. Catharines, with a spur line to a new station to be erected at the market square.

THE MEXICAN SITUATION

The present trouble in Mexico is merely a recurrance of many other rebellions of the same kind. But these insurrections, while they used to only affect the Mexicans, have, of late years, become a nuisance to other countries, not only to the United States, but also to Great Britain and other European nations that have interests in that part of the world.

Mexico is very rich in minerals of all kinds, and there are big and valuable ranches in the north, many of them owned by Britishers. Consequently Mexico does not live unto itself and cannot be allowed to go on cutting its own throat indefinitely.

The present trouble began with an insurrection against President Diaz. Madero led the rebellion and after gaining the Presidency was shot dead. Following the assassination of Madero, Huerta seized the Presidency.

Things have calmed down somewhat of late, but the country has been unsafe for foreigners, many innocent people having been killed without the slightest provocation.

The upshot is that the United States Government refuses to recognize Huerta as President of Mexico, as it believes that he only came to power by slaying Madero, and was not popularly elected.

The attitude of the States creates a dead-lock in the relations of the two countries. Great Britain, France and Germany are becoming impatient and have threatened to interfere themselves if the United States does not do something to put an end to the anarchy that prevails.

But the States have a Monro doctrine which says that no foreign nation shall set a hostile foot on American soil that the Republic alone will deal with all disputes relating to the American Continent, North or South, Canada excepted, of course.

President Wilson has recalled his Ambassador from Mexico for the purpose, it is said, of consulting with him upon the situation. The result of this consultation will decide peace or war between the States and Mexico.

Meanwhile Great Britain and Germany are waiting, and if President Wilson does not make a move they threaten to step in and make the Mexican behave himself like a civilized being.

CHANTICLEER THE HERETIC

"You cannot stop the dawn by wringing the neck of a crowing cock," is a remark which aptly applies to the heresy hunt in connection with Rev. George Jackson, who recently returned to England.

The Wesleyan Methodist Conference of England is now sitting, and there are some who would fain deprive the heritical rooster, of his head,

But a rooster, no matter how loud or eloquently we may crow, does not create the phenomenon of sun-rise and while he may be useful to early-risers, he is a pest and an annoyance to those who would have a little more folding of the hands in slumber, and dwell a little longer with their dreams.

To the vast majority of people who have followed the trend of modern thought and Biblical investigation, the heresy with which Mr. Jackson is charged is very "old news" and the annoyance of the persistant crowing of this particular rooster is not that he proclaims the dawn but that he keeps on making a fuss about it till late on into the fore-noon, and for this reason he is in danger of being "hung for old news."

Rev. George Jackson is not responsible for the "heresies"; he did not discover the fact that the first books of the Bible were founded chiefly on tradition and legend. And it is doubtful if anyone past the age of puberty ever believed that the accounts of the creation, the flood, or the stories of Abraham, Isaac and Jacob, were a photographic and verbative report of all that was done and said on these occasions.

There are enough extreme people in the Methodist Church in England as in all churches, to make things uncomfortable for Mr. Jackson for his persistance in airing his heresies but it will be a case of extreme meeting.

More good would be done by both parties if they would get down to the fundamentals of New Testament truth and stop raking in the dust-heaps of past controversies.

BASEBALL EVANGELISM

Collier's for July 21st, contains an article on Billy Sunday, the American Baseball Evangelist, which makes interesting and a some points humorous reading.

Billy Sunday was at one time a famous baseball player, but one day while passing a mission room he was attracted by the strains of an old hymn he knew in childhood. He went into the service and this was the beginning of his new life.

He is now as agile a preacher as he was once a wielder of the bat and ball. "Read these paragraphs and imagine them spoken in a tense, husky tone by a man who leans far out over the pulpit, jumps on to the chair and off again, shoots his arms this way and that and sweats great drops in the awful earnestness of his delivery;

"This revival means work for all of you. Don't you think you are going to have an easy time of it. No, sir. Think of the mountains of guilt in your city that wont move for a little. Someone has got to sweat on this job.

"God don't send angels to Columbus to ring your doorbells, preach and sing in your choirs. No, Sir! God said; 'Bill, you go down and pull off that little stunt for me.'"

"Some men are so stingy that they can't give a dime to the church without singing 'God be with you till we meet again.'"

"Some of you are so low down degraded and sunken that if you ever go to hell you'll have to take a balloon."

Billy Sunday is still a straight pitcher and a hard hitter, although he has long ago left the profession. Some people in Canada would object to these baseball methods of preaching. But they need it in the States.

DRAKE'S DRUM

Drake he was a Devon man, an' ruled the Devon seas,
(Capten, art tha sleepin' there below?)
Rovin' tho' his death fell, he went wi' heart at ease
An' dreamin' arl the time o' Plymouth Hoe.
'Take my drum to England, hang et by the shore,
Strike et when your powder's runnin' low;
If the Dons sight Devon, I'll quit the port o' Heaven,
An' drum them up the Channel as we drummed them long ago.'

Drake he's in his hammock an' a thousand miles away,
(Capten, art tha sleepin' there below?)
Slung atween the round shot in Nombre Dios Bay,
An' dreamin' arl the time o' Plymouth Hoe.
Yarnder lumes the island, yarnder lie the ships,
Wi' sailor lads a-dancin' heel-an'-toe,
An' the shore light flashin', and the night-tide dashin',
He sees et arl so plainly as he saw et long ago.

Drake lies in his hammock till the great Armadas come,
(Capten, art tha sleepin' there below?)
Slung atween the round shot, listenin' for the drum,
An' dreamin' arl the time o' Plymouth Hoe,
Call him on the deep sea, call him up the Sound,
Call him when ye sail to meet the foe,
Where the old trade's plyin' an' the the old flag flyin',
They shall find him ware an' wakin', as they found him long ago.

—Henry Newbolt, "Admirals All."

THE MARKET

Latest Quotation in Grain, Dairy Products Live Stock, Etc

CHICAGO, July 21.—Renewed fear of black rust damage had a bullish effect today on wheat. Closing prices were firm at a net advance of ⅛c to ⅜c. Corn gained 1c to 1¼c for the day and oats ⅛c to ⅜c. In provisions the outcome varied from unchanged prices to an upturn of 72½c.

The Liverpool market closed ⅛d to ⅜d higher on wheat and ⅜d higher on corn.

CATTLE MARKETS

MONTREAL LIVE STOCK.

MONTREAL, July 21.—Business was fairly brisk on the cattle market, but owing to the increased supply of cattle, there being 1200 for sale, a large percentage of which was common stock, a weaker feeling developed in the market this morning and prices, as compared with a week ago show a decline of 12c to 25c per 100 pounds. The weather was warm, which tended to check the demand from butchers, but the packers and abattoir companies operated freely and good to choice stock sold at the reduction noted, but common cattle were rather quiet. Sales of full loads of choice steers were made at $7 to $7.10; and picked lots sold as high as $7.25; Full loads of good cattle brought $6.50, and medium $5.75 to $6.25 per 100 pounds.

A feature of the small meat trade was the firmer feeling in the market for lambs on account of increased demand. Supplies amounted to 1500 sheep and lambs, sales being made as high as $7.50 per 100 pounds. Demand for sheep was good and offerings were ample to fill all requirements at steady prices. The trade in calves was active. A few choice milk fed ones sold at $11 to $12 each, but the bulk of the other were made at from $3 to $8.

Nine hundred head of hogs were on sale today, and prices showed an advance of 25c to 55c per 100 pounds since this day week, which to some extent was in sympathy with the rise of 25c to 40c in the Toronto market at the latter end of last week, but more so to the fact that supplies coming forward are very small. Trade today was active with sales of full lots at $10.75, sows $8.75, and stags at $4 to $5 per 100 pounds weighed off cars.

Butchers' cattle, choice, $7 to $7.25; do., medium, $5.50 to $6.50; do., common, $4.50 to $5.25; canners, $2.75 to $3.25; butchers' cattle, choice cows, $5.50 to $5.75; do., medium, $5 to $5.25; butchers' cattle, bulls, $4 to $5.50; Milkers, choice, each, $75 to $80; do., common and medium, each, $65 to $70; springers, $65 to $80; sheep, ewes, $4.25 to $4.50; bucks and culls, $3.75 to $4; lambs, $6.75 to $7.50; hogs, f.o.b., $10.75; calves, $3 to $12.

EAST BUFFALO LIVE STOCK.

EAST BUFFALO, July 21.—Cattle—Receipts, 3800; active and steady; prime steers, $8.80 to $9; shipping, $8.25 to $8.75; butchers, $7 to $8.65; cows, $3.75 to $7.25; bulls, $5.50 to $7.50; heifers, $6.50 to $8.25; stock heifers, $5.50 to $6.25; stockers and feeders, $6 to $7.50; fresh cows, and springers, $35 to $80.

Veals—Receipts, 1200; active and 50c lower; $6 to $11.50.

Hogs—Receipts, 12,800; active and steady; heavy, $9.30 to $9.85; yorkers and pigs, $9.85 to $9.90; roughs, $8.50 to $8.56; stags, $7 to $8; dairies, $9.50 to $9.85.

Sheep and lambs—Receipts, 4000; active, yearlings, 25c higher; others steady; lambs, $5.50 to $8.50; yearlings, $5 to $8; wethers, $5.65 to $6; ewes, $2.50 to $5.25; sheep, mixed, $5.25 to $5.60.

CHICAGO LIVE STOCK.

CHICAGO, July 21.—Cattle—Receipts 19,000. Market steady. Beeves, $7.30 to $9.10; Texas steers, $7 to $8; stockers and feeders, $5.50 to $7.85; cows and heifers, $3.80 to $8.50; calves, $8.25 to $11.25.

Hogs—Receipts 47,000. Market weak. Light, $9.15 to $9.65. Mixed, $8.85 to $9.65; heavy, $8 65 to $9.35; rough, $8.65 to $8.80; pigs, $7.50 to $9.25; bulk of sales, $9 to $9.40.

BOMB-THROWERS BALKED.

Lisbon Police Engage In Conflict With Dynamiters.

LISBON, July 21.—An organized attempt at bomb throwing in various parts of the city at daybreak yesterday morning, was frustrated by the police, who had been warned and were on the look out. They captured several automobiles, in which they found baskets of bombs, and arrested a large number of persons who had gathered in groups in the streets.

While the police were engaged in operations, shots were fired and several persons were wounded. One bomb, thrown from an automobile, exploded, killing a policeman, and injuring others. A man dressed as a sailor and carrying a bomb, was arrested while attempting to enter the barracks.

Many of those taken into custody are said to belong to the advanced radical party.

Made Escape From Police.

BROCKVILLE, July 21.—W. Hunter who had been committed for trial in the police court with another man named Hawkins, on a charge of stealing fish from the Albion Hotel, bolted from headquarters while the constable was placing his pal in the cells, and made a clean getaway. Notwithstanding a lively chase, the prisoner outfooted his pursuer and was soon lost to view on the back streets.

Hunter was under suspended sentence in the county judge's criminal court on a charge of fraudulently obtaining money from a local bank.

Fire Bug at Legislature.

WINNIPEG, July 21.—A futile attempt was made Saturday evening by a man whose description the police have been given, to set fire to Parliament Building, on Kennedy street, by lighting a pile of papers in the furnace room wood pile.

Watchman Heverson, in making his rounds, discovered the fire, and sent in an alarm. Before the brigades arrived, however, the fire had burned itself out. This was the second mysterious fire Saturday night, and there have been several others of late. The police are investigating.

The Best Detective Story of the Last Ten Years

"My dear! At this hour?" came in Dorothy's child treble.

Mrs. Missioner smiled in a way that said there were jewelers of no importance in commercial circles who would be glad to answer a summons from her at any hour—that it was not in vain she was known to dealers as one of the most liberal collectors in the world. She turned to a rosewood desk and took up a telephone.

"Gramercy, 9-7-4-6," she called. "The Effingham?—Mr. Ranscome, please. —This is Mrs. Missioner, Mr. Ranscome. Yes, I am at home.—Can you come up for a few minuets?—Thank you," and as she returned the receiver to the hook, she explained: "Ranscome is the oldest expert in New York."

"While we are about it," said Sands slowly, "we may as well call headquarters." He reached for the telephone, but his hand was stayed by Dorothy's fluttering fingers.

"Oh, Mr. Bruxton," she said, "please don't call the police," and as his eyebrows went up, she added, "I am so frightened."

"I wouldn't be hasty, Sands," said Griswold. "The newspapers follow the sleuths, you know."

The millionaire hesitated.

"Have you thought of anything better to do?" he returned. Then, as the widow's silence made itself felt, he turned to her. "Your pardon, Doris. Perhaps your own wishes are—but it seems such a natural thing to do."

"I'm not thinking of the newspapers," replied Mrs. Missioner, "but maybe we'd better wait for Mr. Ranscome. You see," and there was perplexity in the glance that swept the group, "this is no ordinary theft."

"Not a burglary, you think?" asked Griswold quickly. He had lighted his cigarette, and, leaning back in a cozy corner of the inglenook, was smoking with little abrupt puffs that contrasted with the ease of his position. He studied the widow covertly through weaving wreaths.

"If a burglar could reach this room, I must reorganize my household," she murmured. She was gazing into the flames. Her shoulders drooped, and Sands, noticing her weariness, switched off the lights. The rainbow sparkle of the jewel trays varied fantastically the pattern of the rug on which they lay, but the background of dusk rested her.

"And there is no one you suspect?"

"There is no one in the house I can suspect."

"You are to be congratulated," Griswold commented, with a smile discreetly divided between sincerity and satire. "And, of course, having such an impeccable household——"

"If I were you, Doris," Sands broke in impatiently, "I'd send for the police at once." His slow logic had carried him to the fact that even now the thief might be on the road to escape. Little Miss March glanced at him admiringly. Swift or slow of wit, the man of action appeals.

"I think Mr. Sands is right, Mrs. Missioner," she said softly. "It frightened me at first, but Bruxton knows."

"Advise me," said the widow, her satin slipper tap-tap-tapping the fender of burnished brass. "I am not jesting when I say I am in the hands of my friends. All this is more than puzzling."

"Puzzling!" echoed Dorothy. "It's a mystery—and it's all very dreadful, too." Sands looked at her, smiling. There was eloquence in those rare smiles of his, much more than in his speech. Not without cause did Wall Street know him as "Silent" Sands.

"Why not a private detective?" Griswold suggested. "It is the best way to recover stolen property."

"Not always," Sands objected.

"Almost always," Griswold pursued. "The police usually are useless in a case like this." Turning to Mrs. Missioner, he continued, "I can recommend an excellent agency."

"Mr. Ranscome, madam."

A footman of conventional pattern stood on the threshold as if on a pedestal and looked at Mrs. Missioner from a carven face.

"Let him come up, Blodgett," she responded. The carven features blurred into the background. A round little man with the face of a dreamer and the eyes of a student entered almost on his toes. Mrs. Missioner greeted him pleasantly, and as she pressed the button that filled the room with light again, she presented him to her friends. "Mr. Ranscome," she added, "is an expert of experts."

Briefly the widow recounted the accident in the opera box, the discovery of the supposed Maharanee diamond's worthlessness, and her suspicion as to the other stones of her necklace. During her recital, Ranscome's glance caressed the gems in the scattered tray, and it was by a visible effort that he wrested his eyes from them to look at the stones on the table.

"Are they real?" asked the widow.

The little man seemed not to hear her.

"Did you say, madam, the Maharanee diamond?"

"Yes," she answered, and waves of pain rippled across her face. "Oh, Mr. Ranscome, think of it—think of it!" she clasped her hands so tensely the rings upon them bit her flesh. "Think of it, Mr. Ranscome!"

"The Maharanee!" he murmured—say, rather, groaned in an undertone. "A glorious jewel, a wonderful jewel, a queen's jewel! Gone, did you say? Absolutely gone—not a trace of it?"

With the flat of his hand, he spread the smaller stones on the table, stroking their gloss with sensitive fingers. He held three or four to the light, then, with a disdainful gesture, smeared the glistening pile broadcast across the board.

"None," replied the widow. "And those?"

"These, Mrs. Missioner," said the expert, as if waking from a dream, "are the most beautiful imitations I have ever seen."

Sands reached for the telephone again.

CHAPTER III

A Searching Examination.

When the millionaire stopped talking over the telephone, he turned to the widow with an air of finality.

"I have taken it on myself," he told her, "to inform the Detective Bureau. This is no time for Sherlocking. There'll be a couple of detectives here in half an hour."

Mrs. Missioner looked at him admiringly. But her eyes turned to Griswold with a light it would have taken a women to read, a woman more experienced than little Dorothy March.

Ranscome, ignoring the counterfeits, stood in absorbed study of the jewel trays' kaleidoscopic contents. That peculiar pallor returned to Griswold's hands. With fingers that bent and straightened ceaselessly, he drummed his fist.

"The robbery is the more incomprehensible," said Mrs. Missioner thoughtfully, "because of the extraordinary precautions I have taken against burglars. I cannot understand how the thief got to the necklace."

"Your safe seems strong enough," Ranscome ventured. Stepping around the trays, he passed his hand over the outer door and looked at the twenty-four steel bolts curiously.

"It should be strong," returned Mrs. Missioner. "It was built on the lines of the great safe in the Gramercy National. It differs only in size and in the absence of a time lock."

Ranscome, staring at the safe, shook his head. Sands walked over to him and, thrusting both hands in his pockets, stood gazing at the bolts. Griswold, smoking quietly in the inglenook, mustered a show of interest in the safe from time to time, but always his glance returned to the glittering trays.

"I wish you'd put those away, Doris," said Griswold suddenly. "With all this mystery in the air, I don't like to see them lying around."

Mrs. Missioner lauged.

"Surely they're safe among us," she answered, graciously including Ranscome with an extra smile. She drew off her gloves decisively and, rising as if from folds of conjecture, rang for Blodgett. "I think——" she said, then stopped with her hand on Dorothy's shoulder.

Inquiry reached toward her from four pairs of eyes.

"I think," she went on, "Miss March wants some tea, and—I think we all need something to drink."

It was when Blodgett, tray-laden, was tinkling his way to the library that the detectives arrived. The hostess and her guests, the footman having been bidden to show the policemen in, heard heavy breathing outside the door, where Donnelly and Carson, of the Central Office, were gripped in a panicky pause. Next moment, a large man with a small head, and another so aggressively average as to be a nondescript, came in. Donnelly, the big man, turned out his toes as he walked. A charm the size and shape of a double eagle, bearing a Bacchante whose pose would have been indecorous if it had not been impossible, swung from his equatorial waist line. One could tell at a glance he used perfume. One could tell nothing in many glances about Carson. There was nothing to tell.

"We've come up here, Mrs. Missioner," said Donnelly, addressing Miss March, "to find your dimonds."

"Oh, thank you!" murmured the widow, sweeping toward him. "I am Mrs. Missioner. Won't you be seated?"

"Why—huh!—no, Miss Missioner Mrs. Missioner—no, thanks!" answered the sleuth, with all the airy ease of a highly embarrassed man. "We'll just —huh!—walk around a little, thanks—just walk around!" Carson, neutral echo of his colleague's words, did walk around. Donnelly, as if, having announced the action, he had done his share, stood still.

Dorothy and Griswold exchanged glances. Sands stared stolidly at the sleuths. Mrs. Missioner, with a permissive inclination of her head, began chatting with Ranscome. Even as he spoke with her, the veteran expert could not drag his eyes from the jewels.

"Now, then, Mis' Missioner," said Donnelly briskly. "Who—huh!—do you suspect?" There seemed to be a sort of astigmatism in his breathing. Carson faced the group with an expression that said bluntly he suspected everybody.

"You notice that—huh!—Carson?" said Donnelly, wheeling on his mate. "Nobody suspected—huh!" He breathed in dialect.

Carson instantly complaisant, banished suspicion from his look.

Now, you know, there's always somebody, ma'am—huh!—Mis' Missioner," Donnelly persisted. "Somebody suspected in every case. Think a moment. Have to suspect before you convict, you know. Never heard —huh!—of a case without suspects—eh?"

The "eh" was meant to be a javelin hurled straight at the widow's inner consciousness. It fell short.

"There is no one to be suspected—no one I can suspect," she said.

Carson, the reticent, unbosomed himself.

"Somebody," he said assertively, "did it."

"Oh, well—huh!—ma'am," chuckled Donnelly, "we'll just look around—just look around a little."

And Carson looked.

Feet at right angles, Bacchante dancing desperately as the fob rose and fell, the large man from the Central Office moved toward the safe. Mrs. Missioner shuddered at thought of the peril to her jewels from his plate armor soles. Her imploring eye sweep brought ready response from Sands and Griswold, and in a second fraction they were piling the trays on chairs and tables. Ranscome, helping, handled the morocco cases with loving touch.

Donnelly stopped short at sight of the gems in the trays. An interrogative snort vibrated somewhere inside him, but found no oral expression. He passed on to the safe. With a masterful grasp, he swung the great door to and fro.

"We'll soon know," he said reassuringly, "who to—huh!—yes, who to suspect. Carson!"

The echo crossed the room with whispering tread. Both detectives began an examination of the door. Eyes close to the daintily tinted steel, they dragged their combined gaze along its front from top to bottom, from side to side. Then they shifted their eyes to the thick edge of the door, and their scrutiny bored its way past bolt after bolt until it switched to the inner panel. That done, they examined the rectangle into which the big door fitted as thoroughly. During most of this procedure, the Bacchante stood on her hands and flourished her heels in the air, as Donnelly doubled himself until the equator of his waist line almost touched the poles.

The big man straightened abruptly. Bacchante's heels came down and her hands fluttered aloft. The catch in his voice, characteristic of him when in the presence of the rich, was brushed out of his throat by a burst of professional zeal. He recognized a situation that enabled him to play inquisitor in a home of wealth.

"Where were the jewels stolen from?" he asked.

"I don't know," said Mrs. Missioner. "When did you miss them?"

Again the widow recited the incident of the opera box.

"Who was in the party?"

Mrs. Missioner told him. She did not mention the Oriental in the next box. It did not occur to her.

Donnelly stroked a heavy jaw ponderously.

"I understand your diamonds are worth a pot of money, ma'am," he half inquired.

"They are valuable," said the widow.

"What do you value them at?"

"Half a million dolors."

An appreciative "Huh!" broke from Donnelly. Carson echoed it in his face.

"Isn't there anybody you can think of," pursued the big detective, "who could have taken them?"

"Nobody who would," answered Mrs. Missioner.

"Did anybody else have the combination of the safe?"

Belief In China Is That Republicans Did Not Really Want Premier.

PEKIN, July 21.—The Chinese Government is still despatching troops to subdue the revolutionary movement in the disaffected southern provinces, but has not withdrawn any troops from Mongolia. President Yuan Shi Kai is anxious to proceed south to lead his troops, but his associates have persuaded him to remain in Pekin for fear that he might be assassinated on the way to the scene of hostilities.

It is now generally accepted that Dr. Sun Yat Sen, the former provisional President of the republic, who has taken sides with the southerners and is now in Nanking, and Gen. Huang-Sing, the former generalissimo of the revolutionary army, never intended to support President Yuan Shi Kai permanently, but only to use him to bring the revolution to a successful end.

NO MORE LEASES AT $1 PER YEAR

Last night the Hon. Frank Cochrane, Minister of Railways and Canals received several deputations. The power companies presented their cases to him and he said that there would be no more development of the power scheme without a due recompense from those enjoying the benefit of it.

There would be no more leases at a dollar a year but that the government was taking a fair view of the matter and would do all in his power for the general benefit of the country.

OVER THE CANAL

The minister who is accompanied by his chief engineer and private secretary went north this morning with Mr. Grant and Mr. Burnham to inspect the canal. He will go right through to the entrance at Gerogian Bay.

GARBAGE INCINERATOR MAY BE IN OPERATION HERE BY SEPTEMBER

City Solicitor to Prepare Agreement Between City and Read Incinerator Co.—Will Cost $10,000 and Suggested Site Is on Townsend Street

The Property committee decided last night to request the City Solicitor to prepare an agreement for the purchase of an incinreator plant from the R. H. Read Incinerator Company of Toronto. This agreement will be submitted to Council with a view to closing the deal with the company.

WILL COST $10,000.

As stated before the plant will cost $10,000. The company claims that an exceptionally good offer is made to Peterborough because of the wish of the company to have one of their incinerators giving satisfactory service in a city the size of Peterborough so that they might bring deputations here to show the merits of the incinerator.

20 TONS DAILY.

The plans provide for a 20 ton unit, but provision is made for additions. At the cost of say $1000, the city could add another 10 ton unit. Should these extensions be made by others than the company, the city must pay a royalty of 5 per cent., as the company hold all patent rights.

A FIRST-CLASS SUCCESS

Ald. Gordon, who inspected the Read incinerator at Toronto reported that the assistant City Solicitor told him that it was a first class success. There was no apparent odor.

READY BY SEPTEMBER.

Mr. Read waited upon the committee in company with Mr. Macgregor, said that he wished to have the incinerator in operation so that he might bring deputations, who are coming to Toronto at exhibition time.

"We want to put in a good plant in Peterborough to show what it can do," said Mr. Read.

ON TOWNSEND STREET

The suggested site is on Townsend street.

VIEW OF SIGN IS OBSCURED

Peterboro's Advantages Are Hidden by Weeds

If any fond mother has a modern Moses, whom she wishes to hide, the immediate territory in front of the advertising sign for Peterborough, just north of the C. P. R bridge might be suggested as a most advantageous hiding place.

While there may be no bulrushes as was the case in the days of Pharaoh, there are plenty of weeds, etc., and little Moses would be quite safe, and the Board of Works or the several other committees, have, so far, shown no inclination to harvest the crop.

BIG CROWD EXPECTED ON BOOSTER'S DAY

Boosters' tickets for the ball game on Thursday afternoon, many now be obtained at barber shops, hotel offices and tobacco stores, and it is hoped that the citizens generally will make a big response and that all the tickets will be sold. The price is 50 cents and each holder can take a seat in either grandstand.

A number of prominent citizens subscribed sums from $25 to $200 to retain the Canadian League franchise this spring. They did so willingly and with the expectation that the city would be provided with good baseball, and take its place among other enterprising cities. This has been accomplished.

All the fans are asked to do is purchase a 50 cent ticket for Thursday's game and in this way the funds of the club will be augmented so that everything will be well.

It's not much to ask, and if every fan will do his part, the danger mark will be passed. The ladies, too, can help considerably by giving their attendance at this game.

FIRST GAME OF SEMI-FINALS

Between Nomads and C.G.E. on Friday Evening

The first of the series of two games between the Nomads and C.G.E. teams to decide the semi-finals of the Midland Football League, will be played at Riverside Park Friday evening.

The second game will be called on the following Wednesday and goals will count.

IDYL WYLD BREEZES

(White Bear Fishing Line)

IDYL WYLD, July 22.—Messrs. Chris Graham and Stan Coon, of Peterborough, are two of the most successful anglers who have visited this happy hamlet this season.

Chris says the big fellows come right up on shore after him, and Mr. Coon is completely run down by the strain of the past few days, and has had to resort to the aid of a cane.

Auto Scared Horse.

BELLEVILLE, July 22.—Levi Phillips, a young man of this city, had his right leg broken, Mrs. John Lazarus of Toronto had her right ankle sprained and her body bruised, and others were more or less injured when a team of horses, frightened at a passing auto, backed into a ditch and overturned a three-seated surrey containing four grown-up persons and four children.

The accident occurred on Sunday evening on what is termed the Trent road.

CAUTION!

If people would realize the value of their Eyes they would hesitate before entrusting their care to amateurs, and inexperienced so called Opticians.

The fact that some people have been careless in this regard has been brought to our attention time and again by patients who have come to us wearing glasses that were doing their Eyes more harm than good.

There is no reason why people should suffer with ill-fitted glasses when there is one of the most up-to-date Optical Parlors in Ontario right in this city, conducted by Mr. A. A. Fowler, Eyesight Specialist, whose ten years of successful Optical Work in this city is a sufficient guarantee of honest service.

DIED ON MORNING OF HIS BROTHER'S FUNERAL

The Late Patrick Fitzgerald Was Predeceased by His Brother William of Indian River on Sunday

The death occurred this morning in Otonabee, of Patrick Fitzgerald, aged 57. The deceased was well known and highly respected throughout the community.

The late Mr. Fitzgerald had only been ill a few days and his death was a shock to his many friends.

He leaves to mourn his loss a sorrowing wife and six children, three sons, Joseph, Vincent and Raymond of Otonabee, three daughters, Mary Kathleen and Loretta.

A sad feature of Mr. Fitzgerald's demise is that his brother, William of Indian River, passed away on Sunday morning and was buried this morning.

The funeral will take place on Thursday morning.

TWO FREIGHTS HELD UP BY HORSES ON HIGH BRIDGE

One of Trains Was Stalled Four Hours and Crews Had Big Job

Special to Review.

IN AID OF THE PUBLIC HEALTH

The secretary of the Public Health Committee of the Local Council of Women has prepared short selection from publications, giving suggestions and directions in the direction of a general public observance of sanitary matters. These selections, it it hoped, will be of such interest as to warrant their perusal and adoption.

One of the hopeful signs is the growth of the organization among the people at large. As physicians are engrossed in the study of health and disease, naturally they were first to see the importance of preventive medicine, and, in its development, have pioneers. Along its technical sides they will retain most of this leadership, but as the sociologic aspects come into increasing importance, in increasing measure both the leadership and the work will be undertaken by so-called laymen. That has been the history of the movement in other countries, and it will be in ours. —Public Health Journal.

Garbage must be disposed of, but why our civic authorities should not insist upon the burning up of much of the house waste on the premises either in the furnace or the kitchen stove, is something to be marvelled at. If there were more domestic tidiness in Canadian towns and cities in the way of destruction of many articles of house waste by home cremation, the gross saving to the municipality would be considerable, and the town dump would be less in evidence.—Public Health Journal.

REMANDED ON SERIOUS CHARGE

Belmont Man is Brought Here and Lodged in Jail

Nelson Parcels, of Belmont township was brought to the city yesterday by Constable Wilson of Havelock and lodged in the jail.

Parcels, who was arrested near Havelock, is alleged to have committed an assault on a young girl.

County Magistrate Edmison remanded the accused for a week.

In the meantime Parcels will be confined to jail unless he can furnish sufficient bail for his liberty. The preliminary hearing will be held next Monday morning at the Court House.

Mr. Robert Alexander Brown, who has been rusticating at Chemong Park and the Indian Village for the past several weeks, returned home to-day. "Bob" reports having a good time, and is much improved in health.

Canada's trade with the United Kingdom doubled in 15 years.

MORE and more filmy have grown dress tops, those for the daytime as well as those for evening wear. As a finishing touch to their daytime transparency they are often actually décolleté as well. But quite outside of the diaphanous quality of the robe there is another fashionable detail that marks this season's styles—the undulating or the slashed foot line of the gown, which, revealing the ankles in even the most demure models, shows much more of the silken stockings in the more elaborate and daring gowns. This fashion has influenced immensely both the styles in shoes and stockings, and it might also be said the feet themselves, for every one, conscious of the necessity of having the foot look as dainty as possible, has taken pains to select those shapes of shoes and slippers that will make them appear as small as possible. Consequently, at least for the style of dresses where such footwear is necessary, the heavy, sensible looking foot is never seen.

Dressmaking to-day is so largely a matter of taste in handling and draping materials that elegant gowns this season seem to have a perfect touch because of the departure from the conventional dressmaking rules. Materials are so wide now that making a dress or skirt from one breadth of material is quite possible, including the draping.

Two views of an elaborate evening gown made of a wonderful piece of apricot and silver brocade are pictured here. The skirt, slashed its entire length, is crossed and caught up into horizontal folds of drapery, making an uneven lower edge and exposing the ankles constantly to view. It is fulled into a waist line under a blue satin girdle that, drawn into folds about the waist, is raised in front and dips downward behind. A filmy corsage top of Milan lace, lined in parts with V shaped pieces of charmeuse, resolves itself into large pointed sleeves, edged with a sparkling strand of crystal, the points weighted by a matching tassel. A buckle studded with brilliant crystal fastens the belt at one side. At the back a large butterfly bow of blue tulle, covering transparently the whole back of the gown, is caught by another crystal slide.

An elaborate négligé worn in a French play and reproduced in photograph here is of lovely old rose and cream brocade, the cream velvet design brocaded on an old rose satin ground. This is combined with plain old rose satin, the brocade forming a slender kimono that is placed over the satin foundation, which shows beyond on the fronts and sleeves, the latter deeply flounced with Alençon lace, used also in soft folds in the décolleté.

BISHOP SLEEVE RETURNS.

There seems to be quite a revival in bishop sleeves, though the top puff so far is not full enough to call much attention to the fashion. In one of the beautiful gowns seen last week at a display of autumn dress the sleeve was of the old fashioned bishop shape, with a tight fitting cuff to the elbow and full puff from there to the shoulder. It made a pleasant change, and the puff was not too full to be aggressive or to break in any way the slim silhouette of modern dress.

In neckwear a noticeable feature is the black tulle ruffle made for wear with white gowns. The ruffle is really a fixture, and it is shaped like a Robespierre collar, the ends being fastened with plain tulle gathered in with jet. The black ruffle makes a pretty addition to the white gown, and it looks remarkably well on dresses of other hues, such as maize, green, certain shades of brown, blue and pink, particularly old rose.

PETES BATTED FOR BIG LEAD LILL AND KUBAT TWIRLING

Heavy Hitting Gave Rowanites Five Runs in the First --- The Final Count 9-2

Eighteen singles distributed to all parts of the territory was the performance of the on-rushing locals and they performed smartly in the field.

The showing of the Rowanites during the past few days has been very fine. They took two from Hamilton, two from St. Thomas and two from Brantford, while on the road, which is some going as Ken Tracey is wont to remark.

Lill started to heave for the Senators, but he wouldn't do. While the visiting slabmen were placed in a bad fix through the wobbles of Bullock at third, the Petes were hitting cleanly and as subsequent proceedings went to show, it was a bad day for the Parliament city pitchers. Frank Kubat, who replaced Lill in the first, with but one goal fared badly against the Electric sluggers and an easy victory was the result. Ken Tracey found the journey rather easy throughout and he deserved the splendid support his team mates gave him.

Dave Hilliard took care of six flies and contributed a perfect throw to the plate, by which McNeal got Fox for an easy out. Rogers in left for the visitors had a one-handed catch that looked nice and Casey Dolan was also on deck, working "his head off" in an effort to stop the Petes.

FIRST INNINGS.

Ottawa—Bullock flew to Swartz, Crowder went out to Hilliard and Swartz got Shag's fly.

Petes—Brant walked and Rowan was safe on Bullock's fumble. Lill fielded Trout's hit and got Brant going into third. Hilliard hit into left, scoring Rowan. Swartz was safe when Bullock failed to cover the bag, when Lill fielded the ball, and McNeal's single through short scored both Trout and Hilliard. Chapdelaine with Kubat pitching, hit into right, scoring Swartz and McNeal. Thompson and Tracey flew out. Five runs.

SECOND INNINGS

Again the Senators were retired in one, two, three style.

For the Petes, Brant hit into centre and Shag. injured his ankle chasing the ball. Rowan was safe on Fox's bad throw, the latter having replaced Bullock. A sacrifice fly by Trout scored Brant. Hilliard fanned but Swartz lined one over second, scoring Rowan. McNeal hit to left; Chap. was safe when Fox dropped his easy fly, but Thompson ended with a fly to Casey Dolan, a nice catch. Two runs.

THIRD INNINGS.

Lage doubled to right, Powers and Kubat fanned and Fox's double to right scored Lage. Fox was caught at the plate on a great peg from Hilliard after Crowder's hit into centre. One run.

Tracey flew out, Brant and Rowan singled. Trout skied to Shag. and Hilliard grounded.

FOURTH INNINGS.

Shag. fanned; Rogers grounded, but Dolan and Robertson biffed to Brant for singles. Lage fanned.

Swartz, McNeal and Chapdelaine went out on flies.

FIFTH INNINGS.

Trout threw out Powers but Kubat hit over centre for three bags. He scored on Fox's out at first. Crowder singled to right, but Shag. flew out to Hilliard. One run.

Thompson hit through second, and took second on Tracey's out at first. Brant drove in Thompson with a long single to left and Rowan hit Brant home with a single to right. Trout singled to left, but he and Rowan were caught between the bags after Shag's throw in on Hilliard's hit. Two runs.

JOE WOOD AT THE BAT.

SIXTH INNINGS.

SEVENTH INNINGS.

Ottawa's best was two men on bags.

Thompson grounded and Tracey fanned. Brant made his fourth hit and stole second. He took third on a passed ball. Rowan walked and Casey Dolan went over to the box and took Trout's high fly.

EIGHTH INNINGS.

Rowan beat out Shag. to the bag, on the grounder, and Thompson threw out Rogers. Dolan flew to Hilliard.

Hilliard fanned, Swartz flew to Robertson and McNeal who singled, stole second. Chapdelaine walked and Thompson bounced a hit at Robertson. Tracey fouled to the catcher.

NINTH INNINGS.

SPORTING GOSSIP

The Berlin club has signed William Acheson, second baseman of the Cobalt-Temiskaming League team.

London, at the request of President Fitzgerald, has released two players in order that the salary limit may be observed. Now the Cockneys are calling St. Thomas "squealers."

If a young man tells a girl she's all the world to him, she thinks he is justified in trying to get the earth.

Canada has the largest wheat field in the world, 900 by 300 miles.

NEW TWIRLER FOR SENATORS

Joe Lill Slated for Release by Shaughnessy

Shag intends to start out either Joe Lill or Frank Kubat at Peterborough to-day. He announced last night that the club accepted terms from Kane, the Youngstown twirler, and that he would join the team at Peterborough. This means that one of the pitchers will be let go. Joe Lill is the most likely to be released. He will get his last chance at Peterborough, and if he fails to deliver, will be cut off the pay roll and turned loose.—Ottawa Journal.

MEETING OF THE MERCANTILERS

An important meeting of the Mercantile League is called for to-night at 8 o'clock in the Y.M.C.A. Several back games will have to be arranged for and all matters pertaining to the League will be discussed. A big turnout is expected.

League Standing

The following is the standing of the Mercantile League and the reason for some teams playing more games is that the Quakers and Canoe Builders' game was postponed. The Machine Shop and Quakers played a tie, and the Machine Shop have yet to play the Bankers, as the first game was ordered to be replayed.

LITTLE GIRL WAS FATALLY BURNED

Started Bon Fire in Back Garden and Her Clothing Caught Fire --- Victim Lived Only a Few Hours

A very sad fatality occurred yesterday evening, when little Mary Ngeante, the seven year old daughter of Mr. George Ngeante, better known as George Keyes, who resides on Lansdowne street, was fatally burned.

The little girl, in company with little Willie Winch, was in the garden gathering some weeds and grass to burn. Her mother was in the house at the time, and did not know anything of the fire till she heard child was lighting the bonfire, the flames caught on her dress.

She was terribly burned about the legs and body and when Dr. Galliva was summoned, he saw immediately that the chances of surviving were slight. She was hurried to St. Joseph's Hospital where she died at about nine o'clock.

The funeral took place this afternoon from the residence of her father to St. Peter's cemetery.

It was stated last night that the children had been left alone in the house by the mother and the accident happened when the child played with matches.

GENERAL HAMILTON LAID CORNER STONE OF ARMORIES

Major-General Sir Ian Hamilton is in Lindsay to-day where he laid the corner stone of the new armories under construction by Mr. James Bogue, of this city.

On his arrival in Peterborough yesterday afternoon, General Hamilton and Col. the Hon. Sam Hughes, were met at the C.P.R. station by Col. Clegg and officers of the regiment, Mr. J. H. Burnham, M. P., Mayor Bradburn and others. The 57th Band was also present.

General Hamilton expressed his pleasure at the reception which was, he said, quite a surprise.

The party motored to the armories, which General Hamilton inspected and afterwards a short motor trip about the city was taken.

General Hamilton sails from Quebec for England on Thursday of this week and before he leaves Canada, it is expected that he will have ready his report on the inspection of Canadian troops.

INVESTIGATION INTO CASE; YOUNG GIRL WAS HANDCUFFED

Unnecessary to Use Handcuffs the Opinion of Doctor at Hospital

The Mail and Empire announces an investigation into the case recently reported by the Review, that of a young girl being handcuffed and taken away from Toronto by two attendants.

The Mail and Empire laid the facts before the proper authorities and three official inquiries are now being made into the matter.

That it was unnecessary to handcuff the girl during her journey to Montreal was the opinion of Dr. Haywood, assistant superintendent of the General Hospital. He stated that the girl had been an inmate of the hospital for about three months, and that although she was excitable at times, and occasionally violent, he did not believe that there was any necessity for handcuffing her if she was properly treated. The doctor said that it is unusual to handcuff insane patients, as they can be successfully managed with a little patience. According to the doctor and Superintendent Dr. Clarke, the girl was not ill-treated at the hospital by the immigration authorities, but that an official investigation would be commenced this morning into the whole affair.

WITHOUT FRIENDS

The girl arrived in the ctiy from Scotland about six months ago, friendless and with but little money. She eventually succeeded in securing a position with a clothing manufacturing Company on Temperance Street. After she had been working for a few weeks she complained of severe pains in the head. Being unable to afford a physician, and having practically no friends, she threw herself upon the charity of the Toronto Humane Society, and was admitted into Grace Hospital. She was later discharged from that institution, but within a short time came back to the society, and through them was admitted to the Toronto General Hospital. After she had been there for some weeks the hospital doctors decided that she was incurably insane, and recommended either her incarceration in an asylum or deportation. In making their recommendation, the authorities stated that the girl had threatened several times to commit suicide and that it was necessary to keep the closest watch upon her.

FORMERLY A WRITER

While residing in the city Miss Hoad made practically no acquaintances and she was exceptionally reticent but little is known of her past, or her home in Scotland. When applying to Mr. P.C. Laverton Harris, of the Humane Society, for admittance into the Hospital, she stated that in the Mother Country she was a writer, but that she was forced to abandon that profession for a couple of years, owing to brain trouble. At the end of that period she hoped to be sufficiently recovered to return to writing. The girl appeared to be about 23 years old, and when she first visited Mr. Harris he thought she was suffering from a mental collapse, or brain fever. Mr. Harris announced that he would also make an investigation into the charges made against the immigration officials.

SKETCH OF NEW ADVERTISING SIGN

Is Approved by the Manufacturers Committee

The Manufacturers' Committee, last night approved of the sketch for a new sign, submitted by. Messrs. O. J. Turner and Sons, but did not take any action.

This sign would be maintained by the firm for a period of three years. On this sign, which would be located north of the C.P.R. bridge, the advantages of the Electric City would be set forth in an attractive manner.

SHORT ON MONEY.

Other matters appertaining to the publicity department of the city were also discussed. It was remarked by Chairman Ald. Duffus, that the money stringency was affecting the applications from American concerns regarding sites in Canada.

INCREASING STRENGTH OF TEMPLE BAND

New Bandsmen and Instruments —To-nights Program

One more member has been added to the ranks of the Temple Band and this time a Bonnie Scotchman received a welcome. Mr. Forsyth, who hails from Edinburgh, is a bass player and will be a good help to that section. The band is also being assisted by two of the old boys, Messrs. J. Slight and Conner Daloe, who are visiting here from Calgary. To meet the demand of increased membership, new instruments have been ordered, and to bring the band up-to-date, a full saxaphone section will be added. Two more saxaphones on order, are expected shortly.

March— "The Wear-ile."
Selection— "Soldiers of the Army."
Selection - "The Love of God."
Song— "A Charge to Keep."
March— "The Leeds"
Selection— "Old Song Memories."
Vocal Quartette— "Far Away."
Selection - "My Keeper."
March— "Active Service."
"God Save the King."

SCOTCH KILTIES WITH SELLS-FLOTO CIRCUS

During their engagement here on August 20th, the management of the Sells-Floto circus will present that greatest band of Highland Pipers in the world, known to fame as the Royal Scotch Kilties, of Toronto, Canada

These men will appear both in the parade and at regular performances in the kilts and tartans of their clans, and will bring with them the memories of the gallant battles, wherein the Highlander has contributed to history since time began.

At the regular performances, the Royal Kilties will appear, giving concerts with the Pipes and Drums, folk-lore songs and the various dances so dear to the heart of every Scotchman.

There will be no extra charge for this; their number being part of the regular performance. Let it not be forgotten that the Sells-Floto people still adhere to their cut-rate policy in price—the admission to the whole entertainment being 25 cents) 41

EXCURSION TO ST. ANNE DE BEAUPRE

Large Number of Peterborough People Making the Trip

The special C.P.R. train en route from points west to Ste. Anne De Beaupre, Que., passed through the city to-day at 1.30. Among the citizens who took in the trip to the famous shirne were: Mr. W. Merrill, Mr. T. Henry, Mr. D. Henry, Mr. Leo Foley, Mr. D. Holland, Mrs. P. Kane, Mrs. Scott and Mrs. Gaulet, of Clydesdale; Miss J. Barnett, Miss Julia O'Brien, Mrs. E. # CHANGES AT CRESSMANS STORE

The Cressman Departmental store are again forced to enlarge their present premises. The steady increase in business has grown to such an extent they have decided to build an addition to the back of the third and fourth floors. Alterations have also begun on the ground floor and will be fitted with the latest and most modern equipment. Several new departments will be added including an up-to-date furniture department on the third and fourth floors, a children's department on the second floor. On the ground floor it has not been decided what new departments will be added.

When the building operations have been completed, it is estimated the selling space will be increased about 25 per cent.

SMALL FIRE AT BALL GROUNDS

Shortly after noon to-day Dr. Wightman 'phoned the fire station and informed the firemen that the dump at the left of Riverside Park was on fire and that the smoke was getting so dense that it would be impossible to play the game. The Chief said that he would go over and have a look at it and rang off, but he hardly had the receiver hung up when someone sent in an alarm from Box 54. The firemen responded and found the fire to be the one at the dump to which Dr. Wightman had reference.

It was necessary to lay 1,500 feet of hose to extinguish the blaze, which was done in about twenty minutes.

LOCAL NEWS ITEMS

As all of the members of the Board of Judges have not arrived in the city, the sessions will not commence till to-morrow.

A warning is being placed at the C.P.R. station, notifying the public that the company will not be responsible for parcels left in the waiting rooms.

CHARGED WITH STEALING BOAT

Lad Says He Found the Craft on Little Lake

A juvenile appeared in police court this morning on the charge of stealing a boat from a boat house. The boy claimed that he found the boat on the Little Lake.

The case was enlarged until Magistrate Dumble returns.

Mr. F. L. Goodwill appeared on behalf of the Children's Aid Society.

ASSESSMENT OF PROPERTY IS UNDERWAY

This Work is Necessary Before Street Paving Can be Commenced

It will be some time yet before street paving is commenced.

Before a by-law can be passed, it is necessary to make the proper assessment on the property which benefits from the paving and this big undertaking is in the hands of the City Engineer's department.

The construction work of the Peterborough Light and Power Co. is being rushed, and the same can be said of the Machine Co. operations, by which the wires are being placed underground.

FACTORY GIRLS PERISH WHEN FACTORY BURNS--DEATH LIST BETWEEN 55 AND 75

Repetition of Terrible Triangle Shirt-Waist Disaster Occurs in Overall Concern When Girls on Fourth Floor Are Caught in a Fire Trap and Are Burned or Mangled in Jumping to the Pavement.

Canadian Press Despatch.

BINGHAMPTON, July 23. — The full extent of yesterday's holocaust in the Freeman Overall Factory cannot be known until the heap of tangled brick and steel has been removed. Of the 125 employes, mostly women and girls, forty-one are known to have escaped. Sixteen charred bodies are unidentified and the dead bodies of Sidney Dimmick, machinist, and six women employes have been identified. The factory employed 134 hands, some of whom were on their vacation, but the payroll lists are in a safe under the ruins

BINGHAMTON, N.Y., July 23.—From 55 to 75 girls and women were burned to death or were killed by jumping from windows when the overall factory of the Binghamton Clothing Co., was burned yesterday afternoon.

The five-storey building of this company was totally destroyed, the Federal Building, next door, was partly burned and the saddlery warehouse of Simon O'Neil was gutted, and two other buildings were damaged by the spread of the flames.

The fire was almost a repetition of the Triangle shirtwaist fire in New York. The clothing company used the entire five-storey building, located on Wall street, next to the Federal Building. It was built of wood except the outside walls, which were of brick. The fire started from an unknown cause at 2.30 p.m., on the first floor at the rear of the building. Persons nearby said it seemed to spread like a train of powder from one pile of cloth or garments to another. An alarm was sent in within a minute of the first sight of smoke, but by the time the firemen arrived flames were leaping from almost every window in [illegible].

One [illegible] twenty-five persons were employed in the factory and all but a few were girls and women. The largest number, about 80, were at work on the fourth floor. They had three ways out, the front and rear stairs and one narrow fire escape in the rear of the building. The flames leaped up the rear stairs and up an elevator shaft. About twenty of the girls ran down the front stairs to safety. The rest ran to the rear stairs and the fire escape. About a dozen climbed down the fire escape to the second floor, but stopped there because the last ladder was held up off the ground and they did not know how to lower it. A man employe finally dropped it down, but was knocked off the escape by the upper end of the ladder.

While the women were imprisoned on the escapes, the flames began to roar through the windows beside them and several jumped to the ground. Others were made unconscious by the smoke and flames and were burned to death, the bodies remaining on the escape until the wall fell.

Meanwhile the great majority of those on the fourth floor had rushed back from the rear stairs and the fire escape to the windows, which lined both sides of the building, and a moment later, as the flames reached them, they jumped to the ground, a distance of forty feet.

Ten or a dozen men who had rushed up picked them up as fast as possible and carried them across Wall street to the bank of the Chenango River.

It is said that the girls were jumping so fast that the men below were afraid to run in to pick up those who had fallen. Some of the girls stood in the windows a moment and then fell back into the building. The fire spread with a rapidity beyond belief, and within twenty-five minutes from the time the fire was discovered the rear and south walls fell, burying the bodies of some of the dead and unconscious lying under the windows. Five minutes later the two walls fell, and a tremendous bonfire was left to spread to adjoining buildings.

Twenty-three bodies have been found, but all were burned beyond recognition, and they will be identified only by means of jewelery and bits of clothing, if at all. The office employes locked up the books in the safe when the fire started, and the safe is now covered by the ruins in the basement. Seventeen girls and women were taken to the hospital, where all the doctors in the city were summoned. Of the injured two have died.

Mrs. Reed B. Freeman, wife of the president and manager of the factory, who was in the office at the time the fire began, says that there were about 125 employes in the building when the fire began. These figures would leave between 70 and 75 unaccounted for and the police and fire authorities believe that this number were killed.

The fact that several fire drills had been held recently in the factory probably is responsible for the loss of many lives. The drills had been announced unexpectedly by the ringing of a fire gong in the factory. The last time the drill was held some of the girls began to consider it a joke and to take their time about responding.

Some of those who escaped said that when the gang was rung on the fourth floor many remarked that another fire drill was being held and were leisurely about leaving the building.

Never before has such a scene been enacted in the local hospital, and despite the fact that the injured and dying lay all about, the doctors and nurses worked with amazing rapidity and coolness. Scarcely an hour after the fire, everyone of the patients there had been attended to and made as comfortable as possible. Most of them were badly burned and were swathed in bandages from head to foot.

Electrician Is Killed.

COBALT, July 23.—While laying a line from an electric pump at Timiskaming mine shortly after noon yesterday Gordon Montgomery, aged 19, was instantly killed. He was found dead and there is little doubt that be was electrocuted by the heavy voltage on mine lines.

Gordon Montgomery was the electrician at Timiskaming mine. He was the son of Alex. Montgomery, a conductor on the Nipissing Central Railway. The family has lived at New Liskeard for ten years and is very well known.

DIED AT ROCHESTER

ROCHESTER, N. Y., July 23—(Special.)—Mrs. Mary Ann Foley, sister of W. P. Moher and the mother of John Foley, both of Peterborough, died last midnight at her home, 52 Lorimer St. The deceased was 57 years old and is survived, besides her relatives in Peterborough, by four sons and five daughters, four of whom are single, living in Rochester. Mrs. Foley's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Moher, of Douro, and one brother, T. J. Moher of Cobourg.

PEACE DAY AT FORT ERIE

Both Countries to be Represented Ceremonies on July 30.

FORT ERIE, Ont., July 23.—No movement along the great frontier of Niagara has ever met with the encouragement that is marking the effort to have a peace bridge built between Fort Erie and Buffalo to commemorate the establishment of 100 years of peace between English-speaking countries.

One of the events planned to arouse countrywide attention will be the holding of a peace celebration at Fort Erie on July 30. Premier Borden has promised the committee on speakers that at least two members of his Cabinet will be present.

Most of the cities and towns on the Canadian side have already declared civic holidays in honor of the celebration, while the same thing is to be done by Buffalo and the cities along the American frontier.

Explorer Radford Heard From.

EDMONTON, Alta., July 23.—Word was brought to Edmonton that Explorer Radford, who was outfitted by the Dominion Government, has reached Herschel Island. The bearer of the news was Howard Allen, who has been in the Arctic for four years. Radford had been heard from in the Hudson Bay country, but no previous word ever came that he had been at Herschel Island.

Welsh Bill Rejected.

LONDON, July 23.—The House of Lords last night treated the Welsh disestablishment bill exactly as it did the home rule bill. By a vote of 242 to 48 the Lords refused to give the bill a second reading, and adopted a motion declining to proceed with its consideration "until it had been submitted to the judgment of the country."

DROWNING OF WESLEY DORAN.

Open Verdict Returned by Coroner's Jury in Brockville Case.

BROCKVILLE, July 23.—"Found drowned," was the verdict rendered by the coroner's jury at the adjourned sitting of the inquest into the death of Wesley Doran, the Brockville man who disappeared on July 12th, and whose body was found floating in the river near Ogdensburg on Sunday last.

Sidney Empey, the man who is awaiting a preliminary hearing on a charge of manslaughter in connection with Doran's death, voluntarily took the witness stand, but the searching questions of the coroner and the cross-examination of Crown Attorney Brown failed to shake his story in the slightest particular. The charge against Empey will likely be dropped.

Two Dropped Dead.

KINGSTON, July 23.—Duncan McDonald, a prominent resident of Wolfe Island, dropped dead.

Henry Letch, Bay of Quinte Railway foreman, also dropped dead yesterday morning, after giving orders to a staff of men. He leaves a widow and one son.

James Conmee, Ex-M.P., Ill.

PORT ARTHUR, July 23.—A message from Prescott, Arizona, indicates a serious turn to the illness of James Conmee, ex-M.P., who has been in the south since September, 1911.

His wife and daughter have gone to be with him and his son, Arthur, is already there.

DIPLOMACY IS NEEDED

Turkey's Action Puts Europe on Brink of War.

Occupation of Adrianople and Kirk-Kilisseh is Confirmed.

Russia Only too Willing to Slip in and Bottle up Constantinople.

LONDON, July 23.—The European concert is faced by the most delicate and difficult situation, requiring the exercise of the utmost diplomatic tact, if Europe is not to be plunged into a general war by the Turkish re-occupation of Adrianople and Kirk-Kileaseh. Bulgaria, helpless, sees the fruits of her victories snatched away, and while negotiations or an armistice are proceeding, the Greeks and Servians push their advantage.

The official announcement made at Constantinople yesterday that the Turkish troops had reoccupied the citadel of Adrianople created the worst possible impression in diplomatic circles, and no time was lost by the powers in starting an exchange of views with the object of finding the best means of checkmating Turkey's action, which is looked upon as a clear-cut defiance of all Europe.

The next few hours are likely to decide whether or not forces hitherto unengaged shall enter the Balkan cockpit. Russia is understood to be ready to accept the mandate of Europe to compel the Porte to respect the Treaty of London, which the Ottomans are now tearing up, and the British Cabinet meets to-day to consider whether this Government shall consent to active intervention on the part of Russia.

Premier Asquith's speech at Birmingham on Monday evening was intended to warn Turkey against the possibility of such a development, which would involve Russian occupation of both sides of the Bosphorus and the gripping of Constantinople both in front and rear.

Austria-Hungary thus far has held aloof, being unwilling to consent to active measures against the Turk. Should coercion be attempted by Russia without her consent, however, little doubt is expressed by close followers of the Balkan situation that Austria-Hungary immediately would occupy the Sanjak of Novibazar.

Desultory fighting continues all along the Servian frontier. The Greeks, who are advancing northward from Nevrokop, are meeting with stubborn resistance from the Bulgarians. Both sides are reported to be losing heavily. The Greeks claim to have captured strong Bulgarian positions on the heights stretching to the north of Petchova.

In Sofia it is believed that the Greeks intend to invade southern Bulgaria and occupy Philippopolis.

The Bulgarians exploded the ammunition magazines and blew up some of the Government buildings before evacuating Adrianople. No serious fighting has occurred either at Adrianople or Kirk-Kiliaseh.

CORNER-STONE

Gen. Ian Hamilton Does Honors at Lindsay Ceremony.

LINDSAY, July 23.—Gen. Sir Ian Hamilton, G.C.B., D.S.O., yesterday afternoon handled the trowel in the laying of the corner-stone of the new Government armories at Victoria Park. The ceremony in connection with the laying of the heavy corner-stone in the west tower was witnessed by hundreds of Lindsay citizens and was graced by the presence of Hon. Sam Hughes, Minister of Militia, this being his home town; Hon. Frank Cochrane, Minister of Railways and Canals; Col. Bick of Cannington; Dr. K. M. Mason, M.P.P., Fenelon Falls; Major Smith, M.P.; Major Sam Sharpe, M.P.; Col. John Hughes of Newtonville; J. H. Burnham, M.P.; J. H. Sexsmith, M.P.; W. H. Bennett, M.P.; Senator Taylor of Gananoque, and others.

LADY MAIDSTONE AND NEW BOY HEIR BOTH DOING WELL.

VISCOUNTESS MAIDSTONE

The Viscountess Maidstone, who was Miss Margaretta Drexel, has given birth to another son, her second. Her health is reported to be excellent, as is that of the child.

Her first son was born not quite two years ago and is a robust youngster of great precocity. The Viscountess is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Anthony J. Drexel, of Philadelphia and London.

She was married to the Viscount Maidstone on July 6, 1910. He is the only son and heir of the Earl of Winchilsea. Their first son was born on August 2, 1911, and is named Christopher Guy Heneage Finch-Hatton.

SCOLDED TEA-PARTY

Suffragettes Paid a Marine Visit to Parliament Lawn.

LONDON, July 23.—The militant suffragettes made an ingenious demonstration at the House of Parliament yesterday, when for half an hour Miss Nina Boyle, one of the leading members of the Women's Freedom League, harangued several hundred legislators from a steam launch drawn alongside the members' terrace, which overlooks the Thames. That fashionable function—known as "tea on the terrace" was in full swing when the launch made its appearance, and members with their guests, who included a large number of ladies, at once left the tables and crowded to the riverside, where they heard themselves vigorously denounced by Miss Boyle, standing on the roof of the launch.

The police launch, which usually patrols the river in front of the Houses of Parliament, was nowhere to be seen and the eloquence of the militant orator proceeded unchecked for some time. At length the police boat appeared under Westminster Bridge, whereupon the militant craft went full speed up the river.

Before they left they threw on the Terrace a number of gilt-edged cards bearing this amusing wording. "The Speaker of the House of Commons requests the pleasure of the company of the President and Executive Committee and members of the Women's Freedom League at the tea garden, Speaker's residence, House of Commons, on Tuesday, July 22, at 6 p.m. Music and speeches. R.S.V.P."

The incident caused great amusement and was undoubtedly one of the most effective demonstrations for which the suffragettes have as yet been responsible. The last incident of the kind was in 1809, when the Nationalists arranged an exhibition of limelight views of the Coercion Act, with scenes to refute certain statements made by Arthur Balfour, then Chief Secretary for Ireland.

CANADIAN LOST THE BIG PRIZE

BISLEY CAMP, July 23.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—Sergt. H. H. Lee of the 7th Fusiliers, London, Ont., who tied with Lieut. Somers of the Inns of Court Rifles, for first place in the Prince of Wales' prize at 300 and 600 yards, had hard lines in his shoot off last night. Both men made three bulls right away, and bulls again on the fourth shot. Lee, who fired first, made a magpie with his fifth shot. Somers followed with an inner, thus winning the first prize of one hundred pounds. Lee won ten pounds.

In The Daily Graphic, which consists of seven shots at one distance, that of two hundred yards. Bulton of the Queen's Westminster, tied with Houtell of the Civil Service, and Staff-Sergt. Freeborn of the 13th Regt., Hamilton. In the shoot off, Bulton won the cup, with Freeborn second.

MAY INVITE KING GEORGE

Officials Want Him to Open Transcontinental In September, 1914.

OTTAWA, July 23.—Compiled reports received from Government engineers from Halifax to Prince Rupert, enable Hon. Frank Cochrane and Chairman Leonard to estimate pretty accurately, up to July 1, the position of the G.T.P. work. The sum of $150,000,000 has actually been paid out and the total, as nearly as can be gathered from carefully prepared estimates, will reach the enormous figures of $165,000,000, when the road is completed in September, 1914. There are now only a few miles between Winnipeg and Moncton, where rails have been laid. This is on the section between Cochrane and Quebec. In New Brunswick, the work is practically complete.

Early next spring, it is expected that trains will be running over the road into Quebec, and probably quite a while before that time, as the contract calls for its completion in September. The Quebec bridge, which is to link up the west with the eastern section of the road, will hardly be completed for four or five years, but this difficulty will partially be overcome by the construction of a powerful car-ferry, which will operate between Quebec and Levis.

There is a strong movement on foot in influential and official circles to have His Majesty, King George the Fifth, visit Canada in 1914 to officially open the road.

It has been proposed that King George and President Woodrow Wilson meet at some point of the border of the two countries.

COL. LITTLE DEAD

Prominent Londoner Passes Away at Age of 65 Years.

LONDON, Ont., July 23.—London lost one of her most eminent citizens yesterday when Lt.-Col. John William Little passed away at an early hour in the morning at his summer residence, Hazeldean, London Township.

His death followed a three-weeks' illness, caused by hardening of the arteries of the brain, brought on by the excessive heat of the latter part of June.

The late Col. Little was one of London's most successful business men, and despite his extensive commercial interests he always found time to assist in the advancement of the city. He was 65 years of age, and was born in Montreal, coming to this city when a comparatively young man. In 1875 he entered into the wholesale drygoods business in the firm of Robinson, Little & Co.

BOY SCOUT IS KILLED WHEN SAND CLIFF GIVES WAY

His Neck Was Broken by Fall and Body Was Almost Buried.

TORONTO, July 23.—Climbing along the edge of the bluffs at Birch Cliff, Scarboro Bluffs, in search of birds' nests, more than 200 feet above the surface of Lake Ontario, Victor Plant, boy scout, 14-year-old son of Herbert Plant of 73 Macpherson avenue, Toronto, was struck at five o'clock yesterday afternoon by an avalanche of earth and sand, which caved in above him and hurled him to his death 30 feet down the side of the precipice. The boy's neck was broken in the fall and his body was almost buried.

Percy Dunk, the dead boy's friend, however, states that after dinner yesterday the two boys left their camp and went to the bluffs to look for birds' nests. Plant was about six feet down the side of the bank and had no warning that the ground was unsafe. Suddenly the whole bank fell away, forcing the boy on his head. Dunk yelled, and just escaped from falling in behind. He then called for his friend a second time and when he received no answer he peered over the edge, but saw nothing but his friend's feet sticking out of the earth.

Dunk ran towards Birch Cliff, where a cottager heard the boy's shouts and ran back with him to the bluff to rescue his friend. He was some time in removing the earth from Plant's body, and the moment he touched the lad he knew he was dead.

HOTELKEEPERS PREPARE.

Association to Meet at Ottawa and Prepare Anti-Scott Act Campaign.

OTTAWA, July 23.—The Hotelkeepers' Association of the Dominion of Canada, which was organized in Ottawa last March, will hold its first convention in Winnipeg from September 15 to 20.

In a significant circular letter just sent out by William B. Edgecombe, of Winnipeg, secretary of the association, it is stated that it is time to unite the hotel trade of the Dominion into a solid unit for defence purposes, the betterment of trade conditions and the protection of vested rights.

"Events have transpired that make it imperative that the license holders of this Dominion assemble together to discuss trade interests," it reads. "While in our different provinces we have efficient protection through our local organizations looking after local interests still the wider field the Dominion is about to be attacked.

"Our opponents are making arrangements to ask for Dominion registration under the Canada Temperance Act in an effort to be successful where they have failed in the different provinces. This means that we must become active and energetic and prepare to defend our interests against any vicious legislation that might be proposed."

A STRONG STAND IS DEMANDED

Intervention Urged in the Mexican Affair.

WASHINGTON, July 23.—An attempt by Senator Fall of New Mexico to force the Senate to enunciate a strong policy of protection for American citizens in foreign countries yesterday precipitated a lively debate which demonstrated appreciation on the part of Senators of the gravity of the Mexican situation and the necessity for a determined stand by the United States.

Denunciation of the policy of delay on the part of the Taft administration was emphatically pronounced by Senator Fall and blamed by him for the present critical situation which, he said, could have been prevented by a sterner national policy. This declaration was approved by Senator Lodge of Massachusetts, who expressed disappointment that the new President and the new Secretary of State had not inaugurated a different Mexican policy. That the delicacy of the situation was keenly appreciated was evinced by the insistence of many Senators, led by Senator Bacon, chairman of the foreign relations committee, that any proposed pronunciamento be deliberately and seriously considered before being acted upon.

Senator Fall called up his resolution which would commit the Government to full protection of the "constitutional rights" of American citizens in foreign nations. That the resolution was directed against Mexico, Senator Bacon declared could not be concealed, and in moving to refer it to the foreign relations committee he asserted that "Words are very serious things sometimes, and this is one of the times."

Senator Works of California, asserting that the Fall resolution constituted a declaration that the United States was prepared to make war on Mexico if Americans there were not protected, urged that no hasty action be taken.

Action on the resolution yesterday was prevented and it went to the calendar for future disposition.

Old Brockville Resident Dead.

BROCKVILLE, July 23.—James Moore, a retired Brockville merchant, died suddenly yesterday of heart failure. He was identified with the retail drygoods and merchant tailoring trade for almost forty years, establishing himself in business here in 1870. Ten years previously he emigrated from Londonderry, Ireland, where he was born in 1837. He was an ardent curler and fond of acquatic sports. His widow and three daughters survive.

FIRE BRIGADE MADE ONE RUN

But it Didn't Help the Petes—It Was a Fire

While the Ottawa brigade were scoring of Knute Belting yesterday afternoon the local fire brigade also made a run. A spark from the cupola of the Peter Hamilton Company set fire to the roof of one of the buildings and an alarm was sounded.

The employes were busily engaged in extinguishing the blaze when the firemen arrived and they easily completed the work.

There was very little damage,

LATEST NEWS PARAGRAPHED

A badly decomposed body was taken from Niagara river near the Maid of the Mist landing, by William Lebonde yesterday.

Maitre Fernand Labori, the celebrated French lawyer and defender of Dreyfus, arrived in Quebec yesterday accompanied by Madame Labori.

As a result of the recent destructive forest fires in New Ontario the Government will make an effort to sell much of the burnt over timber.

Fred. Jenkins, aged 89, of Kingston, was found dead in a driving shed in the rear of his home. He was cleaning a rifle and it accidentally discharged.

J. P. Jaffray of The Galt Reporter, since its birth in November, 1886, has accepted the position of Dominion immigration agent, with headquarters at Philadelphia.

Anthony Strange, 24 years old, died at Niagara Falls yesterday, from wounds received in a revolver fight at the corner of Ferry and Seventh streets last March 17.

While Mr. Charles Murray of Waterford, was driving out in his auto the machine caught fire and was utterly destroyed, the occupants escaping just before the explosion.

Suffragettes in London yesterday hired a steam launch and from the Thames harangued the members of Parliament for half an hour. A police boat finally chased them up the river.

The Dominion Government has expropriated over 200 acres of land in Grantham Township for the first section of the new Welland Canal, the contract for which has already been let.

The death occurred of Miss Mary Anne Callaghan, organist of St. Paul's Church, Kingston. She was a graduate of music of Trinity College, Toronto, winning the gold medal in her class.

COSTLY FIRE AT WATERFORD

Rai way Freight Sheds and Contents Are Destroyed.

BRANTFORD, July 23.—Fire which broke out yesterday morning burned the M. C. R. freight sheds at Waterford to the ground and seriously endangered the entire town. Only the fact that the pond was nearby and had a large amount of water in it from the heavy rain saved the town from going, as a southwest wind of great velocity was blowing at the time. It was found impossible to put out the fire in the freight sheds which were highly combustible owing to the large amount of freight stored therein and the efforts of the firemen were devoted to saving Duncan's buildings, for had these caught fire the town would have been fire-swept. Alice street, the main street being especially threatened. The loss is estimated at $10,000. A spark from a passing engine is blamed for the blaze.

Mystery in Drowning.

MONTREAL, July 23.—Mystery surrounds the death of T. G. Dowsley, 35 years of age, employed by the Stewart Bottling Co., who disappeared on Thursday evening last, and whose body was picked up in the Mille Isle River and taken to the morgue yesterday morning. His parents live in Toronto. He was identified by papers found in his clothes. He carried seven dollars in cash and wore a ring given him by his employers and staff.

UNION LABEL

A DEMOCRAT IN OFFICE

Should a public servant add to his income by lecturing in the time that he is supposed to devote to the business of the state? That is the question which the press in the States are discussing, and the subject of the discussion is Mr. Bryan.

Mr. Bryan gets a salary of $12,000 a year as a member of the Wilson Cabinet, and has been augmenting this income by lecturing. He also has a further income from a paper he publishes, which is estimated at $25,000 per year.

This it seems is not sufficient for Mr. Bryan who has a large family to support. But the newspaper men think Mr. Bryan rather overestimates his requirements, and insists that he ought to be satisfied with his official salary, and leave the lecture platform to men who cannot get a job in the Cabinet.

This certainly seems a fair way of looking at it, and especially since Mr. Bryan professes to be a Democrat.

But most "Democrats" are people who, having found they are of the "common class," make faces at those above them and watch their opportunity to depose them and take their place.

An emancipated "Democrat" is a greater snob than the born aristocrat.

THE "ALARM" AND IT'S "CAUSE"

After all the pessimism that has been clouding the western horison for the last few months there comes a gleam of sunshine in the latest reports which fore-tell of a great harvest of wheat from the prairies.

But there still remains the feeling that all is not as well as it used to be in the West. Money has been very tight and the various industries, particularly the building trade, have been hampered for want of capital to work with. In many cases wages have been reduced and young men have been returning to Eastern Provinces.

It is difficult to trace this set-back to its real cause, but people generally attribute the prosperity of a country to its Government, and when trade goes down they blame the Government in power.

The Globe trys to appease the complaint of the Moose Jaw Times by assuring it that there is "no cause for alarm." But the people of Moose Jaw will find little comfort in the Globe's statistics.

Canada with all its possibilities is absolutely dependent upon the confidence and the enterprise of British finance. Without this the West would be an undeveloped waste to-day.

The rejection by the Senate of the "emergency" contribution to the Empire's defence may have had something to do with the present tightness in the money market. British investers cannot be expected to have the same interest and confidence in Canadian concerns if they prove themselves so fickle and unreliable.

EDITORIAL NOTES

The Illustrated London News gives the history of the Suffragette movement in pictures; there are photographs of window-smashing, railways, mansions, tea-pavilions, churches smashed and burnt. One could scarcely describe it as a constructive movement.

THE VILLAGE SAGE.

Old Archibald Todd was the village sage.
You couldn't fool him on a woman's age.
There wasn't a thing in the whole broad land
That Archibald didn't understand.
And no man above or below the sod
Ever knew so much as Archibald Todd.

There wasn't a prize fight e'er pulled off
That wasn't a cinch for this old toff.
He'd pick out a winner every time
In an offhand way that was quite sublime.
The only thing that would spoil his fun
Was the fact that the wrong man always won.

The weather was ever his strong forte.
He always "scooped" Uncle Sam's report.
When his left hind leg would acquire a pain
He would prophesy a good two days' rain
By the words of wisdom from Archie's mouth
The whole town knew there was to be a drought.

Old Archibald lived long in the land
And ruled the country with tireless hand
The old folks all listened to his advice,
For it was really beyond all price,
For they were sure when advice he'd spring
They could safely bank on the opposite thing.

WESTERN CANADA'S BUMPER WHEAT CROP

Thousands of Men Required—This Year's Harvest Promises to be the Largest in the History of Canada

According to present indications the wheat crop of 1913 will be the greatest ever harvested in Manitoba, Saskatchewan or Alberta, thus requiring the farm laborers of the East to assist in harvesting the world's bread basket.

The Governments of the respective Provinces state that many thousand men will be required for this years harvest. These will have to be principally recruited from Ontario, and the prosperity of Canada depends on securing labor promptly. The Canadian Pacific, on which Company will fall practically the entire task of transporting the men to the West, is already making special arrangements for this year. Excursions from points in Ontario to Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta will be run and special trains operated, making the trip in about thirty-six hours and avoiding any change of cars or transfers. This will be a day shorter than any other route. Dates, rates and conditions will be announced in a few days. eod

Latest Quotation in Grain, Dairy Products Live Stock, Etc

LIVERPOOL, July 22.—The steady American cables and strength in Buenos Ayres yesterday caused light offerings here at the opening and prices were unchanged. Following the opening there was some covering induced by the expected decrease in the visible supply here, firmer offerings of American winter wheat and no pressure of Manitoba offerings and prices advanced. The opening strength in Paris and the firmer bids from the continent, together with unsettled weather in Europe, caused firmness among holders. Firmer consols and a bearish report from Russia checked the advance.

Corn opened ⅛d higher and then continued dull at the advance. The strength in America and firmer Plate offerings led to moderate covering.

CHICAGO, July 22.—Fading away of the rust scare allowed the wheat market today to ease off. Closing prices were steady at a net decline of 1-4c to 3-8c. Other leading staples, too, all showed a setback, corn 1-2c to 7-8c, oats 3-8 and provisions 2 1-2c to 12 1-2c.

FARMER'S WIFE ALMOST A WRECK

Restored to Health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound — Her Own Story.

London, Ont.—"I am a farmer's wife and a very busy woman. Last summer I was taken with severe pains in my back so bad that I could not get up or scarcely move without pain, and my periods were painful. My husband called in a good doctor and I was under his care for some time, but he did me little or no good. One day a friend of mine told me to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound as she had been greatly helped by it. I began taking it and soon got well, and my periods became natural again. Since then I have had perfect health. In fact I have never felt so well in my life. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is a medicine many women need. If you think this letter will help other women please publish it."—Mrs. K. C. YOUNG, Tambling's Corner, London, Ontario, Canada.

Women who suffer from those distressing ills peculiar to their sex should not doubt the ability of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to restore their health.

If you have the slightest doubt that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will help you, write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential) Lynn, Mass., for advice. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman, and held in strict confidence.

The Best Detective Story of the Last Ten Years

"one," responded Mrs. Missioner. She answered defensively, like a witness under hostile cross-examination, volunteering nothing. Donnelly seemed not to hear her. He was examining the safe again. He passed his hand over the door and its frame again, turned the handle that shot the bolts, noted their strength and smoothness, turned them back, and wheeled on Mrs. Missioner abruptly.

"There's been no forcing here," he said sagely. "It's an inside job."

Mrs. Missioner's eyebrows went up.

"Yes'm,' the detective went on, "an inside job. Who did you say had the combination?"

Mrs. Missioner hadn't said, but she answered naturlly:

"My secretary—Miss Holcomb."

"Oh!" said Donnelly. Carson's lips rounded in mute repetition.

Sands, impatient of the detective's awkward questioning, shook himself lion-like, and went to a window. Griswold swung his foot idly, and smoked in shorter measure. Ranscome looked nervously at the inquisitor, then swung his gaze back to the jewel trays. Dorothy listened with wide-eyed interest.

"I have known her many years," said Mrs. Missioner quietly, adding with warmth, "She is a young woman of high character."

"Oh, she is, is she?" returned the sleuth. "And how, may I ask, ma'am, do you know that?"

"I say, I have known her many years," said Mrs. Missioner.

"Oh, you have? And are you sure you know her thoroughly?" Donnelly manifestly was enjoying his rôle to the utmost. Carson's face became a supercilious interrogation point.

"Mr.—what did you say your name was?" replied the widow.

"Donnelly, ma'am—Dectective Donnelly, of the Central Office."

"Thank you." The axact shade of Mrs. Missioner's meaning was indeterminate. She may have been genuinely grateful for the information. There was nothing uncertain about her next words. "If you think, Mr. Donnelly," she said, "Miss Holcomb can be connected with the disappearance of my jewels in any way, you are on the wrong course. She is above suspicion."

There was a man in Mulberry Street who might have told her nobody was above suspicion in the eyes of the ordinary Central Office man. But Mrs. Missioner had not yet met him, and when she did, both were too interested for philosophical observations.

Donnelly did not reply. He held whispered consultation with his mate. Then he asked if he might question the servants.

"Certainly, if you think it necessary," assented the widow. "But I should warn you that I cannot bring myself to suspect any of them."

"Everybody seems to be above suspicion," snapped Donnelly. "It's always the way, until we begin to get on the trail, and then everybody becomes suspicious. I think I'll qustion the servants, ma'am. Shall I have 'em in here?"

Mrs. Missioner bowed and sent Blodgett to summon his comrades.

"One at a time, please," said Donnelly. The first to enter was the housekeeper, a staid woman in a black gown with white ruching about her withered neck. She knew nothing of the jewels save that madam always locked them in the safe herself, unless Miss Holcomb was there to do it for her. Yes, Miss holcomb put them away pretty often. Took them out pretty often, too, when madam wished to wear them. No, none of the maids had access to the safe. It was out of the question to think any of them would meddle with madam's jewels. Yes, some of the maids had followers, but always respectable young men, who worked for a living. No, she herself would not venture to disturb any of madam's possessions which madam had not placed under her immediate care.

The answers of the other servants were equally straightforward. The butler, under-butler, chef, second footman, pantry-boy, parlor-maid, chamber-maids, and kitchen-maid, and the majestic Blodgett himself were interrogated persistently, minutely, doggedly, even bullyingly, and in the end the net result of what they had to tell was at zero. That is to say, as far as Mrs. Missioner and her friends and the diamond expert were concerned. Donnelly thought otherwise. Carsons mind was a receptive blank.

"Are these all the servants?" asked the large detective.

"All at present," answered Mrs. Missioner. "My own maid is away on leave. Oh, yes, there's Ali."

"Is Allie the name of your maid?"

"No, Ali is a man an Indian."

"And what's his job?" this agressively.

"He is a courier."

Donnelly was puzzled.

"When I travel, he looks after the transportation and baggage," Mrs. Missionor explained.

"How long has your maid been away?"

"About a month," the widow told him.

"Have you had the real sparklers since then?"

"The real——"

"Sparklers—shiners—diamonds?"

"I don't know," said Mrs. Missioner doubtfully.

"How can I be sure? I do not know when the substitution was made. I thought I had the genuine necklace to-night."

Exactly why Donnelly and Carson examined the safe a third time must remain a mystery to everyone outside the ranks of headquarters sleuths. Perhaps they were seized by a comon idea. Perhaps they did it to gain time. At any rate, there was a world of wisdom in the big Central Office man's expression as he faced Mrs. Missioner again.

"This advance agent of yours—this Ali—where is he?"

"Blodgett," called the widow, "send Ali here."

The presence faded into the perspective of the passage and in a few minutes materialized on the threshold—alone.

"Ali is not in the house, madam," the footman reported.

"Ask Mrs. Janason when he will return."

"Mrs. Janason does not know, madam. She did not know he was out until I inquired for him."

"Ask Miss Holcomb if she sent him anywhere."

"What tribe does this Indian belong to?" Donnelly inquired importantly. "Choctaw? Cherokee? Sioux? Maybe he's an Apache?"

Mrs. Missioner smiled. It was not an unpleasant smile, but it jarred an unconscious "Huh!" out of the detective. All the others save the serious Ranscome smiled too, and Griswold laughed aloud.

"He isn't that kind of an Indian," Sands enlightened the sleuth. "He's a native of India—a Hindoo."

"Of course," rumbled the Central Office man indignantly. "I know that. What I want to know is what kind of a Hindoo?"

"I should say he was a Sepoy," remarked Griswold. There was a malicious gleam in his eyes.

"Sepoy—huh?" Donnelly turned to Carson. "What do you know about that?" he asked. Carson knew nothing whatever about that. It would have been disloyal to know more than his colleague.

"If these investigators have all the information they require," said Sands to the widow, "I suppose they're anxious to be off, on the case." It was plain he half regretted having rung up 3100 Spring. Griswold glanced at him triumphantly.

Well, ma'am—huh!—I guess we'll search the rooms," was Donnelly's next inquisitorial venture.

"Which rooms?" Mrs. Missioner was not at all pleased.

"The servants', of course. That's the next step." Donnelly was back in his routine now, and the catch left his voice again. He was effective, too. Mrs. Missiouer really gasped.

"That is entirely unnecessary," she said icily. "I told you I could not suspect anybody.'

"Never mind that, ma'am. We'll do all the suspecting that's necessary. Needn't disturb you, I suppose. This gentleman can show us the way?" and Donnelly turned inquiringly to the footman.

Blodgett's face, always stony, became adamant. But Mrs. Missioner made no sign of dissent, so he glided away with the Central Office men in his wake. Sands gazed after the detective ruefuly, Griswold watching with unmistakable malice. Little Miss March began asking questions, but the widow stopped her with a playful caress.

"Let them look, dear," she said resignedly. "They won't find anything, of course, but I suppose they would not be contented otherwise. Tell me," she added to Griswold, "are there any really intelligent detectives?"

"Ask me something easy," he replied lapsing into the vernacular of the clubs. "Mullberry Street has many minds. I suppose it must have some without any. Bruxton is unlucky, that's all."

There was a man in Mulberry Street Bruxton was to find much more efficient than the present visitors from headquarters. As the widow did not know that, she was a good deal bored and some of her first distress at the loss of her jewels, particularly the Maharanee diamond, returned. She was almost despondent when the detectives, after an exhaustive search of the servants' quarters, returned. They had ransacked even the room of Mrs. Missioner's absent maid, but to no purpose. Blodgett, frozen in the doorway, gave no other sign than a malignant side glance without turning his head. It was apparent, however, Blodgett didn't like Central Office men. Whatever his reasons, he didn't like them, and only the presence of Mrs. Missioner and her guests deterred him from manifesting his dislike. Still, Blodgett was nobody's fool. He had submitted to a search of his room without protest.

"Is there anything more you wish to know?" asked Mrs. Missioner, rising. Donnelly was oblivious to the hint.

"Yes, ma'am, M's' Missioner," he answered. "I think we'll talk to your secretary now."

CHAPTER IV

"The Chief Wants to See You"

Her refinement differed from Mrs. Missioner's climatically, but, despite the polaric oppositeness of their coloring, there was a resemblance between them. Mrs. Missioner's eyes turned to her apologetically.

"I regret to disturb you so late Elinor," she said, "but these gentlemen insist on seeing you. I suppose you were sleeping?"

"I was dozing, I fear," smiled the girl. "I had been reading." She held a book in her hand.

"The necklace with the Maharanee diamond is gone," the widow explained," and paste jewels have been put in their place. This is Detective Donnelly, of the Central Office, and this is Detective—ah——"

"Carson, ma'am," said Donnelly. Carson himesalf had been about to speak, but his big colleague, as usual, hastened to do the talking for him.

"I'm sure I'm very glad to see Mr. Donnely and Mr. Carson, since there has been a robbery," said Elinor easily. She moved softly to the center of the room and stood looking at the Headquarters men. "Are you sure the real diamonds are gone?"

Mrs. Missioner made a gesture toward the safe and indicated the heap of false gems on the table.

"Is it likely," sneered Griswold "that whoever put the paste stones there would neglect to take the real ones? I see you read De Maupassant, Miss Holcomb. Stories like 'The Necklace' don't happen."

Elinor laughed as she turned the book in her hand so the others might see the name of the great Frenchman on the cover.

"Yet the way the young couple spoiled their lives to pay for the fals necklace reads plausibly," she retorted. "You are growing more observant, Mr. Griswold."

Sands was overcome by his growing impatience.

"If the detectives have any questions to put to Miss Holcomb, I suggest that they waste no time," he said. "There can't be much to ask.'

"No, there isn't much, Mr. Sands," retorted the large Central Office man. "I'd just like to ask the young lady who she thinks took the diamond."

Elinor looked amazed.

"How should I know?" she queried a little irritated by the man's abruptness. "This is the first I've heard of the robbery.'

"The very first?" inquired Donnelly pointedly.

Miss Holcomb was stading close to Miss March. She only turned part of her face to the detective as she answered quietly:

"The very first."

"Then maybe you'll explain, miss, why you didn't come in with the other—huh!—that is, why you didn't appear before?"

"I have told you I was reading in my room," she replied. "I knew nothing of the robbery, nor even of Mrs. Missioner's return from the opera, until the housekeeper knocked on my door with the information Mrs. Missioner wished to see me in the library."

"Housekeeper a friend of yours?"

Elinor regarded him freezingly.

"You evidently misunderstand," she said. "I am Mrs. Missioner's secretary." The widow looked at her protectingly.

"Well, you're one of her employés ain't you?" growled Donnelly. "I'm not here to split hairs, miss. A necklace worth a half-million dollars has been stolen, and I'm here to find out who stole it. Get me?"

Miss Holcomb "got him" in the sense he meant. A deep flush started below her well-chiseled chin and mounted to the soft, dark waves of her hair. She turned an apprehensive glance upon the little circle of Mrs. Missioner's friends, ending with an appealing look at Mrs. Missioner herself.

"I really regard this as wholly unnecessary, Mr. Donrelly," said the widow, with slow insistence. "Miss Holcomb is not only my secretary, but my trusted friend. Her elder sister was in my class at Smit. I have known the Holcombs many years."

"You think you know them, ma'am," Donnelly persisted, "but my experience is you never can tell who you know in a case like this. Me and my side-partner have been sent here to recover your ejwels and locate the thief, and if you don't let us do it in our own way, we can't be held responsible."

"I'm afraid you'd better not interfere, Doris," said Sands. It was difficult for him to hide his enjoyment of the turn the affair had taken. He watched Elinor as if he reveled in her distress.

"Besides, ma'am, if you'll pardon me," said Donnelly, "the case is out of your hands now; it's in the hands of the Detective Bureau."

"Very well," Mrs. Missioner submitted. "But I know you're wasting your time. If Miss Holcomb could aid us in any way, she'd tell all she knew without being questioned."

"Perhaps she would," Donnelly rejoined, shooting a glance at Carson that seemed to say, "And perhaps she wouldn't. Again there came that squaring of himself, coupled with an occasional "Huh!" of embarrassment, as he plunged into an examination of the widow's secretary. "Do you ever wear diamonds?" he asked mysteriously.

Elinor was on the point of saying that if she were the possessor of diamonds, she would not be a secretary to the kindest of employers, but she reflected useless words were undesirable to such a man and contented herself with a gentle "No."

Elinor then did something that was unaccountable to the widow who thought she knew her so well, and which rather startled Sands. She turned to little Miss March and, laying her head on the younger girl's shoulder, wept unrestrainedly. Dorothy, patting her shoulder, stood looking helplessly at Mrs. Missioner.

One of those awkward pauses followed in which nobody seemed to know what to do. Ranscome wriggled in his chair uncomfortably. Even Blodgett's carven features twitched for an instant. Mrs. Missioner gazed at Elinor, plainly perplexed. Sympathy struggled slowly to the surface of her gaze. She went up to her secretary, and put her arm about the weeping girl's waist.

"This cannot be necessary, Mr. Donnelly," she said. "I would rather lose jewels twice as valuable that have Miss Holcomb distressed in this way. She knows nothing she will not tell us."

"Then why——" began Donnelly.

"Your accusing tone frightens her," explained the widow. "She has never been subjected to such treatment. You should recollect you are talking to a gentlewoman—and my friend."

MR. R. C. BRAUND CLAIMS HE IS THE VICTIM OF RAW DEAL

Cannot Obtain Building Permit for Store and Council Will not Pass Prohibitive Bylaw—His House Remains Empty and Objecting Residents Will not Buy.

Mr. R. C. Braund, having purchased property at the corner of Chamberlain and Park streets, will erect four brick dwellings, which with the property will cost about $2,000 each.

The erection of these dwellings will make a big improvement to the locality. The houses will face on Park street.

Asked regarding the situation at the corner of St. Joseph and Charlotte streets, where he had proposed to erect a store, Mr. Braund claimed that he was not being fairly treated. A permit would not be granted to him and Council would not pass a bylaw prohibiting the erection of commercial buildings. The men in that neighborhood had subscribed the money to buy the property, but as the Council would not pass the by-law, the residents would not complete the deal.

"In the meantime," said Mr. Braund, "my house is empty, when it might be tenanted at $20 per month, and I am the loser. Its a raw deal. The property is worth $3,000 and I have to pay the taxes of $52."

BIG NIGHT AT CHEMONG PARK

Dancing at the Pavilion To-morrow Evening

One of the successful features of this season's programme at Chemong Park is the work of the Chemong Regatta Club. The committee are working with great energy in preparing the events for the annual regatta.

Thursday night will see a big event, when the club will hold a dance.

The Neapolotan Orchestra will supply the music.

MEN LOITER AT CHURCH SHED

Have Attracted the Attention of South-end Residents

During the past few days several south-end residents have been complaining of two men who are loitering around the shed at the rear of the Park street Baptist church. Though these men do not molest any one, yet it is hardly probable that two men would be in such a dark spot for three or four nights in succession without cause. They are there most any time of the night, for they have been seen at 11.30 p.m. and 2 o'clock in the morning.

It is true they have made no suspicious moves as yet, but the people feel that such characters should not be allowed around these secluded spots.

NEWSY NOTES FROM APSLEY

Special Correspondence.

Apsley, July 23.—The Ladies Aid Society held their last meeting at the home of Mrs. Richard Hales, during which Mrs. Robert Hales, who has since left for Saskatchewan, was presented with a handsome set of cutlery and the following address was read by Miss Flossie Stephens:

Dear Mrs. Hales,—There comes a time in the history of every earthly band when some of its members, however long bound together to the other members by ties of common interest, must separate.

It is with regret that we learn such a time has come and we feel that we cannot let you pass from our ranks without expressing in some slight way our deep gratitude for your untiring efforts in the promotion of this Society.

As neighbors and citizens we have always found you and Mr. Hales kind, courteous and ever ready to give comfort to the sick and distressed and aid to those requiring it, and in all our social gatherings we have enjoyed your company and assistance.

As a token of our esteem we ask you to accept this gift, hoping you may often be reminded of the hospitality that awaits your future visits to the homes of your many friends in this neighborhood.

May success and happiness crown the lives of you both and your family, is the heartfelt wish of each and all of us.

Signed on behalf of the Ladies Aid Society.

Mrs. Duncan Brown and Miss Ella, are visiting relatives at London.

Mrs. H. G. McElmoyle and family and Mrs. Robt. Hales and family left for the West last week.

The L.O.L. held a picnic in Gallagher's Grove on the Twelfth which would have been a success only for the rain. A concert was held in the Orange Hall in the evening.

Mrs. Abner Windsor and son, are visiting at Peterborough.

Knox Church

The session of Knox Church will meet to-night at the close of the mid-week service.

The Sabbath school will have its annual outing on Friday, having per steamer "Stoney Lake" from government wharf at 8 o'clock a.m. for the upper lakes. The members of the Sabbath school will be taken free.

INCREASE IN SALARIES OF THE JUDGES

Bill May be Introduced at Next Session of Parliament

$2500 TO $3500

Not Enough They Say — Board Of Judges in Session To-day

The Board of Judges are in session to-day at the Judge's Chambers, and as the visitors intend to combine business with pleasure, their session and visit in Peterborough will no doubt prove an enjoyable one.

It is probable that at the next session of parliament a bill will be introduced to considerably increase the salaries now paid to county court judges.

The Minister of Justice, Hon. C. J. Doherty, has under consideration the question of a general re-adjustment and increase in the salaries of county court judges in Canada, asking the government to take into consideration the large increase in the cost of living during recent years which has not been accompanied by any corresponding increase in judicial salaries. Moreover, in consequence of re-adjustments of court work in most of the provinces, the jurisdiction of county court judges has been considerably increased in order to relieve the work of the higher courts. It was pointed out that salaries varying from $2,500 to $3,500 were not now sufficient to enable a judge to properly maintain the dignity of his position or educate his family, especially as the law required him to particularly forego any other means of increasing his income.

Furthermore, the legal profession believes that the present salaries to county court judges are not large enough to attract to the bench the best class of men.

Addresses of welcome were made this morning by Crown Attorney R. E. Wood, Daniel O'Connell and E. L. Goodwill, on behalf of the Peterborough Bar Association, and Ald. Gordon on behalf of the City Council and civic officials.

Luncheon and a trip down the river on Friday will be tendered the visitors.

BORROWED $40 FROM LADY FRIEND TO PAY BOARD

A well-dressed young Englishman who appeared before Acting Magistrate Rush on Monday on the charge of being a vagrant, was re-arraigned this morning.

Owing to the fact that a good position was found for the young man, he was let go on suspended sentence and will report to Chief Thompson every week.

While his stay in Peterborough has been short, he seems to have captivated the affections of a certain young lady. After running up a lengthy board bill of some $40 in one of the leading hotels, he was forced to borrow sufficient funds from his lady love to pay the bill. When asked by the Magistrate if he were going to marry the girl, he replied that he intended to do so. He was given a chance to make good, along with a lecture from the magisterial chair.

Without Guests

TRENTON, ONT., July 23.—Prince Edward County jail is said to be without a prisoner. The turnkey has retired, and the jailer and his wife are alone in the big stone building.

SEALED TENDERS addressed to the undersigned and endorsed "Tender for Toronto Harbour Works," will be received at this office until 4.00 P.M., on Monday, August 25, 1913, for the construction of a Sea Wall, Breakwater, Ship Channel and Retaining Walls at the City of Toronto, in the County of York, Province of Ontario.

Plans, specification and form of contract can be seen and forms of tender obtained at this Department and at the offices of the District Engineer, Confederation Life Building, Toronto, Ont.; Harbour Commissioner's Office, 76 Adelaide St. West, Toronto; H. J. Lamb, Esq. District Engineer, Windsor, Ont., and J. L. Michaud, Esq., District Engineer, Post Office, Montreal, Que.

Persons tendering are notified that tenders will not be considered unless made on the printed forms supplied, and signed with their actual signatures, stating their occupations and places of residence. In the case of firms, the actual signature, the nature of the occupation and place of residence of each member of the firm must be given.

Each tender must be accompanied by an accepted cheque on a chartered bank, payable to the order of the Honourable the Minister of Public Works, equal to five per cent (5 p.c.) of the amount of the tender, which will be forfeited if the person tendering decline to enter into a contract when called upon to do so, or fail to complete the work contracted for. If the tender be not accepted the cheque will be returned.

The Department does not bind itself to accept the lowest or any tender.

By order,
R. C. DESROCHERS,
Secretary.

Department of Public Works,

Expensive Evening Gowns

are not matters of every-day purchase, and therefore even the independently wealthy like to take the greatest care of them. Yet sometimes the functions of a single evening will ruin their appearance temporarily. We can remedy this, however, by our system of careful cleaning, and in any case we can dye the garment and make it like a new one.

Physicians Recommend Castoria

CASTORIA has met with pronounced favor on the part of physicians, pharmaceutical societies and medical authorities. It is used by physicians with results most gratifying. The extended use of Castoria is unquestionably the result of three facts: First—The indisputable evidence that it is harmless: Second—That it not only allays stomach pains and quiets the nerves, but assimilates the food: Third—It is an agreeable and perfect substitute for Castor Oil. It is absolutely safe. It does not contain any Opium, Morphine, or other narcotic and does not stupefy. It is unlike Soothing Syrups, Bateman's Drops, Godfrey's Cordial, etc. This is a good deal for a Medical Journal to say. Our duty, however, is to expose danger and record the means of advancing health. The day for poisoning innocent children through greed or ignorance ought to end. To our knowledge, Castoria is a remedy which produces composure and health, by regulating the system—not by stupefying it—and our readers are entitled to the information.—Hall's Journal of Health.

Letters from Prominent Physicians addressed to Chas. H. Fletcher.

Dr. B. Halstead Scott, of Chicago, Ills., says: "I have prescribed your Castoria often for infants during my practice, and find it very satisfactory."

Dr. William Belmont, of Cleveland, Ohio, says: "Your Castoria stands first in its class. In my thirty years of practice I can say I never have found anything that so filled the place."

Dr. J. H. Taft, of Brooklyn, N. Y., says: "I have used your Castoria and found it an excellent remedy in my household and private practice for many years. The formula is excellent."

Dr. R. J. Hamlen, of Detroit, Mich., says: "I prescribe your Castoria extensively, as I have never found anything to equal it for children's troubles. I am aware that there are imitations in the field, but I always see that my patients get Fletcher's."

Dr Wm. J. McCrann, of Omaha, Neb., says: "As the father of thirteen children I certainly know something about your great medicine, and aside from my own family experience I have in my years of practice found Castoria a popular and efficient remedy in almost every home."

Dr. J. R. Clausen, of Philadelphia, Pa., says: "The name that your Castoria has made for itself in the tens of thousands of homes blessed by the presence of children, scarcely needs to be supplemented by the endorsement of the medical profession, but I, for one, most heartily endorse it and believe it an excellent remedy."

Dr. R. M. Ward, of Kansas City, Mo., says: "Physicians generally do not prescribe proprietary preparations, but in the case of Castoria my experience, like that of many other physicians, has taught me to make an exception. I prescribe your Castoria in my practice because I have found it to be a thoroughly reliable remedy for children's complaints. Any physician who has raised a family, as I have, will join me in heartiest recommendation of Castoria."

PASSED AWAY FLINT, MICH.

Remains of the Late John Rickerby Brought Here for Interment

The remains of the late John Rickerby, who passed away at Flint, Michigan, arrived in the city on the 11.34 G.T.R. train to-day, and were then conveyed to St. Peter's cemetery.

The late Mr. Rickerby was a former resident of Peterborough. The remains were accompanied by Mr. Geo. Rickerby, a son.

A Fine Quartette

Bandsmen Moynes, Robinson Gray and Bandmaster Peryer, delighted the crowd at Victoria Park last night in their vocal quartette number "Far Away." The band concert was greatly enjoyed.

OBITUARY

The Late Mr. Breault

Mr. Ernest Breault, brother-in-law off Mr. J. B. Laroaque, of this city, passed away in Toronto yesterday afternoon. The late Mr. Breault was born in La prairie, some fifty-eight years ago, but spent the greater portion of his life in this city. A few years ago he went to Toronto, where he has since lived.

Deceased was unmarried, but leaves one brother, Archie, in Norwood, and two sisters, one in Toronto, and Mrs. J. B. Larocque, of this city, to mourn his loss.

Mr. J. B. Larocque went to Toronto to-day to accompany the body to this city to-night.

The Late Mrs. Edgar

Mrs John Edgar, of 577 Sherbrooke street, passed away this morning, after a short illness. The deceased was 43 years of age.

She was a daughter of Rev. Mr. Blattarwick, of the Immigration Halls, Winnipeg, and was born in England.

Before coming to this city, Mrs. Edgar resided in Burk's Falls, for some time. She was a valued teacher in All Saints' Sunday School and also an esteemed member of All Saints' Church, where she had been a faithful worker.

She leaves to mourn her loss, a husband and four children. Her parents who reside in Winnipeg, but are now here, and six brothers and two sisters, are also left to mourn her demise.

The funeral will take place from the family residence, Friday afternoon, to All Saints' Church, and the Little Lake Cemetery.

CAUGHT TWO FINE LUNGE

Mr. Napoleon Trombley, Rutherford Ave., had the extra good fortune to land two fine lunge, near the C.P.R. bridge, last evening. They were 10 and 18 pounds and the larger fish gave his captor a hard fight before taking the final count. He fought under the canoe on two occasions.

Mr Trombley caught both within twenty minutes.

AN OPTICAL TALK

Nothing is more surprising than the change which has come over the public with regard to Sight Testing. Ten years ago it was a matter of difficulty to overcome the reluctance which they manifested to the scientific examination of their eyes. They never had been tested and didn't see why they should be now.

To-day, however, matters are entirely changed, those people who come for the special purpose of having their eyes examined, far out-number those who come asking for Spectacles, and this I take as a compliment, proving as it does, that we should not supply glasses unless they would be of real benefit. It may surprise you to learn that many hundreds of people have been refused spectacles by us, either because their eyes were not in need of them, or more generally, because they had allowed them to get into such a serious condition that medical aid had become necessary.

It has been my rule for ten years never to supply glasses where an examination proves the advice of a Physician is required. You cannot afford to take chances with your eyes.

We manufacture all our lenses from "PEBLO" quality glass, the finest quality known to the science. We have the exclusive agency for this quality glass.

All work positively guaranteed.

FIRE CHIEF WILL ASK FOR EARLIER STREET LIGHTING

Ald. Duffus Complains That Lights Are Not Turned on Till 9.30—Who Will Accompany the Chief to New York Convention

Ald. Duffus, during a short session of the Fire, Water and Light Committee last night, complained about the street lights not being lighted till 9.30 p.m.

The Fire Chief was delegated to take the matter up with the company with a view to having the service made more satisfactory. This will include all moonlight periods.

"My own idea is that the Chief should go," remarked Chairman Ald. Gillespie when the question of the Fire Chief's attendance at the convention in New York in September came up.

Ald. Gillespie would also like to see the Mayor go or name somebody else, might accompany the Chief, as has been the custom.

This was not satisfactory to Mayor Bradburn, and no decision was arrived at as regards a second delegate. Ald. Duffus suggested that it might be a good opportunity to look up some industrial matter in New York.

Kingston citizens are sending their Fire Chief to the convention. After the Council had turned down the motion that he be a delegate to New York, private citizens and merchants subscribed sufficient funds to allow the Fire Chief to make the trip.

MORE HYDRANTS.

A hydrant for the Vermont Marble Co. will be placed at a point between the corner of Mark street and the Company's property.

It was reported that another hydrant had been located on Langton street, south side, for the Queen Mary Hospital.

FLYING THE ATLANTIC.

idging the Herring Pond In One Day by Waterplane.

Flying over the sea is the most ex- arating of all sensations. The wat- plane, or sea-going aeroplane, rests the water on floats. When the gine is started, it rushes along the rface, leaving a double line of foam hind it, at a speed which gradually creases. The pilot puts over his vator and the machines rises clear to the air. The speed in the air is tween 63 and 70 miles an hour, and machine, as it skims along the ps of the waves seems to be going an incredible pace. As it rises the nse of speed diminshes. At 1,000 t, the height of the Eiffel Tower, machine appears to be almost sta- nary.

There are not many hundred peo- e who have experienced the sensa- on. By the end of the year there ill be thousands, chiefly owing to he stimulus given by The Daily ail's new waterplane prizes of 0,000 for a flight across the Atlantic d $125,000 for a flight round Britain.

Flying the Atlantic! It is not so possible as it sounds. All the ex- rts, including the naval airmen, be- ve that it will be done before Octo- r of next year. There is no im- ssibility of its being done next nth by a flyer who does not mind king his life in his hands.

The shortest distance between New- ndland and Ireland is about 1,880 les. The time allowed for the flight 72 hours, or three days. It is prac- lly certain that the flight will be mplished eastwards—that is, from erica to England, with the pre- iling winds favoring the pilot. But e shortest route will not be taken. e Atlantic flyer will keep to the in steamer track, and the distance covers will not be less than 2,000 les.

Imagine then, the first attempt. e flyer will have a comrade. Their chine will be of at least 150 horse- wer, probably more, and they will vel at 70 miles an hour, and carry trol and oil for six hours. They ve 2,000 miles to go in three days, t there is no reason why they uld not fly at night as well as by y.

ey start from St. John's, Nfld., dawn on a summer day. They e in the harbor, and circle until ey reach a height of 5,000 or 6,000 et. They fly southeast. They can 50 miles at least in every direc- on. Presently they sight a great lin- and know they have struck the ck. They turn due east, and with light west wind behind them cover miles to the hour with the engines ing full power. By eleven o'clock the morning they have covered 400 500 miles.

Now comes the anxious moment. mewhere on the sea below them is ir first depot ship, with food, oil, d petrol. The pilot's comrade works wireless. They get connection, ange their course, sight the ship, d, with one long, silent swoop, with engine stopped, descend on the ves beside her. They rest two urs or so, and reascend at two lock. They have six clear hours of ylight left, and 500 more to go to next depot ship.

Two more stages of equal length, d the $50,000 is theirs. They have en fifteen hours en route, and are lf-way. Fifteen from 72 leaves 57. me to go aboard the depot ship and ep. Rouse out at 4 a.m., and start ain at five. One more depot ship find at noon, one more long, weary ight through the afternoon and even- g, and a low dark line on the hori- n ahead, Ireland in sight, and the me won.

There is nothing impossible in this scription, but everything has been sumed to be favorable to the pilots the weather, the wind, the easy find- ng of the depot ships, the continual mooth running of the motor, and the hysical ability of the flyers to stand e strain. It is unlikely that every- hing will go as well as that but still is possible. The description as- umes nothing in the way of machine r engine that is not at present in istence.

A Good-Natured Target.

An incident that occurred in the ex- rience of an English officer is told y The London Spectator to illustrate e calmness and indifference to death d bodily danger characteristic of e Turkish soldier.

The officer, accompanied by a guard Turkish soldiers, went to the edge a cliff overlooking the sea to oot at a seal that he saw disporting self in the water below. He fired a od many times, and the last shot d gone very near the bobbing mark, hen one of the soldiers came to him d politely asked, "Do you not ink, sir, that you have fired often ough at Sergt. Yusuf?" The sup- sed seal was indeed the sergeant. esently the sergeant came ashore, t on his clothes, and came up the ff smilingly. The officer apologized ndsomely, and blamed himself free- . But Yusuf, like his companions, d not think there was much to be ncerned about. After all, the mark d been very small; it was natural fire at it; it was unlikely that the ficer would hit it, and he (Yusuf) s not minded it at all.

The Cost of Living

IS A PROBLEM that affects, in a greater or less degree, every member of the community. It presses hard on some, and on a few its effect is a negligible quantity

THE enterprising merchant is thoroughly alive to the fact that the high cost of living is in many ways an oppressive burden. He knows that the margin between income and expenditure is often a very narrow one. He buys newspaper space to let people know that he knows. In short, he advertises.

The merchant who advertises has something worth while to tell. That stands to reason, don't it, because newspaper space costs money? It will pay you, therefore, to watch carefully the announcements of the stores that advertise. You'll find all the good stores advertising in

The Daily Review

THE persistent reader of newspaper advertisements has discovered the best way to combat the high cost of living. His dollar has a greater buying power than that of the non-reader—or spasmodic reader—of ads because he employs it with more knowledge and more discrimination. It is an easy matter to cut down your living expenses by fifteen, twenty or twenty-five per cent.—and even more—by being a careful student of the daily store ads. In this way you will get "wise" to the values. You will ask for the advertised article at the advertised price and you will know before you go shopping what you are going to pay.

CHESTY ROGERS REPLACED DONOVAN AND PETES WERE PREVENTED FROM RALLYING

Good Judgment by "Terrible Shag." Held the Rowanites Back and Senators Won

DOLAN STARRED

Former white Cap Had Four Singles and One Extra Base Clout

Good leadership by the Terrible Shag, was largely responsible for that win by the Senators yesterday.

After relieving Ed. Renfer in the very first frame, Donovan journeyed along in fairly good style till the sixth, when the locals started to land on the leather again. Two corking drives through second decided the Circuit Terror that the ex-Red Sox flinger wouldn't go any further.

The Senators were two ahead and Mr. Shaughnessy gave the word to Lefty Chesty Rogers to forsake the eastern limits and ascend the hill.

CHESTY DID IT

Chesty did so, and quite successfully did the Whole Show perform. He stranded the two runners, held the Petes to a single for three innings and turned them away scoreless till the ninth, when his vanity got the better of him and he shoved 'em across to McNeal and Chapdelaine. The result was a brace of hits for two bags and one run.

"Tobby" Thompson made a heroic effort to continue the pleasing work but Left Gardener Fox posed and held the ball with one hand, just to rub it in.

RENFER FARED BADLY

The Petes had bumped Renfer in the first as fast as he could shoot them and his stay was brief indeed. Brant shot a screamer through the infield and Rowan drew a pass. Trout laid down a sacrifice as Brant and Rowan were bent on a double steal. Dave Hilliard came next with a clout to I-am-the-best-player-in-the-League—Rogers, and so great was the velocity that the ball went right on through the Mighty One, Brant and Rowan scoring. A lovely single dropped in shortright by Swartz, scored Hilliard. McNeal dropped another one base single in right, but following a consultation between the Terrible Shag and the Kentucky youth, the latter took up the duties of water boy, while Donovan went forth. Chapdelaine popped to the shortstop, while the pitcher threw out Thompson after a smart stop.

THREE ON, NO SCORE

With two out in their half of the second the Senators placed three men on bags. Donovan walked, Bullock hit, and when Crowder hit to Brant, he threw to Thompson at second but the latter dropped the ball. Then Peggy Swartz got a glad hand by taking a long fly from Shag and retiring the side.

HILLIARD WAS PASSED

The Petes put three on and failed to tally. Belting who hit through second was forced by Brant, Rowan bit down short and Grant fouled to the catcher. Following the instructions of The Terror, Donovan lobbed four balls to Hilliard and there were three on. Peggy Swartz flied out to right and the manoeuvre was a success.

AFTER TWO WERE OUT

Belting fanned the first two in the fourth, after which Ottawa took two runs and shot ahead. Bullock was passed and he scored on Crowder's hit. Shag hit through Rowan, and when Thompson threw the ball badly to first, Crowder scored from third. Shag was caught stealing.

The homesters evened up in their half. Brant got a hit on a hard chance to Fox at second and Rowan sacrificed him. He went to third on Trout's out and Hilliard's drive through second scored him.

Singles by Rogers and Dolan, an infield out and Lage's biff to centre scored the first two in the fifth, and gave the visitors a lead again.

When it looked like a blow up by Donovan, he was chased in favor of Rogers and the Petes were stopped. Powers had gone to left field, Fox to right and Robertson came to second.

In the sixth the Senators took four runs. Bullock died on a fly to Trout but Crowder walked. Shag had a biff down third beaten but Trout threw to Rowan, the ball going past, allowing Crowder to score. A juggle by Thompson and singles by Dolan, Robertson and Lage added the other three.

The only other score came in the ninth on successive doubles by McNeal and Chapdelaine.

"Hans" Wagner

PITTSBURG, July 22.—"Honus" Wagner's uniform and his plamless glove may be placed in the Carnegie museum here when the famous player retires from the diamond. Dr. W. J. Holland, director of the museum, believes that baseball is something worth telling posterity about. Many ancient games are represented at the museum by interesting relics, and Dr. Holland has announced that the institution would like Wagner's baseball accoutrements when he retires, believing him to be the most wonderful ball player ever known.

BASEBALL

At the meeting of the Mercantile Baseball League last night, it was decided to play the postponed games of Huly 12, next Saturday. The games at Brinton Park will be Brintons vs. Quakers and M.A.P. vs. Typos.

The game between the Canoe Builders and Machine Shop, billed for Riverside Park will be played at Nicholls Oval. The game between the Bankers and the Drafting Room caused some excitement. The Bankers didn't want to play on Saturday and the Drafting Room did, thus an argument started which at times grew very strong. It was finally decided to leave the question with the two managers.

The Drafting Room Baseball team kept up their heavy hitting, fine fielding, etc., last night, and they defeated a south-end picked team by [illegible]-2 in a six innings game.

The teams were:—

Umpire—Heath.

The Cost of High Living.

Pessimist—If I should give you a dime, what would you do with it?

Optimist—Well, first, I would get a hair cut and a shave. After that I would take a Turkish bath, and, while doing the sanitary, I'd order a complete change of clothes, from high hat to shoes. Having dressed, I would go to the best hotel in the city and pay for a year's board and suit of rooms in advance. With a part of the balance I would buy an automobile and several aeroplanes, with complete equipment for one year. Then I would make my will, leaving part of my vast income to my poor relatives, well knowing that such living for one year would kill even a man of my constitution. However, some of my wealth should go toward building libraries and establishing pension funds and medal factories for dead heroes and bachelors.—Pittsburgh Press.

Elephant's Milk.

A schoolteacher who was giving a lesson on "Food" was interrupted by one of his pupils.

"Please, sir," he said, "Jimmy says he knew a baby that was brought up on elephant's milk, and it gained ten pounds in weight every day."

"James ought not to tell you such rubbish," said the teacher. "Whose baby was it that was brought up on elephant's milk?"

"Please, sir," answered Jimmy, "it was the elephant's."—Chicago Record-Herald.

IRONING CLOTHES WITH THE FEET

A writer in The Wide World Magazine says that the most curious sight he saw at Cairo was men ironing clothes with their feet! The men were employed in the native tailoring establishments. Except for the long handle, the irons were shaped like the ordinary flat-iron, only larger. A solid block of wood rested on the top of the iron, and on this the men placed one foot, guiding the iron in the desired direction by means of the handle. For the sake of convenience, ironing-boards were raised only a few inches from the ground, and however strange the method may seem to us, the work was done very well and very expeditiously.

Bury Gold In India.

There is buried in India by the natives of that country every year a sum of gold which is equal to the amount taken yearly out of the mines in South Africa. The amount of gold, jewels and precious stones which lie buried in India is practically incalculable.

To Bring Candles.

The troubles at Holy Trinity Church, Old Brompton, Chatham, England, are somewhat acute, and the latest proposal of the vicar is that, owing to the gas having been cut off, he will ask each worshipper to bring his or her own candle to evensong.

VISIT OF HON. FRANK COCHRANE TO PETERBORO AND TRIP OVER THE CANAL

"I want to see Peterborough as well as the canal," said Hon. Frank Cochrane. "I have been told a good deal about your needs and your outlook, and I would like very much to see what you are like."

That was the Minister's rejoinder to the question, "How long will you be with us?" The Minister arrived unexpectedly at 7 p.m. on Monday evening from Heeley's Falls by motor and put up at the Oriental. After dinner those desirous of interviewing him were introduced by Mr. Burnham. Mr. Denham, Mr. Patterson, Mr. Munro and the Mayor wanted to know what the policy of the Government was going to be regarding conservation. The Minister made it clear that the Dominion Government's end of it would be well looked after. Mr. Duignan and Mr. Crane represented the lumbermen, who also wanted to know. Mr. Shook and Mr. Davidson represented the Peterborough Lumber Co. On Tuesday morning the party was driven to the C.G.E. and the Quaker Oats works, both of which the Minister expressed a desire to see. He was impressed with their extent and requirements. Mr. Sexsmith, M.P., who had come up from Havelock on Tuesday morning, went on to Lindsay to the laying of Col. Hughes's corner stone, while the party composed of the Minister, Mr. Bowden, Chief Engineer of the Department; Mr. Ferguson, M.L.A.; Mr. Irwin, Mr. Kendry, Mr. Patterson and Mr. Burnham motored to Nassau, where the dam is to be immediately replaced by a new one. Mr. Shook and Mr. Davidson laid the Dickson Co's. request before the Minister at Lakefield respecting the new dam to be erected at Lakefield. "We will give nothing any more for nothing," said the Minister. "The people are all entitled to a share in the good things, and our natural resources must be administered accordingly." The Minister expressed a desire to see what the tourist traffic was like, and the cruise was extended through Stoney Lake, which did itself proud from every point of view. "This beats the St. Lawrence and the 1000 Islands," exclaimed the Minister. At Burleigh the new dam was inspected and commended. When the new lock is built the water will be raised at least four feet at Burleigh. This will mean a greatly increased power and expensive conservation. At this point Mr. Burnham recited the wrong done the people when Burleigh power was handed over to a private Company. "We'll see about that," replied the Minister, "I don't think it is too late by any means to have this great asset restored to its rightful owners. You know the Ontario Government has a good deal to say about some of these things and should be waked up. I am glad to see you are trying to get things into clear and definite shape, order out of chaos, you know."

At Buckhorn the party inspected the celebrated Buckhorn dam. Mr. Cochrane again denounced the alleged bargain of the late Minister with the County Council as having been made wholly without payment for it of any kind. "Now Mr. Cochrane" said Mr. Burnham, "You clearly said that you would carry out that bargain if I could get the late Minister to say what he meant. After a whole year's toil I got the first record on paper of the matter and... "Well we'll see—we'll see, but it never should have been done," said the Minister.

The deputation to consider the flooded Harvey Road and the Bannon's Narrows bridge, consisting of W. T. Elliott, William Clarkson, David Weir and James Weir boarded the Bessie Butler at the Minister's invitation and accompanied him to the Narrows. They laid all their plans before him. "That's one of the best and most sensible deputations I ever met," the Minister told Mr. Burnham afterwards. "Our people are all like that," was the reply. "Is there any hope for Dominion help for the bridge?" "There certainly is. Those men were very fair and candid about it. The day is gone by for humbug I hope at least in our business affaris." From Bobcaygeon Mr. Kendry went on to Orillia wtih the party, the others returning to Peterbroo over roads that need improvement badly. Are the days of the corduroy coming back? It looks like it.

With the Irish Guards Band and Patrick Conway's Band both giving three concerts daily at the Canadian National Exhibtiion, lovers of band music will be able to compare the best English and American bands. The Irish Guards are undoubtedly the most popular of the Guards' bands and that means the most popular of European military bands while Conway's band has succeeded Gilmore's band as the popular favorite in the republic to the south of us. These two bands make the greatest musical attraction the Canadian National has ever offered its patrons. 16

STICKNEY FAMILY AT SELLS-FLOTO CIRCUS

When we come to consider the remarkable equestrians who from time to time have added lustre to the circus world, it has to be admitted as a matter of course that the Stickney family hold a place second to none in the history of circus achievements.

The Sells-Floto circus which comes here on August 20th, presents, amongst the other important features of their program, three members of this remarkable family, namely Emma, Emily and Robert Stickney, forming a galaxy of stars such as no circus heretofore has had the enterprise to procure.

These riders therefore need no introduction to the amusement-loving public. There is nothing in the way of bareback equitation which they do not accomplish with a grace and ease which is abosiutely astounding.

They will be seen at all the performances of the Sells-Floto circus and in addition to them might be mentioned that they are only some of the famous troupe programed, as the list also includes the Hobsons, the Lowandes, Miss Rhoda Royal, Miss Maud Burbank, Miss Irene Montgomery, Miss Lucile King and several others of lesser note.

The price of admission for the Sells-Floto circus is 25 cents as has been their policy for the past four years. 46

2320 CHEESE BOARDED HIGH PRICE 13 3-16 CENTS

Another falling off in the supply, was recorded at Cheese Board meeting this morning, when 2,320 cheese were boarded. The total at last meeting was 2,411.

First selection bids were as follows: Watkins 12 7-8; Gillespie 13; Cook 13 1-16; Kerr 13 1-8; Cook 13 3-16.

Mr Cook at 13 3-16 cents took Westwood, Villiers, Ormonde and Norwood, and then dropped to 13 1-8 for further selection. Mr. Kerr raised to 13 3-16 and took the balance of the board.

The cheese was boarded as follows:

| | |
|---|---|
| Keene | 75 |
| Warminster | 75 |
| Shearer | 105 |
| C. Smith | 80 |
| Villiers | 100 |
| Warsaw | 130 |
| Westwood | 175 |
| Oakdale | 105 |
| Daisy D. | 70 |
| Myrtle | 175 |
| Ormonde | 150 |
| Selwyn | 120 |
| Lang | 115 |
| Indian River | 105 |
| East Emily | 120 |
| Trewern | 110 |
| Bensfort | 70 |
| Norwood | 160 |
| Fleetwood | 110 |
| Young's Point | 80 |
| Killanrey | 90 |
| Killarney | 90 |

Mr. Kerr raised a laugh when in reply to the Bensfort salesman, who asked for inspection at the factory and stated that it was only a short trip by auto, said that he did not own an auto and had to walk.

Mr. Andrews the Killarney and Norwood representative stated that he had received no notice of short weight as had been announced at the last meeting, and he was quite ready to pay up.

CHARGED WITH BREACH OF THE TRAFFIC BY-LAW

But Defendant Claims He Tooted Horn on Auto

The case of Dr. Pulkinghorn, charged with an infraction of the traffic by-law, was heard before acting Magistrate Rash at Police Court this morning. Judgment was reserved until to-morrow morning.

G. N. Gordon appeared for the defendant who pleaded not guilty.

The defendant was driving his auto at the time and the complainant R. Desautel, claimed that Dr. Pulkinghorn violated the rules of the road so that he was forced to the side. He met with injuries and his machine was damaged. The auto was travelling west on Simcoe street and Desautel claimed the horn was not sounded.

Thomas Ellis corroborated Desautel's story.

Dr. Pulkinghorn claimed that he did operate the horn but that Desautel seemed to loose his head and ride directly across the path of the car.

"I was over 35 feet away from him," said witness.

TWENTY DAYS ON THE HILL

Two Vagrants Failed to Account Favorably at Police Court

John Macdonald of Toronto, charged with vagrancy, was fined $5 or 20 days at Police Court this morning. Being without funds he accepted the twenty days. McDonald "blew in" last night on the C.P.R. and was found by Special Officer Weller, on whose approach he ran. After an exciting chase down the track for nearly a half a mile, McDonald was caught and taken to the police station. He claimed to be a boiler maker. His appearance was fairly good evidence of many nights in the open.

W. J. Kenney, of Lindsay, a follower of the fall fairs, charged with vagrancy, was given a similar dose of 20 days in jail. He also landed in the city last night.

PAINFUL INJURY TO LEFT EYE

A very painful accident befell Mr. M. Mannion, an employe of Matthews-Laing Ltd., this morning. Mr. Mannion was engaged in flooding the floor with boiling water, when in some manner the water splashed back, scalding him badly about the left eye and head. He was removed to his home and though his sight will not be affected yet he is suffering considerable pain.

U.S. CABINET PREPARES ULTIMATUM FOR MEXICO

Alternative Suggestions Are That United States Offer to Act as a Mediator Between Huerta and the Revolutionaries and an Election be Held or That U.S. Suspend Its Present Guarantee of Neutrality.

WASHINGTON, July 24.—President Wilson has apparently reached the conclusion that the time has come for the U. S. Government to take action having for its object the ending of hostilities in Mexico and the re-establishment of law and order there.

The plan which the President and his advisers have under consideration embraces alternative propositions that may be set forth as follows:

First, that the United States Government offer its services as mediator to bring about an agreement between the Huerta Government and the Constitutionalists under which both sides will cease hostilities, agree to hold a constitutional election for President and Congress at an early date, and accept the result of that election, the Government of the United States agreeing in return to recognize the Federal authority thus constitutionally chosen and installed.

Second, failing that, that the United States Government rescind the ~~privilege possessed by the Huerta Gov~~ernment of importing arms and other munitions of war from the United States, thus placing both Huertaists and Constitutionalist on an equality in that particular.

There was a report current to-day that the President had determined not to permit further war supplies to be sent from the United States to Mexico, but other information is that whatever course may be decided on will not be acted upon until Ambassador Wilson has reached Washington and has given a first-hand account to the President and Secretary of State of the conditions that prevail in Mexico City and throughout Mexican territory. Ambassador Wilson is expected to reach New York by steamer from Havana to-morrow afternoon, and his conference with the President will take place that night or on Saturday. While there is no official authority for the statement, it is the general understanding in Administrative circles that the ambassador will not return to Mexico City in an official capacity. That much appears to have been determined in advance of his coming.

The Administration's decision that a new and definite policy was necessary in dealing with the Mexican situation is believed to be a direct result of Tuesday's debate in the Senate over the resolution of Senator Fall of New Mexico, providing that "every American citizen residing or having property in any foreign country is entitled to and should be given full protection of the American Government."

Torreon Taken By Rebels?

~~MEXICO CITY, July 24.—Unofficial~~ advices received here yesterday persistently report that the town of Torreon, in the state of Coahuila, has fallen into the hands of the constitutionalists. Officials of the Mexican Government, however, deny the report.

The Torreon garrison consisted of more than 3,000 officers and men, as well as a number of cannon, and if the report that the town has been capitulated be true, it is assumed here that a portion of the garrison must have revolted and aided the rebels.

RISKED LIVES FOR A DOG

Two Men at Falls Made Human Chain to Save Terrier.

NIAGARA FALLS, N.Y., July 24.—Taking their lives in their hands, reservation constable Arthur R. Alexander and Frank Glassbrook, hackman, formed a human chain in the rapids ten feet above the American Falls, at six o'clock last night, to rescue a fox terrier which fell into the river sixty feet above the cataract. The rescue was accomplished at imminent risk of the lives of two men, while a hundred spectators looked on in terror. Once Glassbrook lost his footing on the slippery river bottom, and was nearly carried over the brink.

When the dog was brought ashore a woman member of an auto party, in a car bearing a Michigan license took the animal saying: "I'll take him back to Michigan as a souvenir."

Serious Uprising In Portugal.

MADRID, July 24.—Travelers arriving here from Portugal yesterday declare the present revolutionary movement in that country to be of a most important character and that even supporters of the republican government consider the situation as most serious.

THE MEN ARE DISSATISFIED

Have to Pay Out Funds for Others Who Did Not Return to Work

Canadian Press Despatch.

NEW YORK, N.Y., July 24. — A truce between the railroad managements and men continues, but the men are growing restive over having to pay eight thousand dollars to one thousand committee men. They have not gone back to their locomotives since the figures of the strike-vote were announced. Neither are the men satisfied with the supposed actions of the railroad managers in dropping three of the eight demands which they wanted submitted simultaneously with the men's grievances.

THIS CHARGE WAS DISMISSED

Dr. Pulkinghorn not Guilty of Violating Traffic Bylaw

The charge against Dr. Pulkinghorn of violation of the traffic by law was dismissed, this morning at Police Court, Acting Magistrate Rush contended that Dr. Pulkinghorn had properly sounded his auto horn but Deasttel, the complainant, had evidently become excited and ran into the sidewalk.

JAMES CONMEE PASSES AWAY

Picturesque Figure in Political Life Dies in Arizona.

PORT ARTHUR, Ont., July 24.—A message last evening from Prescott, Ariz., announces the death of James Conmee, ex-M.P., who had been ill for about four or five years. His ~~illness became serious~~ while at Ottawa during the time of 1910, and in 1911 he engaged in the reciprocity campaign as candidate in Thunder Bay and Rainy River against his physician's advice.

Later he left for Saranac Lake, N.Y., and remained there until February last, when he went to Arizona. His death was unexpected. Mrs. Conmee and daughter were on the way to join him and received news of his death while at Kansas City. He leaves three daughters, Mrs. James Whalen, Mrs. M. J. Kelly, Miss Louise and one son, Arthur B. The body will be brought here for interment.

Jim Conmee, as he was generally known, was born at Sydenham, Ont., 65 years ago. He was educated in the Owen Sound Grammar School, and had the unusual experience for a Canadian of serving in the 8th New York Cavalry Brigade, under General Custer, in the American Civil War. He was largely interested in railway, mining and lumbering ventures, in which he built up a large fortune.

He entered public life as mayor of Port Arthur, and he was elected to the Legislature as a Liberal for Port Arthur in 1885, sitting there until 1904, when he was elected to the Federal seat of Thunder Bay and Rainy River. He is remembered as a provincial legislator as the author of the Conmee Act, which had to do with restricting powers of municipalities in the matter of public lighting. In 1911 he declined to contest the Federal seat in the deferred election on account of ill-health. He was a Roman Catholic in religion

Nationalist Son Inherited Little.

LONDON, July 24.—The late Baron Ashbourne, the noted Unionist leader, whose death occurred on May 22, has left a fortune of $450,000 to his second son, Edward Gibson, and only $4,000 to his eldest son, William Gibson. The latter is an enthusiastic Nationalist, wears the ancient Irish dress and speaks the Irish language and was converted to Catholicism.

James Robertson Dead.

BROCKVILLE, July 24.—The death occurred here at the family residence of James Robertson, a former town councillor, and for fifteen years deputy sheriff of these united counties, coming here from Spencerville, his former home, to accept that position in 1873. He was 74 years of age.

Soo's First Elevator.

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont., July 24—D. Jannison & Sons, local contractors, have just been awarded a contract by the Dominion Government to erect an electric passenger elevator in the postoffice here at a cost of $11,000. This is the first passenger elevator in any building in the Soo.

Gasoline Explosion Fatal.

BRANTFORD, July 24.—When the M.C.R. freight sheds were ablaze in Waterford on Tuesday, another alarm was sounded in the town. A tank of gasoline at the canning factory exploded. Frank Duesting, aged 35 years, was so badly burned that he died early yesterday morning.

KING CHARLES OF ROUMANIA TAKES FIELD

CHARLES I.
KING OF ROUMANIA.

Greek, Servian and Roumanian armies are rapidly closing in on Bulgaria. From Belgrade came an official report that the Serbs stormed Julikamik, near Kustenli, yesterday, routing the Bulgarian right wing. The casualties were enormous, it was stated.

The advance of the Roumanians continues unopposed, and the Bulgarians sank two torpedo boats and steamers in the Danube to prevent the Roumanians from capturing them. King Charles, the seventy-four-year-old monarch of Roumania, has gone to the front. Roumania has made no official declaration as to how far her troops will advance, but the Powers believe that the line bounding the territory King Charles claims as a reward for neutrality in the Turco-Balkan war will not be crossed.

Tsar Ferdinand telegraphed King Charles of Roumania that he was ready to enter into negotiations for peace. It is understood that the Bulgarian monarch did not mention any terms.

POISONED HER BABES

Mother Then Takes Drug and Tells Husband.

ONE WILL DIE

Woman Has Been Subject to Fits of Insanity.

BERLIN, Ont., July 24.—Information was received here yesterday of a poisoning case yesterday afternoon near Millbank, when Mrs. Thomas Crummer gave her two infant children, both boys, aged 2 and 4 years respectively, a dose of Paris green in some water and then took a dose of poison herself. The mother immediately informed her husband of what she had done, and Dr. W. C. Pratt of Newton was summoned. The elder boy died after suffering terrible agony. The mother and younger child will live, it was stated last night.

Coroner Glaister Wellesley, who was called to investigate the circumstances, decided that an inquest was unnecessary, as the terrible act was the result of a fit of insanity to which the mother was subject.

In the morning Mr and Mrs. Crummer had been shopping in Millbank and among other things, purchased a package of Paris Green. In the afternoon Mrs. Crummer, after putting the children to bed and giving them a dose of the drug and taking one herself, went to the field and apprised her husband of the deed. He and the hired man rushed to the house, where they found the younger boy lying on the grass and the elder one in the bedroom vomiting copiously. He had evidently received a very heavy dose, as he succumbed to the effects about three or four hours later.

TOWNS ARE OCCUPIED BY INVADERS

Canadian Press Despatch.

LONDON, July 24.—The "red fleet" representing the invaders in the manoeuvres now in progress, raided the coast this morning and landed troops in the neighborhood of the Humber. Vice Admiral Jellicoe, commanding "the enemy" routed the "blue" or defending fleet, after which his transports landed troops. These later, routed the territorial forces and occupied the towns of Grimsby, Cleethorpe and Birmingham (?)

RETAIL MERCHANTS AT CAMPBELLFORD

CAMPBELLFORD, July 24 – A local branch of the Retail Merchants' Association has been formed here with the following officers:

President— W. J. Armstrong.

1st Vice-President— J. A. [illegible]son.

2nd Vice-President— G. W. [illegible]as.

Secretary— J. A. Smith.

Treasurer— W. S. Russell.

CRIPPEN'S COUNSEL SENTENCED

Arthur Newton Sent to Jail For Three Years.

LONDON, July 24.—A three years' term of penal servitude was imposed yesterday at the Old Bailey sessions on Arthur Newton, the lawyer who came into such prominence during the trial of Dr. Crippen for murder. He was ~~charged with conspiracy~~ to defraud Dr. Hans Thorsch, a wealthy young citizen of Vienna out of $115,000 by false pretences in 1911 and 1912.

Newton's companion, Berkeley Bernard Bennett, was sentenced at the same time to 18 months' hard labor. The judge characterized the prisoners' action as a gross conspiracy to defraud Thorsch.

In the course of the testimony it was shown that Thorsch was induced by the conspirators to part with his fortune on the pretence that it was to be invested for him and the investments chosen were "wild cat" schemes.

PISTOL IN COMMONS.

Suffragette Fires Weapon to Punctuate Keir Hardie's Speech.

LONDON, July 24.—Another melodramatic suffragette interruption in the House of Commons occurred last night when a pistol containing only a percussion cap was fired by a youth in the strangers' gallery. Keir Hardie had just been condemning the Home Secretary's administration of the "cat and mouse" bill and the police invasion of a private house to re-arrest Mrs. Pankhurst. As soon as Mr. McKenna rose to reply there was a loud crack in the strangers' gallery. Immediately several detectives and attendants rushed to a youth who fired the pistol and hauled him bodily out of the gallery without ceremony.

The youth, who appeared not more than seventeen years old, though he gave his age as twenty-two, seemed thoroughly scared as he was removed to the detention room. He gave his name as Ernest Washington.

He said he came from Leeds, where he works as a mechanical engineer, and said he was a member of the Socialist Club in Leeds.

The pistol was not a toy. It was a small weapon but did not contain a bullet. Only a percussion cap had been fired.

Mr. McKenna, in reply, said the police had no authority to break into a private house to arrest a suffragist, but if the house was open to them they were at liberty to enter. As to the administration act he said these women could not hope to become licensed lawbreakers.

BISHOP FALLON SEES THE POPE

ROME, July 24.—A group of Canadian pilgrims were received in private audience yesterday by the Pope. They were conducted by the Rt. Rev. Michael F. Fallon, Bishop of London, Ont., who presented Peter's pence, amounting to $2,000. Bishop Fallon delivered an address expressing the loyalty of Canadian Catholics to the Holy See. The Pope then imparted the apostolic benediction.

The pilgrims afterward visited Cardinal Merry Del Val, Papal Secretary of State.

TURKEY DECLARES FOR WAR

Attack on Bulgaria May Rouse the Other Allies.

LONDON, July 24.—The Morning Post publishes a Constantinople telegram, via Vienna, asserting that, after a long Ministerial Council, it has been decided to declare war officially against Bulgaria.

The Turkish army, according to this account, has been ordered not only to occupy Adrianople, but to cross the frontier as quickly as possible and march into Bulgarian territory.

According to apparently reliable telegrams from Belgrade, the Servian Government regards this as an attack on the whole Balkan league, and the Cabinets at Belgrade, Athens and Cettinje are preparing to act accordingly.

Russia's Demands.

LONDON, July 24. A Times' despatch from St. Petersburg says The Russian Government is credited with the intention of insisting that, the Turks evacuate Adrianople at all costs.

A Bucharest despatch to The Times says it is feared that the Greek demands will be so extravagant as to delay the signing of an armistice, and indefinitely postpone a meeting of the proposed peace conference.

The Athens' correspondent of The Times says that as a result of a fresh understanding between the belligerents and Roumania, it has been decided to hold the peace conference at Bucharest.

Austria Unlikely To Intervene.

ZURICH, Switzerland, July 24.—M. Puchen, the French Foreign Minister, is quoted by The Nouvelle Gazette yesterday as saying:

"I do not think that Austria is profiting by the circumstances and intends to intervene in the Balkan trouble. The understanding among the powers has not been weakened, and will be maintained. I do not believe that any of them will take up arms in the Balkans, and they will under no circumstances permit Bulgaria to be dismembered."

Turkish Massacres Reported.

SOFIA, July 24.—It is reported here that the Turks committed indescribable horrors at Adrianople, giving the fleeing population no quarter.

It is also alleged that the Turks massacred the inhabitants of Kirk Kilisseh.

CANADIANS INSIDE

Bisley Marksmen Safe For Second Stage of King's Prize Match.

BISLEY CAMP, July 24.—(C. A. P. Cable.)—Leading scores in the first stage, 600 yards, in the King's Prize, and first stage in the grand and territorial aggregates, Pte. Gibson of the Scottish Rifles, 102; Sergt. Mackenzie, Scottish Horse; Major Varley, Honorable Artillery; Sergt. Fenly, Warwick, and Sergt. Keefe, London, 101. Ten men, including Pte. Hawkins, 48th Highlanders, Toronto, and Sergt. Steele, C.A.S.C., Guelph, made 100. Other Canadians, Stick, Parker and Carr, will shoot off for admission to the second stage. All under 94 are out.

There are 1,165 entries for the King's Prize, as against 1,106 a year ago. The shooting yesterday was done in a stiffish breeze, which affected the scoring.

Sergt. Lee was fifth in the Graphic, winning five pounds and sketches, and Freeborn, 15th, won three pounds and sketches.

Rain In Fruit Belt.

ST. CATHARINES, July 24.—A gentle rain falling since seven o'clock last evening has gladdened the hearts of the fruitgrowers of the entire Niagara peninsula. While this section has escaped the drought experienced in other parts of Ontario, all fruits have arrived at a stage where moisture is as necessary as sunshine to develop big yields. Last evening's steady downpour, it is hoped, will have the effect of increasing the yield of raspberries considerably. The tomato crop, slowly ripening, should also make big gains after the freshening.

Skull Fractured In Fall.

TORONTO, July 24.—Failing to see a Yonge street car as it passed down Yonge street at midnight, a man whose name is still unknown was struck and thrown unconscious to the pavement at the corner of Albert street. Pedestrians who saw the accident phoned for the police ambulance, but before it arrived the man was taken to St. Michael's Hospital in a private motor car. Physicians worked for hours in an effort to save his life, but it is doubtful if he will recover, as he has a fracture of the skull. He is about forty years of age.

Miss Doherty Not Badly Hurt.

MONTREAL, July 24.—Miss Katherine Doherty, the 20-year-old daughter of the Hon. J. C. Doherty, Minister of Justice, who was slightly injured when the automobile in which she was riding crashed into the granite coping extending out into the square between the Bonaventure Station and the St. James' Hotel, throwing the two women occupants out, is in an improved condition at the General Hospital, where she was taken after the accident.

CHINESE REBELS SUFFER REVERSE AND RETIRE

Government Professes to View the Present Insurrection Without Alarm and Yuan Shi Kai's Firm Attitude is Restoring Confidence in the Empire.

PEKIN, July 24.—The Government professes to view the revolutionary movement in the south without alarm. The southern troops from Nanking, known as the "Punish Yuan" expedition, have suffered a fresh reverse and retreated from Suchowfu and taken up a strong position at Linhwaikwan in the adjoining province of Anhwei, where the Tien Tsin-Nanking Railway crosses the Hwai River, to await the arrival of the Canton expedition, which is expected to land 15,000 troops at Pukow.

The Government declares that the navy will sink every ship engaged in transporting the Canton expedition, if ever it starts.

A manifesto has been issued, stripping Gen. Chimei, the ex-Minister of Commerce, and Gen. Huan Sing, the former generalissimo of the revolutionary army, and now commander of the southern army, of their ranks and orders, offering a reward to any of their followers who arrest or kill them, and a pardon to all the rebels who surrender, except the leaders.

President Yuan Shi Kai's firm determination to suppress the rebellion is restoring confidence among the wavering Chinese and has elicited the approval of all the legations with the exception of the Russian and Japanese. The Chinese press argues in bitter terms that the rebels have been enabled to perfect their plans through the existence of the system of foreign settlements and concessions and that if the system did not exist, the rebellion would not have occurred.

Rebels Badly Beaten.

SHANGHAI, July 24.—Southern rebels, reported to number 10,000 strong, attacked Kiangnan arsenal at three o'clock Wednesday morning. The defenders, not exceeding 2,000, were strongly entrenched, and, assisted by the navy, repelled three separate attacks. The fighting lasted until 7.50 o'clock. According to the estimates, six hundred rebels were killed.

Another attack was also repulsed at one o'clock Thursday morning, the southerners being unabe to gain any ground.

UNION REJECTED

English Methodists do Not Want to Join With Anglicans.

LONDON, July 24.—Another attempt, which ended disastrously, was made at the Plymouth Conference to bring about a fusion of Methodists and Anglicans. Rev. Bevan Shephard moved "that before steps are taken to secure corporate union with other Methodist or free churches, inquiry be made with a view to ascertaining if such union could first be effected with the mother Church of England."

Rev. Dr. Moulton agreed that many things could be learned from the Church of England, but the two denominations could be more friendly as separate entities than in coalition. Were they, he asked, to be committed to membership with a church which included those who barely differed in doctrine from the Church of Rome.

The motion was defeated by a large majority.

Statue For Victoria, B.C.

LODNON, July 24.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—Albert Brucejoy, the distinguished sculptor, informs the C. A. P. that he is now at work on a large statue of Queen Victoria, which is to be erected in front of the Parliament Buildings at Victoria, B.C., the commission having been given by the British Columbia Government. The statue, which will be about 13 feet high and will stand on a pedestal 17 feet in height, represents the Queen as she appeared soon after her accession, crowned and bearing the sceptre on her right arm.

Bruce Admits Theft.

GALT, July 24.—James Bruce, who was acquitted several months ago on the charge of poisoning Rose Zapp in Hamilton, pleaded guilty to stealing $20, and was remanded for sentence.

Death List in Binghamton Fire is Being Increased Steadily.

BINGHAMTON, July 24—Last night the pall of horror that has hung over the city since Tuesday afternoon, when an unknown number of lives were wiped out amid a cyclone of flames, in the ill-fated factory of the Binghamton Clothing Co., deepens as bodies are uncovered in obscure quarters and the death list grows. At a late hour the directors of the Binghamton Clothing Co. are standing by their estimate of 111 employes in the factory at the time of the fire. Of this number forty-four are dead, fifty escaped, seven are in the hospital, three are being cared for at their homes and seven are unaccounted for.

Late in the afternoon a cluster of bodies was uncovered in the northeast corner of the building facing Wall street, where the victims had evidently rushed towards the windows in hopes of escape.

Dog Tax Hits Church.

BERLIN, July 24.—The sedate city of Hamburg, having determined to raise a tax on dogs, 1,400 citizens of that city have pledged themselves by solemn league and covenant to secede from the State Church should the law pass the Hamburg Legislature. As taxes in support of the State Church are not levied on the citizens who formally secede, the 1,400 hope in this way to recoup themselves for the extra outlay caused by the dogs.

Will Erect New Dam.

GALT, July 24.—The broken dam at Galt was this spring the cause to some extent of damage done by floods. Next spring there will be no danger from this source, as the Galt Gas Light Co. has decided to erect a new concrete dam, the work to be completed before the winter sets in. Inspection proved that the old structure was in such a condition as to be past repair.

Premier Borden Plans Vacation.

DR. BRIDGES THE NEW BRITISH POET LAUREATE

DR. ROBERT BRIDGES

The new British poet laureate is Dr. Robert Bridges, who was appointed by the Premier to take the place of the late Alfred Austin. Besides being a poet and literary man, Dr. Bridges, who is in his sixty-ninth year, practised medicine for many years in the London hospitals. He is a master of arts, a bachelor of medicine and a doctor of literature of Oxford University.

COAL AND POPULATION

Mr. Chiozza Money, M.P., tells us that the reason Canada is so much behind other countries in population is the fact that she has no coal. He admits that the Canadian coal fields are greater in area than in Britain, but the latter are superior in point of accessibility and situation.

In 1911 the United Kingdom produced 272,000,000 tons of coal, while the mighty Canadian coal-area produced the comparative negligible quantity of 16,000,000 tons.

He argues that the reason for the vast population of the States is in the fact that they have coal which is easier of access than even Great Britain.

The question of fuel is certainly no important one in all northern climates, and especially is it of first importance to Canada, where life is impossible for half of the year without fuel of some kind.

The passing of the forests is yearly making the problem of domestic fuel more serious, but there is the hope that coal will be superseded by other power agents in the near future.

The free use of coal has not contributed to the beautifying of the cities or the purity of the atmospher in the British Isles. There is a smutty appearance and flavor about English cities which is not to be found in the clean cities of Canada or the States. So that coal is not altogether an unmixed blessing.

SUPERFICIAL STUDENTS

In a report of the examination of students in English literature published in England we are told that many of them confused Dante with Dante Gabriel Rossetti.

To any one who has but a nodding acquaintance with the poets this may appear a foolish mistake, but there is some explanation and some excuse for the dilemma.

There is a great deal of difference between the two poets, not merely in time, but in spirit and quality. Yet Rossetti is not only mixed up with Dante by the fact of being named after him, but he is inseparably connected with him in art by having painted one of the most popular representations of the Italian Poet.

Furthermore he has imitated Dante in his idealization of the woman he loved; his Sonnets and the "Blessed Damozel" are inspired by and ascribed to his lady love.

But no one who has read Dante could possibly make the mistake of confusing him with Rossetti; and the only reason for the mistake is that the students in question had not read Dante, or having read him had not grasped his vision.

It is to be feared that in England and in Canada the teaching of literature is very superficial. There is an attempt to cover too much ground. Anyone who has made a serious study of poetry knows that it cannot be taught like arithmatic within a brief term at any seminary.

Students of poetry, like the writers of it, are born, not made. To get a thorough grasp of the poets is the toil of years, and of leisure devoted to the study of their lives and works.

To anyone who is starting out on a study of English literature the first book they should read is "A Primer of English Literature" by Stopford Brooke, it is cheap and is very short and concise. After that they might try and read Doctor Johnson's "Lives of the Poets"; it is a mine of information, to say nothing of its value as criticism which is, one the whole, very considerable.

By this time they would be getting under way. The best method is to begin at the beginning and work forward, and not to begin with present day writers and work back. The reason of the distaste for the classics to-day is that our young people's mental appitites have been depraved by the reading of sensational and shallow up-to-date writings. They need to get back to the source of things.

EXCERPTS

EMERGENCY IMPOSSIBLE

Let's see. There's the bloody struggles in the Balkans, the Italians and Arabs fighting in Tripoli, the Spaniards and Moors in Morocco, the Mexican's cutting each other's throats, the suffragetter burning down things in England, the police shooting strikers in Johannesburg, the Chinese and Thibetans skirmishing, British sailors hunting Arab gun-runners in the Persian Gulf, California digging, again Germany and France increasing their armies. A peaceful old world, indeed. No possibility of serious new trouble anywhere. Wars evidently coming to an end. No emergencies possible.— Ottawa Evening Journal.

DISROBING THE SEX

Now it is the woman's suffrage movement that is blamed for what is termed the "undress craze" in modern feminine fashions. A vehement indictment of the present tendency in styles is made in the Times by a woman correspondent, who ays that her sex is guilty of an orgy of undressing, the end of which is not in sight. She asks in fact:

"What is to be the end? It is difficult to see. But obviously when you have gone on undressing it is certain that in time you come to the end of what there is to take off, and the only thing to do is to put on your clothes again. But nobody can foresee when that happy hour of sanity will be with us."

Dressmakers generally confirm the statement about women wearing less than ever. One says that two schools of clients have to be considered—the dignified and the daring. The former is the larger. The daring costumes, says the authority are much loved by Americans, but do not appeal to the great majority of Englishwomen.— Hamilton Herald.

CANADIAN ALPS

The Alpine Club of Canada has now got down to business. Climbing commenced in real earnest yesterday. The day was exceptionally fine throughout and several parties went out to explore the vicinity of the camp and try some of the nearby peaks. Some important work was done by a party which made an expedition to Cathdral mountain vanguard— Calgary Herald.

THE YEARS.

Why do we heap the huge mounds of years
Before us and behind,
And scorn the little days that pass,
Like angels on the wind?

Each turning round a small, sweet face,
As beautiful as near;
Because it is so small a face
We will not see it clear.

And so it turns from us and goes
Away in sad disdain;
Though we would give our lives for it,
It never comes again.

—British Weekly.

Force of Habit.

"Well, so you are now worth millions, eh?"

"Yes; struck it rich."

"Torn yourself away from all the old habits of life, I suppose?"

"No, I cling to a few. I still empty the drip pan of the refrigerator every night."—Pittsburgh Post.

Made Over.

"He is a self made man, isn't he?"

"He was."

"Then be is."

"No, the woman he married didn't like the result he had accomplished and she has made him over."—Houston Post.

Might Find Some.

"The eggs of the great auk are worth $1,000 each. The bird is extinct, but its eggs bob up occasionally."

"Um! I think I'll give my cold storage plant a thorough overhauling."—Kansas City Journal.

WINNIPEG GRAIN MARKET.

WINNIPEG, July 23.—Trading was quiet in options on the wheat market today and prices were generally weak. The market followed in sympathy with Americans for future months, while July was strong for a time, but dropped towards the end of the day, closing ⅛c down. October and December close ¼c lower. Cash demand was quiet with few offerings and export quotations still out of line. Cash prices were 1c lower on contract grades, and ½c lower for off grades. Oats and flax were seady and there was a good demand for all grades of oats for export. Cash oats closed unchanged to ⅛c higher. Cash flax, unchanged to ½c lower.

In sight for inspection today, 200 cars.

CATTLE MARKETS

UNION STOCK YARDS.

TORONTO, July 23.—Receipts of live stock at the Union Yards were 75 carloads, comprising 1087 cattle, 675 hogs, 1331 sheep and lambs and 116 calves.

Butchers.

Best butchers on sale sold at from $6.30 to $6.60; medium, $5.90 to $6.20; common, $5 to $5.90; inferior, $4 to $4.50; cows, $4.50 to $5.40; cutters, $3 to $3.50; canners, $2 to $2.50; bulls, $4 to $5.50.

Stockers and Feeders.

These classes were well represented by numbers. The quality was common and medium, and the supply greater than the demand, which caused prices to be easier. Steers, 800 to 1000 lbs., sold at $5.50 to $6; steers, 700 to 800 lbs., at $5 to $5.35, stockers, 600 to 700 lbs., at $4.50 to $4.75; eastern stockers, 500 to 600 lbs., at $3.50 to $4.

Milkers and Springers.

Trade in milkers and springers was very slow, sellers having to search for buyers in many instances. Prices ranged from $40 to $60 each, with a very few at $65, and one at $75.

Veal Calves.

The market for common calves was dull and slow, with prices lower. Good quality calves sold at steady prices. Choice calves sold at $8.50 to $9; good calves, $7.50 to $8; medium calves, $6 to $6.75, common, $5 to $5.50; inferior rough calves, $4 to $4.75.

Sheep and Lambs.

Sheep were firm at unchanged quotations, at $4.50 to $5 for ewes weighing from 120 to 160 lbs., and heavy ewes and rams at $3.50 to $3.75; culls at $3; lambs were 25c to 50c per cwt. lower, at $8 to $8.75 for the bulk, some selling as low as $7.75; cull lambs, $5.50 to $6.

Hogs.

Selects, fed and watered, sold at Tuesday's quotations—$10.25, and $9.90 f.o.b. cars.

EAST BUFFALO LIVE STOCK.

Sheep—Mixed, $5 to $5.50.

GLASGOW LIVE STOCK.

GLASGOW, July 23.—Owing to holidays short supplies forward, best quality brisk demand, secondary also better trade; Scotch steers, 15¼ to 16½c; Irish, 14 to 15½c; bulls, 13 to 13½c.

Decapitated By Train.

GUELPH, July 24.—G. E. Stuart, of Galt, an inmate of the Homewood Sanitarium, met a fearful death about 9.40 Tuesday night. There were no witnesses to the tragedy. The decapitated body was found on the G.T.R. tracks near the station by the train crew. It is thought he must have deliberately placed himself on the track in front of the freight train.

Prof. Fernow's Advice To U. S.

SUNAPEE, N.H., July 24.—The planting of 5,000,000 acres of New England land with timber would easily yield an annual revenue of $10,000,000, and would produce all the timber required by the people of that section, said Dr. B. E. Fernow, dean of the Forest School of the University of Toronto, in an address at the forestry conference yesterday.

The Best Detective Story of the Last Ten Years

Donnelly and Carson whispered fervently from the central group. Blodgett's eyes, turning slowly in a graven face, traversed the length and breadth of them as if nothing could please him better than to still the Bacchante with a mighty blow and jolt Carson out of the room. The only person entirely at ease was Griswold. He smoked tranquilly, his glance travelling from one to another in rotation with the appreciativeness of a connoisseur studying a great picture. He was the opposite of Sands in every particular save breeding, and even in that respect there was a difference.

Sands broke the tension with a suddenness that fairly shouted his whole character. Rising so abruptly that his chair fell backward with a crash, he strode to the telephone and seized the instrument savagely. He was calling Police Headquarters before either of the detectives recovered from his surprise. Donnelly hastened toward him, the Bacchante in great agitation. He pushed out a fat hand as if to stop the millionaire.

"What are you going to do?" asked the sleuth, visibly anxious.

"I'm going to have Manning call you fellows back to Mulberry Street," said Sands, his jaw hardening. "He's sent the wrong men. This isn't a Tenderloin case."

"Now, see here, Mr. Sands——" snarled Donnelly threateningly.

"I'm seeing straight enough," returned Sands. "I asked the Detective Bureau to send up on an important case, and the wires crossed before my message got to the Chief. Somebody told him it was a Chinatown hold-up. Now I'm going to talk to him straight. Hello, Spring! What's the matter with that number?"

You're going strong, Mr. Sands, even for a society man," said Donnelly, doing his best to quiet the Bacchante, "but I don't see any shield on your shirtfront, and me and my partner ain't got any call taking orders from you. We're on this case, and we're going to stay on it. And if you start anything with Manning, you want to be sure you can finish it." He was white, shaking—whether with rage or fear no one could say. Turning to Mrs. Missioner, he went on: "I suppose you know, ma'am, interference with an officer is a pretty serious thing. We're here on duty, and it's up to you to see we're not bothered."

Mrs. Missioner paled. She dreaded not the law but a scene.

"I think we would better let them have their way, Bruxton," she murmured, the light of admiration in her eyes in contrast to her words. "Mr. Donnelly knows Miss Holcomb's standing now. He will remember."

Donnelly didn't know precisely what he was expected to remember, but he realized gentler tactics were safer toward the widow's secretary while Sands was around. It did not escape even his observation that neither Ranscome nor Griswold had said anything in Miss Holcomb's defense.

"Now, this is all wrong, young lady," he said to Elinor, bearing on the left pedal as much as he could. "It isn't right for you to go on like this, you know. You'll get yourself all worked up and then you won't be able to answer our questions. Take my word for it, it's best for you to keep yourself in hand."

Elinor couldn't keep herself in hand while that raucous voice was thrust into her self-respect like a rusty [illegible] gripped as a poniard. She fought for self-mastery, but the shock was too much for her determination. Dorothy's sisterly comforting only made her tears flow more freely. Her whole form quivered with staccato sobs. Carson, still on his little journey around the room, came full within range of Blodgett's right-angled gaze. As he sensed the footman's expression, he started violently, and stepping back swiftly, turned away in confusion. Not a muscle of Blodgett's other features moved, but his eye seemed to reach for the detective.

Donnelly was rapidly recovering his place on the pedestal. Hands wrist deep in his pockets, he rocked on his heels and looked at Elinor piercingly with his little eyes. The girl, in an interval between sobs, raised her head and saw that gaze. A slow flush swept her face. She detached herself gently from little Miss March, and lifting that graceful head of hers higher, even higher, faced the sleuth with composure as startling as had been her loss of control.

"If you have anything more to ask, sir," she said in a low tone, "I will try to answer."

"Thanks!" came the curt reply. "I knew you'd come around. You see, Miss Elinor——"

"Miss Holcomb!" burst from Sands in a thunder tone. "H-o-l-c-o-m-b—you understand — Miss Holcomb." Donnelly pretended not to notice the interruption, but he did not address Elinor by her first name again. But Carson seemed as perturbed as he had been under the malignant gaze of the motionless Blodgett.

"What were you doing in Maiden Lane the other day?" asked Donnelly sharply.

"I was not in Maiden Lane. I haven't been downtown in weeks. The last time I went south of the shopping district was more than a month ago."

"That is true," said Mrs. Missioner hurriedly. "Miss Holcomb went to the Battery Trust Company for me."

"Much obliged, ma'am." Donnelly was learning to show more deference to the widow. Carson had whispered to him something of her social importance. Yes, Carson, although he was only a neutral tint in the human color scheme, knew a few things.

"Was that the day you took the diamonds to Tiffany's?" queried the big detective quickly. "To have one of the small stones made tighter, you know."

Miss Holcomb's disdain had given place to dull wonder. Where had the man got his misinformation? Could it be he really thought—but, no. It was impossible. She felt as if something suffocating was closing about her. She lifted her hand to her throat to force back the sobs that would come.

"I am completely confused by your questions," she stammered. "I—I do not know how to answer. What you say is so strange." She looked at the others with a world of appeal in those grey eyes. Astonishment, sympathy, affection, cynicism, mutely replied. Stretching both hands towards Mrs. Missioner, advancing with faltering steps, the victim of the detective's persecution cried, "Mrs. Missioner, is it possible you can think—do you even imagine I—I—oh," with a swift turn to Miss March, "Dorothy, Dorothy!"

To the credit of little Miss March be it remembered she met Elinor's second appeal with undiminished tenderness. Mrs. Missioner, too, was kind, but her gentle "No, Elinor," was not as reassuring as the loving pats Dorothy squandered on the bent shoulders of the distressed girl. Sands swore in his thoughts. His big fingers bent a gold penholder into wavy lines. Ranscome, with alternate finger-tips, traced lines in his palms. Griswold turned his cigarette round and round with agile fingers and thumb. Blodgett's eyes seemed to lunge at the detectives.

"I guess Miss Holcomb isn't ready to tell all she knows—yet," said Donnelly meaningly. "While we're waiting for her to steady her nerves, we'll just have a look in her room."

Mrs. Missioner was about to negative the suggestion, but a glance at Elinor's shaking form stopped her. She did not reply, and the detectives walked out of the room in silence.

A look from the window sent Blodgett stalking in their wake. The footman kept his eyes on Donnelly's turned-out toes as if calculating how much strength was required to seize those thick ankles with a sudden heave. Not until the Central Office men were at the end of the passage did the sobbing secretary start in great agitation toward the door. On the threshold she paused and turned slowly till she faced the mute group.

"Since they are going to search my—the room," she said, in a choking voice, "I wish you would all come there with me. I—I feel that—won't you all come, please?"

The men hung back but Doris and Dorothy joined her on the instant, and together the three women followed the detectives into the lift. Blodgett backed from the car and stood staring at the detectives through the rose tinted grill. A boy in quiet livery threw the lever and the steel cage shot upwards. The car stopped at the third floor and the little party proceeded to a room at the end of a softly lighted corridor.

It was a charming little boudoir into which Donnelly's spreading feet and Carson's flat tread carried the detectives. Mrs. Missioner, Elinor and Dorothy went only a little way in and looked on silently. The men made their search according to their natures, Carson with moderate indifference and dispatch, Donnelly exhaustively, lingeringly, gloatingly. When the large sleuth's thick fingers and beady gaze became more than ordinarily intrusive, Mrs. Missioner seemed about to protest, but each time she checked herself.

"It is better to let them search thoroughly," said Elinor. "Since this is considered necessary, I wish it to be made complete. Please do not interfere with them." She handed to Carson a small silver keyring. He passed it to his mate, and Donnelly's enjoyment of the situation increased by leaps and bounds. No single key on the tiny ring escaped use of his hands. He unlocked boxes, a dressing-case, and other places of possible concealment. His method would have drawn a derisive smile from Chief of Detectives Manning. But Manning was far downtown in Mulberry Street, and could not know the course his subordinates were pursuing.

From a drawer in Elinor's Chippendale secretary, Donnelly took a box of rare lacquer and fitted a key to it. He stopped to gaze searchingly at Miss Holcomb for a few moments, then he unlocked the box.

"I hate to pry into any young lady's little keepsakes," he said in a ponderously patronizing manner, "but, as Miss Holcomb hasn't been to Maiden Lane in such a long time, I know she won't object. Now, this little box, of course, contains nothing but trinkets or odds and ends—love-letters, maybe?" Elinor's heart sickened at the leer in his face. She turned her eyes to Dorothy's loving little face, and clung to the débutante's hand. Donnelly, fumbling with the key for awhile, opened the lacquered box.

"Just what I said, you see," he exclaimed. "Nothing but trinkets and other little souvenirs—huh! of old romances, perhaps. Eh, it's great to be a summer girl, Miss Holcomb. If only you had jewels like Mrs. Missioner's, you'd shine with the best of them. Gee, but that must be a beauty that necklace, if the imitation is so pretty."

He stirred the contents of the box idly. Nothing else remained to be searched. He had ransacked the intimate sanctity of the girl's room. He felt baffled and sorely irritated. At the thought of failure he thrust his fingers into the box with such violence that everything it held fell to the floor. Carson stooped to pick up the scattered jewelry, placing it in Donnelly's hand to be returned to the box. After recovering several bits of jewelry, he laid in his big colleague's greedy clutch a small, round object wrapped in silk tissue.

"Hello, what's this!" exclaimed Donnelly, rolling the fairy parcel between finger and thumb. "You won't mind if I peep in the paper, young lady? Of course you won't. And this is only a—say, what the mischief is it? Oh, glory!"

Even Carson was startled into an echoing "Oh!" and the three women almost screamed. For, nestling in the folds of the tissue, its facets twinkling in the insistent green glow of the vacuum lights, flashed a diamond—an unmistakable diamond — which Mrs. Missioner and Dorothy and Elinor recognized as one of the lesser gems from the Maharanee necklace—much smaller than the Maharanee diamond but twice the size of an ordinary stone. And it was a diamond, even a novice could tell was genuine!

All the blood left Elinor's face. The muscles of her throat leaped and knotted as if she were strangling. She swayed for a moment, then took a long step toward the detective and stood trembling, covering her face with quivering hands. Donnelly, holding the diamond to the light, was about to speak—in what words, what manner, one can guess. But the misery in the girl's attitude struck the triumphant grin from his face, and there was momentary compassion in the tone in which he said:

"We'd better go back to the library, I guess. Will you go with my side partner, Miss Holcomb?"

Carson's advance to the secretary's side was checked by the violence with which she whirled towards Mrs. Missioner, again with outstretched hands. This time the widow was slower in meeting the appeal. She was stunned by the detective's discovery. All the finer sensibilities of her womanhood were benumbed. Astonishment large and compelling, was all she could feel for the moment. Still, as she took Elinor's imploring hands in hers and stood motionless, listening to the girl's passionate entreaty not to believe the evidence of her eyes, nor to believe her kindness could be outraged in such a way, not to believe that Elinor for all the jewels in the mines of the world could be tem[illegible] from the high honor in which she had been reared. Clasping the younger woman's locked fingers in her own soft palm, she slipped her arm about Elinor's waist, and walked with her to the lift. Dorothy, crying almost childishly, controlled her voice once or twice long enough to beg Elinor not to give way to such torturing emotion.

But Elinor Holcomb, shaking, sobbing, wildly beseeching, was oblivious to the silent watchfulness of the Central Office men, the covert glance from Blodgett's mask-like countenance, the amazed stare of the liveried youth in the elevator. All the way to the room in which Sands and Griswold and Ranscome waited, all the way across the old English library, the ruddy zone before the fireplace she continued her prayers to Mrs. Missioner to hold her guiltless. That was the one thought that shaped her thoughts; that the woman to whom she owed the shelter of her later youth should not think her capable of such ignoble ingratitude. There was no slightest shade of appeal to the detectives, no regard for the conclusions others in the room might draw. But that Mrs. Missioner should give credit to the cold accusation that glittered in the diamond Donnelly had found—that plainly was the unbearable thing in the wretched young woman's present position.

"You won't have to telephone the Chief, Mr. Man," said Donnelly to Sands with as direct a sneer as he thought advisable. "This has been one of our easiest cases."

His fat hand was extended toward the millionaire. In a crease of the palm the diamond blazed as if indignant at such a setting. Sands glared at the stone. Griswold gazed at it as if spellbound. Ranscome polished his glasses with much deliberation and, adjusting them with equal precision, looked at the gem.

"This one's the goods, eh?" the detective went on. Ranscome, with marked fastidiousness, took the jewel from his hand and examined it as if his reputation as an expert depended on his test. Reluctantly, he returned the gem to Donnelly and said, gently, with a pitying glance at Elinor:

"It is a diamond."

A sweeping gesture from Sands as he sprang to his feet flung the telephone from the desk. He reached Donnelly in two strides and appeared on the point of gripping him by the throat. But the big detective, for all his bulk and mental slowness, could be quick enough on his feet when he must, and he readily sacrificed dignity to safety. With a single backward spring, he clutched a light chair and confronted Sands.

"It will pay you to remember I'm an officer!" he shouted. "You ain't dealing with club stewards here, Mr. Sands. I know you and I know how much you think your money can do. But you can't put anything like that across with me."

Sands, breathing hard, took another step towards him. Donnelly gripped the chair for a defensive swing.

"I don't care if you know a million Mannings," said the sleuth huskily. "If you can't behave like one gentleman to another, it'll be the worse for you. If you don't want to be run in, keep away."

JUDGE BARHORST DOES HIS DUTY TO RHEUMATIC SUFFERERS

If you suffer from Rheumatism and don't read this advice, then the terrible disease must have robbed you of your power to be fair to yourself. Read it:

"I, John Barhorst, Justice of the Peace of McLean Township, Ft. Loramie Ohio, do certify that after treatment by three doctors without result. I have been cured of a very bad case of Rheumatism by using two bottles of RHEUMA. It is now two years since I used the remedy, and I am still as well as ever. Previous to using RHEUMA I was a cripple, walking with crutches, and I feel it my duty to let other sufferers from Rheumatism know what it will do. The result seems almost miraculous to me. I have advised RHEUMA to at least a dozen persons, and each one speaks as highly of it as I. I will answer anyone suffering from the disease if a two-cent stamp is enclosed."—May 31, 1912.

You can secure a bottle of RHEUMA for only 50 cents at Warne's Drug Co., and they say, if not as advertised, money back. It's just as good for Gout, Arthritis, Lumbago and Sciatica.

TO BENEFIT OTHER SUFFERERS

You May Publish My Letter About "Fruit-a-tives"

Mr. Jones is proud to acknowledge the great debt of gratitude he owes "Fruit-a-tives". He is glad to have his letter published in order that other sufferers may be induced to try these wonderful tablets made of fruit juices.

SARNIA, ONT., FEB. 5th. 1911

"I have been a sufferer for the past 25 years with Constipation, Indigestion and Catarrh of the Stomach. I tried many remedies and many doctors, but derived no benefit whatever. Finally, I read an advertisement for "Fruit-a-tives" I decided to give "Fruit-a-tives" a trial and they did exactly what was claimed for them. I have now taken them for some time and find they are the only remedy that does me good. I have recommended "Fruit-a-tives" to a great many of my friends, and I cannot praise these fruit tablets too highly"

The Trajectory of a Thing.

The trajectory of a thing is the path of a bullet or anything else passing through the air from the gun to the place where it strikes. Generally the word is applied only to bullets and cannon balls. In shooting at an object near at hand you aim point blank, because the bullet practically reaches the target before it falls at all, but when you fire at a distant object you must aim above it, so that the bullet may have room to fall and yet hit the object. The desire of every marksman is to get a trajectory as flat as possible, so that the bullet shall have no need of falling very far. A flat trajectory is obtained by increasing the speed of the bullets, by diminishing their size and increasing the powder charge.

BERLIN TEAM WILL FINISH OUT THE WEEK

The indications this morning and early this afternoon were that a large crowd would witness the first of the series between Berlin and the Petes, at Riverside Park.

Interest in Boosters' Day was very evident, and the directors of the ball club will be pleased. But Peterborough fans have given loyal support to the team all season. and so far as this city is concerned, it has been ably demonstrated that Peterborough has every right to a Canadian League franchise.

For the first two days of this week the two attendances totalled as much as the total attendance for five days on the road last week.

Berlin will be here for the remainder of the week and the series will no doubt be productive of some fast baseball.

BANKERS AND DRAFTING ROOM

Win for Money Men Means Three Corner Tie in Mercantile

At the meeting of the Mercantile League on Wednesday evening a great amount of discussion was given to the Bankers-Drafting Room game which was postponed. The Bankers wanted the game played next Wednesday so one of their players who is away on holidays could be here. The Drafting Room afraid that the Bankers were trying to railroad some new players in. raised a kick and it was left for the two managers to decide. The result is that the game will be played at Nicholls Oval at four o'clock on Saturday.

If the Bankers defeat them, the Bankers, Machine Shop and Drafting Room are all a tie for first place. If the Drafting Room succeed they win the Mercantile League.

A CHALLENGE

A supporter of the M.A.P. baseball team issues a challenge to the Drafting Room baseball team. to play for a cup valued at $25.00, the losers paying for the cup. If the challenge is accepted, the date is to be arranged satisfactory to both teams.

GOLF

The Peterborough Golf Club. led by Captain Morrow, invades Lindsay to-day to play the postponed match with the representatives of that town.

LINDSAY'S TAX RATE

Lindsay's tax rate for the year has been fixed at 30 mills—half a mill lower than lat year. The rate was struck at a special meeting of the Council.

Canada has developed 1,016,521 horse power from water power.

PROGRESSIVE ANIMOSITY.

Reason For the Lad's Downheartedness Somewhat Involved.

He was a very downhearted and disgusted looking boy, with torn clothes and rumpled hair and a few suspicious bumps on his face, so I stopped and asked him what the matter was and whether I could be of any assistance to him.

"Naw, yer can't do nothing fer me; it's a business trouble," he explained.

"Ah! Have you lost your position?" I asked.

"Naw; and I wouldn't care if I had. The president of our company is the worst old duffer in New York."

"Does he ill treat you?" I said kindly.

"Naw. He doesn't even know me by sight; but he come into the office cross as hornets this mornin' and climbed up the secretary's collar the worst you ever seen."

"But how did that affect you?"

"Why, don't you see?" the boy asked impatiently. "The secretary had to get square somehow, so he jumped on the cashier with both feet, and after the cashier'd thought it over and got good and mad he jumped on the bookkeeper, and the bookkeeper jumped on the entry clerk, and the entry clerk jumped on the bill clerk, and he just sailed in and gimme particular rats. An' there wasn't no one fer me ter jump on, so I thought I'd go out and lick a district messenger."

"Well, couldn't you find one to lick?" I asked.

"Oh, I found him quick enough, but I didn't lick 'im."

"Why not?"

"'Cause he licked me!"—Puck.

AN EXCITING INCIDENT.

The Story of a Night Ride on an Egyptian Railroad.

"You can travel with perfect safety on Egyptian railroads now," said an English official, "but it was not always so. There were times when it required tact to save your throat from getting cut, as you will realize from a little experience that occurred to me. It was just before the fanatical outbreak of 1882. I had heard some ugly rumors, but I had to go up by train one night from Port Said to Ismailia. I was the only European in the compartment. Soon after we started an old Arab sheik leaned over and calmly helped himself to a couple of cigars that were sticking out of my breast pocket. I knew what that meant, and I got a sort of cold feeling along the spine, for just then I caught the gleam of a dagger in the hand of a man to the left of me. I said nothing, but, opening my bag, brought out a box of cigars and handed them round. The Arabs emptied the box. I smiled affably and lighted my pipe, expecting every moment to be knifed. They were eight to one, and I was unarmed. Suddenly the old sheik reached from the rack a large melon he had placed there. Then he leaned across and, taking hold of the hand that held the dagger, brought it into view. Lifting it from the unresisting fingers of his fellow Moslem, he tranquilly cut two slices off the melon. He handed me one and proceeded to eat the other. Then my heart gave a jump, and as I eagerly sucked at the fruit I knew I was safe, for we had eaten together. But I didn't get to Ismailia that night."

"How was that?" inquired a listener.

"Because," said he, "they murdered the engine driver, the stoker and every other European on the train."

The morning after the night before is responsible for many good resolutions.

BLACKLISTER SUPPLIED BLACKLISTER

The Former Was Fined $52.60 at Police Court To-day

Michael Fallon, a local man, charged with supplying liquor to Harry Mann, a blacklister, was fined $52.60 at police court this morning.

He pleaded guilty, but claimed that he met Mann on Friday night at the corner of George and Charlotte streets and that Mann gave him a bottle of liquor to keep for him until Saturday, when he returned the bottle. He denied that he had been drinking.

Harry Mann, when called, contradicted Fallon's story and stated that Fallon was also drinking on Friday night.

"You say you didn't give me a bottle to keep for you?" asked Fallon.

Mann—"No, I never gave you a bottle to keep for me."

"A man who would lie like that I would not believe, as far as I could throw him," retorted Fallon.

Fallon must pay in 15 days, and in the meantime provide security.

TORONTO WANTS INCINERATOR WITHOUT ODOR

New Plant to Cost $1,000,000—Ready in Two Years

TORONTO, July 24— Plans for a $1,000,000 garbage and refuse disposal plant for the City of Toronto are being prepared by Street Commissioner, George Wilson.

The Board of control authorized Mr. Wilson to go ahead with the scheme and voted $122,500 in order that he may obtain expert advice in connection with the preparation of the plans.

It is expected that the plant will be completed in two years, and Toronto will then have the most modern garbage disposal works in Canada.

WILL BE ODORLESS

"All odors will be absolutely eliminated," Mr. Wilson stated. "That is the first consideration. The commercial end of the undertaking is a secondary matter."

Unnecessarily Scared.

An amusing incident in connection with the letter bomb is related by the Calcutta police. The story goes that a small brown packet containing a hard substance was sent through the post to a European gentleman in Old Court House street, Calcutta. Suspicious of the contents the receiver hastened to the police station and handing the packet to the officer in charge retired to a respectful distance while he related his fears. The first suggestion was that it should be placed in a bowl of water before being opened but on second consideration the officer decided to put on a pair of gloves and swathe his features in a Turkish towel. This done he cautiously opened the envelope and drew out the contents. They consisted of a small circular mirror, and an advertisement for dog biscuits.

Mixed Metaphors.

The Cornhill Magazine some time ago gave some delightful examples of mixed metaphors. Here is one. Sir Richard Purvis, addressing his old constituents at Peterborough in defence of an Act of Parliament under whose operation some of them had gone to prison for a week, said: "That, gentlemen, is the marrow of the Education Act, and will not be taken out by Dr. Clifford, or anybody else. It is founded on a granite foundation, and it speaks in a voice not to be drowned by sectarian clamor?"

PETERBORO HAS FARED VERY WELL

Has Three Strong Industries From the United States

$230,000,000

The Capitalization of 195 U.S. Branch Industries in Two Provinces

Although certain financial interests in the United States have been leaving only the very smallest stones unturned in their efforts to persuade those of their fellow-citizens who were thinking of emigrating to Canada that blue ruin and financial chaos were just one jump behind the Dominion, United States capitalists do not seem to have been seriously impressed by the arguments presented.

In the provinces of Quebec and Ontario, there are 195 business corporations whose head offices are in the United States, but which have been organized to manufacture goods in Canada for the Canadian and the export trade.

More than half of these companies have been organized in the last ten years. Peterborough's share is the Quaker Oats Co., the De Laval Co. and the Vermont Marble Co.

Their total capitalization is $232,000,000, which does not look as though the American investor, who is looking for safe as well as remunerative opportunities to place his money, was very much afraid of what the commercial future of the Dominion had in store.

When this amount, devoted to manufacturing, is added to the total which the farmer who moves across the border to an Alberta or Saskatchewan wheat ranch brings every year to the country, the expression of confidence in the stability of Canadian investments is as conclusive as it is comprehensive. The Immigration authorities estimate that between $100,000,000 and $150,000,000 in cash is brought into the country every year by the farmers who emigrate from the United States.

A GOOD YEAR FOR TURNERS

Probably one of the busiest concerns in the city is the firm of J. J. Turner & Sons. With an unusual large summer trade, they are having a most successful season.

They were awarded the contract of decorating Guelph for the Old Boys Re-union, which is being held from July 28 to August 2. Mr. J. M. Campbell and a large staff of men are at present in Guelph decorating the streets for the event.

THEATRE IMPROVEMENTS.

Good Form

The Correct Mourning.

There is a tendency nowadays to curtail the mourning period and to wear deep mourning only for funeral services. Persons who have considered the effect of strict mourning attire on the mind, on the natures of children especially, have departed from strict black and are using gray, black and white or lavender. But for the majority of women the accepted rules regarding dress are still observed.

Correct mourning attire has been decided by custom, and, if you would follow the etiquette of this department of dress, here are some of the main points to be remembered:

A widow's first mourning is entirely black, with the exception of a white crape ruche worn inside the closely fitted cap. Black crape is the only trimming. It is used to edge a net veil, which is worn after a month. Before that time a regular mourning veil is draped over the hat. Crape in narrow folds or pipings should be used with discretion. It is very reprehensible to overdo this.

The extreme mourning, with very wide bands of crape used everywhere, is not good style. White organdie or fine linen may be used for turned over collar and cuffs, pinned with dull black pins. Dull jet is the only permissible jewelry. All gold and precious stones must be laid aside when one is in deep mourning. Diamonds are not considered appropriate, even though they are white.

The widow wears her full mourning for a year. After this the crape is omitted, but she still wears black crape de chine, lusterless silks, dull jet and black chiffon.

When six months of this have passed the white and black, gray and lilac shades are worn. When two years have passed colors may be resumed.

For a child a married woman should wear just the same mourning for a year as she does for a husband. The widow's ruche is omitted. A mother does not wear mourning for very young babies. Indeed, the question of wearing black when there are little children in the family has been decided in favor of discarding mourning.

When a mother-in-law has died mourning for one month is worn. This does not include crape. After the month gray and lilac may be worn. Mourning is not observed for other relatives of one's husband.

Young women who observe full mourning for parents do not wear draped hats or long veils. Simplicity in their black should be the rule. It is foolish to wear full mourning and to cling to jewelry and overornamentation. Crape ought not to be worn by young girls. Six months is the time for mourning in this case. After this white, white and black, gray and lavender should be worn. There is a tendency to wear white in the summer time, which insures comfort and is rapidly becoming the accepted style for young women.

Unmarried women of middle age wear the same mourning for parents or any of the immediate family for the same time.

Why the Turk Wears a Fez.

The Turk's devotion to the fez rests on a religious basis. If the namaz (form of prayer) is rightly performed the forehead must touch the ground. The brim of a hat or the peak of a cap would prevent this.

DAMAGE TO RURAL SCHOOLS

Prosecution to Follow if Vandalism Does Not Cease

The residents near S. S. No. 12, Otonabee, are indignant over the work of vandals, who sometime last week broke into the school and upset ink and turned everything upside down. A couple of the windows were also broken. It seems the practice of late is for some parties to try and destroy rural school property and considerable work of destruction has been carried on in the rural schools, especially in Otonabee. Last year school No. 17, of Otonabee, fell into the hands of vandals and considerable damage was caused.

The trustees of the rural schools are watching for the offenders, who when caught will be dealt with severely

AN OPTICAL TALK
Nothing is more surprising than the change which has come over the public with regard to Sight Testing. Ten years ago it was a matter of difficulty to overcome the reluctance which they manifested to the scientific examination of their eyes. They never had been tested and didn't see why they should be now.
To-day, however, matters are entirely changed, those people who come for the special purpose of having their eyes examined, far out-number those who come asking for Spectacles and this I take as a compliment, proving as it does, that we should not supply glasses unless they would be of real benefit. It may surprise you to learn that many hundreds of people have been refused spectacles by us, either because their eyes were not in need of them or more generally, because they had allowed them to get into such a serious condition that medical aid had become necessary.
It has been my rule for ten years never to supply glasses where an examination proves the advice of a Physician is required. You cannot afford to take chances with your eyes.
We manufacture all our lenses from "PEBLO" quality glass the finest quality known to the science. We have the exclusive agency for this quality glass.
All work positively guaranteed.

ALD. JOHNSTON WANTS ALL-DAY WATER SERVICE FOR PARKS AND CHURCHES

He Also Charges Discrimination in the Enforcement of the Bylaw Prohibition Use of Water in Certain Hours—Water Wasted at Watering Troughs

The Board of Water Commissioners should permit the use of water during the day for parks and church grounds.

Such is the opinion of Ald. Johnston, who expressed himself in that direction last night, at the Board of Works' meeting.

As the by-law now stands, water must not be used between the hours of 9 a.m. and 4 p.m. and the Water Commissioners, it is said, have very good reasons for enforcing the law. As has been stated before, there is a big waste of water from some one or more causes and the people who have lawn services are blamed to some extent.

Some time ago, the Commissioners decided to employ a patrolman to see that the water service was not abused and he is now on the job.

WASTE AT WATERING TROUGHS

The discussion really started when Ald. Johnston asked that attention be given to the watering trough on Hunter street east, which was overflowing all the time.

When the matter was referred to the City Engineer, he claimed that water was being wasted at all the watering troughs.

Later on, Ald. Johnston held that water service should be given throughout the day for the parks and church grounds.

"Let the people interested in the grounds interview the Water Commissioners," remarked the Mayor.

"They shut their eyes to the fact that some people are using the water all day," continued Ald. Johnston, "and yet some poor beggar is called to Police Court. The water belongs to the people."

"It belongs to the City," added the Mayor, "but the Commissioners are elected by the people to do their duty."

"I agree with Ald. Johnston," said Ald. Anderson "Some arrangement should be made for watering the parks in the day-time while the men are working."

It was decided that a committee should wait on the Commissioners in the interests of a better service for the parks, churches and schools.

ABSENCE OF "BLACK AND WHITE" A MISTAKE

More Light Regarding Heavy Cost of Sewer Work for Nicholls Hospital

More light has been shed on the situation arising from the excessive cost of sewer construction to serve the new wing of the Nicholls Hospital and it appeared to the members of the Board of Works last night, that a mistake had been made in not having everything down in black and white.

Mr. Hay on request, prepared an estimate for a small sewer on Sunnyside St., the amount being $375.

Wm. Blackwell, the architect, took objection to the work as planned by Mr. Hay, after operations were underway. Mr. Blackwell wanted the sewer to be at a depth that would permit of the furnace and elevator pits being served.

With only a statement to the Hospital Board that the sewer would cost more than the estimate, Mr. Hay constructed the sewer to meet the requirements. This necessitated the construction being increased 100 per cent. in length and in depth and in the course of the work operations that might have been accelerated by the use of dynamite, had to be done by labor, because of the patients in the hospital. There was also considerable building material in the way and altogether the work was carried out under a big handicap. The earth had to be shovelled to the top in relays and trouble was experienced in making the proper connection. All this work was carried on in late fall weather, and the cost soon mounted to over $1,200.

It was decided by the Board that the Committee already appointed should take up the matter with the hospital authorities and endeavor to bring about a settlement.

LIGHT FOR NEW GATES

But Cemetery Company Cannot Construct Three Foot Curb

W. H. Moore, K.C., president of the Little Lake Cemetery Company asked the Board of Works last night for a suitable lighting service in front of the new gates at the cemetery, which Mr. Moore said were "admitedly the finest cemetery gates in Ontario to-day.

Chairman Buller replied that this application should be made to the Fire, Water and Light Committee but it was stated that Ald. Gillespie intended to bring the matter before Council, at the next meeting.

Mr. Moore also asked for permission to construct an extra curb of three feet in width in front of the Company's office on Crescent street.

It transpired that Mr. Wise had the work already in hand. The City Engineer reported against this work being done, as it would make the street too narrow.

After Mr. Moore retired, a motion that the City Engineer's report be upheld, was carried.

The Bell Telephone Company has over 155,000 instruments in use, 58,000 miles of wire, and exchange business with 433 other companies.

TINY TOWN IS COMING

"What is Tiny Town?" That is the question which naturally crosses the mind of the reader. In reply it may be said, as a preliminary, that Tiny Town is the most novel and unique entertainment that has ever been seen in America.

It is a big show by Little people, and has a thousand and one interests. Its first feature is a quaint village of 30-inch men and women all perfectly developed and of high intelligence. There are tiny shops, houses, post office, church, and all the accompaniments of a small town. In this miniature city patrons may see the wee folks in their habits as they live. Several of them speak a number of languages and all are most interesting. Their nationalities are varied. The director of Tiny Town, Mr. Beaumont Smith, searched the whole European continent to find them. It was easy enough to discover dwarfs who were small only because of some deformity. But Mr. Smith would have none of these. He wanted perfectly-formed men and women in miniature—and he found them. They are in fact the nearest approach to the elf-men and elf-maidens of Fairy Lore, and their village is almost a realization of Dean Swift's immortal conception—"The Kingdom of Lilliput" described in "Gulliver's Travels."

Best of all, there is the miniature Circus with its twelve tiny trained ponies and Lilliputian riders. It is really the prettiest thing ever seen in the world of entertainment. Every performer is below thirty-six inches high, and the ponies only come up to your waist.

Tiny Town opens at the Grand Opera House next Tuesday and Wednesday at 2.30 and 8 each day.

PAY INCOME TAX BEFORE CASTING VOTE

Local Option Committee Await Reply From City Solicitor

Some time ago the Citizen's Local Option Committee asked the City Council to pass a by-law providing for the payment of all income taxes, before the right to vote was given.

The Council passed the question on to the City Solicitor, who wrote the Committee that he could find no provision in the statutes to allow the by-law being passed.

The Committee replied and submitted that clause which they claim gives the municipality the rights to pass the by-law.

The Committee is now awaiting a further reply.

ANOTHER FOREMAN

City Engineer Has Authority to Make Appointment

City Engineer Parsons notified the Board of Works last night that as there was much work to be done another foreman was necessary.

The reply was that a previous motion gave him permission to make such appointment.

SOME POLES ARE LOCATED

For the Hydro Electric System ---Dr. Hewson a Favorite

Hydro operations are now in progress. Eight or more wooden poles have been located, and the poles for street lighting are being distributed on the streets where the underground system will be carried out.

A three-horse 'bus will leave the Gibbs livery for Chemong Park at 7.30 this evening and return at 11.30. It is expected that a very large attendance will be seen at the dance of the Regatta Club. Good music will be provided.

Newcomers to Peterborough on Wednesday who travelled on the Royal George speak very highly of Dr. Hewson who is surgeon on the big liner.

A committee from the City Council met the North Monaghan Council last evening in regard to the question of drainage.

THE LITTLE CHANCELLOR

Stories of Mr. Lloyd George Show His Fearlessness.

The second volume of Mr. Herbert Du Parcq's "Life of David Lloyd George," just published, contains some intertaining glimpses of the private intercourse of famous politicians.

In February, 1900, during the South African War, Mr. Lloyd George made a speech on the Amendment to the Address, which was one of the most successful of his career. It won many notables tributes from political friends and enemies, and the late Sir Henry Campbell-Bannerman, in offering his congratulations, told Mr. Lloyd George that a "talented London actress had begged her escort to bring her again whenever the member for Carnarvon was likely to speak."

At that time Mr. Lloyd George and Mr. Winston Churchill were fighting on opposite sides of the House. The encounters between the two were much appreciated by both parties. On one occasion during a South African debate, Sir William Harcourt was heard to say to Mr. Lloyd George, "I am going to stay in the House to see the cockfight between you and young Churchill."

Mr. Lloyd George always had a great opinion of Mr. Winston Churchill's abilities. When they were political opponents he once said:

"Last week there was a very interesting speech delivered by a brilliant young Tory member, Mr. Winston Churchill. There is no greater admirer of his talents, I assure you, than the individual who is now addressing you, and many a chat have we had about the situation. We do not always agree, but at the same time we do not black each other's eyes."

Mr. Lloyd George has also paid some remarkable tributes to Mr. Joseph Chamberlain. "Undoubtedly," he once said, "for better or for worse, Mr. Chamberlain is the most powerful politician in the Empire today. He is an extraordinary man, who has made his way by sheer strength."

Very early in his career Mr. Lloyd George gained a great reputation as a fighter. "He is never happy unless he is up against a brick wall," someone once said. He would not be intimidated.

The book refers to the exciting episode in his career when he visited Birmingham in December, 1901, to address a meeting at the town hall and was ultimately obliged to escape in the disguise of a policeman.

It was the chief constable who, finding his men powerless, at last suggested to the Chancellor that he should pass from the hall wearing a policeman's coat. To quote the words of Mr. Du Parcq:

"This Mr. Lloyd George emphatically refused to do. It was only under great pressure that he gave way, when the chief constable pointed out that it was a last and only chance, and that by doing it he might save his friends from injury. The doors could not much longer be held, and there might be a great inrush of the mob, with terrible results. The fact that his friends might be injured if he persisted in his refusal was the only argument that prevailed with Mr. Lloyd George. That the crowd outside sought his life seemed not to weigh with him."

He will spend 10 days on the hill. McLean claimed to have come from Toronto.

A NEW BAND

Committee is Appointed to take up This Proposition

Some of the members, who composed the Rube's Band which gave splendid service at the People's Picnic, held a meeting last night and a committee was appointed to look into several propositions in connection with the organizing of a band.

The object of the new band is to become a first class concert organization. Some seven or nine months hard work will be put in before they make their first public appearance. Already there are some twenty members.

The members have had the project under consideration for some time and will hold a meeting on Monday night in J.M. Greene's Music Store to elect an executive committee. They will also be connected with the Federation of Musicians.

Any local musician who would like to join the new band may do so by communicating with Mr. J. M. Greene, who is the acting secretary. The band will be in the charge of Mr. Walter Hughes, a well-known musician.

The members of the new organization are of the opinion that a city the size of Peterboro should have more than two bands, and therefore are not opposed to any other musical organization.

G.T.R. BRAKEMAN'S PAINFUL MISHAP

Arm Between Wrist and Elbow Was Crushed

The many friends of Howard Willcot, the popular young brakeman of the G. T. R., whose home is in Little Britton will be very sorry to learn of a very serious accident which befell him in Lindsay late last night. He was uncoupling the van from the train, and was standing on the front platform with his right arm hooked around the railing on the front platform. When the train moved, his foot caught between the tie and the rail, and before he could pull his foot out, the arm which was around the railing was horribly mangled. Between the wrist and elbow, he had his arm broken, the bones breaking through the flesh. He was removed to the hospital and it is hoped that the arm may be saved.

Mr. Willcot was on the moonlight run to Port Hope for a short period, during which time he made many local acquaintances.

A simple and delicious pudding is made of boiled custard with pounded macaroons spread thickly over the top.

EXPLOSION IN NITRO PLANT CAUSES SEVEN DEATHS

All the Employes in One of the Isolated Buildings of the Canadian Explosive Co.'s Establishment Are Instantly Killed and Only Dismembered Fragments of Bodies Are Found.

BELOEIL, Que., July 25.—Seven lives were snuffed out at Beloeil yesterday when an explosion of nitroglycerine blew one of the isolated buildings of the Canadian Explosive Co. to pieces and scattered the dismembered bodies of four men and three girls in every direction. An instant after the explosion the space for a hundred and fifty feet around was strewn with wreckage intermingled with the mangled remains of the unfortunate victims.

The detonation brought workers in other houses rushing out of doors, but the distance between the houses was great enough to prevent the shock from producing other explosions.

The search for the bodies was started at once, and it is expected that as much of these victims as can be found will be identified without difficulty. The head and half the trunk of Miss Aurore Eli was found covered with wood, but the bodies of the other victims were too hopelessly torn into fragments to permit of identification on the spot.

There are usually from twelve to fifteen girls at work in the building, but yesterday morning the full number were not on duty.

Those killed were:

Eugene Larive, 28 years old, of St. Hilaire.

Alphonse Guilmin, 36 years old, married, Beloeil.

Philippe Paquette, 21, Beloeil.

Rosario Mongeau, 16, Beloeil.

Miss Mary Theresa Williams, 17, Beloeil.

Miss Lorenza Lacasse, 17, Beloeil.

Miss Aurore Eli, 16, Beloeil.

The victims were the only persons employed in the destroyed building at the time and all were instantly killed.

An inquest will be held to-day by Dr. Fontaine.

The official statement in regard to the accident is that the explosion occurred yesterday morning at 11.20 o'clock in what is known as the gelatine cartridging house. As to the cause of the explosion, it is quite impossible to determine, and no theory can be offered. Five minutes before the explosion the foreman of that department had gone through the house and examined it, as well as all the machinery, and he found everything in order. Work only started ten minutes before the explosion, and the visit was the daily opening inspection.

All machinery was in good condition, and every precaution was taken, said the president. The company carried on its operations under the regulations which are laid down by the home office in England for explosives factories. The factory inspectors of the Provincial Legislature visited the works from time to time and reported favorably upon the condition of the factory.

Burglars Netted Little.

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont., July 25.—Burglars who broke into the grocery stores of George Campaigne, Oscar Kreitner and Thorburn's drug store, were attempting to force the rear window of George Potter's barber shop, but were frightened away early yesterday. The burglars got only a small amount of money and some jewelry. Their identity is an absolute mystery to the police.

Another Bill Rejected.

LONDON, July 25.—The House of Lords rejected last night the bill to abolish plural voting in the British Isles. The vote was 166 to 42.

On July 14 this bill passed its third reading in the House of Commons after a motion to reject it had been defeated by 293 to 222.

MILITANTS ARE CAUGHT IN THE ACT

Police Catch Them Ready to Touch Match.

TO FIRE MANSION

One Pays Fine Rather Than Return to Jail.

GLASGOW, July 25.—Two suffragetes, Margaret Morrison and another woman, who refused to give her name, were arrested here yesterday when on the point of setting fire to a large mansion in a suburb of Glasgow, which was at one time the residence of the late Sir John Muir, a former lord provost.

The attention of the police was attracted to the house yesterday morning and they entered. Inside they found a woman standing with a match in her hand in front of some piles of combustibles which had been banked against the doors. Shortly afterward Margaret Morrison descended a chimney in which she had been secreted. She was covered with soot.

Mrs. Pethick Lawrence and Lady Sybil Smith, daughter of the Earl of Antrim, were arrested last evening while trying to hold a suffragette meeting at the entrance of the central lobby of the House of Commons.

Mrs. Margaret Haigh Mackworth, the militant suffragette, daughter of the "Coal King" David A. Thomas, yesterday joined the ranks of the backsliders and, if precedent should be followed, will be ostracised by the other militant women. She was released after a hunger strike, but rather than go back paid her fine.

TURKEY INVADES BULGARIA POWERS ASTOUNDED AT NEWS

Feard Break up of European Concert---Russia Ready to Act Alone

Canadian Press Despatch.

LONDON, July 25.—By invading what has always been Bulgarian territory, Turkey has created a situation full of dangerous possibilities. When the news was brought to the conference of Ambassadors it caused a feeling akin to consternation Ambassadors were unable to agree on what to do. Very little is now needed to break up European Concert which is now not much more than formal. Failing agreement by all European Powers ,Russia is ready to act alone by occupying Armenia and only pressure from France and England is causing her to delay this step.

PIONEER DEAD

Mrs. Detwiler Was a Notable Figure in Berlin.

BERILN, Ont., July 25.—Abigail Bechtel, widow of the late Rev. E. B. Detwiler, and mother of Dan B. Detwiler of Niagara power fame, passed away here in her 92nd year, having been born in Pottsdown, Pa., Oct. 8, 1821. She came to this country with her parents in 1829, and settled in Waterloo County, and was one of a family of ten children. Nine children survive. They are: Mrs. S. K. High, Red Deer, Alta.; Rev. Jacob B., Winnipeg, Man.; Rev. George, Harrisburg, Pa.; Mrs. A. Kinzie, Berlin; Aaron, Bridgeport; Mrs. D. S. Huber, Noah B. and Dan B., Berlin, Dr. Sara, Lethbridge, Alta.

There are 40 grandchildren and 41 great-grandchildren.

Mrs. Detwiler has had a large share of pioneer life. Her family was three weeks en route from Pennsylvania to Waterloo County, traveling with a four-horse team. They crossed the Niagara River at Queenston, and Mrs. Detwiler well remembered Gen. Brock's monument, which had been erected just a short time before. She was a lifelong member of the Mennonite Church.

Five Generations Present.

ST. CATHARINES, July 25.—Representatives of five generations graced the party in attendance at the golden wedding of Mr. and Mrs. John Ruddle, of this city, yesterday, the senior in the line being George Gander, aged ninety-two; father of the bride of fifty years, then Mrs. Ruddle herself, Mrs. Ruddle's daughter, Mrs. George Engle, of Springville, N.Y. Mrs. Howard Payne, of Orange, N.Y., daughter of Mrs. Engle, and Mrs. Payne's two-year-old son George.

Mr. Ruddle, who is seventy-seven years of age, was a veteran of the Crimean War, and wears four medals, one of which bears the clasp for the battle of Sebastopol, where he was wounded and was afterwards nursed by Florence Nightingale.

British Warships For Mexico.

LONDON, July 25.—Sir Edward Grey, the British Foreign Secretary, is keeping in communication with the British Admiralty in case the presence of a British warship in Mexican waters should be considered advisable. Thus far, however, the British Minister in Mexico City has not reported British subjects to be in danger. It is pointed out by the Foreign Office that the British in Mexico, in common with other foreigners, have suffered from the continued disturbances.

KING LAYS CORNER-STONE.

Function at the Australian Buildings Started In London.

LONDON, July 25.—Amid great pomp King George, dressed in an admiral's uniform, yesterday laid the foundation stone of the Australian Government's building which is being erected on the Aldwych site. His Majesty was received by Sir George Reid.

In reply, His Majesty congratulated the Government on the acquisition of the splendid site and noble structure which it was proposed to erect.

"Nothing can gratify me more than the testimony which you bear to the growing sense of kinship and unity which pervades the self-governing communities of the Empire and to those indissoluble ties which knit them to one another and to my throne," said King George.

"I am well assured that as in the past in any national emergency Australia will be ready to play her part for our common cause, and that for loyalty her sons will never be appealed to in vain."

Hawthorne May Get Liberty.

WASHINGTON, July 25.—Julian Hawthorne and Dr. William J. Norton, serving a year's sentence in the Atlanta Penitentiary for misuse of the mails, have been recommended for parole by the parole board, and the question of their release is now under consideration.

TURKS PRESSING

They Think the Powers Are Two Jealous to Interfere.

LONDON, July 25.—Without declaring war and apparently trusting that the jealousies of the powers will prevent any European interference, Turkey has begun an invasion of Bulgaria. The Turks have occupied and burned the villages on the Jamboli road, and it is reported have pushed their reconnaissances as far as Philippopolis.

King Ferdinand of Bulgaria has protested to the powers and appealed for European intervention, but there is no sign that Europe will take action. It appears doubtful whether any armistice signed at Nish until peace preliminaries have been arranged. Greece and Servia are both throwing obstacles in the way of an armistice, while pushing their attacks in the direction of Sofia.

It is rumored that Roumania has warned Servia and Greece that if they continue their advance the Roumanian army will be ordered to occupy Sofia first.

A telegram wa received yesterday afternoon from the Bulgarian Minister in Paris, reporting that the Turkish troops had entered the Bulgarian town of Philippopolis, that the populace was fleeting and that the situation was desperate. The diplomats are of opinion that if the report is correct it must refer merely to a reconnoitering flying column.

HOW DID HE PROPOSE?

This Couple Cannot Understand Each Other's Language.

GARY, Ind., July 25.—Cupid was somewhat nonplussed for a while in Gary yesterday when a young couple, neither of whom can speak the language of the other eloped to Crown Point, where they answered the marriage vow by means of an interpreter. On their way home the pair were arrested at the instance of the irate father because of the bride's youth and when they were taken to the Gary police station, where neither could give the other a word of comfort. Later the father's heart melted and the pair were released.

Manuel Courititis, 28 years old, a Greek, and Juliana Gaitis, a Hungarian belle, 16, are the pair. Courititis and the girl were acquainted only two days and Jorn Gaitis, the bride's father, can't figure out how he proposed to her.

LEGISLATORS ON TOUR OF EMPIRE ARE GIVEN WELCOME AT MONTREAL

Distinguished Party Headed by Lord Emmott, Under Secretary of State For the Colonies, is to Cross Canada and go to New Zealand, Australia and South Africa.

MONTREAL, July 25.—The Allan liner Victorian arrived last night, having on board the British Parliamentary party, with Lord Emmott, Under Secretary of State for the Colonies, at its head. The party includes the Rt. Hon. Lord and Lady Emmott, Col. Sir Edward, Lady and Miss Carble, Sir Stephen Collins, the Rt. Hon. Thomas Lough and Mrs. Lough, the Rt. Hon. Lord Sheffield, the Rt. Hon. Stuart Wortley, Mr. Donald MacMaster, K.C., Mr. Hamar Greenwood and Mrs. Greenwood, Mr. Arthur Sherwell and Mrs. Sherwell, Mr. Will Crooks, Mr. D. V. Pirie, Mr. Edgar Jones and Mr. Arthur Black.

Not a little importance attaches to this Empire tour of members of the British House of Parliament, this being the first delegation that has ever proceeded from Westminster at the invitation of any of the overseas Dominions through which the delegation will pass.

When the party landed at 9 o'clock last night they were received by Maj. E. J. Chambers, Gentlemen Usher of the Black Rod, on behalf of the Dominion Government.

The party will leave to-morrow morning for Ottawa where they will be given a banquet by the Government. Sunday night they leave Ottawa for Toronto, where they will remain until Monday at 12.45 p.m.

After leaving Ottawa the party goes to Toronto, Port McNicoll, Sault Ste. Marie, Fort William, Winnipeg, Banff, Laggan, arriving in Vancouver on August 5.

From there they go to Honolulu, Fiji Islands, Auckland, N.Z.; and on Sept. 2 arrive in Sydney, Australia where they spend one month on various excursions, and leave for Durban, South Africa, on Oct. 1, arriving there fourteen days later. The party will visit Johannesburg, Pretoria, Bloomfontein, Kimberley, and Cape Town, leaving the latter city on Nov. 1, and arriving at Southampton on Nov. 17.

WARNING TO IMMIGRANTS

Government Advising Only Farmers, Laborers and Domestics to Come

OTTAWA, July 25.—Hon. Dr. Roche, Minister of the Interior, stated to the Canadian Press yesterday that though there is much wisdom on the part of the Dominion Trades and Labor Congress in warning prospective emigrants in Great Britain against coming to the cities of Canada unless they have positions waiting for them, he believes that there is still a demand for farm laborers all over the country.

Dr. Roche emphasized that every immigration agent in Great Britain had received instructions to rather discourage any emigrants not having positions awaiting them from coming to the cities of this country. In all the literature published by the Department of the Interior and circulated freely in the Old Country, the following warning is printed in bold type and headed "Important":

"Farmers, farm laborers and female domestic servants are the only people whom the Canadian Immigration Department advises to go to Canada. All others should get definite assurance of employment before leaving home, and have money enough to support them for a time in case of disappointment."

Galt Man Killed.

GUELPH, July 25.—With his head completely severed from his body and lying between the rails, while the decapitated trunk lay outside the track, the body of George E. Stuart of Galt was found Wednesday night on the Grand Trunk Railroad, just west of the high level bridge, east of the station. Stuart, who was about 48 years of age, came to Guelph on Monday as a patient at the Homewood Sanitarium.

Mr. Stuart, who was a prominent miller of Galt, had been in a poor state of health since the death of his wife last October.

BISLEY SCORES

Carr Leads Canadians in the Grand Aggregate so Far.

BISLEY CAMP, Eng., July 25.—The Canadian garden party was largely attended. The Duke of Connaught, who had accepted, telegraphed his regrets at his inability to fulfil his intention, but among those present were Lord Strathcona, and Hons. T. White and Martin Burrell.

In the Queen Mary prize a competition which consists of snapshooting behind cover, Col.-Sergt. Thomas, 5th Royal Sussex Regiment, was first. Pte. Ivee, Civil Service Rifles, second; Sergt. Godfrey, Devonshire Regt., third; Corpl. Grand, Oxford L.I., fourth.

In the St. George's match, at 600 yards, first stage, Brown got 52; Bullock, 39; Carr, 48; Crowe, 38; Denholm, 46; Freeborn, 47; Guthaus, 43; Laman, 43; Lee, 42; Macpherson, 44; Parker, 37; Perry, 44; Richardson, 44; Steck, 44; Sterne, 40; Steele, 41; Taylor, 37; Bayles, 43; Mortimer, 45. Light at this range was very perplexing all morning.

Negro's Body Recovered.

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont., July 25.—A body believed to be that of Claude McCain, a negro racetrack hanger-on, who committed suicide by leaping from the International Bridge between Buffalo and Fort Erie last Sunday, was found in the river below the falls by William Hill early last night. In the vest was found the name of the negro who leaped to his death from the Buffalo bridge. No inquest will be held.

Will not Stop Here

The party of British parliamentarians, who are now on a trip through Canada, will not make a stop-over in Peterborough, as they will be travelling from Ottawa to Toronto during the night.

CONGRESSMAN WOULD SEND COMMISSION OF INQUIRY TO MEXICO

Chairman Flood of the House Committee on Foreign Relations Presents Plan and His Colleagues Are Prepared to Back President Wilson.

WASHINGTON, D.C., July 25.—President Wilson's plan to terminate factional strife and restore peace in Mexico was yesterday given serious consideration and earnest approval. Nine Democratic members of the House committee on foreign affairs discussed the proposition from every possible angle. They were unanimously of the opinion that no harm, and that good might result from execution of the President's suggestion.

More scepticism was displayed by Senators. They admitted that any reasonable method was well worthy of a trial, but believed that neither of the contending factions in Mexico would accept any American proposal for concluding hostilities. Inherent suspicion of each other and of the visitors, would prevent the accomplishment of good results.

Chairman Flood of the House committee of foreign relations, laid before nine of his Democratic colleagues the plan proposed tentatively by the President that a commission of mediation should be sent to Mexico to use its good offices in establishing the foundation of a stable form of government in the border nation. They agreed immediately that it might bring about a solution. The only difference of opinion was relative to the make-up of the body of mediators. The committee agreed that it would be unwise to approve of any plan that would need legislation. They preferred to allow the entire matter to be handled from the White House and State Department rather than to throw the matter into the House or Senate where, it might be kicked about as a political football, thereby running the possible danger of irritating the various powers.

The members of the committee agreed that such a commission should proceed to Mexico City and thoroughly canvass the situation with the leaders of the Huerta administration and the members of the Congress. Thereafter they should sift the animosities of the various bands of rebels and seek to ascertain whether or not the leaders are inspired by a desire to liberate the nation or to enrich themselves. They should then make a thorough tour of the country, interrogating all classes of people and inspecting the various provinces. If the situation showed any prospects of bringing about a general compromise for the purpose of holding an election, the commissioners should do all possible to accelerate any such movement, and if requested, take personal charge of the election for the purpose of insuring an honest vote. Further than this, the committeemen did not believe the administration should attempt to go.

The nine members of the committee who attended the conference yesterday agreed upon these propositions as embodying the principles that should be followed by the administration in dealing with the Mexican situation.

REV. J. G. LEWIS, B. A.

He will take the services at George Street Church on Sunday.

HOLE IN THE SEA

Water Began to Sink After Earthquake Then Rose Again.

MILAN, July 25.—There was a curious phenomenon in southern Italy during the present intense period of earthquake shocks and renewed volcanic activity. Count Getido Biscaretti, commander of the Vittor Pisani warship, with three other torpedo vessels, was engaged in firing practice in the Gulf of Salerno, when the sea suddenly began to sink at so amazing a rate that he was constrained to weigh anchor and steam 300 yards away. The disturbance seemed almost immediately under the fleet. The remarkable phenomenon was witnessed also by Admiral Corsi and various crews. It was quite unique in their experience. The sea continued to go down for a full quarter of an hour, then returned to its normal level, but after awhile the whole thing rehappened. At Cap Taiary, of the Naples port, the same phenomenon was observed for over the space of over two hours, also at Messina.

Roast For Ottawa.

OTTAWA, July 25.—The Cartier centenary committee handed out a decided "knock" to the city in a communication received yesterday in regard to the city's refusal to contribute to a fund being raised. Part of the letter read as follows:

"Small villages of practically no importance have gladly denied themselves to the extent of $10 and upwards. It remains for the seat of Government to distinguish itself by being the first city of any importance which stood aloof and refused to contribute. Evidently its sense of gratitude is as short-lived as its memory."

DOUKHOBORS SEEK HALF MILLION

They Want Compensation For Farms They Abandoned.

OTTAWA, July 25.—Asking for half a million dollars for the land in Saskatchewan which the Doukhobors abandoned when they moved to British Columbia and bought new land outright rather than swear allegiance to the King, three representatives of the colony are in Ottawa to see the Minister of Interior.

Because, owing to religious dictates, they could not become Canadian citizens, one of the party told the Canadian press the people of this strange sect about four years ago had to leave their homesteads in Saskatchewan and go to the coast province, where they purchased land outright, thus rendering it unnecessary to pledge allegiance to the sovereign. They have done wonderfully well in the fruit raising business in British Columbia, where about five thousand of them reside. There are about three thousand more in Saskatchewan who will ultimately join the newer colony.

John Konkuin of Brilliant, B.C.; M. Cazakoff, business manager of the Saskatchewan colony of Verigin, Sask., and A. M. Evalenko of New York, chief adviser to the Doukhobors, are in Ottawa claiming compensation aggregating $460,000.

It is in regard to the disposal of the homesteaded portions, upon which they claim to have expended a million dollars' worth of labor, and to which they have no clear patent, owing to refusal to become Canadian citizens, that they wish to open negotiations with the Government.

It is probable that the Minister will explain to them that for years they have had the use of an increment from these lands which quite equalizes any claims which they may now put forward to the Dominion Government.

From their 27,000 acres about two million bushels of wheat were sold last year to the English market through agents in Montreal. The purchased lands to which the communistic colony has full title are gradually being disposed of at a good profit.

Sun's Expulsion Demanded.

LONDON, July 25.—A Shanghai report says: Provided the navy's ammunition holds out, the result of the rebels' attack on the arsenal is not doubted. The garrison consists of seasoned troops, and their defences are admirably planned. The southerners have good officers, but the troops are indifferent.

There is a general demand among foreigners for the expulsion of Dr. Sun Yat Sen and other leaders of the rebellion.

SAYS MRS. PANKHURST "COULD NOT BE WORSE"

Millionaires at Thousand Islands.

KINGSTON, July 25.—The tourist traffic is now at its highest point down among the Thousand Islands. At Clayton there is an overflow of visitors. There are now in the railway yards of the New York Central, three private cars belonging to men whose wealth aggregate nearly a hundred million dollars. The owners are spending the summer or a few weeks of it enjoying the charms of the Thousand-Island region.

Doctors Say Transfusion of Blood Necessary

A CASE FOR ROCKWOOD

The following is taken from a sheet sent to this office with a malign purpose, from someone in Edmonton, Alta.:

"FOREWORD"

To the People of Alberta:

"Owing to its immense importance in our every day business and its tremendous influence upon our affairs (especially public affairs) The Press has earned the title of The Fourth Estate.

"In the extremes and bitterness of party strife many things happen which no one expects to see truthfully reported in, at least the papers supporting one side or other, that is the side adversely affected by a truthful publication of such incident or fact. The Public then looks to the paper or papers of the other side for a fair account of the suppressed items.

"When a community, however, is brought face to face with a condition such as exists in Edmonton now, where the most damaging and indefensible act of alleged Liberal workers are absolutely suppressed by an alleged Conservative paper, it is time for the people to ask themselves—Why?"

This is only the beginning, a "fore word," and this is not all of the fore-word. It would be more correct to call it a "fore-warning."

If there is no asylum for lunatics in Edmonton, there is certainly a candidate for such an institution in the writer of the above, and he ought to be put under immediate restraint for he is dangerous.

The present writer picked up the sheet containing this "fore-word" and for a quarter of an hour could not tell whether he stood upon his head or his feet. To confirm his sanity he handed the sheet to one of the reporters to read, but as the lad showed signs of derangement he was instantly relieved of the task and sent for a walk down George street to recover his mental equilibrium.

WHY WAS CANADA DEGRADED?

In spite of the characteristic English reserve of many of the writers it is evident in the recent English reviews that the action of Sir Wilfrid Laurier and his followers in obstructing and finally killing the Naval Aid Bill has created a profound impression. Premier Whitney said some months ago, "I suspect they are beginning to understand Laurier over there." Perhaps so, but they were not prepared, even as we in Canada were not prepared, for what occurred.

Liberals that were not in the secret council of the party as well as Conservatives were amazed. "Canada's Offer" had been acclaimed by the English press. Punch had devoted its leading cartoon to celebrating it and the First Lord of the Admiralty had compared it to the touch of a friend's hand in time of trouble. Such a reception meant that every country in the world would hear of it. Unhappily it made it equally certain that every country would hear that there was a party in Canada strong enough to insist that the "offer" be withdrawn. What was the world to think? What were Britons to think? What are we to think?

For remember that this fateful action was taken without a shadow of excuse. Not a jot or tittle of principle was involved. Sincerely or not the Opposition had repeatedly asserted that in case of emergency they would, themselves, do as much or more.

All therefore that the most uncompromising supporter of a Canadian Navy could demand was Mr. Borden's pledge that he would consult the people before bringing in his permanent policy. This he repeatedly did and as evidence of good faith showed his arrangement with the Admiralty providing for the recall of the ships if and when required. A really loyal Opposition acting in accordance with its professions would have said: "We are desirous that the world shall know that in case of emergency we are at Britain's side. We are not convinced that an emergency exists, and we are unalterably opposed to a permanent policy of contribution. We pass this measure because it is justified by the government on the grounds of emergency and because it is accompanied by a pledge, the government's permanent policy is to be submitted to the people."

Why was this course not followed? Did the Liberals comfort themselves in defeat and induce Sir Wilfrid to "stay with the boys" in the hope and expectation that the admitted difficulties of the naval question would give them another desperate chance of office? Or was there a still more sinister reason?

EXCERPTS

MORE "ARGUMENT" WANTED!

The Star takes the position that in Canada and throughout the Empire there are two parties one for centralization, and the other for self-government. Surely this is evident to any student of public affairs. And surely it is well that the difference should be recognized, that men should take sides according to their preferences, and that the question should be argued out and fought out.— Toronto Star.

THE BURDEN OF EMPIRE

Great Britain and the United States lead the world to-day in the arts of civilisation and of government. Because they lead, they must shoulder the burden of Empire. The blessings of stable government, just laws and high ideals of public service are not to be kept jealously within the boundaries of a favored people. No nation can live entirely unto itself. The possession of Empire is the outcome of aptitude for leadership. It is not a prize to be grabbed eagerly by the ambitious, but a trust to be fulfilled by the noble. When the advantages of civilization are used for ignoble purposes, the sceptre of Empire passes to other hands. Those who sneer at Empire as the vainglorious trappings of a warlike aristocracy see but a small part of a great picture — Toronto Daily News.

CANADIAN FORESTS

We, of the western lands look back with disdain on effete Europe and scorn the unlightened denizens of Asia. But in this matter of forest preservation, both these "unprogressive" continents have much to teach us. One of the great services which England has done for India is to formulate and put into operation a thorough system of forest protection and development. The Germans, as in everything else to which they set their hand, have made a science of forestry and have placed their forest wealth on a basis which ensures continual reproduction. Great Britain has just recently taken the matter in hand, and is now working out a plan which will ensure them against waste and destruction. — Montreal Star.

Why Do the Men Wear Black?

The curate of a large and fashionable church was endeavoring to teach the significance of white to a Sunday school class. "Why," said he, "does a bride invariably desire to be clothed in white at her marriage?" As no one answered, he explained: "White," said he, "stands for joy, and the wedding day is the most joyous of a woman's life." A small boy queried, "Why do the men all wear black?"—San Francisco Call.

BRITZ OF HEADQUARTERS

The Best Detective Story of the Last Ten Years

BY MARCIN BARBER

Supplied exclusively in Canada by the British and Colonial Press, Ltd., Toronto.

Mrs. Missioner's annoyance and Dorothy's fright, no less than Elinor's distress, restrained Sands again.

"What does all this mean?" he said to Carson, ignoring the other. But Donnelly was not to be ignored. His successful defiance of a millionaire had heightened his desire for the centre of the stage.

"It means," he rasped, "that we know who took Mrs. Missioner's diamonds, and all we've got to do now is to find the rest of 'em. And I guess that won't be hard. Where there's one bird, the flock won't be far away. Come, Miss Holcomb, we and you'll be getting downtown. The Chief wants to see you."

CHAPTER V.

The Brownstone House

While Elinor, helpless in the reaction from her grief, was speeding to Mulberry Street in a taxicab with Donnelly and Carson, a swart, slim man glided out by the servants' door of the Missioner home. His modern garments, Oriental only by faint suggestion in the English looseness of their cut, caught the eye merely by contrast with the snowy turban that covered his head. He moved with the cat tread of one long accustomed to walking on his own soles. His shoes were conventional enough in appearance, but of softer leather than that of ordinary American make. It was evident that he relied on the silence of his footgear and, judging from the caution with which he let himself out of the house and looked up and down the street without trumpeting his departure. Seeing no one in the block, he walked swiftly toward Fifth Avenue and turned the corner so sharply that he bowled over a district messenger. A few words in a foreign tongue were his response to the select vernacular the rising youngster hurled at him—words so mysterious that a final "Ah, garn!" was the utmost of which the astonished boy was capable by way of reply. To be flung to the sidewalk by a personage in a British tourists' suit with a headgear out of the Arabian nights well may be disconcerting, even to No. 4762 of the A. D. T.

The dark man hailed a hansom, muttered "The park" to the driver, and sat well back in the vehicle, closing the apron doors and lowering the upper curtain until he left only a narrow space for observation. In the interior gloom, laced by chance lances of light from arc lamps, he sprinkled himself freely with many drops from a silver vial that smelled of the East. He readjusted the folds of his turban, settled his collar and scarf, and shook himself more closely into his clothes, which, despite their loose cut, seemingly were tighter than he liked.

North of the Casino, in the East Drive of the Central Park, the Hindoo pulled the check strap and gave new directions to the cabman. The hansom turned out of the park at Seventy-second Street and rolled on rubber tires in an easterly direction crossing several avenues before it stopped in front of a brownstone house exactly like several dozen others in the block. The Oriental paid the cabman and stood on the sidewalk until the hansom turned the corner. Then he walked east a few yards, crossed the street, turned west, and darted into the vestibule of a house that was the twin of the one at which the cab had stopped. He did not ring the bell, but scratched lightly on the ground glass pane of the inner door. The door swung inward and he entered a hall lighted only by a glimmer that filtered through the glass from a far lamp in the street. A voice in the dark asked a question in a language somewhat like that the Hindoo had flung over his shoulder at the messenger boy. The visitor answered with a single word, and a sunburst of light burst upon him from a cluster of incandescent bulbs above his head.

"If you are false, turn back," said the voice in one of the higher tongues of India.

"True though lowly follower of the Light am I," the Hindoo replied, with a profound salaam toward ink-black portières at the far end of the hall. He moved slowly toward the curtains and stretched forth his hand. Again the voice spoke.

"If there is aught of doubting in your heart, turn back ere it be too late," it said. "There is no repentance this side of the screen. Beware! Turn back!"

But the Hindoo, with another deep bow, parted the heavy curtains and stepped through the opening. Without a single glance at the sumptuous Eastern furnishing of the room, he bent his body forward with touching, outstretched hands until his fingers well-nigh reached the floor. In that posture he remained until, in the tones of the voice that had sounded through the outer darkness, a man sitting cross-legged on a divan at the other end of the room murmured an acknowledgment of the salutation. Slowly the visitor straightened himself and looked at the divan, without raising his eyes to the face of the man upon it.

"The peace of the Immutable One be upon you," he said in his harsher dialect. "Your servant Ali comes to report upon his mission."

"Peace be to you, faithful one," answered the other. Not until then did Ali look his master in the face.

The master seemingly did not wear the evening dress of the Occident in which he had appeared in the opera box adjoining Mrs. Missioner's. His slender, well-knit figure was swathed in the clinging garments of the East—garments of silken stuff that fluttered and rippled with every movement, that seemed to rustle in echo of his thoughts.

"What are your tidings, Ali?" asked the man on the divan. He gave little thoughtful tugs at a punkahstring and the resultant breeze stirred the smoke wreaths from his narghileh.

"The jewel, O Swami!"

The other's eyes glistened.

"What of it?" he inquired.

"Gone!" returned the humbler Hindoo. "Vanished!"

"And you did not get it?"

"Swami, I did not. Your servant is a dog and the son of a dog, but he has done his best."

The man on the divan watched his servant through slitted eyes.

"Where is the jewel?" he asked sternly.

"Who knows, holy man?" replied the visitor. "It has taken unto itself wings and in its place a false stone was left. The wit of your servant is completely at fault. I know not where the diamond is."

The Swami did not tell him he had seen the destruction of the false Maharanee by Griswold's heel in the Metropolitan Opera House. He smoked thoughtfully, his fingers knotting and raveling the punkahstring in an absent way.

"And you have come straightway with the news?" he asked.

"As the hawk flies, master," said the servant. There was trepidation in his eyes, but he answered unhesitatingly.

"It is well," the Swami said, between rings of blue smoke. "Wait without, Ali, and I will have speech with you in a little while."

The visitor, with another low salaam, withdrew as he had entered, backing across the threshold. In the hall, his figure shot to its full height and he flashed a glance of uncertain meaning at the outer side of the portieres. He passed silently up the stairs and slipped into a room above that in which the Swami sat. His catlike tread carried him to a closet, into which he crept. Flattening himself on the floor, he applied his ear to a hole so small it scarcely widened the crack between two boards. He could not see, but he could hear the creak of the Punkah as, after a violent tug by the man on the divan, it continued swinging to and fro.

Hardly had the Hindoo left the room when the Swami, like a mummer throwing off a mask, arose briskly from the divan and cast aside the silk robe that enveloped him. The silken turban remained on his head, but in all other respects he was dressed like a Wall Street man. His feet, drawn beneath his robe as he sat on the broad couch, had not shown the patent leather shoes in which they were encased. He lighted a European cigarette and puffed as if he enjoyed the change from the pungent Eastern tobacco.

Up and down the room he walked sprightly, pausing from time to time with puckered forehead and thumbs resting on the edges of his coat pockets. Then he walked softly to a door at one side of the room, and opening it a little way, called softly:

"Kananda."

A man of mature years came in quietly and looked inquiringly at the Swami. He was of portly build, but his vigor still showed traces of the athletic training he had followed in English schools and colleges. His western manner and excellent English were not in surprising contrast to his Indian swarthiness among those who remembered the vogue a British education had among India's petty Queen and Empress. Prince Kananda had been one of the best batsmen on the Cambridge eleven. His popularity among the democratic young aristocrats of the period had sprung from the day when he remarked it was not his fault his father was a Maharajah, and that it shouldn't be treasured against him, even though he couldn't live it down. Nandy, as they called him on the banks of the Cam, was voted a good sort. The classification had stuck to him wherever men foregathered, from the Strangers Club of the Straits Settlement to White's and the Union League.

"What's the row, your reverence?" he asked. On the surface, he took the faith of his fathers lightly. Oriental though he was in the marrow.

"The Maharanee has disappeared," said the Swami.

"Whee-ee!" returned Kananda. "If that blessed stone isn't the Wandering Jew of jewels! How long has it been missing this time?"

"Nobody knows, unless it be its present possessor. Moreover, prince you are, ruler you may be, but I cannot overlook your levity in connection with so sacred a gem. Besides, my friend, remember the brethren."

Nandy's face became serious immediately.

"I wasn't exactly poking fun at the Maharanee," he apologized, "and they who suffer are never long absent from my thoughts. It's a Western habit, this flippancy—comes from trying to graft a Hindoo sprig on a British oak, you know."

"We are of the Orient," said the Swami, still rebukingly. "We should not copy the barbarisms of the Occident."

Nandy's eyes twinkled as the humor of such an observation in the heart of Manhattan flashed upon him. In a moment, he was grave again, however. He swung himself to a table lightly for one of his bulk, and sat kicking his heels as he awaited the Hindoo priest's narrative.

"There's little to tell," the Swami went on, himself dropping into the easier speech of the West as his companion stopped smiling. "The great diamond is gone and Ali has no idea of its whereabouts. Night and day of the watch in the woman's home, he has nothing to tell further than that the jewel has disappeared and an arrest has been made."

"So they've caught the thief?"

"Perhaps. The bunglers of this uncouth country may have stumbled upon her by chance. She's in custody anyway."

"A woman, eh? Good-looking?" Not without influence on his ideals had he taken a post-graduate course among London's Gaiety girls. He was a connoisseur in the femininity of the "alls." Serious women bored him. But surely a young person clever enough to get away with a diamond the size of the Maharanee couldn't be stupid?

Kananda's whistle was expressive.

"Is there evidence to convict?" he asked interestedly.

"A paste necklace was substituted for the one containing the Maharanee," replied the Swami. "One of the real diamonds was found in the prisoner's room."

"Now, that's funny," said the Prince. "Devilish funny! And they took her in tow for that?"

The priest nodded.

"What rotters these American policemen are!" snapped Kananda in the slang he had used as Nandy of Cambridge. "Fancy any self-respecting Oriental doing that? Why, the bulldogiest little terrier in the Mikado's secret service wouldn't make such a break!"

The Swami nodded again.

"Ali searched her room, of course, before the detectives got there," he continued. "Soon after Mrs. Missioner's return from the opera, he went straight from the hall outside the library to Miss Holcomb's apartment and investigated thoroughly."

"Look here, old man," jerked Kananda. "If Ali has the stone, it's all well enough to put it over on——"

"He hasn't it," the Swami answered. "The thing for us to do now is to find out who has."

"Good old guesser!" grinned the Prince. "Well, Ali knows his business."

"I'm not so sure of that," he retorted. "I don't like his failure to keep better watch on the stone."

Nandy swung himself back to the table.

"How long's it been gone?" he asked.

"I tell you nobody knows. Its absence was discovered to-night."

"You've just learned of it?"

"No and yes. I knew about the Maharanee before Ali came." He sketched the incident of the opera house in crisp sentences. Kananda listened eagerly.

"So there's nothing left of the bogus Maharanee?" he observed.

"Nothing but this splinter I palmed," returned the priest. "It was easy—elementary legerdemain."

Both laughed. The facility of Occidentals was a standing joke.

"Well, we need more help on this now," said the Prince. "Ali will have to go back to the house."

"Yes, Mrs. Missioner can't spare her Oriental curio just yet," the Swami assented.

Kananda reached for a cigarette.

"I guess we'll have to put Ramsetjee on the men," he mused. "Don't like to do it, for Ram isn't exactly what we'd call an adept. Now, would we?"

"Hardly."

"But Ali can't be spared from the Missioner place. Sands and Griswold can be watched by one man."

"Oh, yes," replied the priest. "I wish the man were a little brighter than Ramsetjee, though."

"Can't be helped—what?" anglicized Nandy. "I'll have an eye to them in the clubs from time to time. You look after the social end."

"Yes." The Swami smiled. "They'll hardly get away from me in society."

"My word, but you're coming on!" chaffed the Prince. "Right in the social swim. See what it is to be a Swami. Dare say the Duchess of Drygoods and the Countess de Brewery are head over heels in love with the newest Eastern mystic. Too bad they're not in Delhi."

The Swami frowned. He refused to laugh at jests bordering on lack of respect for the faith. Even the Maharanee's son feared to try him too far in that direction.

"Omitting personality for the moment," said the priest pointedly, "I will participate in the gregarious mumming of these barbarians for the sake of our purpose. It is not well to concern ourselves with the frivolous affairs of life. We may have to do much more serious things than we are doing now to get the Maharanee. If it should come to the last resort, we would not hesitate, you and I. Remember the brethren!"

"I shall remember," said Kananda, gravely.

The Swami sounded a gong. As its muffled music came to him through the tiny hole in the floor above, Ali rose cautiously from his crouching position and hastened downstairs. Next minute he was entering the presence of the higher caste Easterners with another profound salaam. In measured tones, the Swami, who had resumed his Oriental robes, gave him instructions to which the Hindoo servant listened with intent respect, the Prince from time to time emphasizing the priest's orders with a nod.

"You may go, Ali," said the Swami in conclusion.

"I go, master," the Hindoo replied, backing through the portieres. He maintained his respectful bearing all the way along the hall, out the door and down the brownstone steps. Then when he had walked quickly to a point several houses on and his face was well out of the angle of vision of the conventionally curtained windows at the front of the strange dwelling, a peculiar expression spread over his features. Once round the corner, he wheeled and gazed piercingly toward the house he had quitted, as if his eyes could penetrate the intervening walls.

"Is thy servant a dog or the son of a dog?" he said under his breath fiercely.

Washing Gloves Fashionable.

The washing glove has come to be the fashionable article this summer for day and evening wear.

A large assortment of smart new gloves were seen at a smart London shop. The vogue for bright-colored kids has completely died out, and the correct tones this year are white, ivory, pearl grey, and graduated shades of tan.

The white doeskin glove, which may be had in all-lengths, has quite ousted the once-popular silk glove, and, what is more, it is now worn for evening functions where formerly only the glace elbow length glove was considered correct wear.

Suede gloves are also fashionable and short black suede is greatly favored for morning wear.

To make awnings waterproof, plunge first into a solution containing 20 per cent. soap and afterward in another solution having the same percentage of copper. Wash afterward.

TEACHING THE BLIND

Demonstration Classes Will be a Feature of Canadian National Exhibition This Year

The educational exhibits at this year's Canadian National Exhibition will be featured by demonstration classes in the teaching of the blind and the deaf. The pupils for these classes will be drawn from the institutes at Brantford and Belleville. In other respects the educational display will be in advance of all previous efforts. Lectures along hygienic lines, public health exhibits, public school exhibits, agricultural college exhibits, an information bureau as to agriculture—everything that develops the country and its people will be there. 50

LADIES' AID HAD FINE TRIP

Mark Street Excursion Went to Gore's Landing

The Ladies' Aid Society of Mark Street Methodist Church, held their annual excursion down the river yesterday afternoon to Gore's Landing, per steamer Esturion, and a most enjoyable outing was spent. Tea was served at Gore's Landing, after which the excursionists returned home, arriving in the city about 9.30.

ADDED STRENGTH FOR THE 57th REGIMENT BAND

First Class Musicians From England to Join the Band —Renwick's Hits No. 13 For To-nights Concert

Musical circles in this city will learn with pleasure that their ranks are in all probability to be increased by some half dozen or more first class English instrumentalists who will become members of the 57th Regiment Band. They comprise both reed and brass players as well as an artist on the tympanies, and as they double on strings, apart from being a decided acquisition to the 57th, will form the nucleus of a first-class orchestra. The parties who have been quietly conducting the negotiations on behalf of the 57th, have taken the utmost pains to assure themselves as to the ability and character of these prospective citizens, so that mistakes that have been made in the past will be avoided. The London Times was the medium used to get in touch with these musicians. The 57th is bound at any cost to maintain its high standard of efficiency.

The 57th Regiment Band will have to fill their engagement at the Toronto Exhibition this year in full dress. The Musical Director of the Exhibition has advised Bandmaster Gliddon that tunics, belts, etc., must be worn. The drill order serge will not fill the bill this year.

The 57th Regiment Band at last night's rehearsal turned out in nearly full force. Thirty-five of the members were present and put in two hours' solid work under the baton of Prof. Gliddon.

"Renwick's Hits, No. 13," will be specially featured at to-night's band concert. The ink is scarcely dry on this number.

TRUE FISH STORY

What the Dominion Government Will Show at Canadian National Exhibition This Year

Every day will be Friday bye and bye if the Fisheries Department of the Dominion Government accomplish the object of their exhibit at the Canadian National Exhibition this year. This exhibit is intended to show the people of inland Canada what they are missing in not using salt water fish as a steady diet. It will show the various varieties of the finny tribe, and just how each should be cooked to become a delicacy. The Department is spending $10,000 on this exhibit, so it will be seen they are in deadly earnest. This should easily be one of the most interesting exhibits of the Fair. 48

CANADIAN NEWPAPER DIRECTORY FOR 1913

We have just received from the publishers, A. McKim, Limited, of Montreal, and Toronto, a copy of the 1913 Edition of the Canadian Newspaper Directory.

This is the eighth edition of this valuable work, which fills a very real need in Canada, and deserves a place on the desk of every business man, whether he is an advertiser or not.

The Canadian Newspaper Directory lists and describes 1,668 periodicals in Canada and Newfoundland. Of these 152 are daily, 1,279 weekly or semi-weekly, 232 monthly or semi-monthly, and 25 are published less frequently. This is a considerable increase over the last edition. There is also a specially selected list of leading British publications which will be of much use to those interested in Old Country trade.

In addition to this, the Directory supplies a comprehensive Gazetter giving the population, the chief industries, the railway, the telegraph and banking facilities and other interesting features of every newspaper, city, town and village in Canada.

This work contains over 495 pages. It is splendidly bound and is certainly a credit alike to the publishers and to the Canadian newspapers generally.

A. McKim, Limited, are particularly well qualified to edit and publish this, the standard book of reference on Canadian publications. They are the pioneers in the Advertising Agency field in the Dominion, the McKim Agency having been founded in Montreal in January, 1889, twenty-four years ago, by Mr. Anson McKim, who is still at the head of the business.

During all this time they have been the acknowledged leaders in this line in Canada, and the agency business has been developed from a very small beginning—then performing only the functions of the middle man—to a very large producing enterprise which runs into millions.

It goes without saying then that no other Agency is in closer touch with the publishers of the Dominion than McKim's, and they are therefore able to get the most reliable information. The price of the 1913 Directory is $2.00. 1d

All Two Piece Suits Exactly Half Price

We have never before offered Clothing at so marked a reduction, and a moment's consideration of the fact that a $15 hand-tailored Suit can be obtained for $7.50, will convince every man who values his appearance, that here is an opportunity of rare occurrence. Each Suit is a strictly correct cut of this season's styles, and they are made mostly of light and medium shades, in Flannels, Homespuns and Tweeds. There are 25 of them in all, and their original prices were from $10 to $22.50. All sizes between 35 and 46 inclusive may be obtained and the quality is such that it will see the wearer through the remaining two months of two-piece Suit weather this summer, and be good for next year too. A good many are of "Semi-Ready" make with the price ticket in the inside pocket, and only because of our building alterations are prices reduced as follows:

| | | | |
|---|---|---|---|
| All $20 2-Piece Suits | $10.00 | All $18 2-Piece Suits | $9.00 |
| " $15 " " | 7.50 | " $13.50 " " | 6.75 |
| " $12 " " | 6.00 | " $10 " " | 5.00 |

SUITS WORTH $22.50, $25 AND $28 FOR $16.85

Too much cannot be said in favor of these suits, that represent the very highest standard of the tailor's art. Nothing but all wool tweeds and worsteds have entered into their make up, and the patterns, which are in light, medium and dark shades, are equally as attractive as the materials. They are the cream of our wardrobes, and are practically all "Semi-Ready" cut on the newest and most approved styles. All sizes from 36 to 44 in the selection, but we would urge you to make an early choice. Not often can one purchase such a suit at less than the price of an ordinary ready-made. The values are $22.50, $25 and $28. The Price.................................................. $16.85

$20 FANC SUITS $13.85

Because twenty dollars is a popular price amongst men, we have an excellent stock at this price; moreover the value is a little better than one would expect. But when it is possible, as is now the case, to buy such a suit, altered and finished to one's measure, for $13.85, it is an appeal to sound reason, that here is good investment. Attractively patterned tweeds and worsteds are the materials, while the styles are without fault. For an extra suit, or one for continuous wear, this offer will be hard to equal. The Usual value $20. The Sale price........................................ $13.85

BASEBALL TEAM HELD MOONLIGHT

Machinists Had Large Crowd and Good Time

The moonlight held last night via steamer Stoney Lake, down the Otonabee River, under the auspices of the Machine Shop Baseball team, proved to be very enjoyable. Some two hundred and fifty young folks were present and all agreed that they "had a good time."

The Grand Opera House Orchestra were present and the music was greatly enjoyed, while the reverse can be said about the "agony choir" at the back of the deck. The latter gave unwelcomed presentations of everything from "What's the Matter With Father," to the songs introduced by Harry Lauder.

INTEREST IN THE MERCANTILE LEAGUE GAMES

LAID AT REST

The funeral of the late Mrs. Edgar took place this afternoon from the late residence, Sherbrooke street, to All Saints' Church and the Little Lake Cemetery. Beautiful floral tributes were laid on the casket, and these with other actions, testified to the high esteem in which the deceased was held.

Following a brief service at the home, the funeral proceeded to the church, when the Rev. R. B. Grobb officiated and a large number of friends and acquaintances attneded.

At the conclusion of this impressive service, the funeral proceeded to the cemetery.

DECLINES TO BE BRUMMEL.

Heir to British Throne Goes In For Comfort In Clothing.

The Prince of Wales is yet too young to be "arbiter elegantiarum," but the time may come. At present our fashionable youths are much perturbed because they do not find that the prince sets the seal of his approval on their taste in elegant attire. While they are specially punctilious in the observance of certain modes the prince makes a point, it might almost be said, of ignoring these customs. For example, he invariably wears his gloves buttoned and never leaves the ends open and tucked down over the wrist, as is the custom of the young "swell."

He wears a stand up turned down collar with a frock or morning coat simply because that sort of collar is more comfortable than the plain stand up collar.

Several members in the royal household, it may be mentioned, have lately followed the young prince's example in this matter and have discarded the stand up collar altogether except in the evening; by general consent a stand up collar with small wings looks smarter in the evening than a turned down collar—and such a collar is always worn.

The taste of the prince in the matter of socks, however, delights the heart of the youth of fashion, for he frankly confesses to a taste for gaily patterned socks. These socks are made to order from designs that are submitted to the prince, who has two or three pairs made to go with each of his suits. The dress bills of the prince are naturally beginning to rise, but nevertheless, he does not throw money away on clothes. He generally orders half a dozen suits at a time, and does this at most three times a year. Though the prince is "fitted" at his tailor's when necessary his tailors have an accurate model of his figure and one fitting is the most that is necessary.

The heir apparent has a great liking for soft shirts and wears ordinary white shirts as seldom as possible.

His favorite day attire is a knicker suit and soft shirt and collar, and directly he gets out of London he gets into such a suit as early as possible.

In the matter of walking sticks the prince bids fair to exceed his grandfather's famous collection in number and interest, but of the thirty walking sticks he possesses the prince rarely carries any but a large crooked gold mounted stick given him by the Kaiser when he came over to attend King Edward's funeral.

This particular stick at Oxford is known as the "Prince's Crook," a designation that when it reached the ears of the Princess Mary, she at once gave to the stick.

AN OPTICAL TALK

Nothing is more surprising than the change which has come over the public with regard to Sight Testing. Ten years ago it was a matter of difficulty to overcome the reluctance which they manifested to the scientific examination of their eyes. They never had been tested and didn't see why they should be now.

To-day, however, matters are entirely changed, those people who come for the special purpose of having their eyes examined, far out-number those who come asking for Spectacles, and this I take as a compliment, proving as it does, that we should not supply glasses unless they would be of real benefit. It may surprise you to learn that many hundreds of people have been refused spectacles by us, either because their eyes were not in need of them, or more generally, because they had allowed them to get into such a serious condition that medical aid had become necessary.

It has been my rule for ten years never to supply glasses where an examination proves the advice of a Physician is required. You cannot afford to take chances with your eyes.

We manufacture all our lenses from "PEBLO" quality glass, the finest quality known to the science. We have the exclusive agency for this quality glass.

POST OFFICE POLICE

BRITISH OFFICIALS MAINTAIN ELABORATE SPY SYSTEM.

Special Inquiry Department Is Divided Into Two Sections, Those Who Watch the Public and Those Who Render Confidential Reports on the Behavior of the Civil Servants—Walking the Carpet.

Tell a rural letter-carrier—nay, tell those wiseacres who extol the art of spying as it is practiced in France and Russia — that the postoffice in Great Britain has the most perfect system of espionage in the world, and you will surely be laughed at for your pains.

Yet such is the fact. More than that, the system forms an integral part of the machinery by which the Postmaster-General controls the largest staff in the country—a staff which now numbers more than 233,000 persons.

The spies of the postoffice mostly belong to the Special Inquiry Department, which is divided into two sections—the upper and the lower—for spying on the public and the staff respectively. Those in the lower division, as well as non-official detectives who work side by side with the sorters, etc., are known to the men as "Pinkertons," or, for short, "Pinks," and the duties they perform are of a remarkable character.

They are largely utilized in connection with "confidential reporting," which consists in bringing a charge against a servant on the evidence of somebody unnamed.

If a man's conduct is in any way unsatisfactory in or out of the office, he is certain to be reported sooner or later. It does not matter if he is merely guilty of such comparatively venial crimes as "yawning," lack of energy, or lack of initiative." Nor does he gain anything by admitting an offence at the time it is committed and throwing himself on the mercy of the court.

A clerk in the money order department, being late one morning through the faithlessness of a clock, brought down to the office that errant timepiece, with weights and pendulum all complete, to show the controller that there was positively no deception, and that the wretched thing really had stopped at a certain hour. But he was reported all the same.

All "major irregularities," in fact, are reported. As a result, an offender receives in due course a "disciplinary paper," which sets out his delinquency, and on which he is required to write his answer.

A clerk who had to account once for being absent on Saturday, was uncommonly hard put to it for an excuse; but eventually he wrote: "My absence to-day was really not intended on my part. I mistook the day of the week, and thought to-day was Sunday."

Better still was the explanation of a messenger boy who was ordered to state "why you were seen walking across the sorting-room with an unlighted cigarette in your mouth." He promptly complied, as follows: "Because it is forbidden for me to light it in the office."

On the other hand, some wretched culprits fail lamentably. One of the army of sub-postmasters — who also are "confidentially reported" upon—returned a sheet, with the simple endorsement, "Lord, have mercy on me!"

If the defence is not satisfactory, the offender gets "turkey," otherwise "the bird"—that is, has to work an hour or two for nothing—is deprived of his increment, or is punished in some other way.

One of the most serious penalties imposed is loss of increment, because rise in pay to which a man would [illegible] in the ordinary course is [illegible] for a series of years. In one [illegible] an officer was practically fined [illegible]—the total amount of progres[illegible] increases in salary — for being [illegible].

A peculiar offence is sometimes [illegible]ally penalized. This is "talking over [illegible] wires," which is detected by "tap[illegible] a wire at some point between [illegible] two places where a conversation [illegible] carried on.

In more than one occasion a con[illegible] between two "agitators" has [illegible] the higher officials in this [illegible], particularly at times of "un[illegible]" and no action has been taken [illegible] a view to bringing the rule break[illegible] to book, because it has not been [illegible] to do so. But in several cases [illegible] conversation has been detected [illegible] offenders have been called upon [illegible] pay for every word they had tele[illegible] to one another.

Some years ago a couple of tele[illegible] courted by wire. Unknown [illegible] them, a record was kept of the [illegible] nothings they exchanged, and [illegible] each was presented with a [illegible]. His was for 900 words, while [illegible] was for 800. Fortunately for [illegible], however, the stony-hearted de[illegible]nt did not exact its uttermost [illegible] it charged them at the press [illegible].

[illegible], the chief peculiarity of this [illegible] is that when a charge is made [illegible] a man he does not see the re[illegible] upon which it is based, and [illegible]uently does not of necessity [illegible] who is his accuser.

[illegible] spies, in addition, are in touch [illegible] trade unions connected with [illegible]ment, and keep their super[illegible] well informed of the under-cur[illegible]. At one time, when the commit[illegible] of the [illegible] Association met in [illegible] library at the General Postoffice, [illegible] did this so well that members [illegible] association began to suspect [illegible] there must be a traitor in their [illegible]. But it was discovered that a [illegible]" who, obtaining access to a [illegible] by a private staircase, was [illegible] hear everything that passed! [illegible], indeed, he has no idea [illegible] he has to thank. So here, [illegible] is scope for the "Pinks," and [illegible], some of the reports are [illegible] them.

HOME COURSE IN FRUITS AND BERRIES

CULTIVATION OF STRAWBERRIES.

By L. C. CORBETT, Horticulturist, Bureau of Plant Industry, United States Department of Agriculture.

In the strawberry a very attractive subject for development is presented. It is a plant which is readily propagated by seeds, which is, of course, the only means of securing new forms. The seeds may be selected from plants showing the desired tendencies, or they may be produced by crossing two plants possessing characteristics which it would be desirable to combine in one plant. But fortunately for the breeder the strawberry is provided with a means of self preservation through the agency of runners (stolons), which enables the propagator to perpetuate any plant he may develop without fear of loss or change of characters.

When the main crop is the plants the aim is to get these as large and strong as possible, and to this end the ground is made rich and put in good tilth by frequent cultivation early in the season.

The home production of runners for one's own planting is quite another matter. The fruit crop is the chief object, and the production of runners prior to harvesting the fruit is discouraged. The difficulty with this method is to secure strong, well developed plants for August and September planting. When the main planting is done in the spring the earliness of the plants is of less importance. In favorable seasons, however, strong plants for August and September planting can be secured even in the New England states. The question of the desirability of purchasing or of growing one's own plants must be decided by the planter.

Field practices in the cultivation of strawberries vary in different sections of the country to conform to climatic and soil conditions. The factor most influenced by conditions of soil and climate is the time of setting. In some sections the rainfall will permit of either spring or autumn planting, while in others plants can only be successfully set during the fall.

Selection of Soil.

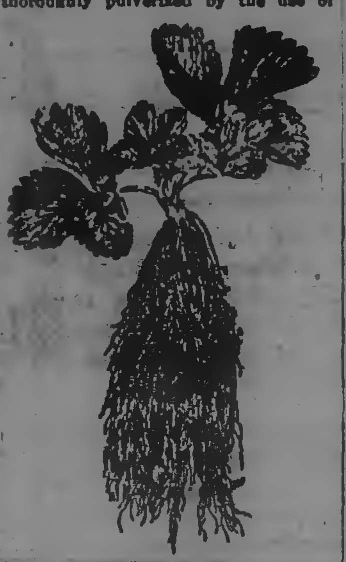
The soil considered best suited to the cultivation of the strawberry in the northeastern part of the United States is what is known as a sandy or gravelly loam. A warm, quick soil, although naturally poor, is to be preferred to a heavy, retentive soil well supplied with plant food. The lacking plant food can easily be supplied by the addition of fertilizers, while the physical characteristics of the soil can only be modified with great difficulty by cultivation, drainage and the addition of organic matter. Congenial soil and exposure are therefore important considerations. The plants not only thrive better on light soils, but the crop is more abundant, and the berries are larger and sweeter. The period of maturity can also be modified within reasonable limits by selecting soils which force or retard ripening, by securing southern or eastern exposures, which give the plants the advantage of the first warm days of spring, or by placing them on northern and western slopes, where by the use of heavy mulches the time of ripening may be delayed as much as ten days, and by the use of late ripening sorts can be extended even longer.

The land to be devoted to the growing of strawberries should, if possible, be planted in a cultivated crop, such as potatoes, beans or corn, at least one year previous to setting the plants, in order that the larvae of such insects as wireworms, white grubs, cutworms, etc., may be as completely eliminated as possible. Sod land is a favorite breeding ground for such insects and should therefore be avoided unless it be new clover sod, which can be turned under with good results.

Previous to setting the plants the soil should be deeply plowed in order that all organic matter of whatever nature on the surface may be completely turned under. Immediately following the plow the land should be thoroughly pulverized by the use of the harrow, and the surface should be reduced to a condition which would form an ideal seed bed.



A WELL ROOTED PLANT WITH SMALL CROWN.

Preparation of the Soil.

If the soil is not rich for best results it should have a dressing of at least twenty cart loads of well decomposed stable manure per acre, either plowed under or incorporated with the soil by surface culture after plowing. If stable manure is not available plant food should be supplied by a liberal use of finely ground bone, chemical manures and potash. The use upon the plants at blooming time of highly nitrogenous manures, such as nitrate of soda, at the rate of about 100 pounds per acre, often proves of great value. If it can be applied in solution it will give quicker results than if put on in the form of a salt. If the fertility of the soil is little more than sufficient to support this plant when the heavy strain of fruit production comes on the plant will only perfect the number of fruits its food supply will allow; hence the advantage of applying quickly available plant foods just at this critical time.

Plants with small crowns—i. e., a moderate growth of leaves—and with an abundant development of fibrous roots are the most desirable. If the leaf area seems to be too great for the root system of the plant the removal of two or three of the older leaves will prove an advantage.

Horticultural varieties of strawberries occur with imperfect (or pistillate) flowers as well as with perfect flowers (those containing both stamens and pistils). It is important that the planter give careful attention to this point in making his plantation, as a patch made up of pistillate sorts alone will be unproductive, while many such sorts when properly interspersed with perfect flowered varieties have proved to be our largest fruited sorts and most prolific bearers. There is no way of distinguishing the perfect from the imperfect plants when not in bloom.

When to Set the Plants.

There are several considerations which govern the time and manner of setting strawberry plants. The time to plant depends in humid regions more upon the rainfall than upon any other factor. If there are not timely rains at the planting season to give the plants an opportunity to establish themselves the stand will be uneven, with the result that more work will be required to keep the land free from weeds and more trouble will be necessary to get the blank spaces occupied by runners from the plants that survive. The plants that withstand the drought are checked and dwarfed. They seldom recover so as to make either satisfactory croppers or plant producers. It is most satisfactory and most economical, therefore, to choose that season which offers most advantages at planting time, other things being equal. In general there are only two seasons for planting—spring and fall—but in some localities spring planting should be done in April or May by the use of the preceding season's plants, while in others it may be done in June from the crop of runners of the same season.

In irrigated regions planting can be done at whatever season the work will give best results in future crop production. In humid regions rainfall is a determining factor. In the northern half of the prairie region west of the Mississippi spring planting gives best results. In the middle Atlantic states the work is divided between spring and August planting, with the balance in favor of the latter in some localities. In New England the work is chiefly confined to the spring months, although there are enthusiastic advocates of fall planting. In coast states south of New York August and September planting is most extensively practiced, particularly upon the more retentive soils. In the trucking region on the islands about Charleston, S. C., spring planting is extensively practiced, as it results in a paying crop the following year, while only a small crop can be harvested from fall set plants. On these quick soils the plant can be grown as an annual, and farther south, in Georgia and Florida, the fall set plants will return a profitable crop the following spring. On the heavier soils of South Carolina, however, fall planting, with the paying crop one year from the following spring, is the most profitable method. The particular time during the summer or fall when the planting should be done will be governed by the occurrence of the seasonal rains—if in July and August, plant then; if in September and October, plant at that time. If the earlier date can be taken advantage of, so much the better. The plants will have a longer period in which to grow.

How to Set the Plants.

Success in transplanting strawberry plants depends, first, upon the quality of the plant and, second, upon the time and manner of doing the work. If the plants are good the stand, other conditions being favorable, depends upon care in setting them. No plant which the gardener has to handle is more exacting in regard to depth of planting than the strawberry. As the plant is practically stemless, the base of the leaves and the roots being so close together, care is required to avoid setting the plant so deep that the terminal bud will be covered or so shallow that the upper portion of the roots will be exposed, either being a disadvantage which frequently results in loss.

Clean and shallow culture is the watchword of successful cultivators. Growers have come to realize that cultivation means more than the destruction of weeds. Mulching (covering the surface of the soil with dead or decaying vegetable matter is the meaning of the term mulching as here used) in strawberry culture serves different purposes, depending upon the locality in which the plants are grown.

BERLINERS UNDER LEADERSHIP OF JACK WHITE GRABBED FIRST GAME OF SERIES

Bill Schaeffer had a little movement all his own when the Petes were on the paths.

Big Boosters' Day Crowd Saw Good Game of Baseball—Score Was 3-1

Johnny White handed the boosters' day crowd quite a surprise yesterday afternoon, in returning to town with a team of his own and taking the first of the series by 3-1.

The former White Cap received a volley of glad hands as he faced Bob Sterling in his initial trip to the plate, and another outburst greeted him when he came home for the first run of the contest.

The Petes had eight lovely chances to win the game, that is they had one or more men on bases in eight innings and any old kind of hits would have manufactured runs. They didn't come, and the honors went to the Berliners, who, although clouting safe but four times, took advantage of the Petes misplays and tallied three times.

Such is baseball. White, who counted first for the visitors, arrived at the first bag on a slip by Sterling. The other two runs should never have scored. It was in the seventh which McEvoy started with a single over second. White sacrificed him and Beltz fanned. Getsie dumped a fast one at Fox and the ball bounded away. Before it was recovered in time to get him, McEvoy was home. Getsie went to second and the third when Stroh gave Brant a hard chance. With Schaeffer batting, Stroh going to second and Getsie leading off third, McNeal threw to second. Brant got the ball and did not throw home to get Getsie. In the meantime, Stroh used his head on the line. He dashed back to Rowan to whom Brant threw the ball. Stroh turned towards second again. Rowan failed to return the peg and Stroh was safe. Brant maintained that he had no chance to stop Getsie at the plate and therefore took the chance of getting Stroh. Schaeffer fanned.

The Petes earned the only run of the struggle. Rowan singled. He went to second on Trout's infield out, and scored on a slashing single by Hilliard.

Sterling twirled in clever style and it was a hard game for the big fellow to lose.

FIRST INNINGS

Berlin— The crowd gave Sterling a glad hand as he threw out Burns the first man. Dinsmore grounded to Brant, who also retired Sweeney on a nice pick-up.

No runs.

Peterboro— Brant singled down third and Rowan doubled between centre and left. Trout flew out to White, and the Mighty Hilliard fanned. So did Swartz.

No runs.

SECOND INNINGS

Hilliard took McEvoy's fly and White got a reception as he went to bat. He flied to Fox and Brant threw out Beltz.

No runs.

McNeal grounded and Fox was passed and was driven to third by Thompson's single through short. Sterling went out at first and Brant fouled to Stroh.

No runs.

THIRD INNINGS

Getsie died on a grounder to Brant and Stroh took the visitors first hit with a single to left. He stole second as Schaeffer fanned. Burns flied to Brant giving the local shortstop his fifth chance.

No runs.

Rowan lined a single down first. Brant was safe on Beltz's fumble, making two on and none out. Again Hilliard fanned. Swartz flied out and McNeal struck out.

No runs.

FOURTH INNINGS

Dinsmore grounded out to Rowan and Davey also took a fly from Sweeney. McEvoy flied to Thompson.

Fox drew a walk after two strikes were called. A single by Thompson made two on. Sterling fanned and when Brant hit out to White the latter threw in to Schaeffer who in turn threw to Stroh and Fox was out at the plate. Rowan lined out to McEvoy.

No runs.

FIFTH INNINGS

Sterling's juggle allowed White to make the bag and he was sacrificed by Beltz. Fox threw to Getsie White going to third and he scored the first run of the game on Stroh's single. Schaeffer fanned.

One run.

Trout beat out a hit to Getsie. Hilliard missed three and Swartz grounded, sending Trout to second. Getsie threw out McNeal.

No runs.

SIXTH INNINGS

Sterling stopped Burns, Trout took Dinsmore's fly and Fox got Sweeney.

No runs.

Fox fanned, Thompson dropped a hit at Getsie but Sterling fouled to Sweeney. Thompson stole second, and White copped Brant's fly.

No runs.

SEVENTH INNINGS

McEvoy singled over second and was sacrificed by White. Beltz fanned but when Fox juggled Getsie's grounder and the ball bounded away. McEvoy fanned. Stroh got a hit to Brant and Getsie went in when McNeal threw to second to get Stroh. Schaeffer struck out.

Two runs.

Rowan tore off a single to centre and went to second as Trout grounded out. Hilliard at last connected and his single to centre scored Rowan. Swartz failed to see three. McNeal hit to short and there were two on. Sweeney fumbled a drive from Fox, making three on and Thompson was at bat. He fanned as all three runners started away.

One run.

EIGHTH INNINGS

Burns flew to Hilliard and Fox tore off a one-handed catch on a line drive from Dinsmore. Sterling threw out Sweeney. This was a great fielding innings.

No runs.

Sterling was safe on a high throw by Getsie. Brant flew to Dinsmore and McEvoy took Rowan's fly. Trout walked and Hilliard followed him. With three on Swartz flew out to Biddy Burns.

No runs.

NINTH INNINGS

McEvoy fouled to "Dr. Norval" and then fanned. Brant on a hard chance, threw out Jack White and Sterling got Beltz.

No runs.

McNeal fouled to McEvoy after drawing two straight balls. Fox flied to McEvoy and Thompson ended by fanning.

No runs.

NOTES.

The attendance was 980.

All but about 100 had 50 cent tickets.

And the Club is in the neighborhood of $400 to the good as a result.

Fox, who was secured from Ottawa, behaved very well. His catch in the eighth was a treat.

"You wouldn't see better ball if you went to Chicago," said one fan.

Saturday's game will be called at 3 o'clock.

With a new uniform, the Berliners would look as good as any of them.

Help! Help! The Senators won at London.

FAVOR TURNS TOWARD CRICKET

Australians Claim Baseball is Doomed in Canada

New York, July 25.—Baseball is doomed to a miserable death in Canada, according to the Australian cricketers, who were in New York waiting for steamer to take them to Bermuda. Baseball was unwillingly forced upon the people of the Dominion, say the visiting Australians, who made the further assertion that there is a decided movement on foot in Canada to oust the American pastime in favor of the English national game of cricket.

Anyway, in the course of their missionary trip across the continent, from Victoria, at every place at which they played, the Australians were welcomed with enthusiasm. The movement to popularize cricket in Canada, emanates from the schools, colleges and universities, according to the Australians.

FIRST GAME IN MIDLAND LEAGUE SEMI-FINALS

The C. G. E. and Nomads will play the first game in the Midland League semi-finals to-morrow night at 6.30 sharp and as both teams have been practising hard and have a large number of players to select the two elevens from, two good teams will be seen in action.

The last time these teams met was last fall at the Exhibition for the R. R. Hall Cup, and after a very hard fought battle the Nomads were victorious by four goals to three.

The teams for Saturday will line-up as follows:

| Nomads. | | C. G. E. |
|---|---|---|
| | Goal. | |
| Calladine | | Moralty |
| | Backs. | |
| Gamble | | Girbb |

MR. R. R. HALL RETURNS FROM WESTERN TRIP

Mr. R. R. Hall returned to-day from a business trip to Vancouver, during which he also visited Seattle, Victoria and several western cities.

Asked regarding the situation in the west, Mr. Hall replied that the money stringency existed, particularly in real estate quarters, where prices had been inflated. But money for commercial and legitimate purposes could be obtained.

In the opinion of Mr. Hall, money is not nearly so tight in Canada as in the United States, due to the uncertainty of the outcome of the trouble in Mexico, and also the currency bill. Mr. Hall spoke very optimistically in regard to the western crops.

TWO FAMILIES WILL BE DEPORTED TO ENGLAND

Arrangements have been made by Mr. Finch Miller, Relief Officer, for the deportation of two English families to England.

One case is that of a man and wife. The man being in very poor health, it was thought best that they should return to England.

The other case is that of a woman and her small child. The husband left her some time ago, and has not been heard of since.

Both parties will leave on Monday.

VIOLATED THE TRAFFIC BY-LAW

Three Fines of $2 Imposed on the Offenders

Jas. Inois, a local expressman, charged with infraction of the traffic by-law, by allowing his horse to stand on the street without being tied, was fined $2.

Leo Longo, a fruit dealer, was fined $2 for the same offence.

Wm. Stalker, a milkman, charged with the same offence, was fined $2.

Wilfrid Ireland, a local man, appeared before acting Magistrate Rush at Police Court this morning on the charge of being drunk and disorderly in a public place. He was fined $5.

Jas. Robertson, of Toronto, was also fined $2 for being drunk.

MEN ARE LAID OFF

During the past few weeks about 200 men employed by the Bell Telephone Co. in this district (Peterborough, have been laid off works, says the Madoc Review. A gang of over 20 are at work in the vicinity of this village on the erection of a trunk line from Peterborough to Perth, while another lot are working on the same line at Marmora, and another at Peterborough. Large contracts for Belleville, Kingston and other places have been withheld for the time being. Even a number of contracts for the local exchange are being held over for a time.

An excellent plan before putting one's hands into soda water is to rub them well with a piece of mutton fat. This counteracts the bad effects of soda.

JUDGES VISITED FIRE STATION

Were Well Pleased With Quick Work of Firemen

At ten o'clock this morning Judge Huycke, accompanied by Mayor Bradburn and Alderman Gordon, took the judges, who are attending the sessions being held in this city to see the fire station.

The party were viewing the various departments and expressing their surprise at such a fine building, when an alarm came in, calling the brigade to a small fire in G. W. Green's foundry. The judges were greatly pleased by the work of the firemen, and some said "it was the quickest and best trained brigade they had seen."

LABOR REPORT FOR PETERBORO IN THE GAZETTE

The Labor Gazette gives the following account of the labor conditions for June in Peterboro:

Labor conditions during June were similar to those of the previous month. Great activity prevailed in the building trades, also in all branches of manufacturing industry. The Henry Hope & Sons, Limited have taken out a building permit for the erection of a sixty-five thousand dollar factory building trades, also in all branches of manufacturing industry. The structure will be 220 x 180 feet, and will be concrete and brick. The city is constructing a number of new granolithic sidewalks and other public utilities that will tend to improve the district. Tenders are invited for paving with bithulithic pavement the principal streets of the city. Arrangements are also being made to take over the assets of the Peterborough Light & Power Company, and contracts have been awarded for arc lights, iron standards and cables. It is expected that the hydro-electric scheme will be in good working order before the end of this year. The sale by the Government of the customs building to the Bank of Montreal will mean a new building for the customs.

Farmers were busy. The hay crop will be good, but strawberries will be a light crop. Farm help was reported scarce. Most of those who come from the Old Country to work on farms find employment in the city and offers of $25 a month and board with farmers are not taken.

The Canadian General Electric Company have secured a contract for the electrification of a portion of the Canadian Pacific Railway between Castlegar and Rossland. It is the intention to use 2,400 volts direct current trolley system on this part of the Canadian Pacific Railway line.

The Wm. Hamilton Company have received several large contracts of late. The Government let the contract of building some twenty locks at Hastings to the Roger Miller Company, and the Wm. Hamilton Company will supply the iron and metal work to be used on these works. They also have an order from the city of Prince Albert for the metal work used in the construction of a dam on the Saskatchewan River. Mr. G. ~~Walter~~ Green is building an addition to his foundry and will enable him to increase his output forty per cent.

NEW PROPRIETOR HAS TAKEN CHARGE

Mr. Alex Elliott the well-known ~~wholesale and retail liquor~~ merchant who has conducted business for many years in premises on Simcoe street, has secured the license of F. J. R. Mitchell, 418 George street and is now in charge of the business.

It is the intention of Mr. Elliott to add new lines to the present stock, and will be special distributing agent of High Grade Brands of Wine and Liquors and Pure Mineral Waters. The present stock has been carefully selected and the public can be assured that nothing can be purchased at this store but the very purest and best.

The new proprietor, Mr. Elliott, needs no introduction to the citizens of Peterborough and surrounding country, having conducted business and has been a resident of this city for many years, and no doubt his many friends will be pleased to learn that he has taken the helm of an old and well established business that he is so well adapted for.

KNIFE SLIPPED AND CUT EYE

Son of A. B. Downer Met With Painful Mishap

While engaged in cutting the string of a bran bag, the 12 year old son of A. B. Downer, Auburn, had the misfortune to have his left eye seriously injured by the knife slipping and cutting his eye. Dr. McCullough was called, and attended the injured eye. Although the wound is very painful and serious to the sight of the eye, the doctor is confident of saving the sight.

TRIP OVER THE CANAL CONCLUDED

Mr. James Kendry returned yesterday from Orillia, after being over the canal and through the lakes on a trip of inspection with Hon. Frank Cochrane, Minister of Railways and Canals.

"There was nothing really startling about the trip," said Mr. Kendry to the Review "We were overlooking the waterways and found them satisfactory."

Mr. Kendry, in company with the Minister and his secretary, also Chief Engineer Bowden, of the Department, and Mr. Ferguson, M.L.A., of Leeds, composed the party.

Hon. Mr. Cochrane went to Toronto.

PANAMA DISPUTE TO BE DECIDED BY ARBITRATION

Ottawa Officials Have Received Advices From Great Britain To Set About the Preparation of Canada's Case For Hearing and Also to Select a Commissioner To Be Ready For Appointment.

OTTAWA, July 26.—That the question of toll exemption on the Panama Canal, and the discrimination which it would involve against foreign shipping, will, despite the opposition of a certain section of the Democratic Government of the United States, be submitted to The Hague for arbitration, is a matter of definite knowledge at the Capital.

The British protest, along with Canada's own particular case, will be before one of the regular arbitration tribunals in Holland. This is the news conveyed officially to the Government here, and it indicates that some definite assurance has been received from London to that effect.

The Dominion Government has received intimation from the Imperial Government at once to set about preparing briefs to be submitted to the arbitration, and also to name commissioners who will wosk in concert with the British commissioners in handling the general case against exemption to American vessels passing through the canal. It is expected that the sittings will be held early in the new year, and that all mercantile marine countries will be represented.

In the United States the situation is very complex. There are seven arbitration treaties, the ratification of the renewals of which are held up by the U. S. Senate because of the opposition developed by those who took the advanced stand against what was called interference by Great Britain in the tolls problem. The plan was to modify the British treaty on which all the others hinged, with a general amendment which would except not only the tolls but all canal questions, including armament and defence. It is now considered almost certain that the Senate will fail to do this.

Sir Edward Grey has taken a firm stand as to the interpretation of that particular clause in the Hay-Pauncefote treaty which dealt with the canal, then an industrial tragedy because of France's failure to complete it, and the U. S. Government, which took the initiative in international arbitration, cannot, it is believed, fail to accept the British Foreign Minister's suggestion that the matter be referred to The Hague Tribunal.

At The Hague it is expected that a British, a Canadian and a German commissioner will be chosen to sit with the International Tribunal, and it is suggested that a choice be made in readiness. It is probable that Sir Charles Fitzpatrick, Chief Justice of the Supreme Court, who is now a member of the Internationl Court sitting for the adjustment of financial claims between Canada and the United States, will be the Canadian member, Hon. Arthur Meighen, the new Solicitor-General, will assist in the preparation of Canada's case.

MULHALL IS SHAKEN.

Lobbyist's Nerves Broken by Long Examination.

WASHINGTON, July 26.—With only about 1,000 more of Martin M. Mulhall's letters to read into the record, the Senate lobby investigating committee adjourned yesterday until Monday, expecting to wind up the correspondence of the "lobbyist."

Toward the close of the day's session, Mulhall showed signs of the strain he has been under. He became confused during the reading of one letter and when Senator Walsh suggested that he needed a rest, exclaimed:

"I'm just about broke down. For God's sake do have mercy if you can. I don't want to say I'm breaking down, but I don't want to answer questions if you will let me go."

CHARGED WITH NON-SUPPORT

John Sweeney is Remanded to Jail. He Has Large Family

John Sweeney, a local man, charged with non-support of his family, appeared before Magistrate Dumble this morning. He pleaded "not guilty" and was remanded for a week.

Evidence by City Relief Officer Finch Maller, was to the effect that the man had not worked for some time and refused to work or support his wife and family of seven children, the youngest being about three weeks old. He was also a habitual drunkard.

GOT SIX MONTHS IN CENTRAL

George McDonald a scotchman and a resident of Peterboro for about two years, appeared before Magistrate Dumble this morning on the charge of indecent exposure in Victoria Park yesterday afternoon. He was sentenced to six months in Central Prison.

For some time the man has been watched by the police owing to numerous complaints received regarding his behaviour and actions in the park.

OFFICERS BRIBED.

Several Prussians Arrested For Taking Money From Krupps.

BERLIN, July 26.—The Tageblatt yesterday published further details relating to the arrest of officers of the Prussian War Office on a charge of accepting bribes from the Krupp Co. for an insight into official documents. It says that seven officers whose arrest was reported July 16 actually were arrested Feb. 7, after an investigation which was begun Oct. 17, 1912, following information submitted to the War Department by Herr Liebknecht, a Socialist member of the Reichstag. The paper says the chief of Krupp's Berlin bureau was arrested simultaneously, and that nearly 1,000 tpyewritten reports, alleged to have been sent by the accused to the Krupps, was seized.

Thirty-Four Were Deported.

QUEBEC, July 26.—The immigration authorities deported thirty-four undesirable immigrants by the Empress of Ireland Thursday.

With two exceptions they were Russian Jews, Syrians and Arabians. The Quebec Canadian agency deported 18, the American officials 11, while five were from Montreal. Two were insane, six were suffering from trachoma, and two others were suffering from tuberculosis. The balance were pauper immigrants.

Foreigner Ran Amuck.

SASKATOON, Sask., July 26.—According to a 'phone message to The Star from Coblenz yesterday, an unknown foreigner ran amuck on Wednesday at Handel, and injured several people, finally committing suicide.

PRINCE ARTHUR OF CONNAUGHT TO WED THE PRETTY YOUNG DUCHESS OF FIFE

PRINCE ARTHUR OF CONNAUGHT

THE DUCHESS OF FIFE.

The announcement in London of the betrothal of Prince Arthur of Connaught to the Duchess of Fife took the society wiseacres completely by surprise.

Numerous speculations had been made regarding Prince Arthur's choice of a bride, which had been announced untruthfully more than once, but now it is officially stated that he will marry the Princess, and general satisfaction is expressed.

EXPLORER SETS OUT

J. H. Flaherty Will Study Lands Around Hudson's Bay.

TORONTO, July 26.—J. H. Flaherty, a representative of the Mackenzie interests, left Toronto last night for St. John's, Newfoundland, where he will take charge of an exploring party to the northland for the purpose of exploring the lands north of Hudson Bay and in the temperate zone, to find out the mineral and commercial possibilities of those regions.

Mr. Flaherty has been in Toronto since Christmas last, when he returned from a nineteen months' cruise in the north. His party will sail in the schooner "Laddie," top-sail-rigged, with an auxiliary engine. The vessel will be under the command of Capt. R. Bartlett, an old-timer at work in the regions of ice.

"We will be away two years," said Mr. Flaherty. "The party is for geographical and geological surveying. We are carrying the best of photographical instruments also, including a moving picture outfit. We will investigate from the ship, with supplementary trips inland, and will winter on the ship."

Mr. Flaherty is a comparatively young man, who has spent much time in the north, having previously conducted two expeditions financed by Sir William Mackenzie. His home is in Port Arthur, and he is the son of R. H. Flaherty of Mackenzie and Mann's department of mines.

The "Laddie" will sail on Mr. Flaherty's arrival at St. John's. She is fully equipped for a long stay in the north.

FORESTER'S TRIP ON AUGUST 2

Excursion to Orillia Over New C.P.R. Line

The ninth annual excursion of the Court Chemong, I.O.F., which is being held on August 2nd to Orillia with a special C.P.R. train, promises to be the best ever held by the Order.

An energetic committee is in charge and everything is being done for the comfort of the excursionists.

An old-fashioned pic-nic will be held on the shores of Lake Couchiching Orillia. Among the features of the day will be a ball game between a picked All Star team from the local Mercantile League and the Clerks League of Orillia.

Many people have not been over the new line to Orillia, and will, in all probability, avail themselves of the opportunity on Saturday, Aug. 2nd.

PRELATES RAISE STORM

Belgian Bishops Condemn Fine Art, Dress Exhibit and Movies.

BRUSSELS, Belgium, July 26.—A storm of protest has been raised in the artistic world by a pastoral letter signed by Cardinal Francois Joseph Mercier, Primate of Belgium, and all the Belgian bishops, in which the priests, the principals of schools and parents are forbidden to visit a number of sections at the Ghent exposition, including those devoted to the fine arts, the library of engraving and dressmaking.

The letter utters a warning as to the moral danger attendant upon the amusements usual to the vacation season and especially condemns moving picture shows.

WINNIPEG, July 26.—Another stage in the Macdonald election petition proceedings was reached yesterday, when Justice Cameron made application for the commitment of Alexander Morrison, M.P. for Macdonald, for contempt of court for failing to comply with the order of the court to appear for examination and produce certain documents in connection with the petition presented against his election.

PRINTERS' BIG PICNIC

Attractive List of Prizes for Sporting Events

The Printers' Picnic to Victoria Park and Jubilee Point on Saturday afternoon, August 2, promises to attract the usual large crowd. The sports will be held at Victoria Park, and those who wish to continue the trip to Jubilee Point may do so.

MUST SPARE THE BULGARS

Austria Says Humiliation Has Gone Far Enough.

LONDON, July 26.—The important development yesterday in the Balkan situation was a demand presented by the Austrian representatives at Athens and Belgrade for an immediate cessation of hostilities, together with a warning that Austria will not allow Bulgaria to be too greatly humiliated. It was declared in Vienna last night that should Greece and Servia still oppose an armistice, a Roumanian army, acting as a mandatory of Austria and Russia, will prevent any attack on Sofia, and that Austria will take even more energetic steps, if necessary, to stop the war. Should it be true that Austria and Russia thus have agreed to co-operate, the pressure exercised doubtless will be effective.

In the military sphere the principal news is that the Servians have invested the ancient fortress at Vidin, Bulgaria, which is situated on the Danube, 140 miles south of Belgrade.

The fall of the fortress cannot long be delayed; in fact, a Belgrade despatch reports that Gen. Kutuntcheff's troops already are beginning to surrender. Vidin, which has a population of 15,000, will be Servia's biggest capture during the war.

No news was received yesterday from the Turkish side, but it is reported that the Porte has ordered the mobilization of three army corps in Asia Minor.

It's enough to make a horse laugh to see a male flirt nursing a broken heart.

TWO MEN ARE MISSING AFTER FIRE

Canadian Press Despatch.

BROCK, SASK., July 26. — The fire which started late yesterday has destroyed half this village. The loss is estimated at one hundred and fifty thousand dollars, and two men who are missing are supposed to have perished in the fire, which was still burning at an early hour this morning.

BRANDON, MAN., July 26.—John W. Mark, a lecturer at Brandon College, who was assisting Henry Lovelin in balloon ascensions at the exhibition here, took an involuntary flight last night. Mark's wrist became tangled with the guide rope as the balloon rose. He was carried nearly eight hundred feet into the air, when the balloon descended a mile away Mark was freed unhurt.

INTERURBAN IS PLANNED

Mackenzie & Mann Would Link Up Toronto and Rochester

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont., July 26.—A through trolley service between Rochester and Toronto, is planned by the Mackenzie-Mann syndicate, which controls the Canadian Northern Railroad, the Electrical Development Co., Niagara Falls Transmission Co. and many other public service corporations, it was learned yesterday.

When the bondholders of Buffalo, Lockport, Rochester Railway Co. applied to the public service commission Thursday, for permission to re-organize the company, and form a merger with other lines and transmission companies, for a through service between Rochester and Toronto, plans of a big Canadian syndicate were hinted at, but did not become known until yesterday. The hearing on the application will be held in Buffalo next Thursday.

The plan is to use the line of the Buffalo, Lockport, Rochester Railway Co. between Rochester and Lockport, and lease the International Line between Lockport and North Tonowanda, and run over the International proposed frontier lines to the Falls. The new line would cross the Niagara River on the proposed trans-Niagara bridge, just north of the present upper steel arch bridge, and proceed to Toronto over the right of way of the Electrical Development Co. It is also planned to establish a through service between Niagara Falls and Erie, Pa.

Until the completion of the line of the Frontier Electric Railway Co. between Niagara Falls and Buffalo, the new system will operate cars over the International line between North Tonawanda and the Falls, also using the present upper steel arch bridge until the proposed new structure is ready for use. There has been much speculation of late as to the cause of the very friendly relations between the International Railway Co. and the Frontier Electric Railway Co. It is now believed that the Mackenzie-Mann syndicate is the money power behind all these roads.

VINDICATION OF JACKSON

LONDON, July 26.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—The Jackson "Heresy" controversy may now be regarded as definitely closed. Thursday, the pastoral session of the Plymouth conference, having considered the view of the reverend gentleman, decided by a vote of 330 to 27, that the book did not in the least invalidate any matters of faith nor conflicted with their standards.

They were of the opinion that Mr. Jackson's only desire in the Fernley lecture was to restate and maintain the authority of the holy scripture in the light of modern knowledge.

Peru President Arrested.

LIMA, Peru, July 26.—Auguste B. Leguia, former President of Peru, and his son were arrested yesterday morning and sent to the penitentiary as the result of six persons being wounded by shots from the windows and roof of their residence when a crowd threatened to attack the house Thursday night.

The affair has caused a great sensation here and will probably bring about a Ministerial crisis.

Berlin Child Missing.

BERLIN, Ont., July 26.—Mary Schleuter, aged nine, an inmate of the Berlin Orphanage, disappeared on Thursday and has not yet been found. She a small child for her age and of fair complexion. She was dressed in white when she left the home.

Cadets Leave for Canada.

LONDON, July 27.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—The members of the Imperial Cadet Corps selected by Lord Roberts to represent the Mother Country as guests of the Dominion Government, left Liverpool by Empress of Britain yesterday. The cadets will attend the annual meeting of the Dominion Rifle Association during August at Ottawa, and afterwards will proceed to the militia training camp at Petawawa.

YUAN SHI KAI AFRAID GENERAL MAY BE BOUGHT

Half of the President's Body Guard Has Been Sent To Suchowfu, Where Government Commander Has Beaten the Rebels For Fear Victor May Not Stay Loyal—Exciting Engagement at Arsenal.

PEKIN, China, July 26.—The news received here from Shanghai in regard to the revolt is considered satisfactory in Government circles.

The Government is sending one brigade of the President's bodyguard to the scene of hostilities, leaving only one brigade in Pekin. This movement has been made, it is said, owing to the fact that the northern general, Chang Hsun Wo, who reported that he had gained a victor, entered Suchowful without fighting, the rebels having evaded him.

The bodyguard of the provisional President is regarded as trustworthy, while Chang Hsun is said to have a mercenary reputation of which the Government in Pekin fears the southerners may take advantage. Other troops are also proceeding to the south on the Tien Tsin-Pukow Railway in order to offset the danger of Chang Hsun transferring his allegiance to the southerners.

It is reported from Shanghai that about 100 northern troops made a sortie Thursday night under the protection of gun fire from the arsenal and the gunboats. They scattered many rebels who attempted to enter the French concession, but were driven back by foreign volunteers and marines evidently without the use of weapons. Afterward the rebels escaped across country.

Admiral Tseng, in command of the fleet which still remains loyal, demanded that the rebels surrender the Wusung forts. He threatened otherwise to attack them with his vessels.

The exodus from the Chinese city Thursday night was tremendous owing to a report that the southern general, Cheng Chi-Mei, one of those for whose life Provisional President Yuan Shi Kai has proclaimed a reward, intended to burn the city. The refugees who, when unarmed, were admitted to the foreign concessions, are now sleeping in the open air.

Revolution Is Waning.

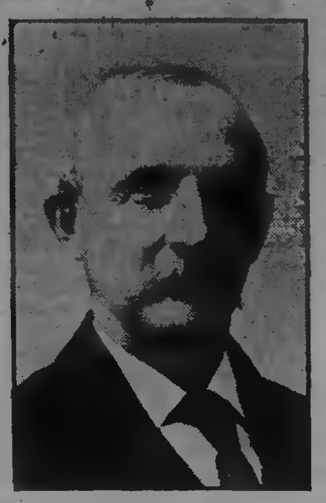
SHANGHAI, July 26.—The revolutionary cause here appears to be waning. Despite the large number of rebel reinforcements, the attacks on the arsenal by the southerners Thursday night and yesterday failed completely, and Dr. Wu Ting Fang, former Chinese Minister to the U. S., Gen. Wen-Tsung Yao and other prominent rebels, after a conference yesterday, telegraphed President Yuan Shi Kai, proposing a basis for peace negotiations.

It is now known that Su-Chow-Fu, in the Province of Kiang-Su, is in possession of the northerners.



MR. R.N. SCOTT

Who has returned from a trip to Western Cities.

GRAND TRUNK STAFF CHANGES MADE

In the directing and operating staff of the Grand Trunk Railway several changes have been made, and these are now announced. They include the following:

In the Traffic Department Mr. Albert Davidson is appointed General Agent in charge of Passenger and Freight traffic in Western British Columbia, north of Rivers Inlet, including Queen Charlotte Islands, vice Mr. A. E. McMaster, promoted. Office at Prince Rupert, B.C.

Mr. W. C. Chisholm, K.C., appointed General Solicitor with headquarters at Montreal.

Mr. A. E. Beckett, Solicitor, will, as heretofore, take charge of such matters arising in the Province of Quebec as may be assigned to him.

Mr. W. E. Foster, appointed Solicitor, and will take charge of such matters arising in the Province of Ontario as may be assigned to him.

Mr. Fred R. Porter, Asst. General Freight Agent, Winnipeg, vice Mr. R. J. Foreman, who has accepted service with the Grand Trunk Railway System.

Mr. F. G. Adams, Division Freight Agent, Edmonton, Alta., vice Mr. Fred R. Porter, promoted.

Mr. A. E. McMaster, Commercial Agent, Regina, Sask., vice Mr. F. G. Adams, promoted.

HE MAKES NO APOLOGY

Ambassador Wilson Stands by All He Did In Mexico.

NEW YORK, July 26.—Henry Lane Wilson, the American Ambassador to Mexico, who was summoned to come to Washington last week by President Wilson, there to discuss with the President and Secretary of State Bryan the situation in the trouble-racked republic south of the Rio Grande, arrived in New York on the Ward liner Mexcio yesterday morning. Ambassador Wilson left for Washington last night, but before leaving the city he made it very plain that he "stood pat," as he himself put it, on everything that he has done as the American Ambassador in Mexico City, and that if necessary he will do it all over again. Furthermore, he stated that many of the vicious attacks that have been directed at him were nothing more or less than "politics," and added that when the time came those attacks would be proved to be entirely without foundation.

Asked if it was true, as had been reported, that his sympathies are with the Huerta Government, Mr. Wilson smiled and replied that there was no man who knew what his views were with regard to the right or the wrong of the Huerta cause.

Another matter called to the attention of the ambassador was that certain members of the murdered President Madero's family have been quoted in the newspapers as holding Mr. Wilson morally responsible for the overthrow of the Madero Government as well as the subsequent assassination of President Francisco I. Madero. The asking of this question made Mr. Wilson's eyes flash. It was plain that he took the matter mentioned deeply to heart and that he bitterly resented the insinuation that he had been a party to the Huerta-Diaz coup.

"That is all politics, nothing more," he replied, "and in due course of time it will be exploded."

He declined to discuss the possibility of U. S. intervention, but said reports of conditions in Mexico had been greatly exaggerated.

Will Deport Young Leper.

PHILADELPHIA, July 26.—A foreigner suffering from leprosy arrived in this city yesterday from Cleveland in a combination baggage and passenger coach and will be deported to-day to England on the steamer Dominion. The leper is Dahab Hassen, 19 years old. He arrived in Philadelphia on the steamer Merion on May 14, 1912, and went to Cleveland where he secured work.

During the trip from Cleveland the sufferer occupied the baggage part of the car while medical attendants used the passenger section. The railroad company will burn the car and the Government will stand the expense.

PARK STREET CHURCH PIC-NIC A BIG SUCCESS

The picnic of Park street Baptist church and Sunday School, held on Thursday, was one of the most successful in the history of the church.

The commodious steamer Stoney Lake had been chartered for the occasion, and had on board about 225 people when she left about 8 o'clock. South Beach was reached a few minutes after twelve, after a most enjoyable sail over the lift lock, through the canal and up the lakes.

After dinner had been served the committee in charge of the sports called on the following races, which were keenly contested:

Primary Girls—Thelma Hamilton, Thelma Vass, Ena Batley.

Primary Boys—Allan Haw, Norman Buott, Willie Hamilton.

Girls, 7 to 9.—Lida Sturgeon, Mabel Theobald, Winnie Atkinson.

Boys, 7 to 9.—Ernest Bryatt, Roland Hazelwood, Willie Mantell.

Girls, 10 to 11.—Blanche Sloan, Winnie Cooper, Mabel Partridge.

Boys, 10 to 11.—Wilfrid Bullied, Fred Reynolds, Bob Moore.

Boys, 12 to 13.—Leonard Vass, Willie Bullied.

Girls, 12 to 13.—Leah Nicholls, Maggie Bryatt.

Boys, 14 to 16.—Albert Nicholls, Wilfrid Tranter.

Young Ladies' Race.—Jean Nicholls, Norma Moore.

Married Ladies' Race.—Mrs. Redmond, Mrs. B. Bartley.

Married Men's Race.—Mr. O. S. Matchett, Mr. J. Tranter.

Fat Ladies' Race.—Mrs. Nicholls, Mrs. George Whatley.

EXCURSION HERE FROM TORONTO

Peterborough appears to be the centre of many picnics and excursions this season. To-day the city is invaded by the United Association of Plumbers, Steam and Gas Fitters, of Toronto, who will hold a big field day at Nicholls Oval this afternoon.

CELT AND GAUL

Mr. Kipling has written a strong swinging poem on the relations between England and France.

There are times when the French element, which forms so great a part of the Dominion of Canada, would appear to be incompatible with the British. It cannot be expected that the French Nationalists of Quebec would make as patriotic British Imperialist as those of Celtic and Saxon blood.

Yet there is no reason why in these days the two races should not co-operate, if only with a view to their mutual welfare. The British Empire is made up of people of every race and clime and is not run for the sole benefit of the little islands on the shores of Europe.

But as it happens in the Divine ordering of the planet, the British Isles have been the centre from which has sprung the growth of civilization within the last three hundred years.

That growth has not merely benefited the British people, its fruits have been reaped by every nation and race under the sun. Britishers have fought and sacrificed, they have dwelt among peoples and climes that had nothing in common with their tastes or desires and have lived and died in exile in order that the world might share in the blessings of civilized government.

The French, so far as Canada is concerned, have shared in this work, and the words of Kipling are very fitting in this connection:

Ere men knew our tongues apart
Our one task was known,
Each must mould the other's fate
As he moulds his own."

Although in Canadian history fierce rivalries have arisen between the two nations, each has been striving toward a common end.

In each other's cup we poured mingled blood and tears,
We have learned by keenest use to know each other's mind.
What shall blood and iron loose that we cannot bind?
We who swept each other's coasts,
sacked each other's home,
Since the sword of Brennus clashed on the scales of Rome.
Listen, count and close again,
wheeling girth to girth,
In the linked and steadfast guard set for peace on earth!"

GARDEN CITIES

There has been a craze in the Old Country of late years among the middle class for what are known as Garden Cities.

The beginning of this movement was the building of Port Sunlight by the famous soap man, Sir Wm. Lever, for the housing of his employes on the bank fo the River Mersey. Port Sunlight is a village composed entirely of people engaged in the various departments of the great soap factories of Lever Bros. As the firm do all their own printing, and employ laborers and mechanics of all kinds, the community of Sunlight Port is not all Soap.

Mr. Lever has factories in Canada but so far he has not imported his garden city idea with his ideas of soap making. But Mr. Lever is a good business man and knows that although we Canadians have need of a little soap, we have no market for his garden cities, for the very plain reason that all our cities are of the garden type.

It would be interesting to know if this English Garden City is not an imitation of the normal Canadian City.

Peterborough, for instance, is one of the most beautiful garden cities in the world. With its profusion of large trees shading its streets, its neatly trimmed lawns and pretty residences, all these things combined with the fact that the city is a centre of industry and has been called the Vancouver of the East, make it unique as a Garden City.

Most of the English Garden Cities are not cities at all but are built on the outskirts. They might be more aptly termed Garden Suburbs.

EDITORIAL NOTES

A writer in The Canadian says that "a quaker never quakes." He was not referring to North Grey.

The Liverpool Athenaeum Club have disposed of the Burns MSS. to an American for a large sum of money. This looks very like vandalism of the worst kind. And to think that the man whose handwritings they are making money out of was often without a cent to bless himself with.

"If Canada were to annex the United States," is the striking title of an article in the Century Magazine. The suggestion is a little sudden; we would need to consider it a little. You have to be very careful in adopting orphans, or children who run away from their parents as Uncle Sam did in his young days.

EXCERPTS

SWARM OF BEES IN A TRAIN

A swarm of bees left their hive in the luggage van of a train at Brigend Station, Wales, and settled in the van and the passenger compartments, making the removal of luggage impossible. The bees travelled two or three times in the train up and down the branch line to Abergwynfi before all of them returned to the hive, which was placed on Brigend Station platform.

TO THE EMIGRANT

"No man need think of touching Canadian soil if he imagines for one moment that he is going to have a good time, for he will soon find — and very much to his sorrow—that he has made a very great mistake." — Daily Mail.

"ONE TOOT, and YE'RE OOT"

Sandy was seated behind a middle-aged lady, somewhat hard of hearing in a Glasgow kirk, and observed take what looked like a horn from her riticule. Suspecting another Suffragette outrage, he watched the woman. When the minister ascended the pulpit and commenced to address the congregation and the trumpet went up towards the woman's head, Sandy walked along the aisle, touched her on the shoulder and remarked, "One too, and ye're oot."

THE PINE TREE

Once the pine upon the hearth
Felt the free winds blow;
Now the red flame licks its bones,
Grey ash falls below.

Bright you blaze up to your death,
Old pine, once a tree.
When my hour comes, may I
Go as gallantly.

KANSAS WOMAN WHO SUFFERED

From Headache, Backache, Dizziness and Nervousness, Restored to Health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Lawrence, Kans.—"A year ago I was suffering from a number of ailments. I always had pain and was irregular. During the delay I suffered a great deal with headache, backache, dizziness, feverish spells, nervousness and bloating. I had been married nearly three years. I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and now I feel better than I have for years. I recommend Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to all who suffer as I did."—Mrs. M. ZEUNER, 1045 New Jersey Street, Lawrence, Kansas.

Montana Woman's Case.

Burns, Mont.—"Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound cured me of awful backache which I had suffered with for months. I was so weak I could hardly do my work and my head and eyes ached all the time. Your Compound helped me in many ways and is a great strengthener. I always recommend it to my friends and tell them what a grand medicine it is for women. You may use my name for the good of others."—Mrs. JOHN FRANCIS, Burns, Montana.

The makers of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound have thousands of such letters as those above—they tell the truth, else they could not have been obtained for love or money. This medicine is no stranger—it has stood the test for years.

BROOKLYN TABERNACLE

BIBLE STUDY ON MEN OF DESTINY.

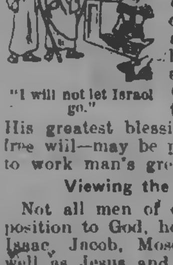
—July 27.—Exodus 5:1-14.—

"Blessed are they that mourn: for they shall be comforted."—Matthew 5:4.

NAPOLEON was styled a man of destiny, and surely many things connected with his experiences look as though the Lord had something to do with him. This does not signify that he was a servant of God—far from it! But it signifies that Divine Wisdom can always overrule the wrath of man to serve Him, and the remainder to restrain, thus causing all things to work out the Divine purpose. With the eye of faith Bible Students can see many ways in which Napoleon's campaigns worked changes which undoubtedly had to do with the world's progress during the past century.

The Pharaoh of the Exodus was also a man of destiny. We have the Divine assurance of that fact: "For this cause have I raised thee up, for to show in thee My Power; and that My name might be declared throughout the earth." (Exodus 9:16.) St. Paul declares that God hardened this Pharaoh's heart that he should not let the people go. (Romans 9:18.) God's people have seriously misunderstood these words when in the past they interpreted them to mean that God had created Pharaoh a wicked, hard-hearted man, and that, subsequently He still further hardened his heart. Not so!



"I will not let Israel go."

Bible Students now realize that the Apostle meant to tell that from amongst the Egyptian princes God raised up to the throne a stubborn ruler, upon whose heart the mercies of God, in lifting one plague after another, would have only a hardening effect. Thus God illustrated the principle that His greatest blessing to mankind—a free will—may be perverted by Satan to work man's greatest injury.

Viewing the Other Side.

Not all men of destiny are in opposition to God, however. Abraham, Isaac, Jacob, Moses and others, as well as Jesus and His Apostles and all His followers, are men of destiny. Upon these His mercies, tenderness and gracious promises have a softening effect, developing in the the graces of the Holy Spirit—"meekness, gentleness, patience, brotherly-kindness, love."

The destiny of these men is only partly worked out in the present life. They are permitted to pay a goodly price for the maintenance of their fellowship with God and their inheritance of His promises. This costs them the friendship of the world, and the loss of many things highly esteemed amongst men; but it brings them "the peace of God which passeth understanding." This is merely a foretaste of the riches of Divine race in store for them—in Messiah's Kingdom.

Eventually, the destinies of these faithful before the Cross and those faithful since the Cross will be united in that Kingdom, as St. Paul declares. The Ancient Worthies, though proved, cannot be made perfect until the Church, of still higher destiny, shall have reached her glory.—Hebrews 11:38-40.

"I Know Not the Lord."

In due time Moses and Aaron presented themselves before Pharaoh, and delivered the Divine message. Derisively Pharaoh declared, "I know not Jehovah, neither will I let Israel go." For a time it seemed as though the effort would be a failure. It was a time of testing of faith, not only to Moses and Aaron, but also all Israel. Pharaoh with great hardness of heart sent forth the edict that the tasks of the Israelites be increased.

Pharaoh of the oppression.

The Israelites were doing forced work, making brick for public buildings. Apparently the bricks were made of unburnt clay, with straw for a binder. By the new rule, the Israelites must produce the same number of bricks per day, but must additionally scour the fields for binders. Thus stubble to serve as their tasks were practically doubled; and if not performed, they were beaten severely.

Can we wonder that the Israelites of less faith murmured against Moses and Aaron and blamed them with the increase of their tasks! Nevertheless, by these very bitter experiences the people were all the more prepared to welcome the liberty subsequently offered them in God's providence.

Confirmation of this very account of the tribulations of the Israelites were discovered by the French savant, M. Naville, in 1884. He found the city of Pithom, which the Israelites built. In the British Museum in London and also in the Metropolitan Museum, New York, there are on exhibition some of those very bricks. In size they are about four inches to eight inches square and about two inches thick, unbaked but very hard.

Another traveler, describing the walls of Pithom, says: "The lower courses of these walls are of well-made brick, with chopped straw in them. But higher up, the courses of brick are not so good. The straw is coarse and scanty, and the last courses have no straw at all, but have sedges, rushes and water plants, which had been mingled with the mud in their making."

Woman's Superiority.

A woman is at her best when she knows it, a man when he doesn't.

No man is happy unless he thinks he is.

HON. MR. MEIGHEN'S ACKNOWLEDGMENT

CHAPTER VI.

The Third Degree

Police Headquarters—the old headquarters of Mulberry Street—was one of the architectural monstrosities of New York. Fronting Mulberry Street, its faded brick walls presented a forbidding aspect to the ancient, tumble-down rookeries across the way. Its rear walls faced Mott Street, harmonizing with the squalid tenements of that narrow, ill-smelling thoroughfare. It was a type of public building now happily obsolete, which an awakened artistic sense is rapidly relegating to the scrap heap. Its rigid lines were a monotony of ugliness, unrelieved by column or capital. One viewed its hideous bulk with a shuddering sense of apprehension, almost expecting to see it crumble on the unfortunates penned within.

Visitors to the Detective Bureau entered a dingy room, approached by a narrow hall, on the Mott Street side of the building. Its most conspicuous furnishings were several brass rails which crossed one another in bewildering fashion. Half-open doors led boldly into other offices, as if to dispel the atmosphere of secrecy that hovered perpetually over the place. Two uniformed lieutenants of police were constantly on guard at raised desks backed against opposite walls. On the morning following the Missioner diamond robbery, the two guardians were busy sorting piles of documents scattered on their desks.

He entered the adjoining room, a large, square chamber, in which the rays from clusters of electric bulbs mingled with the pale, shivery light of the sun.

"Here's the list," he called to the desk lieutenant, at the same time throwing a bundle of documents to him.

Massed against the opposite wall in listless attitudes were fifty or sixty detectives, their faces covered by masks. They shifted about uneasily while waiting for the hapless prisoners captured the night before to be lined up for inspection. This daily spectacle, terrifying to the [illegible] suspects, amusing to the old-time lawbreakers, marks the beginning of the morning's routine of the men detailed to prevent crime and hunt down criminals. Not a pleasing exhibition but a necessary one. For the opportunity must be provided for the detectives to become familiar with the countenances of the lawbreakers. And by the simple device of the masks, the hunters are shielded from becoming equally familiar to the hunted.

The opening of the door at the rear of the room brought the waiting detectives to attention. Their forms stiffened to military erectness, their manner became watchfully alert.

"Good-morning," greeted Chief of Detectives Manning. The men saluted in return.

With quick, nervous strides the Chief made his way behind the long desk that ran half the length of the room, and took up a position of survey. His eyes, of hawk-like penetration, swept the room while the desk lieutenant called the roll. The absentees having been entered on the blotter, the process of lining up the prisoners began, without further ceremony.

A line of bedraggled, disheveled men and women, their eyes bleary from a night of wakefulness in narrow, ill-ventilated cells, shuffled into the room.

"Michael Noonan," droned the lieutenant.

An emaciated, weak-faced man, the wretchedness of his lot emphasized by the frayed clothing that hung in loose broken lines from his form, stepped forward. A look of dull misery was stamped on his countenance, a hopeless disregard of the fate in store for him showed in his manner.

"Take a good look at this crook," commanded the Chief. "Never was pinched before. Caught with the goods on, however, by Wiggins and Wolf. Swipin' lead pipe from a half-finished house."

The eyes of the detectives bent on the human wreck as he shrank back into line.

"Philip Pratt," called the lieutenant.

A young man, not more than thirty, whose sullen mien and restless eyes betrayed his occupation even before the Chief announced it, faced the masked battery of eyes. His thin lips curled into a disdainful smile as the Chief read his record from a slip of paper.

"Another old friend back," the head of the detective force commented. "Philip Pratt, alias Morse, alias Charlie Dodge, alias Toledo Phil. Confidence gent. Did a turn in Elmira, two short stretches up the river, and a leg-in Joliet."

The particular offense for which the prisoner was in the toils again was described, and he, too, retired to temporary obscurity in the lines of the unfortunates.

"Carrie Chase," came from the lieutenant.

Member of that frail sisterhood whose shame is no deeper than that of the civilization from which it springs, she carried herself with an easy dignity born of familiarity with her surroundings. The heavy lines of her face were drawn into an expression of grim defiance, but her eyes, dulled by long dissipation, could not hide the dumb fear that lurked in her soul.

"Got away with a gent's super," the Chief drawled. He displayed a gold watch as if it held all the triumph of his years of pursuit in the underworld. "But we found the goods on her," he added smilingly.

Her career was part of the elemental knowledge of the assembled detectives and the Chief dismissed her quickly.

"The chances are she'll do a long stretch this trip," he commented.

Every condition of moral obliquity was represented in that shifting line of prisoners. There were youths, still in the formative period of their criminal careers, vying with the old-timers in the forced bravado of their demeanors. Others there were, shamefaced and sad, overcome with remorse and praying silently for the termination of the painful spectacle. Still others, old men and young men, regarding the proceedings with the indifference of disinterested spectators. And there were women, too, from the bedizened "badger queen," her hair and complexion as false as the jewels shimmering from her fingers and throat, to the tremulous, weeping restaurant cashier accused of some petty defalcation. They represented types as varied as the emotions struggling within them, but as they stood side by side facing the expressionless masks, they seemed headed toward the same ultimate destiny. One after another they stepped forward for inspection until the line was exhausted. When the last of them had filed out of the room, the detectives did not remove their masks, as was the custom. Instead, they stood about in a high fever of expectancy. Quizzical glances were cast in the direction of the door leading to the cells. Suddenly the men bulked forward, as if inspired by a common impulse of curiosity. The swish of skirts, accompanied by the tread of masculine feet, sounded in the doorway. A woman's form, her head bent to her breast, her limbs unable to bear the weight of her frail body, was being half dragged, half carried into the room. All the life seemed to have drained out of her. Her hair hung disordered over her shoulders, her hands swung limply, like loose pendulums.

"Elinor Holcomb!" cried the lieutenant.

"Lift your head," commanded the Chief.

The order fell on deaf ears. She seemed as one in the last agony of a mortal illness.

"Lift it for her," came in a voice of mingled sternness and compassion.

Donnelly's hand flew to her chin, tilting her face upward. For an instant she raised her heavy eyelids; then recoiled as from a blow. The crowd of masked spectators floated before her eyes like hideous spectres of a horrid dream. A low groan, like the last lament of a tortured soul, came from her lips. She seemed turned into a mass of jelly.

"Take her away," commanded the Chief, and the two detectives carried her out of the room.

"Accused of stealing the Missioner diamonds," was the curt explanation of her presence. In a harsh monotone, the Chief read the various Headquarters orders to the force, and then the men not engaged on old work received their assignments of new cases. As abruptly as he had entered, the head of the Bureau left the room and retired to his private office. Then he summoned Donnelly and Carson.

"Takes it pretty bad, eh?" he asked.

"Like all the swell ones when they're nabbed the first time," answered Carson.

"Had to call the doctor twice during the night, the matron tells me," informed Donnelly.

"Did she make any statement on the way to Headquarters?" inquired the Chief.

"Nothing but hysterics," Carson answered.

"And she's in no condition to be questioned now," added Donnelly.

"Anyone been inquiring for her?" the Chief suddenly snapped.

"Yes," flashed back Donnelly. His eyes lit with a crafty glow. "Some guy who says he's a doctor and engaged to marry her has been hanging around here all morning. Wants to know how he can get her out. Looks as if he might be mixed up in it, so I'm having him shadowed."

"Good!" commented the Chief. "If any lawyer calls, tell him she's in no condition to be seen. We don't want anyone to see her until we've questioned her."

It was late in the afternoon before Miss Holcomb was escorted into the inquisitorial chamber. She had fallen into a fitful slumber on the rude iron sudden [illegible] memories over[illegible] a [illegible] flut sense [illegible] she dragged herself [illegible] Chief. [illegible] ow of courage, she [illegible] solutely, and then [illegible] leather chair close to his desk. [illegible]nelly and Carson occupied seats at her elbow.

"What did you do with those stones?" blurted the Chief.

Her lips framed a reply, but it died without utterance.

"Come, come!" he cried impatiently. "We don't want any acting here. I know you're only a tool in this matter. We've got the principal under arrest and I'm giving you a chance to save yourself. You turn State's evidence against him and I'll see that no harm comes to you. He's the fellow we want to land. Now tell me just what you did with the jewels."

In the midst of his outburst, a door opened silently and a sharp-featured, smooth-shaven man of middle age entered and seated himself in an obscure corner of the room. His form seemed to merge into the shadow of the walls as he dropped noiselessly into his chair. Miss Holcomb did not see him enter. Her increasing terror gave her a fictitious energy and she lifted her head with a sharp jerk.

"I didn't steal the jewels," she said. "I had nothing to do with their disappearance."

The mocking laughter of the three deep voices sounded in the room.

"Does it well!" chuckled Donnelly.

"Too bad she ain't an actress," joined Carson.

The Chief's beady eyes narrowed on her as if he would read her innermost thoughts.

"There's no use trying to lie to me," he snarled. "I know who's got the diamonds. The man who hired you to steal them is locked up now. He says he didn't know they were stolen——"

"Who says that?" she interrupted.

Donnelly and Carson nudged each other in boisterous glee.

"She wants to know who says it!" piped the former.

"Ain't she the slick one!" laughed his partner.

The Chief's face hardened until a menace seemed to lurk in every one of its deep-cut lines.

A LOVELY BABY BOY

This Mother is quite Enthusiastic over a well Known Food.

Mrs. J. W. Pateman, 34 Harriet St., Toronto, in writing about Neave's Food says "When I first knew one of my friends, her baby Jack was eight months old and dying by inches. She had tried three foods because her Jack could not digest milk. At last, I fetched her a tin of Neave's Food. At the end of a month, Jack was rapidly gaining flesh and was bright and happy. He is a lovely boy now and she declares Neave's Food saved his life. And it did.

Then I recommended it to a friend on Victoria Avenue. She had a baby 6 months old that was not thriving a bit. She put the baby on Neave's Food and at the end of three months, the baby was twice the size.

I have never seen two bigger, stronger boys than mine for their ages and we owe it all to Neave's Food. I have the utmost faith in Neave's Food."

Mothers and prospective mothers may obtain a free tin of Neave's Food and a valuable book "Hints About Baby" by writing Edwin Utley, 14 Front Street East, Toronto, who is the Canadian agent. (Mention this paper.) For sale by all druggists. 244

KEEP CHILDREN WELL DURING HOT SEASON

Every mother knows how fatal the hot summer months are to small children. Cholera infantum, diarrhoea dysentry and stomach troubles are rife at this time and often a precious little life is lost after only a few hours illness. The mother who keeps Baby's Own Tablets in the house feels safe. The occasional use of the Tablets prevents stomach and bowel troubles, or if trouble comes suddenly—as it generally does—the Tablets will bring the baby safely through. They are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

GOOD HITTING BY BERLIN AND THE PETES' POOR WORK GAVE VISITORS BIG LEAD

No. 2 of Series Also Went Berlin—Game To-day is Called for 3 O'clock

The Petes tumbled in the second game with Berlin yesterday afternoon and although they made a heroic attempt to redeem themselves in the concluding chapters, there was nothing but anguish and a score of 9—7 on the wrong side.

Tobby Thompson should put up a great game to-day as he certainly parted with a lot of poor fielding work. But the whole infield blew in the fourth when the visitors took seven runs. In this frame Tracey was hit hard.

The Petes started the run-getting with one in the second, when Bradshaw issued four passes. A sacrifice fly by Thompson scored Hilliard

Berlin got it back in the third, which Bradshaw commenced with a single through second. Burns sacrificed him and he counted on Thompson's wild throw to Rowan.

Berlin took seven in the fourth. White was safe on Thompson's juggle. Beltz and Getsie singled, making three on. Stroh's long single across second scored White and Beltz. Brant threw to McNeal off Bradshaw's grounder and got the shortstop at the plate. Burns' grounder went through Rowan and and when Dinsmore hit into right, Stroh and Bradshaw scored. Rowan fielded Sweeney's biff but slow work by Thompson allowed the runner to make safe and Burns to go home. When McNeal made a bluff throw to get Sweeney going to second, Brant slipped as he got the ball and Dinsmore came home. McEvoy's single scored Sweeney. White fouled to McNeal and Beltz flied to Swartz.

Thompson's hit through second scored Swartz in the Petes' half, but Berlin got it back in the fifth on Stroh's double, Bradshaw's single and Burns' infield out.

Singles by Hilliard and Fox scored Rowan and Trout, who also hit, in the fifth. Berlin were held scoreless in the sixth, while the Petes took three. Tracey hit and Brant walked, after which Bradshaw gave way to Auld who fanned Rowan. Trout drew a double, scoring both. Tracey and Brant and Trout counted on a wild peg home and another by Stroh to third base. Hilliard singled but was forced by Swartz. McNeal hit through third and Fox grounded.

For the remainder of the game there was no more scoring as both pitchers tightened up.

Harry Brant contributed some of the prettiest fielding ever seen here and Burns went back to the barns and accepted a difficult chance.

The Petes go to London on Monday and come home for the last three days with Brantford.

Diabetes Cured

Doctors and retail druggists of Canada are in a position to know just who are suffering from Diabetes; perhaps you know for a fact that these same people have been doctoring for years, without being cured or even relieved of their suffering. Why wouldn't you, or anyone who reads this notice, call the attention of your druggist, doctor, or anyone you know that is suffering of this deadly affliction. In the interest of suffering humanity this is requested, an act of kindness to mankind will thus be performed, for any help in alleviation of suffering disease is noble work.

SANOL'S ANTI-DIABETES manufactured by the SANOL MANUFACTURING COMPANY, Ltd., Winnipeg, Man., is the remedy in question, and doctors and physicians in all parts of the country are recommending it and prescribing it with wonderful success. It is wise for everyone to know about this efficient remedy, and to call it to the attention of their friends. We would strongly urge the readers of this paper to write to the above mentioned firm for literature and copies of testimonials, so that they may be informed of this wonderful discovery.

DYING FROM GALL-STONES

Doctors Said Only An Operation Could Save His Life—"Fruit-a-tives" Enabled Him To Pass Nearly 200 Gall-Stones.

J. B. HARDING, Esq.

46 Grove Ave., TORONTO, ONT., Jan. 10th, 1913.

"I suffered untold agony from GALL-STONES, for the past three years, and tried many doctors without getting relief. I also paid $5.00 for one bottle of medicine which was useless. At times the pain from these gall-stones was so great that I lost consciousness, and my condition was desperate. I was quite satisfied that I was dying and the doctors said I must be operated upon.

"During one of these very severe, acute attacks, I was given some "FRUIT-A-TIVES", and after taking a short treatment of this remedy, I passed gall-stones over an inch in length, and as many as one hundred and fifty or two hundred in number. "FRUIT-A-TIVES" was the only thing that would relieve my pain. They are the greatest medicine in the world, and if there is anyone in Canada, or anywhere else, that suffers from gall-stones, I say "Let them take "Fruit-a-tives" and be cured".

"If this testimonial will further the good work of "Fruit-a-tives", publish it with my full authority."

J. B. HARDING.

Are you wondering how "Fruit-a-tives"—a medicine made from fruit juices, can cure Gall-stones? We will tell you. The Gall bladder is the reservoir for holding the Gall, or bile, secreted by the liver. If there is insufficient bile, then the bile in the Gall bladder is thick and easily forms stones. When the liver is weak, it secretes very little bile and then the Gall bladder is partially filled with a thick jelly-like mass of bile and thus forms into lumps or stones. "Fruit-a-tives" stimulates the liver to secrete more bile, and this increased bile softens the Gall-stones and by overfilling the Gall bladder, forces the passage of the stones through the Gall duct—and thus cures the disease.

"Fruit-a-tives" is the only medicine in the world made of fruit juices. By a wonderful process, the medicinal properties of certain fruits are greatly intensified —then valuable tonics and antiseptics are added and the whole made into the pleasant tasting tablets known in every section of Canada as "Fruit-a-tives".

50c. a box, 6 for $2.50, trial size, 25c. At dealers or sent on receipt of price by Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa.

BIG REGATTA FOR CHEMONG

Great preparations are being made for the Chemong annual regatta, which is to be held on Thursday, August 14. With more events and more money in the treasury, the committee in charge are confident of holding one of the most successful regattas ever held by the club. The subscriptions have been practically all collected and these present a handsome sum.

The prize list and events will be out sometime next week.

Great praise is due to Messrs. H F. Hill, H S. Matthews and J. Pattie for their efforts in making the social life of Chemong Park a success

WESTERN CANADA'S BUMPER WHEAT CROP

Thousands of Men Required—This Year's Harvest Promises to be the Largest in the History of Canada

According to present indications the wheat crop of 1913 will be the greatest ever harvested in Manitoba, Saskatchewan or Alberta, thus requiring the farm laborers of the East to assist in harvesting the world's bread basket.

The Governments of the respective Provinces state that many thousand men will be required for this year's harvest. These will have to be principally recruited from Ontario, and the prosperity of Canada depends on securing labor promptly. The Canadian Pacific, on which Company will fall practically the entire task of transporting the men to the West, is already making special arrangements for this year. Excursions from points in Ontario to Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta will be run and special trains operated, making the trip in about thirty-six hours and avoiding any change of cars or transfers. This will be a day shorter than any other route. Dates, rates and conditions will be announced in a few days. eod

Make limeade with fresh limes—the juice of one lime for each glass of water, sweetened to taste. Or a little lime juice may be used in lemonade to give it a flavor.

PRESIDENT OF TRADES AND LABOR CONGRESS

To Address Public Meeting in the Labor Hall

President Watters, of the Trades and Labor Congress of Canada, will be in Peterborough on Monday, Aug. 4th, and will address a public meeting in the Labor Hall, George St., in the evening, commencing at 8 o'clock sharp. A special invitation is extended to those outside the ranks of organized labor.

The President of the Trades and Labor Congress is a busy man, and every worker in the city should show their appreciation by making a special effort to be present to hear what he has to say in the interests of labor.

MORE HOUSES FOR SOUTH END OF THE CITY

A walk around the southern part of Peterborough will certainly convince anyone that Peterborough is progressing rapidly in the building of residences. Five years ago, yes, only two years ago the south end near the Exhibition Grounds could boast of only a few houses. Now it is thickly populated with cozy workman's houses. All the houses are brick and they present a good solid residential section. Practically all the building permits taken out are for the southern part of Peterborough. With these operations and the De Laval and Henry Hope buildings going ahead with rapid strides, the south end is booming.

Building permits for the past week were:

Q. Cupole, dwelling, $1,500.

J. Collins, dwelling, Romaine St., $1,000.

H. Collinson, dwleling, James St., $750.

A. E. Micks, shop, $600.

R. C. Braund, 4 houses, Park St., $4,300.

Wm Elphgrave, shed, $250.

FAST SERVICE

Toronto to Winnipeg Via Grand Trunk Railway, Northern Navigation Company and Grand Trunk Pacific Railway

"Steamship Express" leaves Toronto 10.45 a.m. each Monday, Wednesday and Saturday via Grand Trunk Railway stopping at Hamilton, Brantford, Paris, Woodstock, Ingersoll, London and Strathroy, arriving Sarnia Wharf 4.00 p.m., making direct connection with the Northern Navigation Company's palatial steamers leaving Sarnia Wharf 4.15 p.m. for Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., Port Arthur and Fort William. Steamer leaving Sarnia Wharf Mondays does not call at Port Arthur. On the arrival of Steamers at Fort William, special trains of the highest standard leave that point at 4.45 p.m. via Grand Trunk Pacific Railway, arriving Winnipeg 7.45 a.m. next morning. The service afforded by this route is the finest in every respect and includes Parlor-Cafe, Parlor Cars and and Coaches between Toronto and Sarnia Wharf, excellent service on the steamers of the Northern Navigation Company, including the "Harmonic," the finest and fastest steamship on the Great Lakes. Standard Sleeping cars (Electric Lights in Lower and Upper Berths) Colonist Sleeping Cars (Berths Free) Dining Cars and coaches on the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway between Fort William and Winnipeg, also Standard Sleeping Cars to Saskatoon and Edmonton.

Special trains run the reverse way—from Sarnia Wharf to Toronto, each Tuesday, Friday and Saturday.

AN OPTICAL TALK

Nothing is more surprising than the change which has come over the public with regard to Sight Testing. Ten years ago it was a matter of difficulty to overcome the reluctance which they manifested to the scientific examination of their eyes. They never had been tested and didn't see why they should be now.

To-day, however, matters are entirely changed, those people who come for the special purpose of having their eyes examined, far out-number those who come asking for Spectacles, and this I take as a compliment, proving as it does, that we should not supply glasses unless they would be of real benefit. It may surprise you to learn that many hundreds of people have been refused spectacles by me either because their eyes were not in need of them, or more generally, because they had allowed them to get into such a serious condition that medical aid had become necessary.

It has been my rule for ten years never to supply glasses where an examination proves the advice of a Physician is required. You cannot afford to take chances with your eyes.

We manufacture all our lenses from "PERLO" quality glass, the finest quality known to the science. We have the exclusive agency for this quality glass.

All work positively guaranteed.

The Late George Adlam, Was Son of Mr. John Adlam

Mr. Seth Adlam, Bolivar street, received to-day, the news of the death of his brother George Adlam which occurred at Rochester, N.Y., last night, after a brief illness.

The late Mr. Adlam, who was forty years of age was a native of Peterboro.

He is survived by his wife and one son, Percy, who are in this city, also his parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Adlam Sherbrooke street; and two brothers, Messrs. Seth and Frederick, Mrs. Fred. Drake, also of this city, is a sister.

The remains will likely be brought to Peterboro for interment.

GRAND DISPLAY OF FINE HORSES

The Sells-Floto circus, which comes here on August 20, has for years maintained the reputation of having the best and most comprehensive display of horse flesh ever appearing with any travelling organization and this year, for the benefit of their patrons, they will make a special display of these wonderful animals in a large tent adjoining the Animal Menagerie, so that their patrons and lovers of good horses generally may feast their eyes on the various breeds and individual champions which go to make up this wonderful collection.

In it will be found specimens of the Percheron, representatives of the thoroughbred, standard bred, Suffolk Punch, coach horses, hackneys, hunters and general purpose horses. It will form an interesting study for those who are either closely connected with the business of horse raising or farming, besides those who love the horse for himself and desire to see him at his best.

The doors of the circus proper will be open one hour before each performance in order that the menagerie and horse fair may be looked over before patrons take their seats. 1d

FARMERS BLAME THE CATERPILLARS

For the Failure of the Apple Crop This Season

The apple crop in this district is an absolute failure, according to farmers who brought produce to the local market this morning.

"Haven't you any apples?" was a question often put by would-be vendors.

"There ain't no apples," came the reply, "and there ain't going to be any. Them durned caterpillars—"

The caterpillars are being blamed for most things just now, but the farmers admit that the cold weather at blossoming time, and the drought that followed were responsible in some measure for the failure of the crop.

The government crop report for June blame the scarcity of the crop on a kind of scab that is said to have appeared on the apples.

Farmers who were questioned this morning said they knew nothing about this scab.

"Caterpillars," they said; "caterpillars."

The plum crop is almost as bad, and as for pears, whenever there is an apple failure pears are sure to bear the apples company. In fact, all fruit is going to be scarce this year.

This morning's market was a small one, and buying was far from brisk. Produce prices seem to have struck a dead level. They have remained stationary for weeks.

THE MARKET

Latest Quotation in Grain, Dairy Products Live Stock, Etc

CHICAGO, July 25.—Wheat prices gave way today under selling due largely to improved reports concerning the spring crop. Closing prices were steady at a decline of 1-2c to 1c net. Corn showed a decline of 1-2c to 1c, oats 1-2c to 3-4c and provisions 5c to 30c.

The Liverpool market closed ¼d to ⅜d lower on wheat, and ⅛d lower on corn.

GRAND OPERA HOUSE ORCHESTRA

It was stated that the Neapolitan Quartette supplied the music for the dance at Chemong Park on Thursday night but this was not so. The Grand Opera House orchestra was engaged, and the program was a particularly one. Several of the numbers had just been received from New York and the large crowd was delighted.

Dr. R. J. Zimmerman, Toronto, will take the services at Bethany Tabernacle, on Sunday.

TENDERS FOR DREDGING

SEALED TENDERS, addressed to the undersigned, and endorsed "Tender for Dredging, Little Current," will be received until 4.00 P.M., on Tuesday, August 12, 1913, for dredging required at Little Current, Ontario.

Tenders will not be considered unless made on the forms supplied, and signed with the actual signatures of the tenderers.

Combined specification and form of tender can be obtained on application to the Secretary, Department of Public Works, Ottawa. Tenders must include the towing of the plant to and from the work. Dredges and tugs not owned and registered in Canada shall not be employed in the performance of the work contracted for. Contractors must be ready to begin work within thirty days after the date they have been notified of the acceptance of their tender.

Each tender must be accompanied by an accepted cheque on a chartered bank, payable to the order of the Honourable the Minister of Public Works, for five per cent (5 per cent) of the contract price, which will be forfeited if the person tendering decline to enter into a contract when called upon to do so, or fail to complete the work contracted for. If the tender be not accepted the cheque will be returned.

The Department does not bind itself to accept the lowest or any tender.

By order,
R. C. DESROCHERS,
Secretary.

ATTACK ON U.S. OFFICIAL IN MEXICO AROUSES STORM

Shooting of Immigration Inspector at Juarez is Assuming International Importance and U.S. Demands Retribution—Two Mine Managers Are Under Arrest and in Peril of Their Lives.

WASHINGTON, July 28.—The shooting of Charles B. Dixon, a United States immigration inspector, by Mexican Federal troops at Juarez Mexico, has assumed an international importance that is significant of the growing tension between this Government and its southern neighbor. While such an affair would always be regarded as raising a serious issue between nations, the circumstances of the shooting of Inspector Dixon and the fact that it occurred at this time of bitter feeling against Americans among President Huerta's followers have served to invest it with all the characteristics of a case that is likely to have a marked effect on the relations of Mexico and the United States.

Official reports to the State Department and the Department of Labor yesterday bore out the press accounts of the shooting, although they were not given in such detail. The State Department acted quickly. At Secretary Bryan's direction, instructions were telegraphed to Nelson O'Shaughnessy, Secretary of Embassy and charge d'affaires of the United States at Mexico City, to demand the immediate arrest of those responsible for the shooting and their trial without delay, also the immediate release of Charles Bissell and Bernard McDonald, mining managers, imprisoned by Federal soldiers at Chihuahua City, and said to be threatened with execution. McDonald is said to be a British subject.

It was said in official circles that this meant that the United States Government expected the accused soldiers to be placed on trial as early as to-day. Mr. O'Shaughnessy was directed also to protest to the Mexican Government and demand an investigation and explanation of the affair.

Instructions to repeat the demand for the arrest of those concerned in the shooting and make an investigation of all the circumstances were telegraphed also to Thomas G. Edwards, the U. S. consul at Jaurez. Mr. Edwards was directed to arrange for having Mr. Dixon released from arrest and taken across the Rio Grande to El Paso, Texas, for medical treatment. The Department of Labor sent instructions to Chief Immigration Inspector Berkshire at El Paso to make a separate inquiry. It is expected that the Department of Justice will also order an investigation.

What makes the shooting of Mr. Dixon of particular importance just now is that the Wilson Administration has come to the conclusion that something should be done by the United States to bring to an end the perturbed conditions in Mexico, and the Dixon incident will serve to increase the friction that is already apparent in the dealings between this Government and that of President Huerta.

Should the Huerta Government show a disinclination to give proper punishment to the soldiers who shot Inspector Dixon and who are reported to have been drunk at the time, or to treat the affair as an ordinary matter, there is no telling what it may develop so far as American feeling and Governmental policy are concerned. It was said last night that it would be emphasized by the presentation of a resolution in the Senate to-day calling on President Wilson for the facts and a statement as to what steps had been taken by him to procure redress for the effort to kill a United States official and the seeming affront to the United States Government in that effort.

MURRAY DEAD

Celebrated Horseman is Killed in an Accident at Toronto.

TORONTO, July 28—James Murray, one of Canada's most popular horsemen, is dead as the result of an accident which occurred last Tuesday afternoon, when a runaway horse belonging to the Robt. Simpson Co., crashed into a buggy driven by Mr. Murray at the corner of Chicora avenue and Avenue road.

The late James Murray was born in Perthshire, Scotland, and when a young man he went south to London, where he joined the big horse exchange firm of Carter, Patterson & Co. He came to Canada about 32 years ago and became a partner with T. A. Crow, the firm name taking the style of Crow & Murray.

Ate Dead Lover's Heart.

BERLIN, July 28.—The existence of cannibalism in Germany came to light in the recent trial of a widow named Kockerits, who was sentenced to death for murdering her lover, mutilating the body, baking the heart of her victim and eating it.

The woman confessed to the crime, saying that her actions were in keeping with an old superstition, in which the eating of the heart of the victim is supposed to prevent his spirit from returning and haunting the murderer.

Should Buy Property.

LONDON, July 28.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—Earl Grey, who recently obtained a three years' option on an Aldwych site on a 99-year building lease for the erection of new offices for the Dominion Government says there is now danger of exception being taken to the site unless it is secured as freehold property. He communicated this to the High Commissioner for Canada, who suggests that the site should be taken outright at the price quoted, $65,000.

PREFERS NUDITY

Preacher Thinks African Women's Costumes Better Than American.

SPARTANBURG, S.C., July 28.—In an editorial on "Sensuality in Women's Dress," the Rev. Stephen A. Nettles, editor of The Southern Christian Advocate, says: "Somehow it seems that many women love to display their forms. It has gone so far that in some cities laws have been passed forbidding the appearance of women upon the streets in certain styles of dress.

"Really, we believe it would morally be far better for the women to follow the custom of many African tribes who are robed in nothing more than beads of perspiration than to wear the suggestive dresses that many are now adorning their bodies with.

Peace Propositions.

SHANGHAI, July 28.—Peace propositions are under discussion here between the two parties. Dr. Wu Ting Fang, formerly Chinese Minister to the United States, is the most prominent among the intermediaries, but it is doubted here whether he is authorized by provisional President Yuan Shi Kai.

The principal Wu-Sung fort yesterday definitely declared for the Government. The country people and the workmen at the arsenal are regaining confidence and returning to their work.

Head-On Collision.

MACON, Ga., July 28.—Two fast passenger trains on the Southern Railway collided head on at Holton, eight miles north of Macon early Saturday. A negro porter was killed and a number of passengers are reported injured.

Paint window screens white if you wish to make it difficult for people to see in the window. This will, of course, not help if the room is lighted.

RUNAWAY GROOM WOULD NOT FACE MAN WITH REVOLVER

Bride Gave the Secret Away and Made Trouble—Now She is Back Again Under the Parental Roof.

COBOURG, July 28.—Holiday seekers blame it on the having-nothing-else-to-do condition, but it bids fair to afford the townspeople gossip for many weeks to come.

A young man from St. Louis, spending his vacation at one of the largest hotels here, had been paying a great deal of attention to a pretty society girl from Toronto who happened to be staying with friends living here privately during the summer.

About five o'clock Friday afternoon the couple were married at the Methodist parsonage.

The clergyman deemed it a case where the two young people had become suddenly enamored of each other, but evidently considered it well to refrain from asking questions since the license certified that the man was 24 and the girl 19 years of age.

On coming out of the parsonage the pair re-entered a car, which was headed for Port Hope to catch the train there, but the light-hearted bride, seeing a girl friend passing at the moment could not resist the temptation to call out to her the excited words: "We are married!"

Feminine intuition directed the girl friend hurriedly to the nearest telephone and the lady with whom the bride had been staying was informed of the facts. A young friend raced away on a motorcycle and waited for the happy couple halfway up a hill with his revolver ready.

Four minutes elapsed ere the elopers hove in sight.

"Turn back, you dog, else I'll shoot you," the young man with the gun threatened in a very convincing manner. The auto slowed up, the girl screamed and the episode came to a sudden termination.

Friends took possession of the bride and accompanied her back to Toronto to her family, who may have yet some share in the decision as to what shall be the outcome of ten days' romance by the lakeside.

HAS FAITH IN CANADA

Emmott Says Britain Awaits Naval Issue With Confidence.

OTTAWA, July 28.—"We in the Mother Country await that decision with complete confidence in the patriotism of Canada's people, in their loyalty to the throne and Empire, and in their firm determination to take a proper and adequate share in the burden we are called upon to bear."

Britain's feeling towards Canada as regards the naval question was thus expressed by Lord Emmott, Under Secretary of State for the Colonies, and the leader of the British Parliamentary party now in Canada, at the banquet given by the Dominion Government in the Chateau Laurier Saturday night. Lord Emmott apparently gave the cue to the other speakers in his party in this leading thought in his address.

The dinner was of an informal nature, and followed an afternoon of sightseeing. Both the Prime Minister and the leader of the Opposition were unavoidably absent, and Hon. Geo. H. Perley, in the absence of Mr. Borden, presided.

The following message of regret was received from the Premier:

"I beg that you will convey to the members of the British Parliamentary party, at the dinner, my deepest regret that I cannot be present to join in extending to them a warm Canadian welcome. I trust that their visit to the world-wide dominions of the Empire may be not only enjoyable but interesting and instructive. It is of vital importance that the vision of statesmen, whether from the British Islands or elsewhere within the Empire, should not be so completely and exclusively fixed upon problems of purely domestic concern that the wider outlook escapes them. Visits such as these are justly to be regarded as of the highest imperial significance."

Hon. C. J. Doherty, Minister of Justice, and Hon. Sydney Fisher, ex-Minister of Agriculture, joined in the toast welcoming the guests.

Lord Emmott, who was the first to respond to the toast, expressed the gratitude of the British party for the reception they had already received. He regretted that their arrival had not been during a period when the Canadian Parliament was in session, a Parliament which had lately given such evidence of its close attention to duty. (Laughter.)

Referring to the naval question, Lord Emmott said:

"I was much astonished to see in a Montreal paper yesterday, a statement to the effect that I intended to discuss the naval question in my speech this evening. What I did say to two gentlemen of the press, who asked me if I would express my views to them was this: That the part Canada should take in naval defence was a question for Canada to settle for herself, and that any unsolicited advice, given by one self-governing portion of the Empire to another, was likely to cause friction and to defeat its own ends.

"If I read the situation aright, Canada has decided to help, but Canada has not yet decided in what form that help is to be given. Canada will decide this in her own good time. We in the Mother Country await that decision with complete confidence in the patriotism of her people in their loyalty to the throne, our Empire, and in their firm determination to take a proper and adequate share in the burden we all called upon to bear."

In conclusion, Lord Emmott referred to the question of employment.

"It's a myth that there are crowds of unemployed at home," he said "Never before has unemployment been so low. The question of immigration, I may tell you, is becoming a sore topic with us at home."

The party left for Toronto last night.

CYCLIST KILLED IN MOTOR RACE

Benjamin Wilson of Rochester Dashes Into Fence at Toronto.

TORONTO, July 28.—After daring death scores of times, Benjamin Wilson, aged 32, a motor-cyclist from Rochester and a former Toronto boy, was instantly killed when he lost control of his motorcycle and crashed into the fence at Exhibition Park, Saturday afternoon.

The accident occurred at the seventh lap of the five-mile race. Wilson, one of the last to come on to the stretch, tore down the track at 45 miles an hour. He hit the curve at a speed of 40 miles an hour. His machine bore straight for the high board fence.

When the machine hit the fence, the rider shot into the air, turned a double somersault and hit one of the posts headfirst. The machine bounced into the air, somersaulted and struck Wilson as it fell. Death was instantaneous, the skull having been fractured in several places.

IS APPOINTED DISTRICT MANAGER

The general agent of the Traveller's Life Assurance Company, Mr. G. H. Allen, of Montreal, was in the city last week renewing acquaintances. Rev. J. G. Lewis, who is residing this year in the city, was appointed district manager of the company.

Labor and Capital "Wars" To Be Solved.

Mr. Samuel Gompers

J. PHILIP BIRD.

All the "wars" that have been fought between labor and capital, all the efforts to secure by lobbying legislation which would profit either labor or capital, are to be investigated by Congress. Samuel Gompers and John Mitchell, and George Pope, president, and J. P. Bird, general manager, of the National Manufacturers, have been subpoenaed. One Senator said the quest might reach the McNamara dynamiting case and many of the great strikes.

Private Hawkins Had Aggregate of 330 Out of 355.

PRIVATE HAWKINS.

BISLEY, Eng., July 28.—Private Hawkins, 48th Highlanders, Toronto, yesterday won the King's Prize for rifle shooting, carrying with it the National Rifle Association's gold medal and gold badge and $1,250 in cash.

The competition, which is open only to members of the volunteer forces of the British Empire, is fought in three stages. The winner of the first stage receives a bronze medal; of the second stage, a silver medal, of the third stage, in which only 100 contestants are left in, the gold medal.

The first stage is fired at three ranges, 200, 500 and 600 yards, seven shots at each distance. The second stage, in which are the leading 300 men, consists of 20 shots at 600 yards, and the third stage is shot off at distances of 800, 900 and 1,000 yards, ten shots at each distance.

Private Hawkins' aggregate was 330 points, out of a possible 355.

Sergt. Ommundsen, a Scottish territorial, was the winner of both the silver and bronze medals. He won the King's Prize in 1901, and the silver medal in 1906. His shooting has been phenomenal in all contests.

Following were the scores of the Canadians at 900 yards in the third stage of the King's prize:

Denholm, 535453555445255—62, aggregate 252.

Guthaus, 535453444544433—60, aggregate 248.

Hawkins, 555553545555344—68, aggregate 262.

Laman, 555435345255555545—65, aggregate 253.

Lee, 545543544554536—66, aggregate 257.

Steele, 450555444553555—64, aggregate 254.

Mortimer, 355555555334555—68, aggregate, 257.

Ommundsen was leading with 266, Sergt. Fenby, Royal Warwick, had 266, Iglic had 263.

Hawkins' score at the last range was 553555545445355—62.

When six shots had been fired, Ommundsen was leading by two points from Hawkins. The latter began to alter this complexion at the next shot. Hawkins being 296, Fenby 293 and Ommundsen 291.

Following were the other Canadian scores: Denholm 63, aggregate 315; Guthaus 52, aggregate 300; Laman 57, aggregate 310; Lee 50, aggregate 307; Steele 51, aggregate 305; Mortimer, 59.

Ommundsen half way through made a miss and then had a string of inners. Fenby finished some minutes before Hawkins, and his position after Hawkins made a magpie on his 14th shot was that he had to make a bull to beat Fenby or an inner to tie with him. The bull came hard enough, however, and a mighty cheer greeted the winner.

Following are the prizes won in the King's second stage: Crowe 111, Taylor 125, Bullock 168, each win 60 shillings; Hawley 219, Sterns 283, win 40 shillings.

St. George's Match.

The winner of the St. George's was Pte. Fulton, Queen's, Westminster, with 119. The Canadians scored as follows at the 900 yards' target in the match: Carr 66, Denholm 63, Freeborn 68. Aggregates: Carr, 114, Denholm 115, Freeborn 115.

Freeborn 23rd, Denholm 25th, Carr 29th, each win $25 and badges.

Should Keep Blood Pure.

OTTAWA, July 28.—In an address to the Old Countrymen's Club here, Rev. R. H. Steacy, an Anglican minister and prominent member of the Orange Order, urged on his hearers the importance of keeping the British blood pure by not intermarrying with lower classes of European immigration. Mr. Steacy warned them not to take unto themselves wives of other nationalities. The strain must be kept pure in this manner if anything was to be accomplished in the future.

ENGINEER ASSAULTED IN THE CAB

Driver Was Attacked as Train Travelled at High Speed.

HAMILTON, July 28.—Bound hand and foot, Fireman Fred. Highland, 29 South Caroline street, was taken from the baggage car of the T. H. & B train when it arrived at the Hamilton station at 10.25 yesterday morning, and held by the local police on a charge of assaulting Engineer John Towney while in the execution of his duty. The story of the struggle between the engineer and his mate while the train was running at high speed, reads like an extract from one of Jules Verne's romances.

According to Towney, Highlands entered into an altercation with him while the train was stopped at Fenwick, and high words followed. It was not, however, until the engine had got well under way again that the fireman culminated his threats with actual violence. Apparently deeming that the opportunity afforded him was a safe one, he stepped behind Towney, so it is said, and dealt him a heavy blow.

Not wishing to stop the train unless compelled to, the engineer ordered Highlands back to his side of the cab. The man's reply, according to the complainant, was another severe blow. Realizing that the lives of the passengers entrusted to his care were in danger, Towney stopped his engine and sought the aid of his fellow trainmen, but before he secured their assistance, however, he was subjected to a rain of blows from his infuriated helper. The other trainmen succeeded in overpowering Highlands, and after securing his feet and hands, carried him into the baggage car.

Immediately on arrival at Hamilton, Towney swore out a warrant and the fireman was arrested by Detective Sayers and Constable Duffy.

The railroad company has announced its intention of prosecuting Highlands, and the case comes up in police court to-day.

Forest Fire in Jasper Park.

EDMONTON, July 28.—Forest fire, which broke out in Jasper Park a week ago has greatly increased in scope and a large quantity of valuable timber has been destroyed. At one time the blaze approached to within ten miles of Fitzhugh, but suddenly was diverted by the wind and swept in a northerly direction.

The blaze has now swept over the division into British Columbia, where the coast province rangers have taken up the battle.

A large force of rangers have been gathered together at Mile 17, B.C., and are working out in different directions from there with a view to confining the flames.

WHOLE FAMILY IS WIPED OUT

Prosperous Farmer His Wife and Two Children Shot to Death, in Their Home on Sunday

Canadian Press Despatch.

RUMSEY, ALTA., July 28—With every room showing signs of a terrific struggle, George Robinson, his wife, their twelve year old son, and three year old daughter, were found dead in their home at noon on Sunday.

Robinson, who was a prosperous farmer of the district, was lying on the floor with the top of his head blown completely off, across his body being a Winchester shot gun. Opposite him on the floor, was the body of his wife who had been shot through the right breast Her face was bruised and beaten almost beyond recognition.

In the kitchen was the body of the boy shot to death, while on a bed in the rear room was the body of the little girl with the head blown completely off. Three empty shells were found on the floor and a fourth in the gun.

MANY ARE MASSACRED

Victims of Bulgars Included Seventy Foreigners.

PARIS, July 28.—A telegram from Saloniki printed in the Paris edition of The New York Herald, says that the Greek army occupied Xanthi on Saturday; and that all the inhabitants, including Americans and Englishmen, are believed to have been massacred by the Bulgarians. Seventy foreigners are said to have been put to death.

Twenty thousand Greeks and many Mussulmans and Jews are reported to have perished in the town, which afterwards was pillaged by the retreating Bulgars.

No confirmation of the reported massacre has been received from any other sources.

Bulgars Sharpen Swords.

SALONIKI, July 28.—A few days previous to the occupation of Xanthi by the Greek forces the press bureau of Saloniki received authoritative information coming from Xanthi and an American source that the Bulgarian army had sharpened their swords and they declared that at the first appearance of the Greek army they would kill everybody and deliver the city to smoke and flames.

The American informer, who had come to Saloniki to save his life, further informed that at a certain position in the mountains between Cavalla and Xanthi the commitatzis were waiting for the watchword to commence, but the director of the press bureau prevented them by hastening and despatching the important information to his Majesty the King and to the Ministry of War.

SENT BACK TO ENGLAND

HUSBAND DESERTED

And His Sick Wife Had to Fight the Battle Alone

Mrs Proffitt, an English lady, who has caused the City Relief Officer considerable anxiety of late by her repeated refusals to leave Peterboro and be sent back to England, left this morning for the old country.

Mrs Proffitt's story and her stay in Peterboro have been full of many trials and troubles. About four months ago her husband deserted her and has not been heard of since. The wife being in bad health was left to bear the brunt of the burden with five small children the oldest being about eight years of age.

She managed to get along for a time but in the end she was forced to ask for assistance.

At the Charity Board meeting, sometime ago, it was decided to deport to England the family. Mrs. Proffitt at first refused to be deported, but at last came to the conclusion that it would be better to return to her friends in the old country.

Mrs Proffitt is about 23 years of age.

PEACE PARLEYS BEGIN MONDAY

BUCHAREST, Roumania, July 28.—The peace delegates of Servia, Greece and Montenegro left Belgrade yesterday morning and are expected to arrive here to-day, when they will be joined by Premier Venizelos of Greece.

The Bulgarian plenipotentiaries are expected to reach here simultaneously; and it is hoped in official circles that terms of peace will be arranged concurrently with the armistice now being discussed at Nish.

WHOLE TRAIN OVERTURNED

Twenty Seven Passengers Suffered Injuries

SIX MAY DIE

Canadian Press Despatch.

BOULDER COLORADO, July 27.—Twenty-seven passengers were injured, and six probably fatally, yesterday, when a train of five coaches on the Denver, Boulder & Western Railway, containing 125 eastern tourists viewing the mountain scenery, overturned near Eldorado.

LATEST NEWS PARAGRAPHED

King Alfonso and the Queen of Spain arrived in England yesterday to attend the Cowes' regatta.

C. E. Brown, publicity commissioner of Moose Jaw, with a salary of $6,000 a year, has resigned, owing to friction.

Much anxiety has been felt around Sparrow Lake for the past few days because of bush fires, but the danger seems now to be passed.

A despatch from Rome says the powers have authorized Russia to occupy Armenia in order to compel Turkey to withdraw from Bulgarian territory.

A Saturday night fire resulted in the destruction of a large boathouse owned by George Marron of Owen Sound, and occupied by Booth Bros., at Brockville.

Christopher Christopersen, formerly Foreign Minister in the Norwegian Cabinet under the Premiership of M. Knudsen, died yesterday. He is to be given a state funeral.

Fire in Rochester Saturday did $30,000 damage to the plant of The Union and Advertiser, an afternoon newspaper. It was the fourth fire in two weeks in the same building.

The crown has dropped the charge of manslaughter preferred against Sidney Emprey, of Brockville, who was arrested prior to the finding of the body of Wesley Doran in the river.

Joe Flynn, a Grand Trunk section man, was seriously injured yesterday near London when a baggage car jumped the track and was overturned. Flynn was pinned beneath the car and badly crushed.

A despatch from Bath, N.Y., says that Frank Burnside, flying in a biplane yesterday, broke Lincoln Beachy's American altitude record of 11,680 feet, made in Chicago two years ago, by attaining a height of 12,950 feet.

Two weeks ago Chris Keane, a prominent grain broker of Saskatoon, bet R. M. Buchanan two residential lots, valued at $2,000, that he would be married inside of six weeks. Mr. Keane is now married with four weeks to spare.

STORE BURNED DOWN.

Calumet Dealers Say Strikers Destroyed Their Place.

CALUMET, Mich., July 28.—Morgan and Grierson's general store and market was burned last night at Centennial, two miles from Calumet and the proprietors assert that the building was set on fire by sympathizers of the 15,000 miners who are on strike, because the proprietors Saturday announced that hereafter no credit business would be done.

A dwelling next to the store was also partly burned. Two companies of troops were at once despatched to the scene of the fire.

At least partial resumption of mine work in the copper field was planned last night, after the arrival of large contingents of state troops and of Gen. P. L. Abbey, commanding the brigade into which the Michigan guard is organized.

The mining companies are facing large losses from the seepage of water into some of the workings, those on the conglomerate lode of the Calumet and Hecla being especially subject to such danger. Thus far the union men have prevented all pumping from the underground workings, and early Saturday even caused the shutting down of mine pumps which furnished the water to their own residences.

BRITISH CAPITAL AND THE NAVY QUESTION

The Daily Review ventured the other day in this column to hint at the possibility of the rejection by the Senate of the Naval Aid Bill affecting the British investments in Canada.

That there are others who think the same, and can prove it, will be seen from the following, which is taken from the Toronto Daily News. It is a reply to a complaint by the Toronto Star, to the effect that British investors are taking revenge for being stung by Western "wild-cat" propositions.

"Yesterday The Star said: 'British capital has a habit of revenging its mistakes and unprofitable experiments on perfectly solvent institutions. It gets stung, for instance on a sky-line sub-division in a prairie town or a wild-cat mine in British Columbia, and it refuses to lend on gilt-edged security to a great city in Eastern Canada. Just for that, it seems to say, you'll all get off. Instead of kicking itself it kicks somebody else quite innocent.' Could anything be more juvenile? The world-wide monetary stringency and a plethora of securities on the London market are the only reasons why the bonds offered by Toronto or any other solid Canadian municipality have not been freely absorbed. The idea that capital is huffed is almost too ridiculous for notice.

The Star has never grasped the importance to Canada and to all other borrowing countries of London's immunity from invasion. In the light of this obvious fact, higher considerations altogether aside, have we no stake in British sea-power, and are we always to shirk payment of our insurance premiums?

As recently pointed out, Canada's rapid development has been rendered possible by the investment of $2,000,000,000 of British money in Canadian railways, and other Canadian enterprises. In the past three years we have secured $600,000,000 in London, as compared with $280,000,000 lent to the United States with ten times our population, and as compared with $115,000,000 loaned to Russia, which boasts even greater resources than this Dominion. The simple fact is that in every real measure British capital likes to follow the flag and to remain under stable British institutions, and that other things being equal, it prefers Canada to foreign lands."

Let all little Canadians who are yearning for isolation digest that.

"FIRE! FIRE!"

The terrible holocaust at Binghampton, which resulted in the loss of so many lives, seems to have been an up-to-date illustration of the old story of the boy and the shepherds. Precautions in the form of fire-drills can be overdone, like the cry of "Wolf! Wolf!" when there is no wolf.

The best safe-guard against the repetition of such fatalities lies in the direction of a more vigilant inspection of factories, not so much to provide means of escape, but rather to reduce to a minimum the possibilities of an outbreak of fire.

The prohibition of smoking by workmen is one means, but it is questionable if many fires are the result of this habit. It would be more sensible to condemn all factories that are built of inflamable material, and also to see that goods that are likely to cause or feed a fire are not stored in the same place in which employees have to work.

Precautions of this nature would be more of a safe-guard against loss of life as well as of property than the best fire escapes or fire-drills that were ever devised.

EDITORIAL NOTES

The Ottawa Evening Journal seems to be one of those journals which comes under the ban of the gentleman who accused Canadian Journalism of lacking in humor.

The Journal takes the Review to task over a recent article on Billy Sunday, the "Baseball Evangelist," because the article concluded with a laconical remark that "they need it in the States."

The Review resents the charge of Pharisaism; the remark was a desperate attempt to be satirical, and was written in the best of humor. But there is the temptation to feel grateful that the Review is not as other journals.

Reporters were chased and shot at in Montreal the other day. They deal more gently with these scouts of the press in Peterborough, although we are being continually assailed with bullet (ins) at this office.

EXCERPTS

"TRADE FOLLOWS THE FLAG."

The latest emigration and trade returns issued by the British Government show pretty conclusively that "Trade follows the flag," and also that the Empire is now retaining the bulk of her people. Out of 133,350 natives of the British Isles who emigrate during the first four months of the present year, over three-quarters were retained within the Empire. Of this number Canada received 66,911.

In matters of trade, the various parts of the Empire have most extensive dealings with one another. India, with imports of $353,023,765 in 1912, is the best customer Great Britain has. Australia, which has a population of about 4,500,000, purchased last year from Great Britain goods to the value of $174,203,505. Other parts of the Empire also ranked high as customers of the Mother Country, Canada being fifth on the list, with imports of $117,565,55-, and South Africa coming sixth with imports of $107,104,560. New Zealand with a very small population ranks ninth among the customers of Great Britain, with imports valued at $51,051,670. While it is true that "John Bull" trades with every country in the world, and does not allow sentiment to interfere with business, it is nevertheless true that sentiment or patriotism does play a part in matters of trade and emigration. There is not the slightest doubt but that Canada's and other over seas Dominions' borrowings have had a more sympathetic reception because of their origin than would otherwise have been the case. In matters of trade "blood is thicker than water."—Journal of Commerce and Shareholder.

Confused In His Debts.

"He must have a lot of friends?"

"Why?"

"I loaned him $5 the other day, and just a little while ago he came in and tried to pay me $10."

"I don't see how that proves anything."

"He explained when I told him that he owed me only $5 that he had made several touches on the day I loaned him money, and he thought I was one of those who fell for the $10."—Detroit Free Press.

From Habit.

"Why did she want to set her husband's will aside?"

"Merely because it was her husband's and she had got in the habit of setting it aside."—Houston Post.

MRS. PANKHURST VERY LOW.

Doctors Have Ordered Transfusion of Blood To Save Her Life.

LONDON, July 26.—The consulting physicians in attendance on Mrs. Emmeline Pankhurst, who was released Thursday from Holloway Jail, take such a serious view of her condition that they ordered the immediate resort to a transfusion of blood. Mrs. Pankhurst's weakness and inanition from the effects of her "hunger and thirst strikes" are so extreme that great apprehension is felt by the doctors as to the outcome.

"She could be no worse," was the statement made by one of the attendants yesterday.

Two Girls Drown In Storm.

WATERTOWN, N.Y., July 26.—The severe wind and hail storm which swept the St. Lawrence River late Thursday night resulted in the death of two persons and the narrow escape of a third.

The dead persons are Katherine McGowan, a nurse, and Ada Morcuri, a maid, both of New York. The two girls were boating near Round Point, Grindstone Island, with Herbert Smith when the storm struck them and overturned their boat. Smith clung to the boat and was finally rescued.

MARKET REPORTS

CHICAGO, July 26.—Buying that started with one of the largest houses in the trade lifted wheat today after a show of weakness at the outset. Black rust reports from Minnesota tended to aid the bulls. The market closed steady at a net advance of ¼c to ½c. Corn finished with a gain of 1¼c to 1½c, oats up ¾c to 1¼c, and provisions ranging from 2½c off to an upturn of 12½c.

The Liverpool market closed ¾d to 1d lower on wheat and ⅛d to ¼d higher on corn.

EXPLORER NOT FOUND.

German Steamer Was Just Reporting a Rumor.

CHRISTIANIA, Norway, July 26.—The steamer Grosser Kurfurst, which arrived yesterday from Spitzbergen waters, reports that the recent wireless despatch from the vessel at Bremen indicating that Lieut. Schroeder-Stranz, the missing German Arctic explorer, had been rescued, was erroneous.

It was stated by the officers of the vessel that the despatch sent from the Grosser Kurfursrt was based on a rumor picked up off Spitzbergen for which there was no foundation. They added that the wireless was sent as a rumor, and that it evidently had been mutilated in transmission from a rumor to a statement of fact.

Ferry Captain In Trouble.

SARNIA, July 26.—The two small ferries owned by Captain Egbert, and operated between Point Edward and Fort Gratiot, were ordered tied up Thursday, by the officers of the American Government. The captain is charged with taking Italians into the States after being warned twice before by the Immigration Department. It is stated that under the law, that he is liable to a fine of ten thousand dollars.

The two boats were lying at the dock Thursday night, when a steamer of the Mutual Line ran into them and damaged them. Besides having warnings from the American officers, he had been warned by Inspector Reynolds of the Canadian Immigration Department. The inspector is here at present.

Boy Met Death.

TORONTO, July 26.—Climbing a Hydro-electric pole at the corner of Withrow and Carlaw avenues, to rescue his toy kite which had become entangled in the wires, James Leadbetter, 11 years of age, was instantly electrocuted shortly after two o'clock yesterday afternoon.

The lad, who lives at 4 Englewood avenue, was playing with some other boys of his own age near the north-east corner when the kite which they were flying got stuck in the wires. Leadbetter volunteered to climb up after it, and as the kite was some distance out from the pole, he started to climb along the wires. As soon as he laid his hand on the wire he was thrown to the ground dead.

LIFE INSURANCE

THE pessimist and the prophet of woe have no rightful place in any consideration of the expediency of insuring life. But certain hard facts should be squarely faced by every man of moderate means who has anyone dependent on him. Hundreds of men are yearly rejected for life insurance who would have been accepted had they not delayed their applications until ill health had come upon them. Why do men in good condition take such a long chance of remaining well? It is an impressive fact that out of 8549 holders of policies in a leading life insurance company who died in the past year, only 64 died of old age. The remainder were carried away by disease or accident. Hence the wisdom of insuring early in life. The best years for saving are from 20 to 40, and no man should let that period pass without taking out an insurance policy. For that part of his career an endowment policy, which is likely to mature while he is still living and can secure the proceeds of it himself, is to be preferred.

There will probably always be poor old men, their ranks will be recruited from the successful men of an earlier date, and fortunate is he who has made certain provision by means of endowment insurance in the Sun Life Assurance Company of Canada.

The Best Detective Story of the Last Ten Years

"Now, you know who says it," he informed her. "I don't have to mention any names. It's simply a question of you going to jail or sending him to jail. I don't take any stock in what he says. He can't tell me he didn't know you stole the jewels. I ain't as easy as all that! Now, I'm giving you a chance to make a full confession and save yourself. Will you confess?" His tone carried the weight of a threat, but her unresponsive mind was unable to grasp its significance. She stared blankly before her, as if her eyes were chained to some distant spot.

"Will you confess?" the Chief repeated with added menace.

As if aroused from a long abstraction, she gazed appealingly at her tormentor.

"I have nothing to confess," she murmured weakly.

The Chief drew back in studied anger. His fist banged the desk as if the blow meant to convey a sudden resolve.

"Very well!" he burst forth. "Go right ahead and be the goat if you want to. Look here, little girl, I was just kiddin' you when I said we had the principal under arrest," he said with a quick change of tactics. "Your'ra the only one that's locked up. I don't believe there's anyone else mixed up in the case at all. I believe you did the job alone. If there's anyone behind you, you'll have to show me. There's only one thief involved, and that's you."

An expression, as of a hunted animal, crept into her face. She turned to the left and met the fixed stare of Donnelly. Averting her head, her eyes looked into those of Carson. Directly in front, close to her face, the cold gleam from the Chief's eyes fell on her. So she turned around, only to look into an impenetrable background of gloom, sinister and depressing.

"I haven't done anything," she pleaded. "I don't know who took Mrs. Missioner's diamonds." As if cut by a sudden thought, Miss Holcomb bent forward in her seat. "She can't believe I did it?" she moaned.

"You bet your life she believes you did it," the Chief announced. "And I know you did it. So what's the use of denying it?"

"I do deny it, I do deny it," she protested. "How can they think me capable of it?"

The Chief opened a drawer of his desk and brought forth the accusing diamond. He held it close to her face, permitting the rays to distribute themselves on her features.

"Pretty fine stone!" he commented. "A peach of a sline! Looked good to you, didn't it? Came so easy it was a shame to take it—eh? Now how did it get mixed up with your trinkets?"

"I don't know," she moaned.

The Chief turned from her wearily.

"You take her in hand, Donnelly," he said.

The detective bent over the woman, his face so close that she felt his warm breath against her cheeks.

"Don't try any nonsense down here," he snarled. "We got the goods on you, and we ain't going to stand any fooling. Now, where are those diamonds?"

She eyed him in mild protest.

"I don't know, sir," she murmured weakly.

Donnelly shoved his clenched fist under her chin. His face contorted into an expression of tigerish ferocity; he peered at her with an intensity that chilled her blood.

"Your're a liar," he snapped. "You think you're a slick one, but you'll be sorry you was ever born if you don't cough up the goods. We know how to handle customers like you down here. We're used to 'em. We get 'em every day. Now, just save yourself a lot of trouble by telling the whereabouts of the diamonds."

"They ain't going to do you any good," interjected the Chief. "They don't wear diamonds where you're going to. The less trouble you give us, the less trouble we'll make for you. And we can make more trouble for you than you can make for us."

A look of such utter helplessness overspread her face that even the detectives realized the utter futility of their attack. She seemed as one under the influence of a torpifying drug. Her capability for new feelings had been crushed out of her by the crowded incidents following her arrest. All she felt was a dull pain of body and mind.

"Don't sit there like a white mummy," burst forth Donnelly. "Come, now," he added impatiently, "don't exhaust our patience; we haven't treated you roughly, but we know how to bring you out of your silence."

He seized her wrist, his clenched hand squeezing it until she uttered a sharp cry of pain.

"Are you going to answer my questions?" he blurted.

She sank back in the chair with a dispairing moan. Her heavy eyelids dropped, a tremor contracted her brow, then her head fell limply to one side.

"I guess we don't gain anything by going stronger with her to-day. Take her back!" commanded the Chief.

Donnelly and Carson shook her into consciousness. They steadied her as she dragged herself through the dark corridor and down two flights of narrow iron stairs to her cell.

When she was out of the room, the silent visitor came out of the obscurity of his corner and seated himself in the chair vacated by Miss Holcomb.

"What do you think of it, Britz?" asked Manning.

Detective Lieutenant Britz stared hard, as if trying to concentrate his thoughts. His keen face, screwed into an expression of uncertainty, contrasted sharply with the big heavy features of his superior. Side by side, the two men suggested the delicate surgeon's probe and the heavy blacksmith's sledge.

"It's a great mystery," Britz declared. "A great mystery," he repeated in a tone of deep conviction. "The most puzzling one that has ever come under my observation."

"Very well," the Chief drawled. "It's Donnelly and Carson's case, but you go out and solve it—you go out and get the goods."

CHAPTER VII.
Remanded to the Tombs.

Lieutenant Britz, seated at the flat-top desk of his office, peered steadily at the ceiling, as if he expected to find written there the solution of the great mystery into which he had been called. A worried expression was on his face, as if anxiety had taken possession of his soul. He became submerged in deep meditation, in which he sought to arrange in consecutive order the information gathered by Donnelly and Carson. The conviction forced itself on his mind that Miss Holcomb's arrest was based on circumstances from which more than one inference might be drawn. The fact that she knew the combination of Mrs. Missioner's safe did not mean, of course, that she took the jewels. On the surface, it looked as if hers was the exclusive opportunity to possess herself of the gems, outside of Mrs. Missioner herself. But Britz felt that the depth of the case had not been sounded; in fact, that the surface had not even been penetrated. Whether there were others who had opportunity to help themselves to the necklace, must be determined by careful investigation.

The only thread that connected Miss Holcomb with the theft was the diamond found in her room. But to Britz's experienced mind, this circumstance than guilt. For, he argued, if she had taken those jewels, she would not have been so careless as to leave one of them in her boudoir. That diamond, Britz was convinced, was placed there intentionally and with sinister purpose by a hand other than Miss Holcomb's.

Britz rose from his seat, donned his topcoat and hat, and made his way to the tier of cells one of which held Miss Holcomb. He encountered Donnelly and Carson on the way.

"What time are you going to arraign her?" he asked.

"Right now," Donnelly replied. "We got the magistrate to hold court an hour longer for us."

A turnkey swung open the iron door of the cell. The detectives found Miss Holcomb huddled in a corner, the wan light of the corridor falling on her tearbathed face.

"Don't take me back! They want to harm me! I haven't done anything!" she cried, when she saw the visitors. Britz stepped forward with an air of command and waved the other detectives back. He scraped his shoulders through the cell door and sat on the rude cot, facing the woman.

"Miss Holcomb," he said pleasantly, "there will be no further inquisition in the Chief's office, no more third-degree methods will be applied to you. It is necessary under the law to bring you before a magistrate within twenty-four hours after your arrest. Now, brace yourself, please, for the ordeal. If you are innocent, you have absolutely nothing to fear. You will have an opportunity in court of consulting with your friends and engaging a lawyer. Your interests will be protected."

Instinctively, although in the gloom of her surroundings she could make out only a dim outline of his face, she felt a confidence in the detective that braced her like a tonic.

"I have a carriage waiting for you, Miss Holcomb," Britz informed her. "It will enable you to avoid the many curious eyes in the street."

She murmured her thanks as she stepped out of the cell and followed Britz and his companions through a maze of corridors to the street. They were driven rapidly to the Jefferson Market Court and ushered into the private room of the magistrate. A crowd of reporters were already on hand for the hearing. The curious eyes aimed pitilessly at her inspired in her a terror that made her shrink behind the broad shoulders of Donnelly. The magistrate motioned her to a seat close to his desk, and said:

"Madam, it is your privilege to engage counsel. I would advise you to do so at once, for anything you say may be used against you."

"I have done nothing wrong," she murmured.

The deep lines of her face, the lusterless eyes, red from long weeping, the anguished expression of her countenance, combined to arouse a feeling of pity among the onlookers. Her features seemed instinct with candor. It was impossible to reconcile the velvet smoothness of that artless brow with the ruffle of an unworthy thought, or the faultless carving of those frank lips with the blemish of an uttered lie.

Her simple expression of innocence carried conviction to all, save, perhaps, the detectives. It was plain that her bewildered mind could not fashion clever deceits for her lips to speak. Whatever came from her mouth must be the natural outpouring of thoughts aroused spontaneously, without effort of will, without any conscious attempt at evasion or falsehood.

"You had better get a lawyer," the Magistrate urged.

As if in response to his advice, the door opened abruptly and two men entered. One was sharp-faced, gray-haired, nervous, with the unmistakable air of the lawyer. The other was a young man, his face marked with heavy lines of worry, as if he also had passed a sleepless night. At sight of him, Miss Holcomb sprang forward and threw herself in his arms.

"Oh, Lawrence!" she exclaimed. "How I have missed you!"

"Don't worry," he soothed. "Everything will turn out all right. I have engaged a lawyer for you. I believe in you implicitly."

Donnelly and Carson asked for a week in which to work up the case against the prisoner.

"We are informed that the stolen jewels are worth close to half a million. There was one big diamond in the bunch that is said to be worth a quarter of a million alone. I think she ought to be put under heavy bonds."

"On what grounds do you base your accusation of theft against this young woman?" demanded the lawyer.

Donnelly displayed the diamond he had found in her room.

"She was the only one, outside of Mrs. Missioner, who knew the combination of the safe," he said. "We found the diamond, which is one of the original stones, in her room."

"Does Mrs. Missioner charge this girl with the theft of the collarette?" asked the lawyer.

"The police make the accusation," Donnelly replied. "Mrs. Missioner is too upset to appear in court to-day."

Following the usual course, the magistrate adjourned the case for a week, and held Miss Holcomb in $50,000 bail. There being no bondsman present, she was committed to the Tombs.

"May I speak with Miss Holcomb in private a few moments?" asked the young man into whose arms she had fallen.

"Who are you?" gruffly demanded Donnelly.

"I'm Dr. Lawrence Fitch, the fiancé of Miss Holcomb."

"You can see her in the Tombs," Donnelly retorted.

Lieutenant Britz did not accompany Donnelly and Carson with their prisoner to the jail. When the court hearing was over, he returned to his office, summoned two subordinate detectives, and gave them hasty instructions. Then he sauntered slowly to the Tombs.

As the barred steel door swung open to admit Britz, Dr. Fitch crossed the stone-flagged courtyard that separates the women's wing of the prison from that of the men.

"Was it Dr. Fitch who called to see the prisoner in the Missioner diamond robbery?" he asked the doorman.

"Yes," came the prompt response.

Britz waited in the shadow of the massive gray front of the jail until the young physician came out. He observed the pallor of the doctor's cheeks, his uncertain gait, as if the turmoil of his mind had exhausted his physical energy. The detective noted, also, the clear-cut, straightforward features of the physician, the resolute aspect of his face, and the purposeful gleam of his eyes.

"Just a moment, doctor," Britz said, tapping Dr. Fitch on the shoulder.

"What can I do for you?" asked the doctor.

"I am Lieutenant Britz, of Headquarters," the detective explained. "I am in charge of the active work on this case. I want your help."

"My help?" A gleam of anxious inquiry darted from the doctor's eyes.

"You can be of great service to Miss Holcomb," Britz said.

"How?" quickly asked Dr. Fitch.

"By following my orders," flashed Britz.

"What are your orders?" asked the doctor.

"Don't try to get bail for the young woman," said Britz. "It is absolutely necessary that all suspicion be directed toward her. No effort must be made at the present time to clear her."

"What!" exclaimed Dr. Fitch. "Permit my fiancé to suffer the tortures of this prison and live under the stigma of this terrible accusation?"

PRAISE FOR CRILE.

American Doctor Has Solved Great Surgical Problem.

LONDON, July 26.—"The debt of surgery to the American Dr. Crile is a heavy one," said Sir Berkeley Moynihan, at the meeting of the British Medical Association in Brighton, in describing the wonderful methods of anaesthesia by Dr. George W. Crile of Cleveland, Ohio, by which the area of operation can be completely shut off from the brain for nearly a week if necessary.

"Chile has shown," said Sir Berkeley, "that in the condition recognized as shock definite, demonstrable changes occur in the cells of the brain which have discharged all the energy they had stored. This exhausting discharge of nervous energy is due to the excitation caused by inflicting numberless injuries, each of them small, or to the infliction of one overwhelming impression."

This Rooter Was In Wrong.

MONTGOMERY, Mo., July 26.—A baseball rooter came here from a distance to attend the St Charles-Montgomery game and by mistake he got into a hack at the depot filled with pall-bearers going to G O. Britt's funeral, and as he had crepe on his hat the pall-bearers thought he had come as a mourner and he was taken to the funeral instead of the baseball park. Finding himself in a funeral procession he woke up and escaped.

The home team won.

LAST OF SERIES WAS LIGHT LUNCH

Sterling Was Effective Against Berliners While Petes Found Bramble Easy---Score Was 10-1

With Bob Sterling in his real form and the Petes hitting the ball, it was an easy matter to take the last of the series with the Dutchmen. The score was 10—1 and the visitors were lucky to get near the pan. A sharp single by White in the second went for three bases and scored McEvoy as Fox allowed the ball to go through.

The Petes are in London to-day battling with the leaders. Brantford with almost a new team will be here for Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

FIRST INNINGS.

Berlin—Burns fanned, Dinsmore flew out to Swartz and Trout threw out Sweeney.—No runs.

Peterborough — Brant skied to Beltz, Rowan went out to Sweeney and the preacher threw out Trout.

SECOND INNINGS.

Berlin—McEvoy singled and scored when Fox allowed White's grass cutter to go through. White was held at third as the next three were easy.—One run.

Peterborough — Hilliard grounded, Swartz doubled, McNeal fanned and Fox flew to centre.—No runs.

THIRD INNINGS.

Berlin—Bramble doubled, Burns fanned, Dinsmore flew out and Sweeney grounded.—No runs.

Peterborough — Thompson missed three, Sterling grounded and Brant lined to Sweeney.—No runs.

FOURTH INNINGS.

Berlin—McEvoy doubled and was sacrificed by White. Beltz failed to work in a squeeze and McEvoy was caught at the plate. Beltz walked and was out stealing second. — No runs.

Peterborough — Rowan grounded out, but Trout, Hilliard, Swartz, McNeal and Fox singled in a row for three runs. Thompson fanned and Sterling was out at first.—Three runs.

FIFTH INNINGS.

Berlin—Getsie grounded out and Stroh singled to left. Bramble singled down first base and Burns flew out to Fox. Dinsmore grounded to the pitcher.—No runs.

Peterborough—With Brant gone and Rowan safe on Dinsmore's error; Trout tripled to right, scoring Rowan. Hilliard fanned and Swartz grounded to Dinsmore.—One run.

SIXTH INNINGS.

Berlin—Sweeney skied to Trout, and Brant threw out McEvoy and White.—No runs.

Peterborough—McNeal doubled to left and Fox walked. The runners advanced on Thompson's out and and while Sterling fanned, Brant scored both with his triple. Rowan walked and Brant was caught between third and home.—Two runs.

SEVENTH INNINGS.

Berlin—Trout threw out Beltz and Rowan took Getsie's foul. Bramble walked and Burns was retired on a grounder to Sterling.—No runs.

Peterborough — Trout flew to Burns, Hilliard singled, but Swartz and McNeal grounded out.—No runs.

EIGHTH INNINGS.

Berlin—Dinsmore singled, Sweeney fouled to Thompson—a nice catch—McEvoy forced sweeney at second and White flew to Hilliard. — No runs.

Peterborough—Fox went out to Sweeney, but Thompson walked and was hit to second by Sterling. He took third on a wild pitch and scored on Brant's single to centre. Sterling romped home on Rowan's single. Trout grounded and when Hilliard popped, Trout and Rowan raced home as Bramble muffed the ball. Swartz flied to centre.—Four runs.

NINTH INNINGS.

Berlin—Rowan took a foul from Beltz, and Getsie singled. Stroh flied to Swartz and Bramble fanned.—No runs.

FIRST GAME A TIE

Nomads and C.G.E. Teams Each Scored Three Goals

The Nomads and C.G.E. elevens put up a pretty battle at Riverside Park Saturday evening, in the first game of the semi-finals of the Midland Football League. The final score was 3—3, and it was only in the last minute of play that the Electric boys got the ball past the Nomads' posts for the goal that tied the score. The count at half time was 2—2.

It was an exhibition of excellent football throughout, and the second game, which will be played this week, should attract a bumper crowd.

The winner will play the Pickering club in a home and home series for the championship.

UNITED STATES TEAM WON LAWN TENNIS TROPHY

Took Three Out of Five Matches ---Dixon Defeated

Canadian Press Despatch.

WIMBLEDON, ENG., July 27.—The Davis international lawn tennis trophy was won this morning by the United States Tennis team, which only needed to-day's victory to give it three matches out of five, while the English team has won only one. Maurice McLaughlin, of San Francisco, to-day defeated the veteran, Charles B. Dixon, three straight sets, eight to six, six to three, and six to two.

He Claimed the Decision.

"Liar!" shouted one of the combatants.

It was the fighting word, and the friends of both parties drew aside to enjoy the fray. But the insulted person didn't play up.

"I refuse to fight with you," he announced, folding his arms with a gesture of supreme dignity.

"Then you are a coward!" shrieked the other, dancing around on one toe, or two at the outside.

"You think I am?"

"I know you are!"

"Have you always known it?"

"I knew it right along."

"I thought so. Then you called me a liar knowing that I was a coward? I leave it to the crowd, now—was that a decent thing to do? The man who challenges a coward to fight is the bigger coward of the two. I claim the decision on points!"—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

DRAFTING ROOM HAD TO COME FROM BEHIND TO WIN LEAGUE HONORS

Defeated the Bankers by 7-6 Score—Machinists Defeated Canoe Builders

By handing the Bankers a nice snappy defeat on Saturday afternoon at Nicholls Oval, the Drafting Room won the Mercantile Baseball League. A large crowd of fans and fanettes saw the game and certainly were well pleased with the class of ball that was exhibited.

The Bankers were strengthened by having Huycke and Hill as a battery so when the Draftsmen defeated this battery and the remaining Bankers team it is needless to say that that they demonstrated their superiority over all the other teams in the league. Huycke pitched fine ball and several times when errors put him in the hole, he steadied down and in all but one innings had the money men in check.

The opening stanzas were very fast, both Huycke and Smith pitching fine ball, but in the third frame the Bankers started to hit and when men were on second and third, Carson lined one over short stop to Cranfield. Cranfield either too anxious or over confident, threw the ball about ten feet over Turner, the catcher's head, and when the noise had settled down three runs had come in.

Again in the fourth round the Bankers got to Smith a little and two more were added, making it 5—0, but in the Draftsmen's half of the same spasm they had their usual "batting rally" and put the old game on ice. "Jo Jo" Henderson started the fracas by getting a single, the next man up, Cranfield, was safe on an error and when Carson dropped a fly, after a hard run, these two scored and the runner went to second. Two safe hits scored him, and then with a man on third and a man on second, Smith won his own game. Huycke grooved one to him and he smashed it out toward right field. Carson misjudged the ball and it rolled passed him into the road, when he got to it, Smith was rounding second, and without looking where he was throwing, he heaved it toward the diamond. The branches of an overhanging tree happened to be between "Cobie" and the infield and the ball glanced off these about fifty feet in another direction. When he finally got the ball Smith was home and the Drafting Room were ahead 6—5. Huycke settled down and for the remainder of that innings and all the next he handed out nothing but strike-outs.

In the seventh the Drafting Room annexed another and there was a possibility of more if it hadn't been for Minorgan's spectacular stab. The golden haired short stop had played grand ball all through and he received a big reception when he pulled down the drive in the "lucky seventh."

The Bankers got another run in the seventh when Huycke made a three bagger and was sacrificed home, but no more scoring was forth-coming for both Huycke and Smith were going fine. The score remained 7—6 till the curtain dropped. The teams:

Umpire—T. Darke.

MACHINISTS WON.

The only other game in the Mercantile League was between the Machine Shop and Canoe Builders, and, as usual, the Canoe Builders came out last. Jack Mahoney was on the firing line for the C.G.E. brigade and had too much up his sleeve for the wood carvers. The game was called in the seventh and the score stood 24—6.

The game was without any features, yet a few nice plays were made. English on second for the Canoe Builders, pulled down a few wild throws while Ferguson, who played right field for the last two innings, caught a hard fly.

Score by innings:

Machine Shop ... 8 3 0 3 3 1 6—24
Canoe Builders ... 0 3 0 0 3 0 0— 6

The teams:

Canoe Builders—Andrews c; Dummitt lf; Neary cf and p; Dunsford 3b; Ferguson p and cf; Corin ss; English 2b; Loucks 1b; Picard rf.

Machine Shop — Callaghan 2b; Barrie ss; Kenneally cf and c; Dwyer rf; Heenan 3b; O'Hern c and cf; Breckenridge 1b; Pilling lf; Mahoney p.

Umpire — Morphet.

The Drafting Room accept the M.A.P. challenge and would like the challengers to fix a date for the game.

The Mercantile League is over for the present season.

Jack Pilling raised a kick in the last innings against Neary's delivery and the score 24-6.

Tommy Moffat is taking a picked team to Orillia next Saturday and he hasn't a Banker, a Quaker, a Canoe Builder or a Brinton on the line up.

"Big Noise" Cranfield struck out four times yesterday and also had a wild throw. He must have had an off day.

Minorgan worked the "hidden ball trick" and Cranfield was coaching.

CRIME AND PENALTY

When Mrs. Wiffles recently meted out punishment to Master George Wiffles with a carpet beater that young gentleman gave vent to such weeping and wailing that the lady next door was constrained to perk her head over the back yard fence and inquire what was the matter.

"Got about a couple o' 'undred feet o' gas inside him—that's wot's the matter," Mrs. Wiffles replied.

"Couple o' 'undred feet o' gas!" echoed the lady somewhat incredulously. "Wot on earth's 'e been doin'—takin' the gas pipe for a feedin' bottle?"

"No, 'e ain't," snapped Mrs. Wiffles. "'E's been swallerin' the quarter wot I laid by for the gas meter."—Exchange.

DOING IT IN THE RIGHT WAY

We are certainly making progress. Sure as you live. Evidences of it on every hand. Tubular trolley poles, three horse water waggon, new red coat of paint for the red buggy of the fire chief, and lots of other things. Also the ball team stands a few chances of winning a pennant. All this is evidence. Mind you, not evidence that would stand cross-examination, but just evidence.

And here's another. In the past it has been the fashion and form for whoever liked, to dig trenches, holes and cavities in the streets; insert pipes and heave in as much of the excavated material as conscience allowed, pile a collection of rocks on top and leave the structure to the mercy of vehicles; also trusting to the traffic to pound down the protuberance. It remained an eye-sore and a buggy-sore for seasons. Remonstrance, expostulation and even profanity produced no results for betterment. That has been the fashion, sanctioned by long usage, a sort of unwritten law, and a poor one at that.

So now, people are making remarks on the way the work going on for the Light and Power Company, along the east side of George street is being done. The remarks are wholly favorable and deserved. The contractor understands his business, and makes others understand as well. The trench is out of minimum width. The material taken out neatly and closely piled. When put back, it is wet and pounded in real hard with a good honest punch that settles it down.

All of the material, except large stones goes back into the trench and the street surface, in a week, will not show the scar.

That is the way it should be done as it can, and it is so remarkable that it is worth while commending.

In fact, it is done pretty nearly as well as if it was in charge of Billy Lytle, and that is about all it is necessary to say.

HAVING A GOOD TIME

The Grand Trunk Passenger Department are in receipt of a letter from a prominent Boston traveller, who visited Algonquin Park recently. He says:—

"We are enjoying our stay very much at the Highland Inn, Algonquin Park, and can only offer our heartiest congratulations on the efficient manner in which everything is managed here; in fact, my wife takes to it so well, she is planning to remain some time after I leave."

GETTING WATER DRILLING WELLS

The old-fashioned dug and stoned well will presently be a thing of the past. The modern way is to drill or pound a narrow, but exceedingly deep hole in the earth, line the pipe with an iron pipe and bring water to the surface, a most sanitary and safe well.

Out in Dummer township many wells are being driven and Messrs. J. J. Crowe and W. Patten are making a success of the work, and getting a large and varied experience. Mr. E. Bickell, who farms near Warsaw, has just acquired a well that is a regular Geyser, spouting a steady stream to a height of twelve feet. So far he has not been able to control it, and purposes to call in some expert water extinguisher to get the thing under control. The well is the first of its kind in this part of the country. Others that have been driven have had to be coaxed and pumped to give up the fluid, but Mr. Bickell's well is in a class by itself.

AN OPTICAL TALK

Nothing is more surprising than the change which has come over the public with regard to Sight Testing. Ten years ago it was a matter of difficulty to overcome the reluctance which they manifested to the scientific examination of their eyes. They never had been tested and didn't see why they should be now.

To-day however, matters are entirely changed, those people who come for the special purpose of having their eyes examined far out-number those who come asking for Spectacles, and this I take as a compliment, proving as it does, that we should not supply glasses unless they would be of real benefit. It may surprise you to learn that many hundreds of people have been refused spectacles by us, either because their eyes were not in need of them, or, more generally, because they had allowed them to get into such a serious condition that medical aid had become necessary.

It has been my rule for ten years never to supply glasses where an examination proves the advice of a Physician is required. You cannot afford to take chances with your eyes.

We manufacture all our lenses from "PEBLO" quality glass, the finest quality known to the science. We have the exclusive agency for this quality glass.

All work positively guaranteed.

CAPTAIN SCOTT IN THE LONG ANTARTIC TWILIGHT

Second Part of Scott's Diary Written in Hut—A Tale of Heroic Patience and Endurance

"No civilized being has ever encountered such conditions before with only a tent of thin canvas to rely on for shelter. We have been looking up the records to-day and we find that Amundsen, on a journey to the North Pole encountered temperatures similar in degree but he was with Eskimos who built him an igloo to shelter in nightly. To me and to everyone who has remained here the result of this effort is the appeal it makes to our imaginations as one of the most gallant stories in polar history. That men should wander forth in the depth of a polar night to face the most dismal cold and the fiercest gales in darkness is something new—that they should have persisted in this effort in spite of every adversity for full five weeks is heroic! It makes a tale for our generation which I hope may not be lost in the telling."

The above is taken from Captain Scott's diary, the second part of which is published for the first time to the world in "Everybody's Magazine" for August. It was written in the midst of the Antarctic silences, in the long silver twilight of the polar day.

"Hereafter will come only the long wild twilight which like a silver clasp unites to-day and yesterday when morning and evening sit together hand in hand beneath the starless sky at midnight."

He pens a noble tribute to his men, which is rendered all the more beautiful when we think of the tragic close of the ill-fated expedition:

"There is not a single man who is not striving his utmost to get good results in his own particular department."

"I am very much impressed with the extraordinary and general cordiality of the relations which exist amongst our people," he writes at another time. "I do not suppose that a statement of the real truth namely that there is no friction at all, will be credited—it is so generally thought that the minor rubs of such a life as this are quietly and purposely sunk in oblivion.

"With me there is no need to draw a veil; there is nothing to cover. There are no strained relations in this hut."

And it is then that he writes:

"If the southern journey comes off nothing—not even priority at the pole—can prevent the expedition ranking as one of the most important that ever entered the polar regions.

"Never, I suppose, has a party combined so much of intellectual power with physical fitness, and the result was apparent in the high level of mutual appreciation, of intelligent co-operation and wise enthusiasts."

ATTACK ON FREDERICK II. OF BADEN REVIVES A QUEER STORY

The Grand Duke Who Was So Nearly Assassinated Recently Is One of a Line of Princes Who Lie Under a Curse Given by a Woman—Disaster Has Come to Several Before Him.

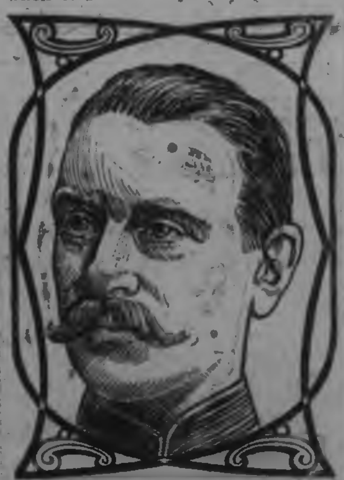
The attempted assassination of Frederick II., Grand Duke of Baden, by an Anarchist on Sunday, recalls one of the strangest tales of European court romances which has ever been told.

Baden has been considered one of the most progressive and democratic duchies, the home of the finest type of German. But to mention Kaspar Hauser's name within hearing of the police is to invite trouble and the story has shrunk into dark corners for telling.

Margrave Charles Frederick became Duke of Baden with the sanction of Napoleon in 1806. He died in 1811. After the death of his first wife, by whom he had five children, he contracted a morganic marriage with Mlle Geyer and had six more children. His oldest son was killed in an accident, and he left a son named Charles, who was married at the demand of the Emperor Napoleon to Stephanie de Beauharnais, niece of Empress Josephine.



FREDERICK II., GRAND DUKE OF BADEN.

Four years later Charles became Duke of Baden, and Stephanie became grand duchess. She bore five children, two sons and three girls. One of the sons died of convulsions when less than a year old, and the other disappeared in infancy. It was thought he had been kidnapped by agents of Mlle. Geyer, who wanted to secure the right of succession to the throne for her children.

Twenty years later a young man appeared at the gates of Nuremberg who could not talk and could not read or write. He was educated and later he made them understand he had always been kept in a dark room and had never seen anyone. The English Earl of Stanhope thought he might be Stephanie's missing son and obtained proof. In the meantime Mlle. Geyer's son, Baron Leopold, had been elevated to the throne. He was the grandfather of the present duke.

Stephanie was to meet Kaspar Hauser, the name given to the man thought to be her son, with the Earl of Stanhope, when the boy was dirked to death.

The Grand Duke Leopold ruled Baden for years, but under his administration the progressive duchy, in a riot of democracy, was guilty of excesses which drove many of its citizens to America. Grand Duke Frederick, father of the present duke, was, however, one of the sturdy paladins of the war of 1870, and it was he who welded all Germany into the empire under William I.

The present duke succeeded to the throne in 1907 and married a sister of the reigning Duke of Luxembourg. They have no children. The heir apparent to the throne is his cousin, Prince Maximilian.

Stephanie, who cursed the line of succession because of what befell Kaspar Hauser, died sixty years ago. Anybody in Baden will readily testify to the working of her curse. Leopold, first of the new line, had a reign darkened by rebellion and bloodshed, while his domestic relations were clouded by the insanity of his eldest son. This son became duke, but soon had to be deposed. Grand Duke Frederick succeeded him. One of his sons died of fever and the other is the present Grand Duke.

Hard Luck!

This is a hard world. Four years ago the advertisement appeared in The London Times of a gentleman who, commenting on the fact that millionaires often complain of the responsibilities of wealth, asked one to present him with one million sterling in order that the fallacy of "the burden of wealth" may be proved, undertaking, if allowed "sole and unhampered control of the money," to keep a record of his investments, etc., in order to show his business capability. No kind millionaire having come along, the advertiser repeats his request, which must surely be the coolest on record, and promises to repay the capital at the end of two years. Perhaps some enterprising magnate on the "other side" will oblige.

SIRES AND SONS.

Rear Admiral Robert E. Peary has been made a grand officer of the Legion of Honor of France by President Raymond Poincaire.

Professor Yves Delage, the leading worker in France on the problem of the origin of life and the contributor of sensational experiments in artificial fertilization of the eggs of sea urchins, has become blind.

Sir Aemilius Irving, treasurer of the Upper Canada Law society, is now in his ninetieth year and despite his great age has been at the society's quarters practically every day since he was first elected in 1893.

Masaharu Anesaki, who will be the first incumbent of the chair of Japanese language and literature recently established at Harvard, is at present teaching in the college of literature in the Imperial university. He will enter on his new duties in September.

W. F. Passett, who has done more than any other man to make dahlia growing one of New Jersey's most extensive and profitable crops, has been raising this flower for more than seventy years. He is now eighty-eight and as president of the Association of Hammonton Dahlia Growers ably directs the affairs of the organization.

Raouf Bey, commander of the Turkish warship Hamidieh, which sank six Greek ships besides doing great damage to island and coast fortifications during the height of the Balkan war, is only twenty-six years old, speaks English perfectly and is said to be more American than Turkish in his ideas. He has visited America several times to study naval tactics.

Legal Quips.

Wisconsin has a law prohibiting gossip. But is there a man in Wisconsin who can tell what gossip is?—Cleveland Leader.

The New Jersey anti-hatpin law gives half the fine to the complainant. That doesn't help the married man any, but it affords an opportunity for impecunious and chronic bachelors.—Cleveland Leader.

WASN'T GOING INTO DETAILS.

Youngster Felt He'd Said All That Was Absolutely Necessary.

One little four-year-old boy who doesn't live far from Central Park West, New York, has as his particular playmate a little girl of about the same age. The children frequently spend their evenings together, and the other morning the girl came to the fence and called him.

"Alton," she cried, "come on out an' play."

Alton's mother heard the call and said to him:

"Tell her you can't come over just now because you have to take a bath."

So Alton went to the front window.

"Elizabeth," he called, "I can't come over now."

Then he turned back to his mother and added:

"I don't fink the rest of it need be saided."—Fun.

SISTER OF MR. J. T. C. LANG KILLED WHEN ENGINE STRUCK AUTOMOBILE

Mr. J. T. C. Lang, appraiser at the local Customs House, is in Bailieboro to-day on a sad errand.

His only sister, Mrs. Joseph Perrin, a highly esteemed resident of Bailieboro, was killed at Cobourg on Sunday, when an auto in which she and several friends were riding, was struck by a shunting engine.

There were five people in the car at the time, namely, Mrs. Perrin, Mrs. William Kerr, Mrs. George Brown, Mr. and Mrs. Dawson, and their young son.

They had motored from Bailieboro to visit relatives and friends in Cobourg, and had just arrived in the town when the accident happened. This was between three and four o'clock in the afternoon.

The engine, running from the ferry docks, emerged suddenly from behind the car shops between the ferry dock and the station and struck the automobile broadside, throwing the five occupants out. The car shops obstruct the view from the direction in which the auto was approaching the crossing, and the survivors of the accident maintain that the engine's whistle was not blown. Mr. and Mrs. Dawson escaped injury. Mrs. Perrin, the woman who was killed, was Mrs. Dawson's mother, and Mrs. Brown was Mrs. Perrin's sister-inlaw. Mrs. Kerr, is the wife of William Kerr, a machinist in the Crossen Car Works at Cobourg. She sustained two broken ribs, and it is feared may be injured internally. She was taken to the hospital.

Mrs. Brown's injuries comprise minor bruises and shock. Serious results are not looked for.

When the party started out from Bailieboro Mrs. Perrin sat in the centre of the back seat between Mrs. Keer and Mrs. Brown, but on the road they shifted positions, and she took an outside seat.

The automobile was badly wrecked, but was moved under its own power.

CAMPBELL SENTENCED SIX MONTHS IN CENTRAL

He Has Spent Much of His Time Since 1904 Behind Prison Walls

Six months in Central Prison was the sentence meted out by Judge Huycke this morning to John Campbell, a convicted forger. He forged a cheque on the Canadian Bank of Commerce for $7.50 and cashed it at the Kingan Hardware.

The prisoner received his sentence lightly, and from his demeanour, appeared to be thankful to get off so easy.

Campbell alias Coulter, alias O'Brien, was given a preliminary hearing a week ago, before Magistrate Dumble, at which he pleaded "not guilty" and was sent up for trial. After having a taste of jail life for a few days, he changed his plea to "guilty."

Campbell first made his appearance here when he appeared in police court on the charge of being drunk. Then came the above charge of forgery as a result of investigation pursued at the instigation of Police Chief Thompson.

HIS RECORD.

Dec. 28, 1904—Theft, 30 days in jail.

Dec. 28, 1905—Fraud, 4 months in Central Prison.

Jan. 17, 1907—Fraud, 3 months in Central Prison.

March 12, 1907—Fraud, remanded.

July 2, 1907—Forgery, 5 years in Kingston, Sentenced at Woodstock

Nov. 12, 1911—Forgery, 6 months in Central Prison.

May 13, 1912—False pretences, 3 months in Central on each of three charges.

RURAL MAIL FOR SOUTH MONAGHAN AND BAILIEBORO

Mr. J. H. Burnham M. P., has been notified by the Post Office Department that the Bailieboro and South Monaghan rural mail routes will be in operation by the middle of August.

The contract for the Bailieboro route for which tenders have been asked, has been awarded to Mr. Hector Jewison.

HELPED TO MAKE PICNIC A SUCCESS

Mention should have been made in the report of the Park Street Baptist Church and Sunday School picnic on Friday, of the good work by the committees.

Great credit for the success of the picnic was in no small sense due to the different committees in charge who did their work well. Messrs O. S. Matchett and W. Moore were the committee of management; Messrs. Geo. Whatley, J. H. Haw, Percy Hill, J. Lemon and Thomas Marks were in charge of the confectionery, and ice cream booth, which was handled most successfully. This committee wishes to thank the ladies and the boys who assisted them.

The Church and Sunday School extends a most cordial invitation to each and every one not attending any other Church, to attend every Sunday morning, afternoon and evening.

HAD FINE TRIP TO THE ISLANDS

Big Crowd Took in St. James' Church Excursion

The excursion of St. James' church to the Thousand Islands was a splendid success, the train and steamer accommodation being all that could be desired. There were 438 excursionists, which is a record for this trip from Peterborough. On arrival at Kingston the excursionists took the steamer America and went to Alexandria Bay and return. Ideal weather and the beautiful scenery made this part of the trip most enjoyable.

Mr. Jas. Skinner, local C.P.R. ticket agent, accompanied the excursionists. They returned home at one o'clock Sunday morning.

Knox Church Notices

Young People's Guild will meet to-night at 7 o'clock instead of 8, on the church lawn, where a photo will be taken of the gathering.

The mid-week service will be held evening at 8 o'clock.

The craddle roll pic-nic will be held at Jackson Park on Saturday afternoon.

Band Practice

There will be a practice of the 57th band this evening.

WAS STRICKEN SUDDENLY

Rupture of Artery, the Cause of George Adlam's Death

The remains of the late George Adlam, who passed away at Rochester, Thursday evening, arrived in the city last night, and the funeral took place this morning at eleven o'clock, from the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Adlam, 516 Sherbrooke street, to the Little Lake cemetery.

Mr. Fred Adlam went to Rochester and brought the body here.

Further particulars are to the effect that the late Mr. Adlam, who was employed by the Gibson Drug Co, was fatally stricken as he was about to open the door of the store and leave at six o'clock. An autopsy held later showed that death was due to a rupture of one of the main arteries of the heart.

He was thirty-nine years of age, and had been in Rochester for seven years.

OBITUARY

Russell Williamson

Many friends express sympathy with Mr. and Mrs. Williamson, of the 7th Line of Cavan, on the death of their only son, Russell, which occurred on Saturday morning, 26th inst., after an illness of three weeks, at the age of six years. The little fellow was a general favorite, and his death removes a most promising young life.

The Late Mrs. Waldon

The death occurred on Saturday of Mrs. H. Waldron of Gore's Landing, after a severe illness of about three months. A husband and seven children survive. The deceased lady was formerly Miss Mary Bates of Peterborough, and has many friends here, who will regret to learn of her death. She was a sister of Mr. F. W. Bates of 654 Stewart street. The funeral takes place at Gore's Landing on this (Monday) afternoon.

INDIAN TEA CROP DAMAGE

Serious floods in South Sylhet and Cachar have affected tea prospects in both districts.

The output from many gardens is very much behind hand, and the reports of the damage done by hail are now amply confirmed. In some districts the bushes are absolutely riddled and the loss is stated to be so heavy as to preclude the possibility of making it up to the normal output. Unfortunately, too, it is the fine tea gardens which have suffered most.

This misfortune will tend toward raising the price of all tea.

FLORISTS OF TORONTO ARE COMING

Big Excursion to Visit City on August 6

CONVENTION TOO

Canadian Horticulturists Over 100 Strong to Meet Here

On Wednesday, Aug. 6, the Florists' Club of Toronto will invade the city with a big excursion and delegates to the annual convention of the Canadian Horticultural Association will also arrive in the city, to attend the two days session.

One hundred or more delegates are expected. They will come from cities lying between the two coasts.

Preparations are being made to give the visitors a good time and part of the entertainment will be a trip to the lakes. A number of the Florists' Club will also take in this trip, provision being made for their early return to the city. The convention delegates will remain at the lakes and enjoy a midnight return trip by way of the canal and lift lock. On Thursday, the convention will be in session and that night the delegates will be entertained to a trip down the river.

At St. Pauls

Rev. Dr. Moir, of Markham, occupied the pulpit in St. Paul's church yesterday and delivered two splendid sermons. Rev. Dr. Moir is a brother of Dr. A. Moir, 196 Brock street.

Mrs. Logan presided at the organ in the absence of Mr. John Allan.

The steamer Esturion will leave George st. wharf at 1.30, St. Railway wharf at 2 p.m. on Tuesday, July 29th, for Jubilee Point. Fare 40c. Supper served on board. Hot water supplied. Trent Valley Nav. Co. N. C. Hatton, Mgr.

STORM LOSS VERY HEAVY

Damage Reported From Several Ontario Points.

BARNS BURNED

Niagara Fruit Belt Suffers From Bad Storm.

WINDSOR, July 29.—Sunday's storm burned out thirty-five telephones in Windsor and caused other damage in the city, totalling heavy loss. While the telephone service was badly hindered yesterday morning, gangs of men were put to work immediately and last night practically all connections had been made and the customary service resumed.

Throughout the country reports of buildings being unroofed, crops flooded by wash-outs, and the like were brought to Windsor yesterday. In Colchester, it is said, crops suffered worse than in any other part of the county. Orchards heavily laden with fruit suffered heavy loss. Hundreds of bushels of early peaches and apples were blown from the trees.

Large Barn Near Virgil Struck.

ST. CATHARINES, July 29.—Lightning yesterday morning struck a large frame barn near Virgil, on the farm of John Hennegan, which was completely destroyed with a large quantity of hay and grain.

Hay, Hogs and Implements Go.

WELLAND, July 29.—Early yesterday morning a barn owned by Wm. Smith, one mile east of Cook's Mills, Crowland Township, was struck by lightning and burned with its contents, consisting of a quantity of hay, some implements and other materials. Four hogs were burned.

Wire Services Interrupted.

LINDSAY, July 29.—The worst storm in years passed clean around and over this town Sunday night. The electric light and 'phone system were demolished and one house struck.

Barns Struck By Lightning

BEAVERTON, July 29.—A severe electrical storm swept through this part of the country yesterday afternoon, lasting from four until nine o'clock. The barns of R. K. Gunn of the Dunrobin stock farm and of the Misses Jardine were struck by lightning and burned. The losses are partly covered by insurance.

URGE AN INQUIRY

British Shareholders of Union Life Want Thorough Probe Made.

LONDON, July 29.—(C.A.P. Cable.) At a meeting of the British shareholders of the Union Life Assurance Co. held yesterday at the Hotel Cecil, A. M. DeBrok presiding, the chairman said the committee had earnestly tried to bring about reconstruction, but without success. He criticized several members of the London advisory board and condemned the administration of the company, both here and in Toronto. The directors, he said, had only 250 pounds invested in the company, and the National Agency Co., which guaranteed the dividend for three years, had not enough money of its own to pay a dividend for six months. He outlined the steps which had been taken through Canadian solicitors to prevent the National Agency Co. from parting with its assets, and said that at the time Pollman Evans and other directors collected $60,000 from British shareholders, investments were such that the insurance Department of the Dominion made representations regarding their doubtful value. Efforts were being made to get the Finance Minister of the Dominion to investigate thoroughly the company's affairs, and to punish those to whom punishment was due.

President Wilson Cannot Forgive Murder—Ambassador Wilson Has Talked Too Much.

WASHINGTON, July 29—Important developments in the Mexican situation are expected shortly. At the very moment when a crisis appears to be approaching in the relations between Mexico and the United States an adjustment of conditions that may lead in the end to the establishment of peace in the republic south of the Rio Grande may be in sight. Opinion was prevalent in well informed quarters yesterday that to relieve the situation President Huerta must resign his office and permit the installation of a provisional Government which the United States would see its way clear to recognize. It is believed efforts to create a sentiment along this line are in progress.

President Wilson will not recognize the de facto Government of Mexico under present conditions as long as Huerta remains at its head. His whole attitude has shown that, and it is reported that he emphasized his determination in that particular at a conference yesterday afternoon with Henry Lane Wilson, the American ambassador to Mexico. In the President's opinion, it was said, the assassination of President Madero brings a moral element into the situation that operates against Huerta's recognition.

The ambassador wants Huerta recognized on certain conditions, which he laid before President Wilson in a prepared statement yesterday.

It provided for a recognition of Huerta and the enforcement to the letter of the neutrality laws, making it impossible for the rebels and federal troops, but particularly the rebels, to obtain any arms and ammunition in the United States.

The plans provided for the co-operation of the army and navy, the navy to blockade both coasts of Mexico and the army to chain guard the border between the United States and Mexico. President Wilson has not been impressed with the report Ambassador Wilson made, and it does not correspond, except in few instances, with the reports the President had received from William Bayard Hale, the magazine writer, whom the President sent to Mexico to make a special investigation, and the report submitted to Secretary of State Bryan by Reginald H. Del Valle, the Californian, sent to Mexico by Mr. Bryan.

There was one feature of Ambassador Wilson's report which stood out and compared favorably with the reports made by Mr. Hale and Mr. Del Valle. It was said that Huerta's strength in Mexico is greater than has been supposed here in Washington. It became known late yesterday afternoon that there was some doubt about Ambassador Wilson returning to Mexico.

Last night it was learned on high authority that he would not return.

President Wilson and Secretary of State Bryan are incensed at the conduct of Mr. Wilson since his arrival in the United States. "He has talked too much" is the view taken by many officials of the administration.

Worse is the belief that much of the talking done by the ambassador was for the purpose of embarrassing the administration, or, in the event he was not sent back, he would have a fair excuse to make an outcry and possibly have a club which he could use politically.

The interviews he gave out have resulted in all administration officials regarding him with more or less suspicion. Almost every member of the administration believes Ambassador Wilson has used his official position to aid the cause of Huerta.

It is because of this atmosphere around Ambassador Wilson that his proposal for solving the troubles in Mexico is not regarded highly by administration officials, and which, for the same reason, will receive little or no consideration at the hands of the administration.

First Naval Battle.

POINT ISABEL, Texas, July 29.—A Mexican federal gunboat was reported to have fired on Constitutionalists at the mouth of the Rio Grande yesterday morning. Constitutionalists hold Matamoras, 20 miles up the river opposite Brownville, Texas. This was the first reported naval activity in the Rio Grande in any of the recent Mexican revolutions.

KING AND QUEEN COMING TO CANADA

May Visit Washington and New York

LONDON, July 29.—The Pall Mall Gazette says that Canada is the next British Dominion to be visited by their Majesties, and that they will cross the border and pay a brief visit to Washington and New York.

Brockville Crossings Inspected.

BROCKVILLE, July 29.—Two members of the Board of Railway Commissioners came to Brockville to personally view dangerous crossings on the line of the G. T. R. west of here, for which a subway is agitated. They also visited the C. N. R. trestle and enquired about the standardisation of the road. Crossing conditions prevailing in Brockville were looked into before leaving town.

HEAT KILLS AT MONTREAL

Four Deaths and Many Prostrations.

MONTREAL, July 29.—Intense humidity which hung over the city yesterday took a toll of four deaths from the heat while the prostrations were many. The four dead are William T. Shannon, a middle-aged man; Herbert Pendlebury, 50 years of age; Anna Elizebel, and Charles Rogers.

At noon yesterday the thermometers down town registered close to 90.

Mine Situation Grave.

JOHANNESBURG, July 29.—The mine situation here again has become grave. There is a danger of a general strike throughout South Africa, the miners being completely dissatisfied with the concessions offered them by the mine owners and the Government. It is feared now that a settlement of the trouble is impossible.

Raises In Civil Service.

OTTAWA, July 29.—Four hundred employes of the printing bureau have been granted wage increases by Hon. Louis Codierre, Secretary of State. Compositors, bookbinders and stereotypers will draw $20 per week; pressmen $21, and press feeders $15. The employes are also paid for all public holidays.

YACHT MYSTERY

Found on Lake Under Full Sail Without a Soul on Board.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, July 29.—The "Ripple," a twenty-foot sloop rigged racing yacht was picked up in Lake Erie, sixteen miles northeast of Cleveland, early yesterday morning by fishermen. All the sails were set, there was no one on board the boat. The craft is not known here. All ropes were neatly coiled, so the "Ripple" could not have broken loose from moorings. Her main sheet was made fast in a manner which necessitated sailing close to the wind. An old grey sweater, a water-soaked package of provisions, and two empty bottles were all that was aboard. The sole clew as to where the yacht came from was a small brass plate bearing the name of the craft builders, the Weir Boat Co., Hamilton, Ontario.

On the peak of the mainsail was painted the number 12 in large red numerals. This led to the belief that the Ripple was one of the racing yachts in the Put-In-Bay regatta, but no boats are reported missing from there. The number, too, was an old one. The wind for the past two days has been from the south. Fishermen believe the yacht came from Erie or possibly Buffalo.

I. C. R. Reducing Staff.

MONCTON, July 29.—Six more brakemen and three conductors of the Intercolonial Railway received notice yesterday. The brakemen were sent home, which means that they were practically dismissed, while Conductors Daniels, Sullivan, James Melanson and John Cochrane were sent back to braking, while more are to follow.

The railway men are very indignant and something, they say, is going to happen in a few days.

An unconfirmed report is being circulated to the effect that 30 firemen will be laid off and 10 engineers will be put back to firing again.

Turkey Would Negotiate.

LONDON, July 29.—Beyond a report from Sofia that Turkey has expressed readiness to open peace negotiations with Bulgaria, there were no fresh developments in the Balkan situation to-day. The Porte has despatched Osman Nisami Pasha, Minister of Public Works, to London on a special mission, the object of which is not known.

It is officially announced from Bucharest that the advance guard of the Roumanian army has halted close to Sofia on the east.

Gold production of the Yukon in 1911-12 was $4,024,236, showing a decrease of $2,590 from the amount for 1910-11.

WANTS MOIR FREED

Bond of $5000 Offered For His Good Behaviour.

LONDON, Ont., July 29.—Application has been made to Hon. C. J. Doherty, Minister of Justice, for the release from the Central Prison, Toronto, of Private William A. Moir, who is serving a life sentence there for the murder at Wolseley Barracks on the night of Good Friday, April 17, 1908, of Col.-Sergt. Lloyd. Mr. Lawrence, although not personally acquainted with Moir, had been informed that the man is now in a normal state of mind, and that he is filled with the resolve to be of good behavior in the future. In view of this fact Mr. Lawrence offers to enter into a bond for $5,000 for the conduct of Moir during the remainder of his lifetime if he is released.

Moir returned to the barracks here on the night mentioned and when reprimanded for being under the influence of liquor shot and killed Lloyd. Moir escaped in the darkness and eluded a posse of local detectives that pursued him for several days. He was arrested some weeks afterwards at Arthur, Ont., and the defence that he committed the act during a temporary fit of insanity brought on by epilepsy saved him from the gallows. He was sent to the Hamilton Hospital for the Insane, and after severed attempts made his escape from that institution. When recaptured he was transferred to the Central Prison, where he has since been confined.

Toll Collected With Gun.

OTTAWA, July 29.—An effective means of collecting toll has come to light at Cascades, in the Gatineau district, where on Saturday, two parties of Ottawa motorists were compelled to hand over the tariff at the point of a shot gun. Owing to a flaw in their charters, obtained years before motor cars were in existence, it has been found that many of the toll roads in Quebec cannot legally tax automobiles and motorists have been refusing to pay.

On Saturday, two cars whose owners attempted to argue the matter at Cascades, were confronted with a gun in the hands of the keeper, and told to pass at their peril. Prosecution will follow.

Farm Experts Go North.

TORONTO, July 29. Hon. J. S. Duff, Dr. Jamieson, M.P.P., J. Hart, M.P.P., and a party of Guelph College professors and heads of various sections of the Department of Agriculture left for northern Ontario last night at 8.30 to attend a district farmers' picnic and conference to be held at Monteith.

While up north the Minister of Agriculture and the experts accompanying them will visit a number of farms to investigate in a practical way the local conditions.

STEAMER SUFFERED COLLISION

Carried Passengers and Had to be Beached

Canadian Press Despatch.

THREE RIVERS, QUE., July 29.—At ten o'clock last night the West India Line steamer Crown, of Cordova, collided with the Lady of Gaspe, near Cape Madeleine, five miles east of here. The Lady of Gaspe, which carried one hundred and fifty passengers, was struck amidship and had to be beached to save her from sinking.

WILL NOT DISSOLVE

Asquith Ministry Likely to Stay in Power Till 1915

LONDON, July 29.—All efforts of the Lords and the Tory party generally to drive the Government to dissolve Parliament have failed, as is well understood among the Ministerialists, who now think there will be no dissolution until 1915 unless something unforeseen occurs.

Following the second rejection of the home rule for Ireland bill by the House of Lords, Sir Edward Carson is again stumping Ulster, but Orange enthusiasm for civil war is rapidly growing down. Carson, according to his friends, is utterly sickened by the situation and especially by the apathy with which England has received his Orange campaign. He knows now that the worst that can happen is some rioting in Belfast and two or three other places, which can be suppressed by the police. His only hope is that the military may mutiny, but this idea is repudiated indignantly by the soldiers themselves.

Sir West Ridgeway, formerly Under Secretary of Ireland, afterward Governor of Ceyon, laughs at the notion that the Government will have to call out the soldiers to shoot down Orangemen if they rebel.

"The Government in such an unhappy contingency," says Sir West, "need not fire a shot or send a single soldier into Northeast Ulster. If Northeast Ulster were to revolt the Government could blockade the port of Belfast, cut off railway communication with the greater part of Ireland and leave the rebellious section to stew in its own juice. In such an unhappy state of things a provisional government would be even in a worse plight than Czar Ferdinand, of Bulgaria is at present."

PREACHED UNDER GUARD

Missionary to Toronto Jews Had to Compete With a Gramaphone.

TORONTO, July 29.—Surrounded by four constables and four plainclothesmen, Rev. Henry Singer held a Christian missionary meeting last night at Kensington avenue and St. Patrick street, the corner at which he was stoned two weeks ago by residents of Kensington avenue. The police expected difficulty on account of articles that appeared a week ago in certain Jewish newspapers of the city, but barring a continuous blast of gramophone music, there was no rioting last night.

From the time Mr. Singer began to speak until 9.30 o'clock, when he finished his meeting, the police were never called upon to interfere. The Jewish residents on the street, however, did not leave everything to Mr. Singer, for just after he began his meeting they started one about a hundred yards up the street. The Jewish meeting grew and grew until at nine o'clock more than 300 people were in the circle. Mr. Singer had an audience of about fifty.

REVOLUTION IN PORTUGAL

Serious Street Fighting Believed to be Forerunner

Canadian Press Despatch.

PARIS, July 29.—Despatches from Portugal say serious street fighting occurred last night at various points, between troops and civilians which are believed to be a forerunner of an extensive revolutionary outbreak, planned in Lisbon and Oporto.

CHINESE REFORMER SAYS YUAN SHI KAI IS MURDERER

Dr. Sun Yat Sen Calls on the Powers He is Fighting For the People.

NEW YORK, July 29.—Dr. Sun Yat Sen, the first provisional President of the Chinese republic, who led the revolution against Manchu rule, yesterday cabled the following proclamation to the Associated Press:

"SHANGHAI, July 29.—When three months ago Yuan Shi Kai unconstitutionally included the loan with the bankers representing the five powers, almost immediately after the discovery of documents implicating the Chinese Government in the assassination of the Nationalists leader, Gen. Sung Chiao-Jen, I appealed to the Governments and peoples of Europe to withhold payment of the loan temporarily, knowing that the Chinese people would denounce Yuan Shi Kai for the loan and for the murder, and that Yuan Shi Kai would suppress their protest by force of arms.

"My appeal fell on deaf ears and Yuan Shi Kai, supplied with funds by loan, poured troops into the southern provinces to dismiss the governors and subjugate the people because they did not approve of his high-handed actions, and insisted on a thorough investigation of the murder of Gen. Sung Chiao-Jen.

"The Province of Kiang Si resisted the invasion of the northern troops sent by Yuan Shi Kai, and six other provinces rose and joined with Kiang Si to drive him away from office.

"The present war would terminate as soon as Yuan Shi Kai retired from the presidency which he has disgraced.

"I cannot bear to see my life work destroyed and the despotism of the Manchus replaced by that of Yuan Shi Kai.

"I will fight for the people's righteous cause which, notwithstanding great odds, must ultimately triumph.

"The powers, misinformed of the situation in China, have assisted Yuan Shi Kai with funds, which has caused the present war.

"I earnestly appeal to all desiring peace and an early cessation of a long and sanguinary conflict, entailing much misery, to cease giving further financial assistance to Yuan Shi Kai. I made this appeal in the name of humanity and justice."

TO SPARE DETROIT

Windsor Will Not Celebrate Capture of That City.

WINDSOR, July 29.—Plans have been practically abandoned to hold a counter demonstration here on Aug. 16 next to celebrate the capture of Fort Detroit in the War of 1812.

The Essex Historical Society has forwarded to Sir Edmund Walker, member of the Peace Commission, a formal protest against a series of Perry celebrations along the great lakes in the States of Ohio and Michigan, more especially since these celebrations have been featured by jingoistic utterances.

Suffragettes Demonstrate.

LONDON, July 29.—A large body of suffragettes marched last night from the east end to Holloway Prison and made a demonstration in sympathy with Sylvia Pankhurst.

Violent speeches were delivered, blank shots were fired from revolvers, windows were smashed and great disorder prevailed. Several of the suffragettes were arrested.

LATEST NEWS PARAGRAPHED

After three strenuous days in the nickel belt of Sudbury, the first excursion of geologists have arrived in Cobalt.

The first of two steel single screw bucket dredges for the Dominion Government was launched at Collingwood yesterday.

Indictments against twelve alleged members of the "Arson Trust" were returned by the grand jury in Chicago yesterday.

The site for the first Mormon temple to be built outside the United States was dedicated Sunday at Cardston, Alta., by some of the leading men of the Church of Utah.

Just before the beginning of the Galveston Beach automobile races yesterday afternoon the grand stand, containing about 5,000 people, collapsed. Many had legs broken.

The ratepayers of the town of Dundas turned out en masse yesterday and passed the bylaw providing for the guarantee of $15,000 bonds of the Canadian Abrasive Wheels, Ltd.

Raffaele Tate, an Italian, was drowned in the canal at Port Robinson, Ont. He could not swim and got beyond his depth. Tate had made his fortune and was about to return to Italy.

Bishop A. E. Latulippe, head of the Timiskaming diocese of the Roman Catholic Church, returned to Haileybury yesterday from a 2,000 mile pastoral trip to mission fields in Northern Quebec.

The London Daily Mail estimates that 1,600 bombs have been found in the streets of Lisbon since the organised attempt at bomb-throwing was frustrated by the police there Sunday, July 20.

LAST SON MEETS DEATH BY DROWNING

Eleventh Child of Lindsay Man Now Dead—

WIFE IS MISSING

Father is Heart Broken at Loss of His Only Friend.

LINDSAY, July 29.—A sad drowning accident occurred yesterday afternoon, when Joseph, the seven-year-old son of Joseph York, a laborer, met death in the Scugog River.

It appears the father lived alone with the son, ten other boys being dead and Mrs. York missing. The young lad was in the habit of accompanying his father to and from work, amusing himself as best he could while his father was unloading cars of lumber. The first evidence that the boy was missing was when his hat was seen floating on the river. Apparently the young lad slipped off a boathouse wharf and disappeared without a scream. His body was recovered, but life was extinct. The father is heart-broken over the loss of what he claimed to be his only friend, the two having been very much attached to each other.

Watchman Gets Fortune.

ST. CATHARNIES, July 29.—Alex. Thompson, a night watchman at the factory of the Wellandvale Manufacturing Co., has been notified that he has fallen sole heir to a large estate by the death in Paisley, Scotland, of a bachelor cousin.

ENGINEER AND BRAKEMAN LOSE THEIR LIVES

Freight Train Ran Into Open Switch at St. Catharines.

ST. CATHARINES, July 29.—Traveling at a high rate of speed, under orders to proceed to Hamilton, a freight ran through an open switch in the St. Catharines yards yesterday afternoon and collided head-on with a stalled way freight. Fred. Pearce of Mimico, engineer of the fast freight, and Charles Thompson of Fort Erie, the brakeman, were instantly killed.

Thompson's body was buried under the wrecked cars and was not recovered for two hours.

Fireman Hewitt of Mimico jumped and escaped with slight injuries.

The crew of the stalled freight was off the train at the time, but Richard Daniels and George Clout of St. Catharines, who were loading a car in the centre of the still train, were seriously, though not fatally injured. A car ahead of them was forced upward, and on top of their car, then it tore through the roof and dropped downwards, just leaving the men room to crawl out.

A tramp stealing a ride on the fast freight is being held as a witness. He states that the outside semaphore was set against the incoming train. The train is said to have been going at a high rate of speed. The badly wrecked condition of both locomotives, one of them a big mogul, tend to bear out this fact.

Among the cars thrown from the track was a tank of crude oil. Danger of fire was feared, and the St. Catharines fire-brigade was called out but was not required. Seven cars were smashed and the track torn up. One track of the main line was tied up for five hours. The wrecking crews from Hamilton and Niagara Falls are clearing up the debris.

An inquest over Thompson and Pearce, the victims, was opened last evening, and was adjourned until to-night.

MARTYRS OR COWARDS?

Mrs. Pankhurst seems determined to let herself die on the hands of the British prison authorities rather than suffer the martyrdom of penal servitude.

If Mrs. Pankhurst, or any other starving suffragist, thinks to convince the British male that she is as good as he is, and that a woman is as brave and can endure as much as a man, they are by no means proving their point by this silly ruse of hunger-striking.

The bald fact is that Mrs. Pankhurst is only proving that she is very feminine and absolutely incapable of masculine endurance. She has resorted to the girlish trick of fainting away, because she knows there are strong arms to catch her.

What man with an ounce of respect for his sex, or a grain of grit in him, would act like Mrs. Pankhurst, even though he were to be hanged the next day?

So far from being a martyr Mrs. Pankhurst is shirking martyrdom. There is nothing heroic in fainting away, it is a symptom of heart-weakness. If she wants to be a hero, let her settle down to her prison like as Bunyan and all the hosts of martyrs that every accomplished anything have done.

Mrs. Pankhurst is an imposter and a humbug, and deserves the contempt of every healthy-minded member of her sex. If she dies as the result of her starvation it will not be merely a case of suicide, but it will be suicide of the most contemptible kind, because it was prompted by a mean advantage of the chivalry of men, and a spirit of cowardice in not being ready to pay the full price of the martyrdom she pretends to claim.

A GENIAL LABOUR LEADER

Among the many interesting figures in the British delegation which arrived at Montreal the other day, Mr. Will Crooks is perhaps the most notable. He is the most popular labor member of the British House of Commons, and has done more to break down the barriers of caste which divide the upper and lower classes than any other one man in London.

He is one of the "lower ones" who in getting up into society, has not "forgot himself." The difference between Will Crooks and Keir Hardie is not so much one of ideal as of disposition. Will Crooks has a keen and almost rollicking sense of humor, while Kier Hardie takes himself too seriously.

But Mr. Crooks has the cause of Labor as much at heart as any of the Quixotic Leaders who are for ever tilting at wind-mills, more out of a desire to display their theoretical prowess or ability to knock things over than to accomplish anything to the benefit of the working man or the betterment of society in general.

That Will Crooks is an optimist, unlike many pseudo-Socialistic labor leaders, will be seen from the following remarks made to a Montreal reporter the other day:

"Here, you have a Dominion, a continent of the possibilities of which no man can dream, a continent capable of carrying 100 millions of people, what a heritage! If you exploit this for personal interest, future generations will curse you; if you exploit the continent in the cause of humanity, generations yet unborn will bless you."

Asked as to things "At Home," Mr. Crooks said: "England is hopeful in the extreme. There is as much capacity in the race at home as there has been in any previous page of our history."

HON. ROBERT ROGERS

The editorial in The Examiner of Monday night upon the Hon. Robt. Rogers is a libel on the whole Borden Government. It pretends that "admittedly" the Minister of the Interior is a crook, etc. The truth is that, notwithstanding a fusilade of charges against that minister during the last session, not one charge was proven. Much to the gratification of the admirers of that remarkably clever and efficient officer, not a shadow remained upon his reputation.

But the Examiner is aware has a very serious charge lies at the door of Sir Wilfrid Laurier to be dealt with next session, and that the famous pillar post-box scandal has completely wrecked Hon. Rod Lemieux, and with these in the foreground the prospects of the Liberal party are not bright. Hence its insinuations and insinuation only against Mr. Rogers.

EDITORIAL NOTES

The Grain Growers' Guide is a strictly non-party journal; that is, it repudiates both Liberal and Conservative views. The next paragraph is taken from this bland and ingenuous Guide:

"Mr. Churchill's reference to the 'sacrifice of the British taxpayer,' requires some correction lest it mislead. The British taxpayer has never been taxed to provide naval protection for Canada, as Canada as never needed any, does not need any now."

The Montreal Star has been doing a little sum in suffragette sentences and comes to the conclusion that

"At the present rate of progress, for example, Annie Kenney would not complete her sentence of eighteen months until October, 1918, and Mrs. Pankhurst's sentence of three years would not be completed until February, 1935."

What will we be doing in '35? Suffragism will be a little stale by that time.

o

"The Gideons" are a society of commercial travellers formed for the purpose of supplying hotels with Bibles. They have just held a conference in Toronto. It would be entirely beside the mark, therefore, to call them the giddy 'uns, as was suggested in this office.

EXCERPTS

THE ROAD TO PROSPERITY

With few outward signs of stress or strain Canada is passing through a period of deflation and financial concentration. The real estate boom is over. There has been no collapse nor will there be, but many people have been forced to sail warily who have for years floated on the crest of the tide of fortune and almost forgotten the shoal beneath that become dangerous at ebb-tide.

Over-speculation is the chief evil from which the country is suffering. So large a proportion of the people have been making easy money by selling things bought not for use but for a speculative profit that we have not devoted anything like sufficient time, and business talent and capital to real wealth-producing work. And now having glutted the market for urban lots, and floated all sorts of franchise-holding propositions, and "acquired" all the natural opportunities in the form of water powers and timber limits and mining claims that prodigal public administrators let slip out of their hands, it is time for us, as a nation to go to work."— The Globe.

HOW ONE SUCCEEDED

"I have a case in mind now of a man who came to me during a strike in London and said: 'Well Bill, I have got £5, I am going to Canada; you keep your eye on my wife and children.' I burst out laughing at the thought that I was to look after his wife and children as well as my own. But that man, a tank-maker, came to Canada and in less than two years he sent for the whole lot of them and out they came. When I arrived in Canada the last time he sent me a letter down to Quebec to say he was head of stock, and underlining this, 'not bad for a tank maker.' The next year we had a letter from his wife, saying she had taken second prize for the best butter made in her district.

A third letter came reporting the marriage of the daughter, and the successful work of the rest of the family.— Will Crooks in Montreal Star.

Got Wise.

Mrs. Mater—I wonder what makes that dog so afraid of me? He always acts as if he thought I was going to kill him.

Little Daughter—I daresay he's seen you spankin' me.—Tit-Bits.

Cause For Congratulations.

The Debtor—Well, old man, I'm going to marry a rich widow next week.

The Creditor — Indeed! Well—ah, congratulate me, old chap. — Toledo Blade.

Prophetic.

Black—She said on her wedding day that she would go through everything for him.

White—Well, I guess she has. I loaned him a ten spot this morning.—Boston Post.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

FAITH IN WORDS

To the Editor of the Daily Review.

Dear Sir— The Right Hon. Winston Churchill has again set the Toronto Globe by the ears—he has made use of the uncomfortable word "emergency." The Globe opines that he was actuated by a desire to "make" things easy for Mr. Borden." Mr. Borden can afford to await the logic of events. But the Globe has much simple faith in the power of mere words and it devotes some hundreds of them in an unusually lengthy editorial towards easing the Opposition situation.

Mr. Churchill speaks of the "emergencies of the future," and so the Globe professes to think, lets the cat out of the bag—there is no emergency now. The Globe is either trying to mislead its more trustful readers or it is trying to do something else equally futile. You can not place Dreadnoughts in commission by a wave of the hand, not even by an act of parliament, but by a long and intricate process known as ship-building, etc., which takes a great deal of time. Ships laid down immediately will be ready for an emergency in the future, something over two years. For any present emergency we are already two years too late.

The only immediate effect that was hoped for by those who wished to help the Mother Country, was a moral effect. It was hoped, and with good reason, that Canada's action in offering the Dreadnoughts would discourage the European Powers in their attempt to catch up in the race of armaments. Had Canada's action achieved this result either directly or indirectly, she would have earned a word of gratitude.

For thwarting or even developing the possibility of this far-reaching result the Opposition of the Commons Senate and Press are alone responsible. Against that fact their ocean of words wash in vain.

CATTLE MARKETS

MONTREAL LIVE STOCK.

MONTREAL, July 28.—At the Montreal Stock Yards west end market, receipts for the week ended July 26 were 1600 cattle, 2100 sheep and lambs, 1650 hogs and 650 calves. The offerings on the market this morning for sale amounted to 1150 cattle, 1600 sheep and lambs, 850 hogs and 350 calves.

The weaker feeling which came to the surface of the market for cattle last week was the principal feature of the trade again today, and prices showed a further decline of 25c per 100 pounds. Increased offerings and the warm weather are held responsible for this reduction. Sales of full loads of choice steers, averaging 1200 pounds each, were made at $6.75; good at $6 to $6.25, and medium to fair at $4.75 to $5.25 per 100 pounds. Canners' cows sold at from $2.75 to $3.25, and bulls at $3.50 to $4 per 100 pounds.

A much stronger feeling developed in the market for sheep and lambs, and prices for the former advanced 50c, and for the latter 25c to 50c per 100 pounds, which was due to the fact that a leading abattoir company of Toronto had a buyer on the market, who bought freely. Trade was active, with sales of lambs at $7.25 to $7.75, and ewe sheep at $4.75 to $5 per 100 pounds. Calves were unchanged, with demand good. Choice calves were scarce.

In sympathy with the recent upward tendency of prices in Toronto for live hogs, a strong feeling prevailed in the market today, prices scoring an advance of 35c per 100 pounds. A few carloads of northwest hogs arrived last week and sold at $13.50 to $13.75 per 100 pounds, dressed.

Butchers' cattle, choice $6.25 to $6.75; do., medium, $4.50 to $4.75; do., common, $4.25 to $4.50; canners, $2.75 to $3.25; butchers' cattle, choice cows, $5.25 to $5.50; do., medium, $4.75 to $5; do., bulls, $4.75 to $5.50; milkers choice, each, $70 to $75; do., common and medium, each, $60 to $65; springers, $50 to $55.

Sheep, ewes, $4.75 to $5; bucks and culls, $4.25 to $4.50; lambs, $7.25 to $7.75.

Hogs, f.o.b., $10.75 to $11.

Calves, $3 to $12.

CHICAGO LIVE STOCK.

CHICAGO, July 28.—Cattle—Receipts, 10,000; market steady; beeves, $7.10 to $9.10; Texas steers, $6.80 to $7.90; stockers and feeders, $5.40 to $7.75; cows and heifers, $3.60 to $8.20; calves, $8 to $10.75.

Hogs—Receipts, 46,000; market weak; mostly 10c lower; light, $9 to $9.45; mixed, $8.55 to $9.45; heavy, $8.40 to $9.20; rough, $8.40 to $8.60; pigs, $6 to $9.15; bulk of sales, $8.75 to $9.20.

Sheep and Lambs—Receipts, 25,000; market steady for sheep; lambs 25c lower; native, $4.35 to $5.60; yearlings, $5.65 to $7.75; lambs, native, $5.75 to $6.85.

The Best Detective Story of the Last Ten Years

"It is necessary," assured Britz.

"The detectives who arrested her seem to be convinced of her guilt." Fitch said angrily. "They inflicted tortures on her that might have crushed a stronger woman; she told me as best she could what took place at the inquisition in Police Headquarters. Were you present at that brutal scene?"

"I was."

Fitch eyed the detective suspiciously.

"Then you, too, believe she is guilty?" he asked.

"I have come to no conclusion with regard to the case," answered Britz. "I am simply going to ascertain the truth. Are you willing to help?"

"If it is a search for truth and not an attempt to convict an innocent woman, I am willing."

"Very well," said Britz. "I am working independently, regardless of anything Donnelly and Carson, the two men who made the arrest, may do. They blundered grievously when they arrested the young woman. We must overcome that blunder, but the time is not ripe for her release. If she leaves the Tombs, it must be with her name cleared of suspicion."

Dr. Fitch looked gratefully at the detective.

"I know your reputation, Lieutenant Britz," he said. "This terrible blow came out of a clear sky. I feel as helpless as a little child. The first intimation I had that my fiancé was accused of theft was when I picked up the morning papers. I could hardly believe my eyes; I seemed to me my senses were deceiving me. I read end re-read the newspaper accounts until I seemed to know them by heart. I could not understand why she did not send for me at once."

"She was too dazed to think," Britz said. "I will pursue my inquiry on my own lines, and I want you to hold yourself in readiness to respond to any call I may make on you. Furthermore, I would advise that you see Miss Holcomb again and inform her that if she is innocent, all the resources of the Police Department will be used in her behalf. I am looking only for the real thief. It may be necessary for me to see her occasionally. If she is innocent, she may be entirely frank with me. I will not see her, however, until she has had time to compose herself."

Dr. Fitch returned to the prison and was permitted to see the prisoner in the little reception room on the ground floor of the women's wing. Her lawyer had left instructions that the physician be allowed to consult with his fiancé at any time. On his first visit, he had found her distraught, hardly able to tell a coherent story. His call had a cheering effect on her, however, and she entered the reception room with a firmer step.

"I hope you have brought good news," she called.

"I have just talked with Lieutenant Britz, who is in charge of your case," he replied. "He has assured me he will do everything to prove your innocence and find the real criminal, but he wants you to remain here until you can leave with your name entirely cleared."

For an instant her face clouded. She felt a painful contraction of heart; a mist floated before her eyes.

"Remain here?" she murmured questioningly. Then, as if a sudden thought illumined her mind, she added, "I would rather stay here than go out and face the world with this charge hanging over me."

He pressed her hand as if to instill into her new confidence. She sensed the meaning of that encouraging pressure and rewarded him with a responsive smile.

"You believe in me, don't you?" she murmured.

"All those who know you must believe in you," he answered. "The innocence of your nature is sufficient reply to the accusation against you."

"It is good to have you with me," she said, and he saw tears welling in her eyes. Her suffering touched the tenderest chord in his nature, and he felt a pain as of a hundred knife thrusts.

"Don't lose courage," was all he could say. "I'll be here every day."

As he hastened down the steps of the prison he again met Britz. The two men walked to Broadway and up that thoroughfare to Twenty-third Street. When they parted, Britz knew the life history of Miss Holcomb.

She had been born in good circumstances, and was a graduate of Smith College. All her life, she had been reared to the belief that her future was well provided for. As the only child of a Boston banker, she lived in an environment of tranquil ease that seemed her permanent heritage in life. Her father and mother died within a year of each other, during the stress of a financial panic. When the estate came to be settled, it was insufficient to meet the outstanding obligations of her father. Left penniless, amid the luxuries of her birth, she found employment as a governess, and two years before the discovery of the substituted paste jewels, she was engaged by Mrs. Missioner as secretary.

Fitch met Miss Holcomb in Boston, and their friendship was renewed in New York. Their engagement was announced only a month before her arrest. Brits, trying to square the circumstances surrounding her arrest with the conclusion of guilt, decided that if she took the jewels, it must have been in a sudden temptation born of the luxury of her past. But, on more mature reflection, he concluded that her birth, her breeding, all the training of her life placed her above any such temptation; and when he entered his home to study the case in the quiet of his library, he was possessed of the strong conviction that Miss Holcomb was guiltless of the charge entered against her on the records of the Court.

CHAPTER VIII.

Britz Takes Action.

Lieutenant Britz occupied a unique position in the Detective Bureau. His official grade was the same as that of Donnelly and Carson, but, by sheer force of his ability, he had lifted himself so far above them that when working on a case they accepted his orders like subordinates. Britz was one of the four or five men of the entire detective force who could not be classed as a "stool-pigeon man." That is, he did not depend on the use of stool-pigeons for his results. He needed no staff of thieves to inform him of the doings of other thieves. His detective ability was developed to a high degree, combining an acute analytic sense with remarkable industry. These talents were reinforced by a rare detective instinct, which often led him irrisistibly to the goal of his pursuit.

He was a bundle of twitching nerves beneath a placid exterior. Nature had endowed him with an inscrutable countenance, an iron will and a restless energy that seemed to flow from an inexhaustible inner fountain. He matched his resourcefulness against the tricks of the criminals he pursued and, having the keener mind, he invariably won.

Britz's enthusiasm never bubbled to the surface. He carried himself with an appearance of masterly ease as if he held his impulses in complete subjection. There was nothing striking in his nature, yet he left an impression of hidden strength as of a steel framework behind a light coating of plaster. His eyes, set deep beneath the arched outline of his eyebrows, seemed to emit a mysterious inexplicable current that circled around one and drew one closer within its constantly narrowing circumference. The shade of melancholy that gloomed his nature was not hidden by the mask of superb indifference that rested on his well-defined features, with their crowning breadth of lightly furrowed forehead. It revealed itself with the slightest twitch of his facial muscles as well as the drooping line of the mouth. By some peculiarity of the blood, his complexion ran a yellow ivory, never varying its color under the stress of the strongest emotions. It required superhuman courage to meet the steady gaze of his eyes and lie to him. Though somewhat abrupt of manner and speech, there was something engaging about him, some subtle magic of personality that brought one under the thrall of his mind. Almost without the utterance of a syllable, he could bend weak natures to his will. Only the strongest persons were able to resist his domination.

Crime to Britz was something impersonal like an abstract problem in mathematics. Relentless as was his pursuit of criminals, he felt no personal animosity toward them, regarding them rather as shadow-beings playing his game.

He was one of those strange beings who live mostly within themselves, yet there were times when he felt a desolation of heart, a longing for companionship, for intimate association with his fellow beings. On such occasions, his life seemed to lack something of the beauty of other lives, as if it had been cast in a more somber shade. He could feel a wave of melancholy coming on him, and to avoid its depressing influence, he turned his mind resolutely to his work, feasting on the crime at hand as on some tempting dish. Without knowing why, the Missioner diamond robbery held for him a fascination more powerful than that called up by any other crime within his memory. He recognized surface of deep cunning in the conception and execution of the theft. His experienced eye saw that no ignorant or vulgar mind had engineered the substitution of those marvelous diamonds. The pursuit of the criminal fairly sparkled with exciting possibilities, and Britz felt the thrill of the chase even before he started the pursuit.

Britz paced nervously up and down his room, revolving the incidents surrounding the discovery of the theft in his mind, but he was unable to pick a clew on which to work. No. did the occurrences in which Donnelly and Carson participated furnish any promising material.

"I'll begin at the very bottom," he murmured, "and work gradually to the top." He sauntered out of the house, walking with an air of one trying to lengthen moments of reflection. In front of the Missioner home he stopped, surveying the massive stone walls, as if trying to figure the possibility of nocturnal intrusion. The front door was of heavy bronze and was swung open by the butler in response to the ringing of the bell.

"Is Mrs. Missioner at home?" asked Britz.

The butler eyed him suspiciously.

"Who wishes to see her?" he asked

"Lieutenant Britz, of Headquarters."

After a long delay, he was ushered into the same room in which the incidents preceding Miss Holcomb's arrest had occurred.

"I have come to inquire more minutely into the disappearance of the jewels," he explained.

Mrs. Missioner's face showed lines of deep suffering. Heavy rings encircled her eyes, deep furrows scarred her forehead.

"I am more than anxious to supply you with all the information in my possession," she said. "It is meager enough, and I almost despair of ever seeing my jewels again."

"Madam, no case is hopeless," Britz soothed. "The immense value of the diamonds will make their recovery all the easier. I feel safe in surmising that none of them, or only a very few of them, have been disposed of as yet. Now, do you recall the last time you wore the collarette?"

"It was a week ago, at dinner in my home," she replied.

"And when before that?"

"About two weeks before, at a dance in the home of a friend."

"How long have you owned the collarette?"

"About ten years."

"It was a gift from your husband, I believe?" Britz asked.

"It was," the widow answered.

"Where was it purchased?"

"The Maharanee was bought in India. The other stones were gathered from time to time, and were strung together in the form of the collarette at Tiffany's."

"That was ten years ago?"

"It was."

"Since then, has the collarette been out of your possession at any time?"

Mrs. Missioner sank into deep reflection. Her slippered feet tapped the floor, her hands opened and closed automatically.

"I recall one instance," she replied

Britz bent forward eagerly.

"When was that?" he asked.

"About two years ago. I sent it to Tiffany's for resetting."

"The substitution was hardly made there," he smiled. "You are absolutely sure the collarette, with that one exception, has been in no one else's possession?"

"Absolutely sure," the widow answered.

Britz moved thoughtfully about the room. He tapped the walls with his fist, alert for a hollow sound. Bending to his knees, he examined the floor carefully, after which his eyes lingered on every inch of the windows.

"May I examine the safe?" he asked.

Through a magnifying glass he studied the steel door of the compartment, after which the widow set the combination and swung open the safe. The interior was as bare of suspicious marks as the exterior.

"Donnelly and Carson are right to this extent. It is an outside job," he pronounced.

The detective seated himself in a nook of the broad chimney-place, facing the widow.

"We must ascertain the day of the robbery as closely as possible," he said. "Two years ago is too remote a time on which to begin work. I understand that you called in Mr. Ranscome the other night? Has any other expert seen the jewels in the last two years?"

A flash, as of the return of a vanished hope, lighted Mrs. Missioner's features.

"No other expert, but Mr. Ranscome and I looked over the collection before I went abroad eighteen months ago. He saw the collarette at that time."

"Did he observe it casually, or examine it carefully?" Britz asked.

"He had it in his hand, and I recall he spoke admiringly of it," the widow returned.

"Good!" flashed Britz. "Of course he said nothing as to the jewels being paste?"

"Nothing," answered Mrs. Missioner.

"Then it is almost certain that the real jewels were in your safe then," pronounced Britz. "Since then, who has been with you when you wore the collarette?"

"Mr. Griswold and Mr. Sands were my escorts to dinner two weeks ago. They and Miss March also were my guests at the opera."

"Now, please tell me exactly, who was in the room when you put the collarette on and when you took it off on coming home two weeks ago?" Britz inquired.

"Miss Holcomb was in the room when I opened the combination of the safe. I believe the collarette lay on the table until I was fully dressed. Then Mr. Sands and Mr. Griswold arrived, and were shown into the room. I recall that I had difficulty in adjusting the clasp, and Mr. Griswold snapped it shut."

"Were you out of the room for even a moment while the collarette lay on the table?"

"No," Mrs. Missioner answered.

"Did you observe anything suspicious in the movements, actions, or conduct of Miss Holcomb that evening?"

"Nothing."

"What occurred after you came home? Who helped you to undress?"

"My maids were asleep," said Mrs. Missioner, "and I called Miss Holcomb, who occupies the room next to mine. She helped me take off the jewels and she saw me place them in the safe."

"And with the exception of yourself, Miss Honcomb is the only one who knew the combination of the safe?" Britz flashed.

"Only Miss Holcomb," responded the widow.

"On the night of the opera, who was with you when you put on the collarette?"

"Miss Holcomb, Mr. Griswold, Mr. Sands, and Miss March," the widow informed him.

"Did any of those present help you to place it about your neck?"

"No. Mr. Sands had taken the collarette from the table, and was looking at it. I took it from him and fastened it myself."

APPOINTED NOW TO SPRINGFIELD COLLEGE

Mr. E. M. Best Former Y.M.C.A. Secretary Here, Goes to American Educational Institute as a Member of Faculty

Hosts of friends will join in congratulations to Mr. E. M. Best (brother of Mr. Ray Best, of this city) on his apppointment as a member of the faculty of the International Young Men's Association College at Springfield, Mass.

The Instruction Committee of the College, in a late report recommended an extension of the teaching facilities, and that an additional professor be added as soon as arrangements could be made to provide for salary. This has been done and Mr. Best called to the chair of religious education, and which has for the past seven years, been in charge of Dr. Daggett. A circular issued in the interests of the College says:

Mr. Best will give direction to the religious normal work of the students in the College with a view to making it more valuable to the community and distinctly educative to the students. This will involve a close personal relation to each man with reference to his spiritual life at the very beginning of his course of study, and close supervision of each man's work with criticism and help from those qualified to judge. This work of prescription and instruction which has been carried on for a long time at Springfield, is similar to the coaching given the athletic teams in the physical department. The Springfield College expects to send out every Sunday two hundred prepared teachers who can command the respect of the churches of the city and the surrounding community. A part of the plan involves the development of a school of religion for boys and young men under the direct auspices of the College. This has been attempted in a tentative way and is of sufficient promise to justify a larger development.

Mr. Best is a Canadian, his home being at Winnipeg, Manitoba. He graduated from the Springfield College in 1911, having previously been related to the Young Men's Christian Association at Peterborough, first as a member of the board of directors and later as assistant secretary. For three summers he was assistant supervisor of the playgrounds of Winnipeg. For the past two years he has taken a course in New York University in biology sociology and psychology and in padagogy with special reference to religious education. He has also studied in Union Seminary courses in the psychology of religion and teacher training. His chief work has been done with Dr. T. M. Balliet, Prof. H. H. Horne and Prof. George A. Coe.

For two years he has been engaged with the West Side branch of the Young Men's Christian Association of New York City, his work being in the education department as assistant secretary and registrar. In this position he has dealt with thousands of young men who have come to inquire about the educational work. Mr. Best has also taught English to a large class of non-English speaking young men, and has had a share in the program of religious work of the branch.

INCREASE FOR ROAD GANG IN OTONABEE

At the last meeting of the Otonabee Council, Reeve Andersen was empowered to have erected a new bridge at Lawell's Creek, Wards 4 and 5, to pay $50 each towards the cost, and the balance to be paid out of the general fund of the township.

The road gang asked for $4 per day instead of $3.75. The increase was granted on condition that they remain on the job to the end of the season and draw 1 1-4 yds. of gravel per load instead of 1 yd. as formerly. A number of accounts were also passed.

Excellent Service to Muskoka Lakes Via Canadian Pacific Ry.

Fast Muskoka Express leaves Toronto 11.50 a.m. daily, except Sunday, carrying parlor car, cafe and first-class coaches, arriving Bala 3.40 p.m., where direct connection is made for all points on the lakes. Improved facilities for passengers at Bala Wharf.

Everyone should endeavor to visit this delightful resort, as the atmospheric conditions offer immunity from this malady.

THE FIVE SENSES

Any number can take part in this game, which requires a little preparation beforehand. Pencil and paper must be given each player, and the various articles for testing the senses should be in readiness before the game begins. A card and wafers, such as are used in progressive euchre, may be given each guest to keep the record of his successes and errors. As prizes first and booby are given for the best and worst answers.

The players are blindfolded, and a tray is passed to each in turn, with a dozen or more different things to be tasted—sweet, sour, bitter, bread, cake, fruits, etc. Only a very small particle of each is given. The tray is then taken away, the eyes unblinded, and each player must write down the names of all the articles he has tasted that he can remember.

A tray is brought to the blindfolded players, with spices, medicines, flowers and perfumes, which are offered them to smell, after which, as before, they must write down the names of all the things they think they have smelled.

Again the players are blindfolded, while others of the company make various noises all at once—singing, crying, laughing, pounding, ringing bells, tearing paper, playing on musical instruments, etc.

A tray is brought to the blindfolded players with various articles to be felt by each in turn. These may be wool, cotton, cloth, marble, hair, flour, ice, china, glass or anything thought of. Then, as usual, they must write down the names of all things they can remember.

A tray is placed before the players, now unblinded, and they are to look at the group of objects displayed upon it while twenty is slowly counted; then the tray is removed, and the players must write a list of all the things they have seen, so far as they remember.

This game is a good drill in observation and memory, as well as an amusing entertainment.

NEW HIGH SCHOOL FRENCH GRAMMAR

Costs Forty Cents Less Than the Present Book

A NEW SPELLER

For Public Schools Will Come Into Use Next Year

The Ontario Education Department has sent out orders superseding the High School French Grammar lately in use. Until July, 1913 the old grammar may be used under authority of the Boards of Education. The new book costs sixty cents which is forty cents less than the old and the reader in connection costs eleven cents.

Notice is also given that a revised edition of the public school spelling book, somewhat smaller than the one now in use, will come into use in July of next year.

A new High School History of Canada which was to have been ready in September, will probably be somewhat delayed. The department will insist upon its regulations being carried out and, if necessary, will withhold grants from schools using unauthorized books.

BOYS MUST KEEP OFF PROPERTY

Prosecution to Follow Trespassing on Ware Street Lot

During the past few weeks boys in the southern section of the city have been making a play ground of the Grand Trunk property on Ware street, now leased by Mrs. E. Campbell. Several notices have been put up but the culprits take them down, so Mrs. Campbell warns their parents that anyone found trespassing on her property will be prosecuted.

FAST SERVICE

LAST YEAR'S FROCK.

Easy to Remodel Foulard Costume.

THE SLEEVELESS TUNIC.

Sleeveless tunics and draperies over skirts of contrasting fabric are now the height of fashion, and the thrifty woman is evolving a stunning new gown with three yards of plain fabric and her last season's foulard. This graceful frock has a sleeveless and draped tunic of silk voile in a lovely shade of rather dull green over a foundation of flowered silk in green, pink and brown tones.

The Spring Bride.

Materials used for the bridal gown are the white fabrics of clinging variety. The most beautiful material for this use seen this season are not of extremely smooth finish, but are of soft lustrous texture and are well adapted to graceful lines of the present modes.

Among the most popular materials are white crape tussore, plain and crape charmeuse, chiffon faille, canton crape moire chiffon and brocade chiffon. All of the soft handmade laces and the finer of those made by machine are combined with chiffon as trimming or to form the bodice of the gown.

A new bow for the bridal slipper is a rosette of chiffon into which are caught natural orange blossoms. White rose buds are also used in these chiffon rosettes.

The fluffy white bow of chiffon or chiffon and satin mixed is also in favor for the wedding slipper.

Rhinestone buckles may be used, but bows and rosettes are better choice.

A Cracker Basket.

For the woman who loves a cup of tea in the afternoon and who also likes a small cooky or cheese cracker or some such tidbit to nibble while sipping her tea there is a new suggestion in the way of serving the wafers and cakes.

Often even a sandwich plate will be too small to hold as many crackers as are needed when three or four friends drop in for a cup of tea and gossip, and for this a flower basket, the style that is flat with a tall handle, generally used for the garden when picking flowers, is just the thing, for it holds a most surprising number of cakes, and in this way one can easily pass a large number of tidbits at one time without the least convenience, and for crackers decorated with jelly and cheese and such edibles as cannot be laid on top of each other this flat basket is unsurpassed.

Fifty-five per cent. of Canada's 1911 pulpwood cut went to the United States.

CHARIVARI COST THREE EMILY MEN $23.54 EACH

Disorderly Actions Followed When They Were Refused Money to Buy Lager

LINDSAY, July 29.—Three young men of Emily were each fined $23.54 in County Police Court for their disorderly conduct at the home of Mr. and Mrs. George A. Fitch, of Emily, who were married a short time ago.

A dozen or more young men met outside the house and demanded $5 to buy a keg of lager. They pulled the bed clothes out the window, took the horse from the stable, rang cow bells and made it very unpleasant for the newly weds.

GAMES OF THE CHILDREN GOVERNED BY SECOND NATURE

The Love of Youngsters For Swinging Is a Function in Harmony With Great Natural Pulsation and Probably Has Its Origin Away Back In the Dim Ages of the Development of the Human Race.

According to the scientist, most of the play activities of children hark back to the early history of the human organism. In play, racial history is rehearsed unconsciously by childhood. For most of the physical exercises in which children delight there is a racial setting.

The child who loves to swing keeps time instinctively to the pulse of mother ocean. His fondness for swaying back and forth, or from side to side, suggests the slow, oscillatory movements used by fish in swimming or maintaining their position in currents of water. Other evidences of some old aquatic life appear in sleep, when the higher functions are cut off and ancestral experiences crop out, later to color waking moments. Dream statistics show how a dreamer floats, hovers, glides, with absolute independence of gravity; how he swings high or low with the same freedom that he moves horizontally. Thus his early ancestors floated and swam along before legs, and the soul still retains traces of this in the same way that the body does in rudimentary organs.

Similarly an organism accustomed through generations to tree life, when the earth was covered with forest, would find swaying a natural motion. In the same way other activities, which were once necessary for survival of the individual, became so much a part of man's organism that the need of them remains to insure his perfect development; inherited tendencies of muscular co-ordination, which have been of great use to the race, find natural expression in the spontaneous play life of children.

The child who plays ball is imitating a savage ancestor to whom the power to throw with speed and accuracy meant ability to overcome his enemies, to take care of his family, and to kill game, at a time when spear, sling and arrow were usual weapons in pursuit of war or chase. He who enjoys games of balance repeats instinctively the experience of prehistoric life either in the ocean's deep or in the treetop. All games that are concerted and intensive have their origin in a deep sense of rhythm.

Most of the games of ball are of this character, and they have beside great emotional power, which makes them favorites with children. Tag and games of chase belong to a period when fleetness of foot was required for escape from enemies, and evidences of the Iron Age origin survive in iron tag and stone tag, in the first known form of which the chaser was supposed to be a dwarf of great age and malignant power to escape from whom the magical influence of metal was helpful.

Girls take up croquet at the age when boys take up swimming. Girls pay less attention to the different seasons in their play, perhaps because their activities are more likely to be indoors. Favorite games of the early teens involve passive motion and falling, like swinging in its many forms, including the maypole and single rope varieties. Wheeling and skating, which are psychologically allied to these, also rise in esteem at this period of growth.

At the same time interest increases in all concerted games which have their root in the sense of rhythm. College yells, cheers, rowing, marching, processions, tug of war, horseback riding—activities all more or less rhythmic—come into their own, and the "thumogenic" an emotional power restores to favor all games of hitting, striking or throwing balls and other objects, such as hockey, tennis, golf and croquet.

At the Berlin play congress in 1894 play impulses of this type came into their own. Teachers began to recognize that they are better than gymnastics for soul as well as for body, and have been used to relieve the drudgery of school work. Some authorities have even gone so far as to claim that a well-rounded education could be given by plays and games alone, on the principle that there is no profit where there is no pleasure. And the young often do their hardest work in play.

Whether one accepts or rejects this scientific theory that the plays of children originated in impulses for self-preservation of primitive man, one still must recognize their historic character. Most of our best games are old. But children are imitative and not inventive in their games, so it is no surprise to find that while popular games and lore present history in childish guise, few were originated and few game rhymes were composed by children. They were formerly played, as they still are in many lands, by mature men and women. Homer in the Odyssey describes a game of ball which the Princess Nausicaa played with her maidens after they had washed their "shining" clothes by the river side.

The poets tell us that the maids of honor of Queen Elizabeth's day were fond of the game of tag and defended themselves on the ground that in this way Diana and her nymphs were accustomed to wile idle hours away. Froissart, writing of the court of France, describes games and sports familiar to his childhood as favorites with the courtiers. The Spectator speaks of the women of fashion in London playing children's games. All of which might be used as an argument for the instinctive character of such play activities.

New System Chosen.

The single phase system for electrification of railroads in preference to the third rail has been adopted by the Swiss Government.

Not Many Infidels.

While seventy thousand Montrealers do not go to church, there are only a dozen infidels in the city, and very few members of other than the orthodox denominations, according to figures made public by the Montreal home visitation committee, which recently in a whirlwind religious census visited 82 per cent. of the city's homes, representing 400,000 people. A remarkably small diversity of religious faith was shown, Roman Catholics being greatly in the lead, although definite comparative figures were not given out. The largest number of children found in any one city family was eighteen, in a Hebrew home.

The census-takers report that aristocratic Westmount has by far the smallest proportion of children to the number of homes of any district in greater Montreal.

Montreal's Imports.

The customs duties collected in the port of Montreal for the month of May broke every record for the harbor of Montreal.

It totalled $2,395,377.30, an increase of $251,511.16 over the same month last year. The previous high water mark was made in October, 1912, when the duties collected amounted to $2,349,863.99.

A Midsummer Tailored Suit of Gray and White Checked Woollen Material.

AT the last Chantilly race meet there were two distinctly different types of dresses, and each type seemed to have a certain number of followers. One style included many of the details of the theatrical costumes designed by Leon Baskt and Paul Poiret for the recent ballets in Paris and London, the others were modernized versions of various quaint styles of the nineteenth century.

Of the pictures here, snapped by the camera at the Chantilly course, one, an extremely modern silhouette, stands in the new pose that seems to go with the futurist gown lines. The contours are indeed changed, gone are the broad shoulders and the whole upper part of the body seems to have diminished in size and all straight lines are dissolving into very round curves. This gown is of black sprigged taffeta, with tiny flowers of Pompadour coloring. The curious skirt has all the fulness drawn toward the front, where it hangs forward. The bolero fronts on the waist, widely separated, reveal a foamy mass of net tucks and frills. Below the belt the tunic, full and puffed under at the lower edge, gives the new width across the centre of the figure and is fastened down the front by tiny round buttons. All lines combine, from the long, loose sleeves to the unfitted skirt, to give the new loose look that gowns are acquiring because of the utter lack of seams and gores. The tiny hat helps to accent this, too, with its little overhanging lace brim ruffle and skimpy flower wreath.

In another costume the quaint "listended" tunic ruffle is used. Made of the same material as the costume, a silver gray taffeta, it is finely box pleated and shaped; the lower edge, curving down the back, is lightly wired to make it stand out from the skirt. The skirt, of one piece of material, is lapped and draped, fastening at the top by six tasselled ornaments and by tiny buttons below. This skirt falls in about the feet so that it has almost the air of trousers. A deep yoke reveals transparent white tulle that makes a good background for the necklaces worn. The shape of the hat and the pose of the aigrette are, like the whole costume, reminiscent of the costume of the Russian ballet.

On lines culled from gowns of the last century are some of the other costumes. For instance, the little white taffeta casque coat worn with a white mousseline de soie robe. This casque is charmingly embroidered with bright colored sprays. A few folds of the skirt are caught up in front by a beaded cord and tassel. The black taffeta bag carried with this suit is the favorite mode in Paris at present; bright flower sprays are embroidered on it, and it is mounted in a heavily chased silver frame. The handle of taffeta is caught by two silver slides.

A midsummer tailored suit of gray and white checked woollen material is ornamented by white tassels that give its already very up to date lines a very special chic. The basque part of the coat is [illegible]. The hat has the new large fly-away bow posed in front. One of the new sun and rain parasols is carried and a silk handbag mounted in chased silver is heavily trimmed with box pleated ribbon.

Worn over a filmy white tulle robe that has a very simple yet artistic [illegible] of underrun light blue velvet ribbon is a most marvellous wrap. Made of pink moire, it is lined with a wonderful silk that has a floral design running across it in stripes. It is bordered on the outside edge by a piping cord and on the inside [illegible] with a double pinked ruche of the silk in true [illegible] and is topped off with the charming anomaly of a tiny ermine collar.

Reminiscent of the days when the polonaise [illegible] the fashion [illegible] were fastened by numerous buttons down the front is the gown of [illegible]. It is [illegible] at the [illegible]. Under this is a pleated flounce that gives a fulness to the dress hem such as has not been seen for many seasons. [illegible] round belt of the material [illegible] new waist line that shortens the corsage of the gown and a wide [illegible] other [illegible] details [illegible] quaint lines. A large beaded velvet arm bag is carried, larger but resembling the others, and the black moire hat worn is decorated with a tulle ruffle and a large aigrette.

Brilliant reddish purple charmeuse makes a striking dress that otherwise is on the popular lines of today. The pleated lace frills have very pointed edges which give them a novel air. With this costume is worn the new round feather boa, the long ends floating down the back. A black tulle hat adorned with white aigrettes pulls well down over the head, and a white faille handbag is carried.

A little spencer coat worn with a very new shaped skirt gives a new note in tailored suits. The skirt, adjusted by radiating side pleats, is of unusual and novel shape. Both spencer and skirt are made of navy blue silk serge. Between the widely separated edges of the spencer shows the blouse of lingerie. The coat corners are embroidered and a decorative collar is of black velvet and white silk. The sleeves are not quite full length, revealing the lingerie blouse sleeves, and are edged with a lace ruffling that also runs up the side of the sleeve. The belt fastens around the rather high waist line. With this suit is worn one of the latest of the new medium straw shapes with the brim edge turned down.

CHANGES IN FASHIONABLE UNDERWEAR

UNDERWEAR changes in fashion with the variations in the shapes of gowns. A steady transition has been going on since the transparent gowns and narrow silhouette became the vogue, and, while it has become beautifully less in point of material, it has gained in elaborateness. In the past season the fashion of filmy [illegible] tops has almost done away with the armhole in the chemise and corset cover. It has been replaced by ribbons tying over the shoulders or straps made entirely of lace, for the shoulder straps, showing semi-transparently, must be as thin, light and decorative as possible. Under the filmy blouses of tulle that have [illegible] another thickness of net [illegible] corset covers of chiffon or shadow lace, with ribbons tying over the shoulders instead of sleeves, are worn. These are often trimmed with tiny chiffon flowers and are sometimes of delicate colors [illegible] belt band at the waist line. Petticoats are very scant, with a deep lace edge that seldom has a sign of a ruffle. They often have a slash to give the necessary width to step in. Crêpe de Chine is used for these skirts or white batiste. Colors also are used, the latter cribbled with lace insertions. Combination corset cover and pantalons are sometimes made of a Shadow lace material in white, pale pink or blue. It also makes short under chemises that are only the depth of the corset. The pantalons are usually tied in above the knee in bloomer fashion by a ribbon run through the hem. In some of the princess corset cover and pantalon combinations the entire garment is made of alternate rows of French embroidery and lace, each shaping from wide to narrow to shape the garment.

Some of the new nightgowns are very short, hardly reaching to ankle length. Others are slashed at each side, with the corners rounded off.

In a recently imported set of underwear of white batiste the ruffles were made of alternate rows of colored batiste and fine white Valenciennes. Whole sets of colored batiste are again fashionable. A New York city shop displayed recently a window of bright yellow underwear.

FASHION'S WHIMS.

THE smart fashions of the moment cannot be imitated easily. It is impossible to copy cheaply and in "brummagem" the toilettes created by the big dressmakers. Only the "little simple dress" for the country may still be worn by every one, and dresses such as this are quiet and very far removed from the new creations of this season—creations which are the result of science, art and taste.

Every day moiré seems to become more popular for smart toilettes, and it is made with big impressions and of an exquisite suppleness. The manufacturers have made the changeable "shot" effects which give the lustre of taffetas, and these make delicious summer costumes.

An afternoon cloak will be indispensable with some of these filmy toilettes, so the Parisian dressmakers have designed a number of varied models to meet this need. They are all wide and enveloping—easy to slip on and very little in the way. When they are made of moire satin or taffetas they are generally left unlined unless with a mousseline de soie in some vivid tint, which is striking and yet matches some detail or trimming of the toilette. Some of the practical coats of woollen material for carriage wear are lined with silk which has amusing and original painted designs in the modern style. Some even have animal designs, after the style of Rabier's drawings. Could anything well be more fantastic?

Another of fashion's caprices may be seen in the exaggeration of the little hat, which seems to become smaller every day while the toilettes have the opposite tendency to augment their width. Last year, and especially two years ago, when the sheath skirt was so popular, enormous hats were worn and the effect gave rise to the comparison between women and walking sticks or umbrellas. It seems, by the way, that the pendulum of feminine fashion swings between two styles of silhouette, the bell and the umbrella shape.

This year, however, women seem to have diverged from both these standards, but it seems that we are in a period of transition, and some oracles pretend that we are travelling in the bell direction. In the meantime one may be glad of the present fashion, since it is so graceful and artistic and so full of charming surprises.

A delightful shape is one of these little hats, with a high crown and the brim raised on one side only, which is worn well down over the face, so as almost entirely to hide one side of the profile and the other appears as a veritable surprise. Large bows are the order of the day. They are placed either at the back in large quills so as to augment the size of the hat or else they are cleverly twisted into flower like petals on a little straw "cloche," of which many examples may be seen.

Vivid tones are very popular at the moment—Empire green, cherry red, orange, pale khaki, &c.

The sober tones of the toilettes allow a certain degree of liberty in this direction, but one must be careful not to fall into an exaggeration, which might easily make one's head resemble that of a cockatoo.

PETES DROPPED FIRST GAME TO THE COCKNEYS

The Cockneys won by 8-5, and while thirteen hits were made the [illegible] Pete had [illegible] of them.

Chapdelaine broke into the game at first base again and contributed a brace of hits, two errors and two double plays out of twelve chances. Hilliard delivered a three base clout.

Boosters' Day will be observed at London to-morrow.

For Kitchen or Pulpit.

In preaching the minister had been rather long winded, when the young bride remembered that she had left the Christmas dinner in the gas range without regulating the flame. She hastily wrote a note and slipped it to her husband, who was an usher. He, thinking it was intended for the minister, calmly walked up and laid it on the pulpit.

The minister paused in the midst of his sermon and took the note with a smile, which changed into a terrific frown as he read:

"Please hurry home and shut off the gas!"—Ladies' Home Journal.

A DARING SCOUT.

His Quick Wit Fooled the Federals and Saved His Neck.

Wat Bowie, a scout for the Confederate army, was a young Maryland lawyer at the time the great conflict began. After months of successful work he was captured and taken to Washington and sentenced to be hanged. He made his escape, and in "On Hazardous Service" W. G. Beymer tells of the weeks that he was followed by secret service men and small details of Federal cavalry and how by his very audacity and quick wit he escaped recapture.

He blundered into a camp of them one morning at dawn and saw instantly that retreat was impossible; they were ready to open fire with a dozen revolvers. Without hesitation he strode up to the men and shouted indignantly:

"You make mighty free with my rails! With all this wood round you did not need to burn my fences." He seemed very angry.

"Who are you?" a corporal stammered.

"The owner of the rails, of course!" And then, apparently somewhat mollified, he went on: "Well, well! War is war, but don't do any more damage than you can help, boys." He sat down with them to their breakfast and chatted with them pleasantly. One of them asked if he had seen Wat Bowie and described him accurately. At the description they all stared at him and moved uneasily, in doubt as to what was to be done. He tallied with the description in every respect. But his insolence in walking up to them and upbraiding them for burning "his" rails made them doubt their own eyes.

"Why, yes," he drawled. "Wat Bowie was in these parts last week. I know him well. They say he has gone to the north part of the county, where he hails from. I don't know, though, as to that."

Then rising and stretching himself he looked down into their doubt filled eyes and laughed at them—laughed in their very faces—and said:

"I'm glad you all met me on m' own land. You might have made trouble for me elsewhere, for they all say I look like him a lot. Goodby, boys! Good luck!"

AUSTIN'S EGOTISM.

It Cropped Out Strong In Comparing Himself With Tennyson.

Austin might almost be said to rival James McNeil Whistler as having given rise to humorous anecdotes—with this difference, that while the anecdotes of Whistler exploited his wit or his superb arrogance ("Why lug in Velasquez?") those of Austin were based on little more than the fatuous self esteem which enabled him (if ability is the word) in 1870, in his volume of so called criticism, "The Poetry of the Period," to attack Tennyson, Browning, Matthew Arnold and Swinburne as if the author of the book were the superior of the whole pack of them.

It was apparently not this book, but a later criticism written in 1885, which led Austin to boast of his friendship with Swinburne and to declare that though he had been forced to criticise Swinburne, the latter had not permitted it to disturb their relations. It proved that Austin's criticism had attracted so little attention that Swinburne had not even heard of it, and when, following Austin's boast, he took pains to read it he became very angry and would have nothing to do with Austin.

It was the same fatuity which led Austin in his autobiography to advertise his own ultra respectability as compared with the possible "low tone" of others. Tennyson might be acquitted perhaps of once using an improper word in conversation, but Tennyson certainly smoked, Austin never.—Springfield Republican.

Weaving In Shadow.

In one of the famous lace shops of Brussels there are certain rooms devoted to the weaving of the finest and most delicate lace patterns. These rooms are entirely darkened except for the light from one small window falling directly upon the pattern. There is only one lacemaker in the room, and she sits where the narrow stream of light falls upon the thread she is weaving. Lace is always more delicately and beautifully woven, it is said, when the worker is in the dark and only her pattern is in the light.

Canning Tomatoes.

"Our sporting editor took the place of the 'Home Hints' editor yesterday."

"Anything happen?"

"A lady who wrote asking how to can tomatoes was told to get an old can and piece of string, then to catch her tomato and to proceed the same as in canning a dog."—Houston Post.

Baby Talk.

Was there ever a baby that said "choo-choo cars" without being taught to say it? One would be credulous indeed to believe it. Baby talk is ordinarily the mature product of persons ranging in ages from twenty to seventy. They only put it off on the babies.—Kansas City Star.

The Art of Talking Back.

"I hardly know how to answer you," said she when the soft voiced widower proposed.

"I would not let that worry me," said he soothingly. "That is something a woman learns perfectly soon after marriage."—Cincinnati Enquirer.

BOWSER'S SCOOP.

Plans to Make Robber Trusts Take to Tall Timbers.

BUT EDITORS CAN'T SEE IT.

Instead of Advocating Great Scheme to Knock Food Barons Sky High Newspapers "Pan" Bowser—Bananas and Water For Dinner.

By M. QUAD.

[Copyright, 1913, by Associated Literary Press.]

DURING the night Mr. Bowser had sighed and groaned and grunted and kicked around more than usual, and when he came down to breakfast with a do or die look on his face, Mrs. Bowser realized that something would shortly be doing. He waited two or three minutes before saying:

"Mrs. Bowser, we have fried eggs for breakfast."

"Yes?"

"There is an egg trust that is robbing the people."

"I know it."

"We have fried sausages."

"Yes?"

"There is a sausage trust that is grinding the public to dust."

"I've read of it."

"We have pancakes."

"And they are very nice."

"But there is a buckwheat trust without a soul."

"I didn't know it."

"And we have coffee, Mrs. Bowser."

"And isn't it nice?"

"There is a coffee trust composed of men without the decency of highway robbers."

"I was reading of it yesterday."

"And we have sugar."

"Yes?"

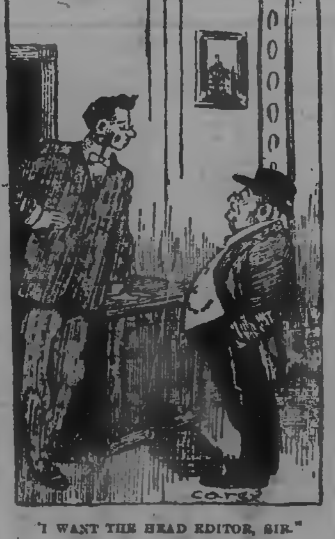
"The sugar trust still lives and robs and swindles."

"I see."

"And we have cream, Mrs. Bowser."

"But we have to have."

"And we get it from the milk trust, and the milk trust is composed of criminals. They are pocketing millions of plunder."



"I WANT THE HEAD EDITOR, SIR."

"It ought to be stopped."

"And we have butter, Mrs. Bowser."

"Yes; it cost 45 cents a pound."

Everything a Trust.

"And it wouldn't have cost above 30 but for the butter trust. It's worse than picking our pockets. Trust—trust—everything is a trust. Not a thing to eat but what a trust robs us on."

"But it seems to me that the government ought to step in and take some action to protect consumers."

"The government—humph!"

"But won't it?"

"No!"

"But—but"—

"But, by the Eternal, Mrs. Bowser, there is a power that will step in and stop it!"

And Mr. Bowser hammered on the table with his fist and swelled out his chest and puffed out his cheeks and looked as dangerous as a grizzly bear driven away from his dinner.

"And that power is"—

"Right here, Mrs. Bowser—right here at the table sitting opposite you! I've been thinking matters over for a month, but it was only at midnight last night that I came to a conclusion. Yes, sir, I am the power and the man. In twenty-four hours I'll knock every food trust in the United States higher than Gilderoy's kite!"

"But I don't see how you can do it," replied Mrs. Bowser.

"No, you don't, but it is easily explained. I'll accomplish a great and beneficial work if you'll only stand by me."

"Why, of course I will."

"Very well. What would become of the meat trust if none of us ate meat?"

"It would have to go out of business."

"And if we lop off eggs and pancakes and butter and coffee?"

"The same with those trusts."

Bananas and Cold Water.

"Mrs. Bowser, you are a level headed woman, and I am proud of you. You shall share the fame with me. For dinner this evening we will have bananas and cold water. We will have the same for breakfast and dinner again, and by that time the trusts will be knocked endways. Just as soon as they hear what Bowser is up to they will wilt like a cabbage leaf in the sun."

"But isn't there a banana trust?" was asked.

"There used to be, but it has dissolved. There is no trust in drinking water—only graft in getting it to us. Bananas and water for a few meals. Are you with me?"

"I am."

"Then I am a sure winner. I shall go straight from here to the newspapers and the Associated Press. By high noon it will be known in every city, town and hamlet in the United States that Mr. and Mrs. Bowser are hot foot after the different food trusts. This is the first scheme I have ever gone into that you didn't try your best to discourage me."

"I'm sure I hope you'll succeed, but I wish you'd stop and see what the druggist says. I'm almost certain he'll think as I do, and to have us both on your side will give you lots of courage."

Biggest Thing Ever.

The druggist stood at his door watching his boy sweep the sidewalk, and his greeting was:

"Hello, Bowser! Got a new scheme on hand?"

"Yes, and the biggest thing I ever tackled. Mrs. Bowser is with me heart and soul in this. I am going to bust the food trusts."

"Jerusha!"

"Sure's you live. Got the tools to do it with."

And he gave the particulars and added:

"Could anything be more simple and effective?"

"Not on your life! Bowser, it's great. It's fierce. It's a ten times winner. My meals after this, until you bring the trusts to time, will consist of bananas and water. Go right along and see the editors. Any one of them not willing to help you shall have his sheet boycotted."

Mr. Bowser had springs in his heels and a June day smile on his face as he boarded the car. For the next five hours he was visiting newspaper offices. In no case did he get as high up as the editor. He was stopped by man or boy, who asked his name and business, and the formula was ever the same:

"My name is Bowser, sir, as you ought to know."

"Never heard of you in my life before. Whom do you wish to see?"

"The editor."

"Fashion or sporting?"

Seeing the Editor.

"Neither one, sir. I am not here to ask about the latest thing in corsets or whether John L. Sullivan is still living."

"Oh, I thought you was."

"I want the head editor, sir. I have the biggest item for him he ever secured."

"Another Titanic gone to the bottom?"

"No, sir."

"Banker stole a million dollars?"

"No."

"Brooklyn bridge to be dynamited?"

"A bigger thing than any of those, sir. I am going to knock out all the food trusts!"

"I see."

"And you want to take me to the editor at once. You can see what a scoop it is."

"Y-e-s. Well, the boss editor hasn't got down yet. He adopted an orphan from an asylum yesterday, and it showed its gratitude by having a case of colic this morning. Can't you call later on?"

"No, sir, I can't. It is the business of your boss editor to be here, and I shall go to some other paper and let it scoop the hair off his head!"

Bowser Gets Threatening.

"I wish you wouldn't. It's that durned orphan, you see. It orter be agin the law for 'em to have colic. Let's see. Name of Bowser. Short, stocky man. No hair—no whiskers. Both enthusiastic and aggressive. Going to knock the food trusts out. Big job, but he looks as fiercely in earnest as a man digging out a rabbit. I'll hand this memoranda to the boss when he comes in, and he'll probably telephone you to canter right over."

"Meanwhile," replied Mr. Bowser, "if you'll canter out to the street with me I'll knock your block off!"

He had visited three evening papers, but, as he didn't get to see the boss editors, he didn't suppose anything would be printed and didn't buy any copies. It was Mrs. Bowser who got on to the racket and had something to show him when he arrived. Before breaking the news she said:

"Well, what have you accomplished?"

"I have set the ball a-rolling."

"Good! You mustn't mind what the yellow journals say."

"You bet your life I shan't!"

"Have you seen these items? Of course the editors belong to the food trusts. Read them and we will then go down to our dinner of bananas and water."

Stories of the "Scoop."

The articles when consolidated read about as follows:

"An intoxicated individual, who gave the name of Bowser, tried to force his way into the editorial rooms today to give the editor a scoop. Said scoop consisted of the statement that he (Bowser) was going to down every food trust in the country inside of twenty-four hours. His friends ought to keep a better watch over him."

"You don't mind, do you, dear?" said Mrs. Bowser as he dropped the papers and stared at her with bulging eyes.

No answer.

"The bananas wait."

Mr. Bowser rose up and staggered to the door and down the steps and into the dusk of the spring night. The bananas and water and Mrs. Bowser waited until the clock struck 10, and then the latter turned off the gas and went to bed whispering:

"Poor Mr. Bowser. He may have been driven to some chop house and eaten until he died!"

HELPLESS CRIPPLE FROM RHEUMATISM

Toronto Lady Took "Fruit-a-tives" And Cured Herself.

4 Home Place, Toronto,
Dec. 15th. 1909

"I was a helpless cripple from Rheumatism for nearly a year. All down the right side, the pain was dreadful and I could not move for the agony. I was treated by two physicians without benefit. I saw "Fruit-a-tives" advertised and decided to try them. After taking one box, I was much better.

When I had taken three boxes, I could use my arm and the pain was almost gone.

After taking five boxes, I was entirely well again. The cure of my case by "Fruit-a-tives" was indeed splendid because all the doctors failed to even relieve me. "Fruit-a-tives" cured me."

GETTING DOWN TO FACTS.

Some Cross Questioning Necessary to Ascertain All of Them.

"WHERE are you going to spend the summer?"

"Same place as last year, according to my present plans."

"Pretty good place, eh?"

"Fine!"

"Have clean rooms?"

"Yes."

"Plenty to eat?"

"All I could get away with."

"Many other boarders?"

"Not any; a decidedly exclusive place."

"Chickens or pigs or such bother you?"

"Didn't notice 'em."

"Huh! Must 'a' been swell! Any mosquitoes?"

"Well, one or two, maybe, but not many."

"Were you near the water?"

"Yes. Near water, links, tennis courts; everything handy."

"Must 'a' cost a pile."

"No more'n it cost me in town in winter."

"Get fresh fruits?"

"Every day."

"Any scraps with farmers?"

"Didn't have one."

"Charge you for things you didn't get?"

"Not when I was looking."

"Well—you didn't tell me where you spent last summer."

"Why, I stayed at home."—Judge.

Gay Frocks For Children.

The fashion for Bulgarian colorings is as popular as ever, and its conquest is complete as regards some little frocks for children suitable for the spring.

Made of fine crash, cut in the Magyar shape, the hem and sleeves bordered with scarlet, the front embroidered in bright colors and the whole finished with a scarlet woolen girdle and tassels, they are delightful as play frocks and will wash well.

Little Dutch bonnets of the same material and worked in the same tints are the prettiest adjuncts to these small frocks.

SOCIETY

BRIDGENAW—LEVASSEUR

A very pretty wedding was solemnized at the Church of the Sacred Heart this morning, when Rev. J. V. McCauley united in the holy bonds of matrimony Miss Leada Levasseur, oldest daughter of Mr. D. Levasseur Romaine street, and John Bridgenaw of this city.

The groom was attended by his brother, Mr. Daniel Bridgenaw, while Miss E. Ranger assisted the bride.

After a short honeymoon, the happy couple will reside in this city.

SMALLEY—MOORE.

"Mooreland" the charming home of Mr. and Mrs H. M. Moore, Aylmer street, north, was the scene of an exceptionally pretty wedding on Saturday afternoon, July 26th, when their younger daughter, Tura, was united in the bonds of matrimony to Mr. Chas. Edward Smalley, of Port Arthur, mechanical superintendent of the Port Arthur News, and a son of Mr. and Mrs. Smalley, of Stratford. The nuptial knot was tied by Rev. Mr. Ayarrf, of Toronto, an intimate friend of the bride, promptly at 2 o'clock. The wedding march was played by Prof. Waldon of the Toronto Conservatory of Music, cousin of the bride. The bridegroom and the best man, Mr. Victor Ramsey of Toronto, entered the room and took their places before a pyramid of palms and ferns. Then came the bridesmaid, Miss M. V. Moore, only sister of the bride, looking strikingly handsome in a costume of pale pink satin draped and trimmed with lace and seed pearls, and a picture hat, carrying a large sheaf of pink roses. Then came little Miss Ada Lane, cousin of the bride in a pale blue silk dress with an overskirt of shadow lace and satin trimmings, tripping daintily backward, strewing flowers before the sweet little bride, fairy-like in her loveliness, who followed, leaning on the arm of her father. She was gowned in a magnificent robe of white duchess satin and train, trimmed with seed pearls, with an overdress of silk embroidered Brussel net, with a tulle veil and sherf of orange blossoms and a sheaf of white roses.

After the ceremony and the young couple had been congratulated, and the register signed, several solos were rendered by Mrs. Bruce Hughes and Mr. George Mulligan. Afterward cafe luncheon was served, the bridesmaid's table being most beautifully decorated with the flower scheme being in white and green. White satin ribbons draped from the chandelier formed the centre.

Some seventy guests sat down to the luncheon. The toast to the bride by the best man was responed to by the Rev. Mr. Ayarrf. Mr. Mulligan toasted the hostess and host, which was replied to by Mr. Waldon. A short speech was made by Mr. Crossby of Toronto, representing the bride's colleagues in the Civil Service of the Legislature. Telegrams of congratulations were received from friends of the happy couple in Medicine Hat Moosejaw and Saskatoon.

The bride's mother was gowned in a black satin dress, trimmed with lace and applique. The groom's mother wore a handsome dress of black silk.

The bride's popularity was attested by the many beautiful and costly wedding presents she received. Among them were a solid silver service from the employes of the License Department of the Legislature and a cut glass water set from the members of her Sunday School Class. A costly dinner set from her parents and a substantial cheque from the parents of the groom and many other cheques from uncles were also concluded in the gifts.

The groom's gift to the bride was a dainty watch-topped bracelet in solid gold; to the bridesmaid a gold ring with settings of amythests and diamonds, and the best man a beautiful scarf pin with an emerald setting.

The happy couple, amid showers of good wishes, left for their new home in Port Arthur, going by the way of Toronto and Stratford, and sailing from Sarnia per steamer Harmonica. The bride's travelling suit was a tailored suit of tan colored broadcloth with a tagal hat to match.

McILLMOYLE—LOGAN.

A quiet but pretty wedding was solemnized Monday morning at the Knox Church Manse, by Rev. H. J. Keith, when Miss Noma Logan, of this city, was united in the bonds of matrimony to Mr. O. R. McIllmoyle of Saskatoon, Sask.

The bride and groom were unattended and left on the 7.45 C.P.R. for Saskatoon, where they will reside

Mr. McIllmoyle is connected with the Saskatoon branch of Barrie's Limited.

MORRIS—WALKER.

On Monday morning, July 28th, in the Chapel, Trinity College School, Port Hope, Miss Elma Walker, younger daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. F. Walker, Armour street, Port Hope, was married to Mr. Francis J. A. Morris, M.A., for twelve years Classical Master at T.C.S., now of Peterborough Collegiate Institute.

The ceremony was performed by Rev. Canon Rigby, Head Master.

After a wedding trip to Toronto and Algonquin Park Mr. and Mrs. Morris will take up their residence at 709 Aylmer street, Peterborough, Ontario.

HUPPE—WHALEY.

A very pretty wedding was solemnized this morning at St. Peter's Cathedral, when the Rev. Fergus O'Brien united in the holy bonds of matrimony Mr. Frank Huppe, to Miss Molly Whaley. The bride was assisted by her sister, Miss L. Whaley, while Mr. M. Whaley attended the groom.

The happy couple left via the G.T.R. 7.10 for a short wedding trip, after which they will reside in this city.

Mr. W. B. Choate of Aurora, Ill., has returned home after a visit in the city.

Mr. and Mrs. A. Clark of Toronto, spent the week end in the city.

Miss A. Armstrong accompanied by Master Hector Neil, left to-day to visit friends in Fort Dodge, Iowa.

Mrs. Learmouth has returned home after spending a very pleasant time at Rice Lake with Mr. and Mrs. Parker, at their farm, and also at their island at Rice Lake.

Miss B. B. Ross, of this city, is spending her vacation at Muksoka Lakes.

Mr. R. Ruddy, K.C., has returned from Kawartha Park, Stony Lake. Mrs. Ruddy and children are remaining at the cottage.

Miss Kathleen Moore sang Ashford's "My Task" delightfully at the Sunday morning service in St. John's Church during the offertory. Tone and enunciation were very good, and gave pormise that the young singer is steadily advancing in her vocal studies.

Mr. and Mrs Albert Sandford, Stewart St., entertained the young friends of their daughter, Ruby, to a birthday party at Inverlea Park, on Monday afternoon. Miss Ruby celebrated her fourth birthday and about forty children were present. On the return from the Park, the entire party had ice cream at Boorman's.

Miss L. Hawn, Miss E. Hawn, Miss Fee, Mr. V. Ramsay, Miss Robb, Miss L. Eyre, Mr S. J. Crosby, Rev. J. Aycarst, Mr and Mrs. F. E. Walton and Mrs. G. W. Roak, of Toronto, also Mr. and Mrs J. Smalley, Miss P. Smalley and Mr. H. Cole, of Stratford, were in the city on Saturday attending the Smalley—Moore wedding.

Word has been received in town from Canon Davidson from Selwyn College, Cambridge, where he is in attendance at a series of important lectures. He reports being greatly benefited in every way by his trip so far. One Sunday he prachd in Hartlebury Church (also the Chapel of the Bishop of Worcester) and having received the unexpected honor of being asked to preach in York Minster, he will do so on the 3rd of August. He asks to be kindly remembered to all friends.

TOO LATE FOR THIS AFTERNOON

Owing to late arrival in the city The Tiny Town Company did not give a matinee this afternoon. The evening performance will be on at schedule time, and also matinee Wednesday afternoon and regular performance in the evening. The little people will drive through the streets of the city at 6 p.m. in their own carriages. See them.

LOCAL NEWS ITEMS

Last evening at 5.15 the fire brigade were summoned to the dump on Townsend street. It took an hour to put the fire out.

Mr. N. Stabler, of this city is an uncle of Joseph Yorke, who was drowned at Lindsay on Monday. Police Chief Thompson was notified of the accident last evneing and requested to communicate with Mr. Stabler.

ONE OF THE NEW PLAYERS HERE

Mr. W. Dyer Late of the Devonshire Territorials Joins 57th Band

One of the new acquisitions for the 57th Regiment Band in the person of Mr. W. Dyer, for years a member of the celebrated band of the 4th Battalion, Devonshire Territorials, arrived in the city yesterday from England and attended a rehearsal of the band last night. Mr. Dyer is a first class tympany player and also doubles on string bass, and will be a decided acquisition to the band and the new orchestra which is proposed to organize in the near future. The band management and the friends who are interesting themselves in their behalf are determined to present to the public early next year the best concert band this city ever produced, and when it is taken into consideration the splendid reputation the 57th has already won for itself it will be readily admitted that the management have set themselves no mean task. The other new additions to the ranks, referred to in a recent issue, are expected to arrive early next month. Notwithstanding the intense heat, over thirty members attended last night's rehearsal and put in two hours solid work under the direction of Prof. Gliddon.

SUDDEN DEATH OF MR. JOHN BELCHER JR.

Prostrated by the Heat, He Passed Away Shortly Afterwards

Yesterday's intense heat claimed a victim in the person of Mr. John Belcher, son of Mr. John Belcher, 269 Edinburgh street. The deceased, who was thirty-four years of age was walking home from their cottage, near Gannon's Narrows, and when coming to the Ennismore side of the Ennismore bridge, several persons saw him staggering, and just before he came to the bridge he fell. He was removed to the house of Mr. Wm. Telford and passed away in the course of a few minutes. Dr. Hammond and the father were sent for but they arrived after he died.

The unfortunate young man was well known in this city and his sudden demise will be regretted by his many friends.

He is survived by his sorrowing parents, also two sisters, Misses Flora and May both at home.

Funeral particulars will be announced later.

Charity Board

The Charity Board in session last night, transacted general business. A man and his wife will be deported, probably this week.

Creamed oatmeal is boiled for an hour, then rubbed through a hair-sieve. Add a little milk and cook for one-half hour in double boiler. Serve with cream.

MORE SPEED AND LESS EXPENSE IN HANDLING COAL

Peterboro Fuel and Cartage Co. Have Up-to-date Equipment

The necessity of having work done more quickly and more satisfactorily, has necessitated the replacing of labor by machinery and in doing this, the Peterboro Fuel and Cartage Company have installed one of the finest coal elevators and conveyors that can be found in the country. This apparatus enables the company to place coal in any corner or spot of their large coal sheds which are some 295 feet long and about 35 feet wide. These sheds are situated on Bethune st., south of the railway diamond. It cost in the neighborhood of $2,000 and it is said that it will pay for itself in one year.

The coal cars of to-day are unloaded from the bottom, so any apparatus to unload the "black diamonds" must work from underneath the car. The elevator is operated in this manner: Under the car, or rather under the rails, and over which the car is placed, is a large pit which slopes from the outside to the side next the shed. This pit is some five feet deep and is lined with sheet iron. The elevator which is some 25 feet high, is an endless cable with baskets, attached every two feet. When it revolves the baskets fill from the pit at the bottom and when they go over the top they empty in a large box.

Running each way from this box is a trough and the coal is sent along this by means of an endless cable, on which round flat castings are placed some twenty inches apart. These castings shove the coal along and about every ten feet is a trap door in the bottom of the trough which can be opened and the coal dropped at that particular point. A ten horse-power G.G.E. motor is used.

The average cost of unloading the 8000 tons that this company handled last year, was 20 cents per ton, and the scarcity of labor has often caused them to pay rent fees for cars. This is done away with as the machine unloads a car containing between 35 and 40 tons, in an hour and a half.

FOREIGNER WITH REVOLVER ASSESSED $20 AND COSTS

At Police Court this morning two young Frenchmen, whom the Chief said had come from Montreal, were charged with trespassing on the C.P.R. bridge.

They were remanded for one week, and the Chief will make some inquiries. They were arrested by Special Officer Weller, of the C.P.R., who was not in court.

TEN DAYS ON THE HILL.

"Edward Shields, you are charged with being drunk in a public place. Are you guilty?"

Edward didn't deny the charge, so he goes to the hill for ten days at his own request.

Shields had a badly bruised optic, and looked as though he needed care.

CARRIED A REVOLVER.

A young foreigner was charged with having had a revolver in his possession while trespassing on the C.P.R. bridge.

Through his interpreter the prisoner said he didn't know he was trespassing. He admitted having the revolver. He didn't know the nature of his offence in carrying the revolver. He had some money with him, and on that account carried the revolver. He had been in the country seven weeks.

The prisoner admitted it was against the law to carry a revolver in his own country.

"The minimum fine is $20 or three months in jail," explained Acting Magistrate Rush.

The prisoner stated his willingness to pay the fine, which, with the costs, totalled $25.75.

The revolver was confiscated.

The young fellow had plenty of money. He had $15 in Canadian bills and $300 in Russian money, and he has also considerable funds in the Post Office Savings Department.

BILLS THAT WILL WASH

Woman Inventor has Found Marvellous Waterproof Process.

LONDON, July 30.—The washable bank note has arrived. Mrs. Ernest Hart has invented a system of waterproofing which is equally applicable to silks weighing one-half ounce to the square yard and to heavy canvasses weighing two pounds to the square yard. When applied to cinematograph screens clearer pictures are shown. When the process is applied to airship covers they are made impervious to hydrogen and to the weather, and further they are invisible in the air. Ropes and hawsers, it was said yesterday, could be made unwettable and unsprinkable and would float. Bank notes could be washed and disinfected and forgery made an impossibility by this system, which has been subjected to severe test.

Manitoba Wheat Crop.

WINNIPEG, July 30.—The Provincial Department of Agriculture estimates the wheat crop for Manitoba at 65,003,212 bushels. The acreage last year under wheat was 2,823,362, and the yield 58,433,579. The acreage this year is 3,141,218.

Joseph Burke, provincial immigrant agent, is at Quebec meeting British harvest excursionists sent out from the offices in the Old Country.

To Organize Cartage System.

OTTAWA, July 30.—The Ottawa Board of Trade announced yesterday that it will co-operate with the Canadian Manufacturers' Association and the Boards of Toronto and Montreal towards the organization of a huge Canadian cartage system to handle freight at terminal points.

NO HALF MEASURES

This Suffragette Refused to Leave Jail Unless Pardoned.

LONDON, July 30.—A curious scene was witnessed in the West End of London last night. The authorities of Holloway Jail desired to liberate under the "cat and mouse" act a suffragette hunger-striker, Mrs. Mary Wyman. The woman refused to leave the prison, however, unless she was unconditionally liberated, whereupon she was sent in a taxicab in charge of wardresses to a West End nursing home. Arriving there she resolutely refused to enter the home and sat outside from afternoon until midnight, surrounded by a small crowd of sympathizers and curious onlookers.

Despite all the persuasion of the police, who were warned by a doctor that Mrs. Wyman was in a very dangerous condition, she still refused to move until, she declared, "the Government undertook its responsibilities." Finding their efforts unavailing the police brought an ambulance to the nursing home at midnight and removed Mrs. Wyman to a police station and thence to the Kensington Infirmary. At the infirmary Mrs. Wyman declared that she would continue her hunger-strike.

PAMPHLETS STOPPED.

Orangemen Put Prompt Ban on Inflammatory Literature.

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld., July 30.—Decorations and illuminations have been carried out on an elaborate scale in the Victoria, Orange and Methodist halls for the Orange Convention. The attempt of an itinerant pedlar to arouse hostility through the circulation of inflammatory literature was put to an end by the prompt action of Provincial Grand Master Squires and members of the provincial grand lodge, who closed the doors.

To-day a mammoth procession through the city is scheduled to take place, when the delegates will be received by Gov. Davidson. The Masonic Club has extended privileges to all visitors during their stay.

$75,000 Jewel Robbery.

NEW YORK, July 30.—Jewels valued at $75,000, including a rope of pearls worth $60,000, were stolen from the home of C. C. Rumsey, at Narragansett Pier, during the twenty-four hours ending Sunday night. Mrs. Rumsey was a daughter of the late E. H. Harriman. The theft was made known yesterday. The rope of pearls was given to Mrs. Rumsey by her mother.

Prison Farm Asked For.

TORONTO, July 30.—Hon. W. J. Hanna, Provincial Secretary, received a deputation from Elgin and five other western counties asking for the establishment of a district prison farm similar to that at Guelph, but on a scale with the needs of the district to be served. They asked that action be taken this fall with a view to making preparations to dispense in due course with the local jails.

Hon. Mr. Hanna took notes of statements made by the different speakers, and promised consideration. He stated, however, that he was not at present prepared to commit himself to the proposition.

Prisoners Make Escape.

KINGSTON, July 30.—R. Leyes and R. Armor, locked up for drunkenness in the corridor at the police station, pried open an old trap door leading to the basement of the City Hall, and made their escape.

AN ONTARIO HIGHWAYS COMMISSION IS NAMED

Messrs. Charles Magrath, W. A. McLean and A. M. Rankin, M.P.P., Are Selected For the Huge Task of Developing the Highways of the Province — Mr. Magrath Is the Probable Chairman of the Board.

TORONTO, July 30.—Ontario's new Public Roads and Highways Commission was appointed by an order-in-Council passed yesterday, and the step marks the inauguration of the extensive good roads projects of the Whitney Government.

Charles A. Magrath, C.E., William A. McLean, C.E.; and A. M. Rankin have been appointed commissioners to investigate and study all matters relating to the construction and maintenance of public roads and highways, and for such purposes to visit such localities as they may see fit; to note the results obtained by different systems, routes, schemes and methods of construction and maintenance, as well as methods of financing the same, and to report generally thereon; also to report and recommend for adoption a scheme or plan for the construction, improvement and maintenance of the public roads and highways in the Province of Ontario.

Mr. Magrath is chairman of the Canadian section of the International Joint Commission which deals with matters relating to the boundary waters between Canada and the United States, and is a civil engineer of distinction and large experience.

Mr. McLean is the well known highway engineer of the Department of Public Works.

Mr. Rankin is the representative of Frontenac in the Provincial Legislature, and has been president of the Good Roads Association of Ontario.

Charles Alexander Magrath, ex-M.P. for Medicine Hat, will, it is expected, become chairman of the commission. He is a native of Augusta, Ont., where he was born on April 22, 1860. He has been a resident of the Canadian Northwest for the past thirty years.

Mr. Magrath was a member of the Northwest Legislative Assembly for two terms. He was elected to the House of Commons at the general election of 1908, and defeated in the general election of 1911.

The task before the commission is colossal. Many millions will be involved for Northern Ontario, it is estimated that ten millions would be a moderate amount for the new commission to recommend for expenditures necessary to modernize and complete the public roads of the older parts of the province.

The policy was indicated in the speech from the throne read by his honor the Lieutenant-Governor, at the opening of the Ontario Legislature on Feb. 3. The Government then announced that a plan was under consideration for the construction of highways throughout the province, and that the Legislature would next session be asked to vote the necessary sums to carry the policy into effect.

CIRCUS ANIMALS STAMPEDED

Horses and Elephants Terrified by Thunderstorm

Canadian Press Despatch.

Winnipeg, July 30—Terrified by heavy thunderstorms last night, five elephants and thirty horses in a travelling circus broke from their quarters and ran through the main tent. They trampled down the seats and tore through the canvas into the open after incidentally demolishing several smaller tents and arousing residents of nearby streets. The whole herd of stampeded animals were rounded up and led back to their tethers.

MOIR A MODEL PRISONER.

Warden Gilmour Believes Him Perfectly Sane—Works Hard.

TORONTO, July 30.—Seen yesterday regarding the movement for the release of Private Moir, who is serving a life sentence in the Central Prison, Warden Dr. Gilmour said the question was one for the provincial authorities, not Ottawa. Asked if he considered Moir insane, the warden said: "There is no question as to his sanity." Moir is reported to be a model prisoner, and has been working in the machine shop. "He works as hard as if he were paid for it," is the way the warden described his industry.

Moir was only saved from the gallows for his shooting of Sergt. Lloyd at London by a plea of insanity. He escaped from Hamilton Asylum and was sent to the Central Prison.

Children Show Heroism.

BAYFIELD, July 30.—When Graham Ross, aged 14, of Goderich, went to the assistance of a boy of the same age who had got beyond his depth while bathing, he was grasped around the neck and both boys went down. Margaret McTaggart, 14 years of age, of Clinton, bravely went to the rescue, and she, too, was in danger of losing her life, when Johnny Ross, aged 13, managed to rescue her. By this time his brother had the original victim under control, and brought him out.

NORMAL SCHOOL ENTRANCE EXAMS.

Principal Kenner and the teachers of the Peterboro Collegiate Institute are to be congratulated upon the splendid result of their work as shown in the report of the examination for entrance into the Normal Schools which is published in another column.

It will be seen that only two pupils failed out of a total of fourteen who tried, while half of those who passed came off with honors.

Peterboro ought to be proud of such a good showing by its young citizens, and great credit is due to the Principal and his staff of teachers, for the results are the best testimony to the thoroughness and efficiency of their labors.

AFRAID TO GO HOME AFTER HOURS

Two Young Girls Were Found in Allen Gardens

Canadian Press Despatch.

Toronto, July 30—The story in a morning paper in regard to the kidnapping of Beatrice Winder and Gladys Cunningham is untrue. The two girls having been sent on an errand loitered about until they feared to return home and were found in Allen Gardens at a late hour in the evening. The story of the women and automobile and the abduction are fiction.

BLAMES DISEASE ON FLIES.

Doctor Also Declares Against Sandwiches.

ST. LOUIS, July 30.—Dr. E. D. Saunders, a specialist in children's diseases, Monday night told 150 members of the St. Louis Medical Society that he had proved infantile paralysis to be a fly-borne disease, originating with chickens and transmitted to other animals and, he believes, to children, in the larvae of flies. He gave the first demonstration of his theory.

Heating of all food which flies may have touched was urged by Dr. Saunders as a preventive of infection from the larvae. A temperature of 150 degrees, he said, was sufficient to sterilize the larvae.

He declared sandwiches to be "the worst kind of food, often swarming with larvae," and said picnics should be put under the supervision of the board of health. Children, he said, should be taught to hate and fear flies.

LEADERS INDISPOSED.

Both the Premier and Sir Wilfrid Are Under the Weather.

OTTAWA, July 30.—The health and general physical condition of Premier Borden are still far from being recovered from the strain of the last strenuous session of Parliament, and it is not considered probable that Ottawa will see much of him until well on in the autumn.

The latest report is to the effect that he will not stay at Ottawa when he returns from St. Andrews, N.B., but will at once proceed to the Muskoka lakes for a further period of rest and convalescence. He is expected to leave the lakes some time in September.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier has been confined to his house for the past two days with a slight indisposition, due to the combined effects of the present intense heat wave at the capital and his somewhat trying journey from Toronto during the heat wave there. A few days of quiet rest at his own residence, however, is the only prescription needed, and the Liberal leader expects to be at work again in his office in a day or so.

ERIE BEACH A MECCA.

Crowds Celebrating Peace Day Are Estimated at 50,000.

FORT ERIE, July 30.—No event in the history of Fort Erie in the past century has aroused the interest and enthusiasm of its residents and those for many miles surrounding it as the celebration of Peace Day, which is held at Erie Beach to-day, through the energetic efforts of the general committee of Fort Erie in charge of the events and the co-operation of its sister villages the affair has assumed an aspect of considerable international interest.

It is expected that the attendance will reach 50,000 before the day is over. Nearly every village and city in Welland County, Ont., has declared the day as an official holiday, and its thousands of inhabitants are making Erie Beach their rendezvous today. The event is being conducted to crystallize sentiment favorable toward the erection of a bridge between Fort Erie and Buffalo to commemorate 100 years of peace between English-speaking peoples.

SOME JAPS JOIN REBELS

One Hundred Officers Said to be Assisting Southern Chinese.

LONDON, July 30.—The southerners in China, profiting by their earlier mistakes, are repairing defects and getting in large supplies of ammunitions, says The Daily Telegraph's Pekin correspondent.

"A long and wearisome war seems certain. I understand a hundred Japanese officers will join the Canton army, which consists of 40,000 good troops."

The Daily Telegraph Shanghai correspondent reports that the native city there is on fire in three places as a result of the terrific cannonading of the arsenal. The despatch bears no date and probably refers to Monday's fighting.

The correspondent had an interview with Dr Wu Ting Fang, former Chinese Minister to Washington, who thinks President Yuan Shi Kai "uncompromising policy" dangerous, but blames both sides to the warfare for rejecting proposals for a compromise. In another interview with the correspondent Dr. Sun Yat Sen declared that he would leave southward in a few days on business. He was quite unconcerned, according to the correspondent, with a settlement of the war or the threat of expulsion against him. He said he regarded Wu Ting Fang's peace mission as hopeless.

WILSON TRYING TO INDUCE PRESIDENT HUERTA TO RETIRE

Oscar Braniff, Mexican Ruler's Confidential Adviser, Has Hurried Home, Probably to Advise Huerta That Peace Is Impossible Unless Latter Steps Out—Effort Made to Select a Provisional President.

WASHINGTON, July 30.—All the developments in the Mexican situation in Washington yesterday were confirmatory of the belief that efforts are being made to bring about a restoration of normal conditions in Mexico through inducing President Huerta to retire from office and permit the installation of a provisional President who will be satisfactory to both the warring factions. Friends of Huerta who have been making an investigation in Washington have ascertained that President Wilson is opposed to the recognition of the Huerta Government on account of the circumstances through which it came into power. In the knowledge that the President is obdurate in his refusal to listen to suggestions that Huerta be accorded formal recognition by this Government the men who are working here and in Mexico toward a restoration of peace have reached the conclusion that the easiest escape from difficulty is to appeal to Huerta to step down and out.

Perhaps the most important development in this connection yesterday was the departure for Mexico City of Oscar J. Braniff, a friend of Huerta, who was sent to this country, according to the understanding in official circles, as Huerta's personal and financial representative. Mr. Braniff has been in New York for several months. He came to Washington recently and in the past few days has had conference with Henry Lane Wilson, the American Ambassador to Mexico, who arrived here last Saturday morning. It is understood that Mr. Braniff learned enough to convince him that if the present status of Mexican affairs did not change the Government of the United States would ultimately be forced to adopt a policy of intervention. While Mr. Braniff declined to say why he was returning to Mexico, no doubt is felt in the best-informed quarters here that he has gone to make a report to President Huerta that should convince the latter that his retention in power is the stumbling-block in the way of a settlement of the troubles that are gradually bringing financial and industrial ruin upon the republic.

Meanwhile an effort has been started to select some prominent Mexican public man who will be accepted by the Huertists and the Constitutionalists as Huerta's successor until constitutional elections can be held for choosing a new President and a Congress. In this connection the name of Vasquez Tagle, who was Minister of Justice in the Cabinet of the late President Madero, has been mentioned and it is understood that the suggestion of his name for the provisional Presidentcy comes from Constitutionalist sources.

Charles Bissell and Bernard McDonald, the two mine managers, held by Mexican federals under sentence of death at Chihuahua have been ordered released by the Huerta Government.

McDonald is an Englishman. Bissell's chauffeur, an American, has also been ordered released. The three men were captured by Gen. Orozco while attempting to take American refugees out of Parral.

RT. HON R.L. BORDEN | SIR WILFRID LAURIER.

Both Premier Borden and Sir Wilfrid Laurier are reported as being indisposed.

THE NEW STATE WILL BE SUPERVISED BY POWERS

Ambassadors Will Nominate a Prince In Six Months To Rule the Country—Turkey Not Yet Dealt With and Britain Is Moving Slowly Because India Is Roused — Bulgars Fighting Fiercely.

LONDON, July 30.—The ambassadorial conference yesterday settled the status of new Albania. A prince will be nominated six months hence to rule over the new state. In the meantime a commission of control, composed of one representative of each power, will organize the administration with the aid of a Swedish officered gendarmerie.

The conference has done nothing officially in the direction of coercing Turkey, and as the strongest feeling is being manifested at indignation meetings throughout India against any attempt to drive the Turks from Adrianople, it is not likely that the British Government would be anxious to initiate such coercion.

The Greeks are still operating by sea and by land. The Bulgarians, who were defeated recently at Kresna Pass, turned upon the pursuing Greeks to the northwest of Djuma. Furious fighting occurred, the reinforced Bulgarians making a desperate attempt to recapture their lost positions. The battle lasted throughout Sunday, during which the Greeks thrice were ejected at the point of the bayonet from one position. The fighting took place over an extended front and both sides suffered heavily. According to a Greek account of the battle neither side had gained a decisive advantage at nightfall Sunday, but under the cover of darkness the shaken Bulgars retired after abandoning and setting fire to the town of Djuma, which later the Greeks occupied.

A correspondent with the Greeks says that their losses in the previous battle for possession of the Kresna defiles were 2,500 men killed or wounded. The losses in Sunday's battle are not given. The correspondent adds that except for rear guard actions the Bulgars can make no further stand this side of Dubnitza, 22 miles south of Sofia, and that now not a single Bulgarian soldiers remains in Macedonia, except as prisoners.

The Greek fleet has occupied the ports of Lagos, Maronia and Makri on the coast of Thrace, and a Greek force has captured the town of Gumurjina, 12 miles inland from the Aegean Sea and about 75 miles southwest of Adrianople.

The first French paper printed in Canada was "Le Canadien," established November 22, 1806.

In the thirty years 1872-1912 the Dominion Government realized $11,190,677 by the sale of western lands.

Attacks Daughter With Knife

BELLEVILLE, July 30.—John Hunter, aged 61 years, is in the county jail here charged with inflicting grevious bodily harm upon his daughter, Mrs. H. Storms, with whom he resided. The accused at a late hour on Monday night, without any provocation, attacked his daughter with a penknife, inflicting two wounds upon her neck and a severe wound upon her left breast. No serious results are anticipated. Yesterday morning he was brought up before Magistrate Masson, but owing to the fact that Mrs. Storms was unable to appear he was remanded to jail until Saturday next.

Best Crop In Years.

WINNIPEG, July 30.—"We have a splendid crop, in fact the best for many years," said Andrew Kelly, president of the Grain Exchange, and president of the Western Canada Flour Mills Co., yesterday upon his return from a long trip by the C.N.R. to Edmonton, Furman, Saskatoon and Regina.

Australia's Offer.

MELBOURNE, July 30.—The Commonwealth Government announces that it will contribute $100,000 toward the erection of an Australian building at the Panama-Pacific Exposition, provided the State Government contribute sufficient funds to ensure their adequate representation at the exposition.

GETS THREE DAYS

Alex. Morrison, M.P., Must Then Produce Bye-Election Documents.

WINNIPEG, July 30.—The hearing was resumed yesterday morning on the application for the commitment to the common jail of Alexander Morrison for contempt of court by failing to comply with an order of the court for examination and failing to produce certain documents regarding the petition that has been entered against his election as member of Parliament for Macdonald. The point as to failure to attend an examination was not pressed by counsel for the petitioners, owing to an error in the date of the subpoena, but that concerning the commitment of respondent for failing to produce documents was vigorously pressed, and Justice Cameron, in spite of numerous technical objections raised by counsel for the respondent, made an order for the production of an affidavit respecting the documents within three days, the penalty for failure to comply with this order to be commitment.

STEPPED IN FRONT OF FAST TRAIN

Young Brakeman Instantly Killed Early This Morning.

Canadian Press Despatch.

London, July 30.—Harold Doyle, single, 22 years of age and a brakeman on the Grand Trunk was instantly killed this morning at Glencoe when he stepped in front of a fast east-bound express. It was Doyle's first day on a ballast train and it is supposed he became confused by the engines headlight.

New Schedule For I. C. R.

HALIFAX, N.S., July 30.—The sole development in the threatening strike situation of the Intercolonial Railway yesterday, was the announcement that the management of the road proposes to abrogate the present schedule of wages and working conditions in six months.

Whether this forces a reduction in the present wage schedule or an attempt on the part of the road to inaugurate a system independent of the Brotherhood, is not known yet.

TELEGRAPH BRIEFS.

Wm. F. Driscoll, aged nine, fell on an iron spike on the fence of St. Paul's Church, Kingston, yesterday, and was seriously injured.

The British Parliamentary party, headed by Lord Emmott, arrived at Sault Ste. Marie yesterday on the C.P.R. steamer Athabasca.

While flying at Gatchina, a summer resort near St. Petersburg, a military aviator fell six hundred feet with his aeroplane and was killed.

THE WEATHER

Still the heat wave continues. To-day at noon the thermometer registered 88 degrees in the shade.

PLOT WAS DETECTED

Attempt to Kill Bridge Workers Just Caught in Time.

TORONTO, July 30.—Alertness by the foreman of the Hamilton Bridge Co.'s construction work on the Canadian Pacific Railway some two miles east of Cherrywood, in Ontario County, disclosed a diabolical attempt to bring about a tragedy, and his prompt action probably saved many lives.

Previous to giving orders for the raising of the scaffold upon which some fifteen or twenty men would be engaged in the work of finishing the construction of the huge railroad bridge at an elevation of some fifty feet over the rocks in the valley below, his attention was suddenly focussed upon the ropes which were to be used to lift and sustain the scaffolding. A moment's examination served to show that they had been saturated with sulphuric acid, which had eaten into the material to such an extent that the weight of the workers would have instantly caused it to collapse.

A strike is in progress on the work, and suspicion centred upon strike sympathizers. The matter was reported to the Attorney-General's Department, and the provincial police were detailed to investigate.

As a result, S. M. Gamble, a married man, 37 years of age, residing at 119 Dension avenue, was arrested in Toronto yesterday afternoon by Provincial Inspector Boyd, who was accompanied by Acting Detective Holmes. Gamble was apprehended on the serious charge of being concerned in the plot to cause the collapse of the scaffold. Gamble made no statement when apprehended.

He will be taken to Whitby by Inspector Boyd to-day to answer to the serious charge preferred against him.

MUST STAND HIS TRIAL

At Havelock yesterday, Wilson Parcels of Belmont was committed for trial on the charge of assaulting a young girl.

CHILDREN'S AID TAKES THE GIRL

The case of Mrs. Holbrook of Apsley, charged with neglecting to look after her children, which has caused the Children's Aid Society considerable trouble of late was finally settled this morning by Mrs. Holbrook agreeing to give the child over to the Society.

ADMIRATION FOR THE GRAND

General Manager of Tiny Town Adds His Praise

Maurice Ralph, general manager of Tiny Town, now playing at the Grand, is very enthusiastic in his admiration of the Grand Opera House and praise for the management.

Mr. Ralph has visited many theatres in his extensive tours and he states that the local theatre would do credit to many of the larger cities.

When informed that the Turners maintained their theatre in its present bright and attractive dressings, Mr. Ralph remarked that the citizens of Peterboro should appreciate such enterprising management.

LAID AT REST

The funeral of the late John Belcher, jr., took place this afternoon to the Little Lake cemetery.

The Hydro-Electric Commission now serves 32 municipalities in Ontario, and has so far cost $4,158,837.

LORD EMMOTT AND THE GLOBE

Lord Emmott, with the urbanity of an English gentleman, has brought the Globe to its knees; the following dialogue was suggested by a reading of the Globe's article on the speech of Lord Emmott on the navy question?

Lord Emmott: "If I read the situation aright, Canada has decided to help——"

The Globe (with a gracious bow): "Most certainly, my lord; it has always been the desire of the Liberal party in the Dominion to, as you so ably put it, to, er, that is, to help. Already we have given practical demonstrations of our concern for the safety of the Empire.

"Sir Wilfrid Laurier, Canada's first Sea Lord, founded, as no doubt you have heard, a Navy. The Rainbow and the Niobe, both beautiful names don't you think? although, as might be suggested, having nothing to do with the clouds.

"These ships have already had a salutary effect, or at least might have had but for the Conservatives describing them as "tin-pot," upon any possible designs of Japan in the Pacific.

"What more proof is necessary that Canada is alive to her responsibility and is ready at twenty-five years' notice to hold her own alongside any other independent nation in the world?"

OSTRICH POLITICS

"The genius of our people is all for peace, the peace of strength and self-control, not that of cowardice or indifference. It is our privilege among the nations to spread this spirit. This we may do by the power of example. We have no enemies. We hate no nation. No nation hates us. We have no revenges for old defeats, no ranklings of old victories, no altered boundaries, no banished dynasties. We have only our own affairs to attend to, with the dignity that befits a nation which minds its own business. It is for us to say, we will not threaten, we will not fight, we will not prepare to fight, we will not load ourselves with weapons which tend to provoke a fight. We will not mortgage our future to the invisible empire which owns and controls militant Europe. We will leave our disputes to the decision of a tribunal of just men. The word war shall be erased from our national speech."—David Starr Jordan.

The foregoing is a fine example of rhetoric, and contains some very worthy sentiments; but it might have been uttered by an ostrich, if that optimistic and omnivorous bird had the gift of Mr. David Starr Jordan.

"We will leave our disputes to a tribunal of just men." When Mr. Jordan said that he doubtless thought he had solved the whole question of peace and war between all the nations of the world. This "tribunal of just men" is the whole difficulty, and if Mr. Jordan can provide such a tribunal that will satisfy the ideas of every nation as to what is justice, then he is the long looked for prophet of peace.

Failing this the nations will have to go on building navies and getting ready to defend their own point of view on this very many sided question of justice.

PERFECTION AND INNOCENCE

Dr. David Smith, in the British Weekly, in answering a correspondent on the compatibility of the doctrine of the fall of man with the scientific doctrine of evolution, says that the first state of man was not a state of perfection, but of innocence.

He goes on to say that a child is innocent, but not perfect, the latter is the final stage, and it is attained through the discipline of life.

According to this theory the fall of man was a "fall upward" and it is therefore not to be regretted, but as Wesley says:

"The sons of Adam boast
More blessings than their father lost."

The amazing thing about all Christian doctrine and dogma is its elasticity; or, to change the figure, its power of absorbing every new scientific theory. This makes it not only a universal religion, but a gospel,

"Not for an age,
But for all time."

EDITORIAL NOTES

The Toronto Star, following the Dante article in the Review the other day, says that it is not a very serious matter to confuse Dante with Rossetti. It would be as well to consult Dante upon this point. The Review contended that it was a sign of superficiality, and the Review was right—as ever.

The report that the King and Queen are to visit Canada will be received with gratification by all loyal Canadians. He is only a man, but he stands for a glorious Empire which has made Canada and other lost lands habitable.

President Wilson is said to have decided to submit the Panama dispute to the international tribunal at the Hague. That sounds like what one would expect from a fellow like Wilson.

The Toronto Star wishes to forget its past sins; discussing the naval problem it says, "We will not quarrel about the past." This is a good sign if it is the prompting of of a troubled conscience, but there is no true repentance without sackcloth and ashes.

A Toronto man has again won the King's prize at Bisley. This is a trophy that is coveted by Britishers all over the world. It will be remembered that the prize was won two years ago by a Canadian. Young Canada has not only hit the Bulls eye, but touches John Bull's heart as well for the old man likes to see the young lads beat him.

EXCERPTS

HERO WANTED

A bronze statue of heroic size will be erected by public subscription to the first man from Eastern Canada who visits the west without telling the people out there to go in for mixed farming. Quite possibly the practical farmer, after living 25 consecutive years in Saskatchewan would be as well qualified to decide what was the best thing for him to do, as would be some peripatetic editor or college professor, unable to distinguish barley from bearded wheat.—Toronto World.

HIP! PIP!—

Canadian marksmen have won the King's Prize at Bisley four times. Pte. Hayhurst, of Hamilton, won it in 1895; Pte Perry, of Vancouver in 1901; Pte. Clifford o. Toronto in 1911, and now Pte. Hawkins of Toronto, in 1913. The showing is a creditable one and should stimulate interest in shooting in Canada. The winning of the King's Prize is a notable feat as the competition is open to the marksmen of the British Empire. The victory of Private Hawkins, of Toronto, on his first visit to Bisley calls for unusual congratulations. Well done, Hawkins! Well done, Toronto! Well done, Canada!—Ottawa Journal.

Saving the Day.

"A bad mess," declared the junior partner. "Lot of urgent mail to be answered, and the typewriter has just left."

"The office boy is always fooling around that machine," suggested the senior partner. "Put him in now and let's see what he can do as a pinch hitter."—Pittsburgh Post.

Not For Home Use.

"Biggins wants to be regarded as a man of great civic pride."

"Yet I cannot help doubting his local sentiment. Whenever he gets an idea for rendering a municipality absolutely perfect he always wants to try it out on some city other than the one he lives in."—Washington Star.

A Reasonable Fear.

"I dare say their betrothal in the mountains was very romantic, but I wouldn't like to propose to a girl near a mountain gorge."

"Why not there?"

"Because I'd be afraid she might throw me over."—Baltimore American.

Rescues His Sister.

KINGSTON, Ont., July 30.—Reta Hughes, aged 10, was saved from drowning at Kingston Mills by her brother, Harry Hughes of Toronto, who is visiting here for the old boys' celebration. She was playing around the wharf and fell in, and Hughes, not stopping to remove his clothes, jumped into the water and pulled his sister out as she was going down for the third time.

Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills

are not a new and untried remedy—our grandfathers used them. Half a century ago, before Confederation, they were on sale in nearly every drug or general store in the Canada of that day, and were the recognized cure in thousands of homes for Constipation, Indigestion, Biliousness, Rheumatism and Kidney and Liver Troubles. Today they are just as effective, just as reliable as ever, and nothing better has yet been devised to

The Best Detective Story of the Last Ten Years

Britz meditated a second or two, then asked:

"After you took the collarette from the safe on those two nights, did any servant enter the room?"

Mrs. Missioner's brow contracted in thought. It was difficult for her to recall such small incidents as the passing of servants through the room.

"The footman, of course, announced Mr. Griswold and Mr. Sands. I remember, too, that my East Indian servant brought my new dress."

"Do you believe Miss Holcomb is the thief?" suddenly fired Britz.

Mrs. Missioner started as if a coil of flame had shot through her. Her pale lips trembled and she shook her head negatively.

"I cannot believe her capable of it," she said.

"Then if we eliminate her," Britz retorted, "we must look for the thief among Mr. Sands, Mr. Griswold, the footman, and the East Indian servant. Miss March, of course, is out of the question."

"So are Mr. Sands and Mr. Griswold," came in positive tones from Mrs. Missioner.

Britz made no comment. His eyes moved restlessly about the room, falling finally in a steady gaze on the widow.

"How long has your footman been in your employ?" he asked.

"More than fifteen years," she responded promptly.

"And the other servant?"

"About a year. He came very highly recommended, and I do not see how he possibly could have substituted the paste necklace for the real one."

"Neither do I," agreed Britz. "Did either Mr. Sands or Mr. Griswold ever have opportunity to pass through Miss Holcomb's room?"

"Not that I am aware of," replied Mrs. Missioner.

Britz eyed the woman impressively.

"We must bear in mind," he said, "that whoever stole the jewels must have been in possession of the real necklace long enough to have a duplicate made. Either that, or he must have been so familiar with every stone in the setting as to enable him to have duplicates made from description. The only reasonable supposition is that the duplicate was made directly from the original. It is barely possible, however, that some other means were employed."

"That is the most puzzling feature of the theft," said Mrs. Missioner.

"How long have you known Mr Sands?" asked Brits.

"From girlhood."

"And Mr. Griswold?"

"About five years."

"Both saw the necklace on you frequently?"

"Very often."

After several thoughtful moments, Britz remarked:

"The only one who could have taken the necklace out of the safe without your knowledge was Miss Holcomb. One of the original diamonds was found in her room. It is absolutely clear to me that she is innocent."

"Do you really think so?" the widow asked eagerly.

"It is as certain as that someone stole the necklace," answered Britz.

"Then we must get her out of jail at once!" exclaimed the widow.

"We must do nothing of the kind," corrected the detective. "We must allow all suspicion to be directed toward her."

"But it is cruel, it is inhuman, to keep her in prison," protested Mrs. Missioner.

"It is necessary," assured Britz.

"I will not permit it, even if it means the loss of the necklace," said the woman.

"My dear madam, Brits returned, "don't excite yourself. My blundering colleagues have done all the harm they can possibly do to Miss Holcomb. Far more important than the recovery of the necklace is the establishment of her innocence in the eyes of the world. With all the suspicious circumstances of this case woven about her, your mere belief in her innocence will not clear her. Therefore, you will have to leave this entire matter in my hands."

The widow bowed submissively. A shade of sorrow crept over her face as she contemplated the plight of her secretary.

"May I go to the jail and assure her of my belief in her?" she asked.

"That would be fatal," replied the detective.

"Then what can I do—I must do something for her," groaned Mrs. Missioner.

"The only thing we can do for her is to find the real thief," said Britz.

"I trust it won't be long," sighed the widow.

"Kindly give me the addresses of Mr. Sands and Mr. Griswold," asked the detective.

"You surely don't suspect either of them?" returned Mrs. Missioner.

"I suspect no one, as yet," Britz hastened to assure her.

He wrote the addresses of the two men on the back of a card and left. Britz headed straight for Headquarters and entered the office of the Chief. He threw himself wearily in o a chair with the air of one vainly trying to discern a glimmer of light in the enshrouding darkness.

"It's going to be hard work," he said.

"I expected it would be when I put you on it," the Chief replied.

Britz recounted the information he had gathered from Mrs. Missioner and then walked into his own office. Summoning two subordinates, he directed them to go to the Missioner house and trail the footman and the East Indian servant. Two other men were assigned to shadow Sands and Griswold.

"That's all I can do to-day," he murmured.

CHAPTER IX.

Word from Logan

A week of agonised suspense in the Toombs seemed drawn into an eternity of suffering to Miss Holcomb. Conscious of her own innocence, she had, nevertheless, ceased to struggle against the relentless fate that marked her as its victim. Her sensitive nature recoiled from contact with the miserable creatures into whose midst she was suddenly thrust. No longer could she find solace in tears, for the long drain had exhausted the supply. The gloom of her surroundings penetrated the innermost sanctuary of her soul, and she became possessed of a deep melancholy which even the encouraging words of Dr. Fitch could not relieve.

"Don't give up to despair; truth and justive will prevail." Dr. Fitch had urged every day. But the grim prison walls shut out hope as effectually as if the knell of her final fate had been sounded. Only one prop remained to sustain her through the long days and nights of confinement in the Tombs. It was her belief that she would be speedily freed at her second hearing, but even that prop was rudely torn from under her. Instead of regaining her liberty, she was sent back to the Tombs under heavy bail to await the action of the Grand Jury. It was the work of a few brief minutes to make out a prima facie case against her, and in her benumbed state of mind, she hardly knew what was transpiring in the courtroom. Her eyes had a vacant stare, as if peering into a heavy mist. When court adjourned, she followed the jailer automatically back to her cell. When the door clicked behind her, a violent tremor shook her frame and she gave herself up, body, mind and soul, to the bitter spirit of despair that had seized her.

She was recalled to her senses by the matron, who announced that Dr. Fitch was in the reception room. Hastily coiling her disarranged hair into a knot, she passed along the narrow corridors and descended to the visitors' room. This chamber, filled with the echoes of past tragedies, marked with the invisible footprints of the surging undercurrent of human life, is the gateway through which pass innocent and guilty alike, to freedom or to penal servitude. Here the world within meets the world without; here messages of hope are poured into tears of despair. Here is said the final farewell of the women condemned; through this room the innocent pass out of the grim shadow of the barred corridors to the welcome sunlight of the street.

No woman may enter this room without a shudder of despair; none may leave it without a prayer of deliverance. Bare of furnishings, there is nothing to relieve the drab monotony of its walls. A gray-haired matron of buxom form sits stolidly at the door. Her cold eyes carry no message of encouragement. She is not there to encourage; she is there to watch. Even to visitors, the room imparts a feeling of misty terror, a longing to escape its sinister aspect.

A groan, as of physical pain, came from Fitch as he beheld Miss Holcomb in the wan light that filtered through the window. Her distress reacted on his sensibilities; he could utter no word of encouragement.

"It is awful," he moaned, as he led her into a corner of the room.

"And they all believe me guilty?" she asked despairingly.

"Not all," he returned, "there is one whose faith is unshaken."

"Mrs. Missioner—what of her?" she asked.

"I don't know," Dr. Fitch replied.

"Have the police discovered no clew to the theft?"

"I haven't heard a word from them," Dr. Fitch said.

They remained silent, as if fearful of inflicting pain on each other by further discussion of the discouraging outlook. The doctor's eyes were fixed on the tips of his boots; hers roved aimlessly about the room.

"I talked with the lawyer to-day," be broke the silence. "He says they haven't sufficient evidence to convict, and that while the case looks ugly, there is nothing to fear. He is in favor of a speedy trial."

"Then even if I am set free my name will remain smirched," she declared.

His spirits sank lower as he contemplated the dark outlook of her future. With a heroic effort he brought himself out of his dejection, and, eyeing her intently, said:

"Your name will be cleared of all suspicion."

She could read encouragement in that purposeful face and the set determination of those lips. His resolute features were eloquent with promise in her behalf. No matter how fierce the fires of accusation blazed about her, there was one whose belief would remain unshaken. The finger of contumely might point at her, but in his eyes it would carry no reproach. Yet, as she realized how deeply her future was interwoven with his, she felt an anguish of heart more poignant than the pain of her own predicament.

"What a terrible blow this must be to you," was all she could say.

"It means to me only the opportunity to prove myself worthy of you," be replied.

"But suppose," she breathed, "they do not find the thief and the world is made to believe me guilty?"

The mere suggestion of failure to clear the woman he loved aroused all the combativeness of his nature. He brought his clenched fist down on his knee and thundered forth an eloquent challenge to the world.

"I'll stand between you and the creatures who are trying to crush you!" he exclaimed. "Let them come like a thousand furies! Your fight is my fight," he whispered, bending closer to her, "and your victory will be mine."

His eyes darted points of fire that kindled a responsive light in the glance she turned on him.

"You will never desert me?" she murmured gratefully.

"Never!"

She felt his arm about her waist, and with a sigh almost of happiness she surrendered herself to his embrace. He pressed her close to him, his lips seeking hers in the fading light of the room. The faint kiss that broke the stillness glorified the love of these two souls and struck a divine radiance that seemed to bring a message of hope from above.

"It is so good to have you near me," she said. "I feel as if no harm could come to me."

They became vaguely conscious of a man's form outlined in the murky light of the room. As the figure gradually shaped itself to Fitch's eyes, his hand slipped from her waist and he rose to his feet.

"Lieutenant Britz!" he exclaimed.

The detective came out of the obscurity of the opposite wall, and, doffing his hat, respectfully addressed them:

"It is unusual, I know, for a police officer to ask information of a prisoner held for the Grand Jury. Before Miss Holcomb replies to the questions I am about to ask, I think it might be well for her to seek the advice of counsel."

"Miss Holcomb will answer any questions you may ask." Fitch replied. "She has nothing to hide."

AILING WOMEN OF MIDDLE AGE

Mrs. Doucette Tells of her Distressing Symptoms During Change of Life and How She Found Relief.

Belleville, Nova Scotia, Can.—"Three years ago I was suffering badly with what the doctors called Change of Life. I was so bad that I had to stay in bed. Some friends told me to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and it helped me from the first. It is the only medicine I took that did help me and I recommend it. You don't know how thankful and grateful I am. I give you permission to publish what your good medicine has done for me."—Mrs. SIMON DOUCETTE, Belleville, Yarmouth Co., Nova Scotia, Canada.

Such warning symptoms as sense of suffocation, hot flashes, headaches, backaches, dread of impending evil, timidity, sounds in the ears, palpitation of the heart, sparks before the eyes, irregularities, constipation, variable appetite, weakness and inquietude, and dizziness, are promptly heeded by intelligent women who are approaching the period in life when woman's great change may be expected.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound invigorates and strengthens the female organism and builds up the weakened nervous system. It has carried many women safely through this crisis.

If you want special advice write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential) Lynn, Mass. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman, and held in strict confidence.

WESTERN CANADA'S BUMPER WHEAT CROP

Thousands of Men Required—This Year's Harvest Promises to be the Largest in the History of Canada

According to present indications the wheat crop of 1913 will be the greatest ever harvested in Manitoba, Saskatchewan or Alberta, thus requiring the farm laborers of the East to assist in harvesting the world's bread basket.

The Governments of the respective Provinces state that many thousand men will be required for this year's harvest. These will have to be principally recruited from Ontario, and the prosperity of Canada depends on securing labor promptly. The Canadian Pacific, on which Company will fall practically the entire task of transporting the men to the West, is already making special arrangements for this year. Excursions from points in Ontario to Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta will be run and special trains operated, making the trip in about thirty-six hours and avoiding any change of cars or transfers. This will be a day shorter than any other route. Dates, rates and conditions will be announced in a few days. eod

Canada is 46 years old, dating from Confederation; 154 years old, dating from British Conquest of 1759, and 378 years old from Cartier's first visit.

Canada's trade increased in 1911-12 over 1910-11 amounted to fourteen per cent., the highest on record

ATTRACTIVE SCENERY AT KIRKFIELD LIFT LOCK

One of Prettiest Spots on the Trent Canal Route. Mr. Bert Jobe is Lock Master

What is becoming one of the finest show places of Canadian scenery, is being rapidly developed at Kirkfield lift lock, says the Lindsay Post.

A representative of The Post visited the lift lock a few days since and was greatly surprised at the number of improvements made since he last visited that locality. The approaches by the road through the subway have been paved with cement which has been neatly blocked off and each side of the roadway have been built up with cut stone, which adds very much to the appearance of the approaches. One of the greatest improvements is the well kept houses and the grounds of the engineer and his assistants who have very handsome houses on either side of the lift lock. Our representative little thought that the barren pieces of broken rock which were piled up on either side of the lift lock could have been made into such places of beauty. The large grounds are now covered with the most velvety grass which is kept carefully trimmed and is the finest piece of lawn one will see anywhere. On both sides of the lock handsome shrubs adorn the lawns, and fountains playing continually keep everything in the best of shape.

The lockmaster, Mr. Jobe, and his assistant Mr. R. H. Irwin, evidently take pride in their work and the result is a credit to their neatness and taste.

Both men have been with the lock ever since it was started and in fact worked on the job in the days of its construction.

They have many interesting stories to tell of the people who came from all over the world to see the lock and of incidents that took place.

This year there is over seven feet of water in the channel. Usually at this time the depth is six feet.

Assistant Lockmaster Irwin in the course of conversation stated that the raising and lowering of the big pontoons is not accomplished as some people think by hydraulic machinery but by the fact that the lock is so designed that the upper chamber has 120 tons more water in it than the lower thus forcing it down and the other up when the valve is turned on which allows the water to flow to and from the huge pistons under the chambers.

The engineer who designed the Kirkfield Lift Lock and personally oversaw the work, was killed a short time ago in the city of Montreal.

The Lockmaster and his assistant are always very obliging in making lockages, and in showing visitors over the works.

No doubt this beauty spot will become a favorite place to take boat trips, thanks to the industry and attention of the two attendants who have made it one of the prettiest spots on the Kawartha Lakes.

The lockmaster, Mr. Bert John, is a son of Mr Thomas Jobe, Ware street.

Speaker Clark's Daughter Will Study Governments.

© by American Press Association.

MISS GENEVIEVE CLARK.

Miss Genevieve Clark, the daughter of Speaker and Mrs. Champ Clark, has sailed for Europe to make a special study of European governments. She is chaperoned by Mrs. George Harvey, wife of the New York publisher.

After a short shopping trip in Paris Miss Clark and Mrs. Harvey will go to Rome, where they will be joined by Miss Dorothy Harvey, now in school there.

Miss Clark, who celebrated her eighteenth birthday last December, is well versed in American political lore and theories. She has an ambition to become a great writer. A short time ago she decided to enter upon a newspaper career. A Washington newspaper woman has been tutoring Miss Clark, and she has already written several news stories.

Attractive Fans.

Attractive fans of the size liked for dances and the theater have plain sandalwood mountings and spreads of flexible soft satin in delicate tones, edged with a fine vine in handwork. Somewhat more expensive are fans of beautifully carved sandalwood with tops of silk embroidered and hand painted with a cherry blossom design.

Celluloid mounted fans come in every imaginable color, sometimes with spreads of hand painted celluloid and again topped with marabou and decorated with tiny flowers in silk. Nowadays all self respecting fans come in silk bags veiled and edged with white or black lace or with gold or silver net

A Sash Season.

This season the sash is helping to eliminate what waist fashion has left us. It will undoubtedly be smarter to have a slightly defined waist line than one which is definitely marked, and the sash of today is so loosely bound round the figure that we get a thick, rather careless negligee effect, which is, however, soft and natural.

The natural effect is the keynote of all schemes this season. In everything we wear the aim is to look natural.

CLEVER MIDGETS IN TINY TOWN

A Unique Entertainment, Pleasing all Times

"Nemo" in his "land of wonderful dreams," never conceived a more wonderful people than the inhabitants of Tiny Town, which appeared at the Grand Opera House last night before a delighted audience.

The two score of tiny people are not only midgets, but they are talented artists as well.

Frequently talented people are built out of proportion, with large heads or withered bodies, but everyone in Tiny Town is perfectly formed, and there is nothing about them to shock the most sensitive. When they are on the stage they appear to be a crowd of happy children having a jolly time.

The performance is divided into two parts, the first being vaudeville, including daring bareback riding, tight wire walking, various dances, sleigh to hand work, musical solos and a strong man act, while the second is a miniature circus. The ponies are extra well trained, and some acts are even better than seen at a big circus. Miss Anita (thirty inches high) does the tight wire walking, while Mr Arthur, ringmaster, cracks a whip with the vim of the Barnum and Bailey ringmaster.

One may think that these tiny persons are young, but as a matter of fact, the youngest is 22, while some of the smallest are over fifty years.

To-night will be their last appearance in this city, as they are going through to Vancouver to embark for New Zealand. The people of Peterborough are seldom afforded an opportunity like this, so it remains with them to accept and be pleased, or to stay away and regret

BROTHER GARDNER

Expounds to His Flock the Dangers of Being Rich.

A MILLIONAIRE'S MISERIES.

Brother Shin Is Suspended From the Limekiln Club Because of His Unsuccessful Attempt at Suicide—No Sympathy For Outcast.

By M. QUAD.

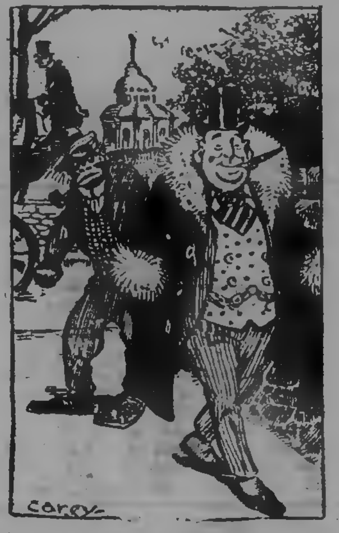
[Copyright, 1913, by Associated Literary Press.]

FOR a long minute after rising in his place in the Limekiln club Brother Gardner looked up and down the aisle with a severe expression of countenance. Then he said:

"Ebery member present tonight must have heard of de attempt of Samuel Shin two days ago to commit suicide by hangin'. Dey diskibered and cut him down jist a minit too soon, and he will libe on till de fool killer comes along wid his club.

"I allus thought Samuel a leetle light in de baid, and now I know him for a bo'n fool!

"He am hereby suspended from his club for a period of three months, and if doorin' dat time he so much as looks at a rope he shall be bounced fur good.



"I ONCE KNOWED AND ENVIED A RICH MAN."

"Was Samuel in poor health?

"Had he a great grief?

"Was de world unkind to him?

"Not at all. He simply wanted to be rich, and bekase he realized dat he nebber could be he tried hangin' by de neck.

"You kin all call and ask how his sore froat am, but if you sympathize wid him you are as big fools as he am

"Let's have a leetle talk 'bout dis richness bizness and see what dar am in it.

"I's heard Waydown Bebee say dat if he was a rich man he wouldn't care if he had a new bile for ebery day in de week.

"I's heard Giveadam Jones say dat if he had $100,000 he'd nebber want to go to heaben.

"I's heard Samuel Shin declar' dat if he was a millyonaire he wouldn't care if de watermillyon and de possum disappeared off de face of de airth foreber.

"I's heard Sir Isaac Walpole say dat if he had $50,000 in his pocket he wouldn't trade places wid any angel in heaben.

Remarks on the Rich.

"I's heard a heap o' odder pussons say a heap o' odder things bearin' on dis question, an' I want to make a few remarks on de subjec' dis evenin'. I don't reckon any o' you have giben dis matter de thought it desarves.

"Up der at my cabin I has no stable. Darfore I has no mewl. Darfore I has no critter to feed and shelter an' worry about. I don't wake up nights an' wonder if anybody am stealin' him. I don't have to git up at midnight an' go out dar to see if he am dead wid de colic. I am jest layin' dar, snoozin' an' dreamin' an' lettin' de man who does own a mewl do de worryin'. It's de same about riches. I hain't got 'em. an' so I don't have to worry. No bank can bust on me, an' no burglar can get in an' rob me. De fellers wid bogus ile wells and bogus silver mines don't know me an' don't camp on my trail.

"In dis city a few days ago de darter of a millyonaire ran away wid de chap dat twists de wheel of her fadder's auto. She was purty an' sweet an' away up in society. He couldn't hardly spell c-a-t, an' he didn't eben know dat de Panama canal was bein' dug. Waal, dar's a big scandal. Her mother dasn't show her face outdoahs, an' her fadder has got sich a jar dat heart disease an' death may be de result.

Daughters of the Poor.

"Lemme ask you if sich a case could be possible among de pore. Your answer must be no. Our darters am not fallin' in lub wid wheel twisters an' runnin' away an' coverin' us wid shame and sorrer. Dey am gwine right along an' behavin' deirselves an' gettin' married.

"In Chicago a short time since a man wuth two or three millyon dollars went home to supper an' found a note from his wife dat she had decided to leave him forever an' go off wid a teacher in a roller skatin' rink. De husband fell down in a faint, an' de doctors can't say yet whether he will lib or die. He's got a big house, hosses and kerridges, servants, diamonds an' all dat, but what good am dey gwine to do him! He's a retched, broken hearted man. If he libs for the next hundred years he'll neber pass a skatin' rink widout wantin' to go in and murder a dozen people. Money can't wash out dat scandal. Money can't bring back his happiness.

"When Sir Isaac Walpole, who couldn't raise $10 widout sellin' off his furniture, goes home tonight he'll find his ole woman sittin' wid her feet in de oven and a co'ncob pipe in her mouf, same as a hundred times befo'. She'll be jest as fat and jest as good natured. De idea of runnin' away wid de instructor of a ridin' academy will nebber have occurred to her. Sir Isaac won't see any love note stickin' out of her pocket, and he'll tumble into bed wid a grunt and sleep and snore like a newborn infant. Dar's de difference between riches and poverty. Can any sane, sensible man hesitate as to which he will take?

Couldn't Stand the Pace.

"If Giveadam Jones could git $20,000 together and still continue to lib as he allus has it might be pleasant to know he had de money and could have a tombstone wuth $15,000 of it. But he couldn't lib dat way. He'd have to buy a hoss wid its tail bobbed off short and a kerridge wid rubber tires and den hire somebody to drive him about. He'd have to stop eatin' wid his knife, use napkins to wipe his mouf, and he'd have to have so many hired gals in de house dat dey'd fall over each odder. Inside of a month he'd have to learn to play bridge whist and wear a plug hat, and widin six months he'd be a human wreck. He couldn't stand de pace. When de bills cum in from de grocer and butcher he'd be knocked silly.

"Some of you seem to imagine that all a rich man does am to walk around wid a cane and feel glad dat he am rich. You see him ridin' out and you envy him. You see him in de front pew at church, and you begrudge him. You hear of him bein' de big 'it' at a meetin', and you abuse Providence bekase you are pore. You see his wife paradin' up and down Fifth avenue, and you want to throw a bomb at her.

"My frens, don't you make no mistake on dat rich man. While he am ridin' out he am tryin' to figger out how much graft de coachman and feed man and harnessmaker have made out ob him in de las' month, and he total makes him so mad dat he can't enjoy de ride a bit. While he am in church tryin' to look as if he owned de hull bizness and had a sunh thing on de future he am figgerin' on how much he has giben it de last year and how much he will have to come down de next. His wife am thinkin' of how de butler, de housekeeper, de cook, de parlor maids, de couchman and de rest of de twenty-four servants at home am hogging down de vittles and de wines and playin' baseball wid de rugs and vases.

Nearly Lost His Religion.

"I once knowed and envied a rich man. When I saw him swellin' around I felt mad 'nuff to bust. When I had to sit down to mush and milk and cold water for dinner and knowed dat he had fried oysters and champagne my religun almost flew outer de back doah. It appeared to me dat things was all wrong and dat the only way to right 'em was to burn his house.

"One day, when I was workin' in de garden and feelin' de bitterness mo' dan usual, dis rich man cum along and walked in on me. He was lookin' trubbled, and dar was tears in his eyes. He axed me for a raw turnip to eat. He wanted to taste somethin' good and healthy again. He axed me for a drink of plain cold water. He wanted to git de taste of champagne outer his mouf. When I told him how I envied him he sot down and drawed out a sort of war map to prove to me dat I shouldn't.

"Dat rich man had indigestion

"He owned fo' hosses, and dey was all sick in de stables.

"He had a millyon dollars in bonds, and dem bonds had gone down onehalf.

"He had eighteen servants, and dey was smashin' up $200 wuth of crockery a week.

"He owned a big house, but de city was raisin' taxes ebery year.

Cause of Millionaire's Misery.

"He had a wife, but she was on de gad so much dat he hadn't seen her for de last three weeks.

"He had a church pew, but was payin' double rent on it.

"He had silver plate, but was afeared of burglars all de time.

"He had big mirrors in his house, but dey only showed him de wrinkles and de gray hairs.

"He had a butler, but de butler ordered him around.

"He had a chef, but de chef wouldn't make him pumpkin pies.

"And so it went from top to bottom, and when de man had gone to his retched palace I stood and looked at my humble cabin and felt all de envy go out of my heart, and I nebber have felt a speck of it since.

"My frens, drop it. Cut it out. Blow it away. Dar's nuthin' in it. De pore man who ar sighin' to be rich am simply wishin' dat he could trade off a soft co'n for a big carbuncle."

THE SUN LIFE IN NEW HOME

Modern Offices at the Corner of Water and Hunter Streets

The Peterboro branch of the Sun Life Assurance Co. of Canada is now in a new home, having removed from the Hunter St. location to the new offices provided in the building at the corner of Hunter and Water Streets.

Extensive alterations and improvements have been under way for some time, and now Mr. W. H. Hill and his staff are at home to the numerous friends of the Sun Life and also the prospective acquaintances.

There are seven rooms, all handsomely finished in oak and fitted with the latest office furniture. There are four private offices and the main office presents a very handsome appearance. It is equipped with six solid oak desks for the staff of stenographers.

Altogether, the building both on the interior and exterior has been wonderfully improved, and Mr. Hill, is to be congratulated.

Credit is also due Mr. Thos. Elphgrove, the local contractor, under whose supervision the work was carried on.

Canada has 700 rifle associations, with 50,000 members.

ACT ON EXPROPRIATION RIGHTS THE FEELING OF THE POWER CONMITTEE

POWER COMPANY FAIL TO SUBMIT PRICE

For the Sale of Distribution Plant to the City—Council to Appoint Arbitrator

Members of the Power Committee were unanimous last night that dilly-dallying, as Ald. Buller termed it, should give way to real action in regard to the city's movements for the expropriation of the distribution plant of the Peterborough Light and Power Co.

Accordingly the following resolutions were passed: That the City Solicitor be asked to prepare a by-law exercising the rights of expropriation and taking possession of the distribution plant, and that the by-law be passed by Council.

That the City Solicitor be asked to prepare a by-law authorizing the appointment of an arbitrator for the city.

It will be remembered that the city obtained expropriation rights at the last session of the Legislature. Since that time an endeavor has been made to secure from the Electric Power Co., a price at which they would sell to the city, the distribution plant and thus avoid expropriation proceedings.

The city offered $90,000, but this amount was not accepted by the Company, who have also failed to name a price at which they would sell out. The offer from the city of $90,000 was based on valuation made by the Hydro-Electric Commission. Now the Electric Power Co. say they have expert valuators engaged in making a valuation of the property.

Should the Company and the city fail to agree on a purchase price, the case will be arbitrated. The city appoints its arbitrator and gives notice to this effect to the Electric Power Co., and also submits a true copy of the by-law. The Company must then appoint its arbitrator within seven days, after which the two arbitrators must appoint a third arbitrator. Failing to agree, the appointment is made by the County Judge.

The city must take proceedings within one year of obtaining rights to expropriate. In default, these rights become subject to repeal.

It appears to be a debatable question whether the city can take possession without being liable for damages, but this point, as well as others, will be cleared up in the near future.

Now the Power Committee feel that some real action should be taken, and that it is up to the Council to get busy. The by-law which it is proposed to pass will be submitted to the Hydro Electric Commission before the final reading.

Johnston Greer, foreman of the hydro operations, was at the meeting last night and several matters were discussed. Progress was reported in regard to the locating of the poles on the streets. There appears to be no trouble in obtaining labor.

Mr. R. T. Jeffery, hydro engineer, is at present on his vacations and his brother, Mr. J. J. Jeffery, who is taking up the work, will be in Peterborough this week.

An agreement has not been signed as yet by the Street Railway Co whereby they would use the new poles for the trolley wire supports and thus do away with the wooden poles, but it is felt that the agreement will be signed.

HONORS FOR SIX OF TWELVE SUCCESSFUL COLLEGIATE CANDIDATES

HOME RE-UNION

Resolution of Appreciation Forwarded to Executive Member

Last night, a meeting of hte Home-Re-Union Association took place, to consider the application of British workingmen who desire to bring their families to Peterborough.

Mr. William Guy who has been on the Executive Committee since the organization has been created, was present and is leaving to-day for Guelph where he expects to reside in the future.

It was moved by G. N Gordon, seconded by Mr. Thomas Pitchford, that this Committee desires to place on record, its deep appreciation of the valuable services given by Mr. William Guy and his sympathetic support with the objects of the Association and that a copy of this resolution be forwarded to Mr. Guy

It was reported at the meeting that there was not a single applicant who had failed to pay according to the arrangements to pay the moneys which had been advanced to the applicant to bring his family from the Old Country.

BOOKS AND MAGAZINES.

In Summer Special Care Should Be Taken With Library.

Magazines quickly serve their day. They are read, tossed aside and forgotten in anticipation of the next month's issue. Occasionally they are preserved in the form of bound volumes. These bound volumes are interesting, and shelves of them reaching back for many years are valuable.

Serial stories can be taken out and bound. Any one who understands bookbinding can get really beautiful books in this way, but the woman who does not understand this art can cover pieces of pasteboard a little larger than the magazine page with cloth, carefully folded over and pasted down on the wrong side about the edges, the inside of the cover made neat by a square of cloth or paper pasted over the edges of the covering of the other side. Two of these covers, with half a dozen holes punched half an inch from the back edges, can be fastened together over the story by means of silk cords run through neat corresponding holes in the pages of the story.

Books demand great care in the summer. The dampness which collects in unused houses is bad for them, and so are darkness and dust, other attributes of the house vacated for the summer. Dust is avoidable in summer, for the books, if they are not protected by glass doors, can be covered with newspapers tacked over the shelves or with strips of heavy muslin. Dampness is almost unavoidable in an empty house. And darkness, unless glass doors protect the books, is also unavoidable. If the books are under glass leave the room where they are shelved as bright and light as possible.

OBITUARY

The Late Mrs. Rogers

Peterborough lost a highly esteemed resident last last night when Margaret Achsah Burnet, relict of the late Col J. Z. Rogers, passed away at the family residence.

The late Mrs. Rogers who was in her 63rd year year was born in Cobourg. She was married in the year 1875, and her husband predeceased her on March 11 1900.

During her long residence in Peterborough the late Mrs. Rogers won a host of friends, who will regret to learn of her demise. In religion she was an Anglican and she will be remembered by the congregation of St. Luke's church for her warm interest in the welfare of the church and the good deeds accomplished.

She is survived by one daughter Miss Mary Rogers, and one son Mr. Claude H Rogers, both at home, and two sisters, Mrs. Mary Neile, of Port Henry, N.Y., and Miss S. Burnet, of this city.

The funeral will be held from the late residence, 135 Hunter street, East, on Thursday afternoon to St. Luke's church, and the Little Lake cemetery.

Mrs. John Scott

The death occurred yesterday of Effie Larner, wife of Mr. John Scott Cavan, in her 44th year. Her husband is in the west and the funeral will be delayed pending his arrival.

The Late Mrs. Clyde Golden

Word has been received in the city of the death of Mary E. McFaul, wife of Mr. Clyde Golden, of Chokio, Minnesota, and granddaughter of Mrs. W. Spilsbury, of this city. The deceased died May 18th, 1913, at Graceville hospital, of peritonitis, her illness lasting but a few days. Mary E. McFaul was born at Alton, Ontario, in the year 1892, being twenty-one years and three months of age at the time of her death. She was married to her now sorrowing husband at Hannaford, N.D., in 1909, and has resided in Chokio, Minn., until her demise.

The deceased was a valued member of the M.E. church, from which the funeral took place on Saturday, May 31st, Rev. Schoenhider conducting the services.

The deceased leaves to mourn her loss a sorrowing husband, mother and father, Mr. and Mrs. Peter Stewart, three brothers and three sisters, all residing in Saskatchewan. The late Mrs. Golden was a niece of Mr. G. B. Spilsbury, Downie street, and Mrs. W. Jackson, Dalhousie street, city.

Had we but seen her at the last,
And watched her dying bed,
Or heard the last sigh of her heart,
Or held her drooping head.
Our hearts, I think would not have felt
Such bitterness and grief,
But God had ordered otherwise,
And now she rests in peace.
—Brothers and Sisters.

SENATE COMMITTEE IS WELL IMPRESSED WITH AMBASSADOR WILSON

U.S. Envoy, who Received Only Fifty Minutes' Interview With the President, Answers Questions For Three Hours and While Senate Will Probably Follow President, Serious Misgivings Have Arisen.

WASHINGTON, July 31.—A new complication that may have important bearing on future developments was added to the already tangled Mexican situation yesterday when Henry Lane Wilson, American ambassador to Mexico, laid before the Senate Committee on Foreign Relations a detailed statement of Mexican conditions. Besides relating to the committee the history of recent events in Mexico, as he understood them, the ambassador laid before the Senators, in response to their questions, his conception of what the American policy toward Mexico should be.

That policy Mr. Wilson has already submitted to Secretary of State Bryan and President Wilson in writing. Neither the President nor the Secretary of State invited the Ambassador to discuss his plan for the solution of the Mexican difficulty, but the Senators who heard it yesterday were deeply impressed by it.

The Committee on Foreign Relations has heretofore been guided entirely by the wishes of the Administration, and it is not expected that any course will be adopted now to which the President does not give his approval. But after listening to Ambassador Wilson for over three hours and questioning him closely as to conditions in Mexico, his part in internal Mexican affairs and his plan for their improvement, Senators expressed amazement that this fund of information had not been put at their disposal by the Department of State. There was some wonder, too, that after bringing the Ambassador all the way from Mexico to secure his personal report, his personal conference with the President and the Secretary of State had been limited to fifty minutes, while his recommendations were reduced to writing and were not referred to in conversation.

The committee was surprised to hear from the ambassador that in spite of continued disorder in many states the election announced for October will be held at that time. This, in fact, was one of the points which he pressed as an urgent incentive for prompt action by the United States.

FOUR DEAD; SIX DYING

Gasoline in Tank of Motor Cycle Exploded by Live Wire

DRIVER COLLIDED

With Electric Light Pole at Edge of Track

Canadian Press Despatch.

Cincinnati, Ohio, July 31—Odin Johnson, of Salt Lake City, racing at the Lagoon Motordrome opposite the city last night, collided with and broke an electric light pole at the edge of the track. The current from a live wire exploded the gasoline in the tank of the motor cycle scattering the burning oil over the spectators. Johnson and five-year-old Wm. Davis are dead; four men and two women cannot live and a large number of others are seriously hurt.

Cincinnati, July 31st (Later)—Seven are now dead as the result of the motorcycle accident. The dead are: Odin Johnson, Salt Lake City; Wm. Davis, five years; Mrs. Wm. Michaels, thirty years; Henry Andrews, fifteen; James Carter, thirty; Wm. Patterson, thirty-nine; Miss Ethel Buchtman, twenty.

COULD NOT GET WELL SO HE SUICIDED

German Professor Left This Note for His Wife

Canadian Press Despatch.

Munich, Germany, July 31—Professor Ludwig Morgenstein, a distinguished member of the faculty of Munich University, committed suicide last night because, as a letter left to his wife explained, he was suffering from a disease which the doctors declared to be incurable. He was sixty-six years of age and leaves a large family.

LUCKY BOY

Fell From Seat on Wagon on Charlotte Street

Yesterday evening about four o'clock a gardener was driving west on Charlotte Street with a five-year-old boy beside him.

When passing the canoe factory he suddenly turned aside to avoid an auto and the little lad lost his balance and fell. His face struck the wheel and then the ground, causing a large flow of blood from his nose. The lad was picked up by Fire Chief Howard, and was found not seriously injured.

Port Hope not Well

Port Hope, according to the Guide, has 80 cases of diphtheria and scarlet fever. An assistant sanitary inspector has been appointed.

MACKAY WINS

Former Ontario Liberal Leader Elected in Athabasca.

EDMONTON, Alta., July 31.—With eight out of twelve polls heard from in the deferred provincial election in Athabasca, Hon. A. G. MacKay (Lib.) has a majority of 141 over the Conservative candidate, Major. J. H. Woods of Athabasca Landing. The remaining four polls, which are at far outlying points, will not be heard from for several days, but it is not probable they will affect the general result. Mr. MacKay's election is now concluded by the Conservatives. The fight was a bitter one, and nearly all the prominent politicians on both sides in the province took part during the past few days.

It was announced some time ago that Mr. MacKay would be taken into Premier Sifton's Cabinet in the event of his election. Mr. MacKay, who was formerly M.P.P. for North Grey, Ont., and leader of the Liberal party in the Ontario Legislature, was defeated in the recent general elections in Alberta by a very narrow majority.

GAMBLE CAN'T GET BAIL.

Magistrate at Whitby Adjourns the Case Until Tuesday.

WHITBY, July 31.—Stead Gamble, of Toronto, charged with having used sulphuric acid on a rope being used by the Hamilton Bridge Co., in the construction of the C.P.R. bridge at Dixie Creek, the intent being to cause an accident, was before Magistrate Harper yesterday morning. His counsel, H. H. Dewart, K.C., of Toronto, was not present, and a remand was made until Tuesday, when Gamble will appear before Magistrate Jephson of Pickering Township.

Meantime, Crown Attorney Farewell refused to consent to bail being granted, despite Gamble's plea that he could provide bonds to the extent of $100,000 if necessary. He must get the consent of a high court judge before he can get out of Whitby Jail.

Yuan Offers Pardon.

PEKIN, July 31.—It is anticipated that all the rebel soldiers pledging their allegiance to the Government will be pardoned under the proclamation "to the misguided people," issued by President Yuan Shi Kai at the beginning of the rebellion. The leaders of the revolt, however, must flee for their lives.

Throughout China Dr. Sun Yet Sen has many sympathizers, both among the Chinese and foreigners, and it would not be surprising if President Yuan Shi Kai pardons him. Dr. Sun's name was conspicuously absent from the recent Presidential order sentencing to death the other three instigators of the revolt.

Three Women Drowned.

ST. JOHN, N.B., July 31.—Three young women were drowned last night by the capsizing of a rowboat in Lake Loch Lomand, a few miles from this city. Three others, a young woman and two men were saved after clinging to the upturned boat for two hours.

The drowned are: Miss Tilly Davis, Miss Brown and Miss Elizabeth Darling, all of this city.

The rescued are Miss Georgia Patterson, Jos. I. Noble and John Stanton, of this city.

Killed First Day On Job.

ST. THOMAS, July 31.—H. Doyle, aged 18, was killed by being struck by No. 7 Wabash express at Glencoe early yesterday morning. He had lived in St. Thomas since February, coming here from London, where his parents live. He left his position as cutter at the Just Wright Shoe Factory to become a fireman on the G.T.R. and Wabash, and was carrying out his first assignment, that of keeping steam up in locomotives used on work trains when killed.

THE STATES IS SNUBBED

Britain Will Not Participate in Panama Exposition.

WASHINGTON, July 31.—After delaying an answer for over a year, the British Government has informed Walter H. Page, American ambassador to the Court of St. James, that Great Britain will not participate in the Pan-American Canal Exposition in 1915. While it does not appear that any definite reason was assigned for this refusal, it is taken as Great Britain's way of intimating that she still resents the course of the United States in regard to tolls through the Panama Canal.

When the refusal was conveyed to Mr. Page, the representatives of foreign powers in London were informed of it, although no offer was made to organize a general boycott against the exposition. It is thought that the British Government in thus avoiding the celebration incident to the opening of the canal is more anxious to show its resentment of the failure of the United States to arbitrate the tolls question than to insist upon the original claim for the low tolls.

Since the American Commission went abroad to extend invitations to foreign countries to send exhibits to San Francisco in 1915, Great Britain has withheld her answer, hoping that the United States would make some concessions to her demands. But the failure of the Senate to ratify the convention renewing the general treaty of arbitration with Great Britain, and the known fact that reluctance to arbitrate the tolls dispute was at the bottom of the Senate's delay, have discouraged the British Government.

In the meantime the treaty of arbitration has lapsed by limitation, and there seems to be no prospect of its early renewal.

SENOR JOSE LIMANTOUR ANGRY.

JOSE YVES LIMANTOUR.

Senor Jose Yves Limantour, formerly Minister of Foreign Affairs in Mexico is indignant at an accusation that he has been using his influence with European diplomatists in hope of hastening American recognition of the Huerta administration. He denied that he and President Diaz were forced to leave Mexico and declared that he has permanently retired from Mexican political and financial affairs.

PEACE IN NINETY DAYS

Mexican Rebel Leader Says He Can Do It With Enough Rifles.

NOGALES, Ariz., July 31.—Venustiano Carranza, the Mexican rebel chieftain wired his Washington agents yesterday that he would pledge peace in Mexico within ninety days if the U. S. Government would grant the Constitutionalists the right to import arms and war munitions freely.

This was the information obtained yesterday from a reliable source.

Acting Gov. Ygnacio Pesquieras, who is in Nogales, Sonora, just across the line, endoresd Carranza's pledge.

He said the Constitutionalists could arm 10,000 men immediately, and by unity with the revolutionists in other states, could capture Mexico City and overthrow Huerta in two months.

Locked Up Burglar.

TORONTO, July 31.—Seeing a stranger going through the bureau drawers in her home at 335 Jarvis street yesterday morning, Mrs. Mabel Dechene shut the bedroom door and locked it on the marauder. She then phoned the detective office and Detectives Murray and Young commandeered a motor car and rushed to the scene. Michael Cooney, 59 Frederick street, is the man they took out of the room, and he is held on a charge of theft.

Troops Sent To Barcelona.

BARCELONA, Spain, July 31.—A strike in the textile industry involving 64 factories, has been called. The authorities say that from statements made by leaders they are fearful the strike will assume a revolutionary character, and as a precaution, reinforcements of troops are being hurried to the city.

The governor of Barcelona maintains that the strike was illegally declared, and announces that he will have 17,000 men at his disposal to prevent a revolutionary outbreak.

AMBASSADOR WILSON ARRIVES FROM MEXICO

HENRY LANE WILSON

Defending his attitude in Mexico, declaring against sending a commission to mediate between the warring factions, blaming Mrs. Francisco Madero, widow of the erstwhile President, for publishing expurgated documents that fomented more trouble and asserting that the United States government had so many secret agents in the country they worked at cross purposes to him, Henry Lane Wilson, Ambassador to Mexico, returned to the United States aboard the steamship Mexico, of the Ward line. Mr. Wilson came in response to the summons of President Wilson to inform him of the true situation in the disturbed republic.

JOCULAR LIGHTNING!

It Tore Open the House and Stole Part of a Bed But Spared Family.

CRYSTAL FALLS, Mich., July 31.—A queer prank was played by lightning when a bolt struck the house of Gust Malmberg at Crystal Falls. Mr. Malmberg and three children were sitting about a table in the kitchen. The bolt ripped a corner off the house, entierly exposing the room. Not one of the four was injured.

Part of a bed in a room above the kitchen cannot be found. The pantry opening off the kitchen shows no marks on the walls, yet everything on the shelves was thrown into a mass in the middle of the floor. Not a single room in the house escaped the lightning.

The bolt apparently divided into several branches and traversed the entire building. In the parlor the baseboard was torn off and in the room above the laths and plaster were torn off. The front of the house was stripped of the clapboards.

A hole two feet in circumference and several feet deep shows where the electricity entered the ground. All about the house the yard is torn up as if a drag had been run over it.

CIVIC GRAFT

Montreal City Foreman is Arrested Charged With False Pretences.

MONTREAL, July 31.—Peter Cielli, a foreman employed by the city, was placed under arrest late yesterday afternoon on a warrant technically charging him with obtaining money under false pretences. The arrest is the outcome of wholesale charges of graft among city foremen, intimations being made that city laborers were compelled to pay for their jobs.

Cielli was taken to police headquarters and searched. A bank book showing deposits during the present month of $1,000 was found on him as well as $76 in cash. Notwithstanding his protests, he is locked in a cell, where he will be compelled to remain until his arraignment to-day.

Other arrests are likely to follow.

The warrant for Cielli's arrest was issued after a consultation between Controllers Lachapelle, Godfrey and Ainey, Chief Engineer Janin, City Attorney Laurendeau and Chief of Police Campeau.

Aeroplane at Guelph.

GUELPH, Ont., July 31.—The largest crowd of the week was on hand yesterday for the Guelph old home week celebration, and with the excellent weather which prevailed everything passed off nicely. The feature of the day was the aeroplane flight by Victor Carlstrom in his Bleriot machine.

Victim an Ontario Woman.

MOOSE JAW, July 31.—Mrs. George Robinson, murdered at Rumsey, Alta., on Sunday, came from Fitzroy Harbor, Carleton County, Ont. She lived there after the death of her first husband, Dr. McFarlane, of Old, Alta.

HOWLING CALAMITY

Are Republicans Creating Panic to Fight Tariff Measure.

WASHINGTON, July 31.—Democrats and Republicans of the Senate clashed again in debate on the Underwood-Simons tariff bill yesterday, when Senator Stone charged that the Republicans were deliberately attempting to bring on a panic in their speeches attacking the pending measure.

Republican leaders, denying any intention to bring about disaster, declared they feared that such actually would be the result. Senator Gallinger asserted he was no "calamity howler," but that he actually feared the results which he hoped would not come. If the disaster he feared did not come, the Senator said, the glory would go to the Democrats.

Senator Penrose declared that not only did he fear the proposed bill would bring disastrous consequences, but that industrial depression already was upon the country. He cited instances of steel mills in Pennsylvania that already had closed down.

While Republican and Democratic leaders were engaged in hot discussion, Senator Kenyon averred that in his talks he had always stated he did not believe the pending bill would result in disaster and that the people of his state did not believe so either.

"Oh, I was not referring to the progressive Republicans," said Senator Stone. "I meant the majority of the minority were attempting to arouse the people."

INITIALS CUT ON LIVE HOGS

Barbarous Practices of U.S. Stock Men Will be Investigated.

CHICAGO, July 31.—Cruelties which animals at the stock yards are forced to undergo are to be made the subjects of an investigation by Hugo Krause, secretary of the Anti-Cruelty Society. Reports which have been received at headquarters of the society state that the most flagrant abuse is the practice of cutting initials on the back of a live hig. This is done, according to the report, by "cripple contractors" who purchase animals disable in transit.

Krause also cites instances of hundreds of hogs dying for lack of water, of live hogs being dumped into scalding tanks and of hogs dress so rapidly that they are chops and sausages before they are yet dead.

Rebellion in Venezuelan.

PORT AU SAPIN, Trinidad, July 31.—It is reported here that a small party of Venezuelan revolutionists made an unsuccessful attack Monday on the port of Cristobal Colon, and that Gen. Bustamente, on board a Government warship, is now in pursuit of them. Cristobal Colon is a port on the peninsular of Paria, in the northeastern part of Venezuela. The town lies at the western end of Aricarua Bay.

CANADIANS AND AMERICANS COMBINE IN CELEBRATION

THOUSANDS ATTEND BIG FETE

Notable Speakers From Both Sides of the Line Urge That the Two Countries Unite in Erecting a a Lasting Monument.

FORT ERIE, Ont., July 31.—"Although the last act of depredation which closed the war of 1812 was the tearing down of Fort Erie, we are not here to-day to ask the United States Government to rebuild the fort, that we might use it as a munition of war. What we are asking is that the Governments of the United States and Canada combine to erect on this spot a lasting monument to signalize one hundred years of peace."

So declared Chairman W. M. German, M.P., when addressing an audience of thousands at the Peace Day celebration held yesterday at Erie Beach, Ont. The day was set to be an international demonstration in appreciation of the one hundred bloodless years now nearing completion on the Canadian-American frontier, and also an agitation in favor of the erection of a monumental bridge across the river at this point. Citizens throughout the district are hoping that the bridge will be competed by 1915, the anniversary of the signing of the treaty of Ghent, at present no bridge for foot and vehicular traffic exists between the Suspension Bridge and the Soo.

Yesterday's celebration was fully up to expectations and many thousands of Canadians and Americans were present.

Shortly before noon, the delegation of Canadian public men arrived, including Sir John Gibson, Dr. Reaume, Dr. J. A. Macdonald, and W. L. Mackenzie King. An hour later the ferry from Buffalo brought American orators and representatives from several organizations.

The speeches were preceded by a pantomine, very prettily symbolic of the friendly relations now existing between the two countries. A line was opened through the crowd, while a company of boy and girl scouts advanced to a flag pole erected before the platform, and draped around the base of it, large flags bearings the bars of the American emblem and the red field of the Canadian Jack.

Sir John Gibson, in his address, referred in kindly terms to the action of the States in breaking away from the Mother Country. "In a century and a third our big brother has showed us that he was big enough to walk alone. The nineteenth century has in truth been America, but we believe that the twentieth century will prove to be Canada's."

"And let me say that there has never been a time when Canada's views were more unanimously and more definitely pronounced in favor of continuance as a part of the British Empire than now. What the exact relationship shall be will be settled by a process of evolution more or less active, and we are at present at that stage.

"The Treaty of Ghent settled nothing but the war," declared A. B. Humphrey of New York, secretary of the National Peace Commission of the United States. "Why then should we celebrate its centenary? Because it paved the way for a hundred years of arbitration, during which most of the open questions of a hundred years ago have been settled. There is now nothing left to argue about."

He described the origin and work of the National Peace Association, and stated that the Niagara frontier was billed to receive its attention next. Engineers had given it as their opinion, he said, that a granite arch bridge could be built across the river at Fort Erie, which would outlast the Appian way. Nature herself had selected the situation and the foundations for bridge work were all ready there.

Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King spoke of the far-reaching effects of the peace habit upon industry and commerce.

"Why not apply the principle to the industrial world," he cried, "and adjust the disputes between labor and capital by an appeal to reason. "The industries of Europe cannot hope to compete with those of America while their credit is continually menaced by the fear of war, while Europe groans under the burden of her war equipment and Asia struggles for the light which is ours already, this continent will lead the world."

J. A. Bensel, New York State engineer, declared that the bridge, when completed, would show not only the amicable sentiment of the two nations but also the highest engineering achievement which can be reached by the united efforts of Canada and the United States.

Among the other speakers were: Dr. Reaume, Herbert P. Bissell of the Supreme Court of Justice, New York State; John A. Stewart, president of the U. S. National Peace Commission, and George D. Emerson of the Buffalo Historical Society. Telegrams of congratulation were received from Premier R. L. Borden, President Wilson and other invited guests, who were unable to be present.

Create Advisory Board.

WASHINGTON, July 31.—The currency bill probably will be amended to create an advisory board, composed of bankers, to work in co-operation with the Federal Reserve Board. Chairman Glass, of the House Banking Committee, so announced yesterday.

Missing at Sea.

LONDON, July 31.—The British steamer Wyneric, which left Baltimore April 5 and Barbados April 15 for Guayaquil and Portland, Ore., before reported overdue, has now been posted by Lloyd's Underwriters Association as missing.

LATEST NEWS PARAGRAPHED

Sir Wilfrid Laurier arrived in Montreal yesterday, and appeared to be in good health.

Col. the Hon. Sam Hughes was at Watford, Ont., yesterday laying the foundation of the new armory being built there.

—A passenger train ran into the rear of the Pittsburg express at Tyrone, Pa., yesterday, and fifteen persons were injured.

It was reported yesterday that ten more Intercolonial Railway firemen will be sent home, and ten engineers put back to firing.

The funeral of James Conmee, ex-M.P., who died in Arizona, was held yesterday in Port Arthur. Hundreds of carriages followed the body.

A five days' armistice was agreed to yesterday at a peace conference between the delegates of Servia, Greece, Montenegro and Bulgaria.

Miss Hazel Laugenaur, graduate of Salem Female College, of Winston-Salem, N.C., is making preparations to swim across the English Channel in August.

Mrs. Geo. Baughman, who lived on the second concession of Molaride Township, near St. Thomas, committed suicide Tuesday afternoon by taking paris green.

All Japan yesterday joined in a memorial service for the late Emperor Mutsuhito, who died just a year ago. The function included the offering of sacred food by ritualists.

Dorothy Thatcher, nine years of age, died suddenly at Hamilton yesterday, the victim of lockjaw. The child nine days ago fell in a berry patch and sustained a slight scratch on her face.

Will Fly To His Work.

CHICAGO, July 31.—Harold F. McCormick made a successful flight in his new hydro-aeroplane yesterday from his summer residence in Lake Forest over the waters of Lake Michigan to Grant Park, Chicago, a distance of 30 miles. Mr. McCormick made the trip in 28 minutes.

The machine was driven by C. C. Wilmer, and the flight was made at an average height of about 60 feet.

McCormick, who is a son-in-law of John D. Rockefeller, intends using his flying boat to come to business every day this summer, unless storms prevent.

WOULD TAX CHILDLESS

French Agitators Would Penalize Families Under Three.

PARIS, July 31.—The Figaro has received from the "Race Francaise" Society a draft of the proposed law to tax not only bachelors, but all childless persons over a certain age. According to the statistics of Dr. Bertillon, France at present counts 1,330,000 bachelors, 1,800,000 childless familes, 24,650,000 families with only two children, and 2,400,000 with a single child.

The new bill, fixing for each citizen an obligatory minimum of three children, could impose a tax of thirty francs per "non-existent child," so to speak, on every citizen of forty-five years who has not three children living or who has not reared three children to the age of twenty-one. The tax is calculated to produce an annual sum of $100,000,000. The proposal has been submitted to the Ministers of Law and Finance, whose opinions have not yet been made public.

Montreal's 'Phone Famine.

MONTREAL, July 31—With between eleven and twelve thousand telephones on seven thousand lines in the heart of the business and financial district out of commission, as a result of a fire Tuesday, Canada's biggest city went back yesterday to the days of 1860.

Thousands of messenger boys took the place of the telephone for interchange of messages in the business district where the great Main exchange was put out of business. Not until to-night will the service be back to its usual standard.

Hail Along Boundary.

MOOSE JAW, Sask., July 31.—Settlers arriving from the south country tell of a serious hailstorm along the boundary. It was the worst experienced in many years. Little or no damage was done in Saskatchewan, but many hundreds of acres were devastated in Montana, just south of the boundary.

GOOD MANNERS

Lord Rosebery, with his usual versatility, has been reading the boys of England a lecture on good manners. In these days of glib speech and loose deportment the words of Lord Rosebery are very timely and apply equally to the elders as to the youngsters.

The "Yankee", has had a great deal to do with the smashing of many of our idols of etiquette and the marring of our grace of speech and manners. The use of slang has become an obsession with some people and the tendency to flout all social strictures has led in many cases to boorishness.

Considering that the Canadian lives next door to the iconoclastic Yankee, he has kept himself to some extent free from the vices of his neighbor, but not altogether. He has, unconsciously perhaps, imbibed some of the bad manners and rough speech of Americans. This is noticed more particularly by those who come over from the British Isles where, with all their decadence in manners they are still the most urbane people in the world, with the exception of the French.

Speaking of the French reminds one that Canada is partly French and the affect of the French influence upon manners is to be plainly seen the nearer one goes to Quebec. It is in the very make-up of a Frenchman to be polite, and he seems to retain this quality of refinement even in adverse circumstances.

British Canadians would do well to cultivate the associations of their French fellow country-men for good manners and gentle speech are as oil to the jolting and hard-going wheels of life. Let us be a little more generous with the oil can.

INDEPENDENCE AND ISOLATION

President Wilson is reported to have made up his mind that he will not recognise the self-appointed President of the Sister Republic.

One would not suppose from the tales of anarchy and bloodshed that come from Mexico that anyone, except a person of desperate ambition would readily accept a throne that was so much infested with treachery and intrigue.

Huerta the present pretender to the Presidency is evidently a strong man, whether he is actuated by a desire to bring his storm-tossed country into a haven of peace, or merely to satisfy a craving for power is not quite clear.

Ambassador Wilson, whose actions must not be confused with those of the President, is still at Washington, presumably discussing the Mexican situation. To the outside public, it would appear that the United States Government does not know what to do and is hampered by the blessed Monro Doctrine which forbids the bringing to their councils the aid of other countries.

Independence is a very fine thing on the fourth of July when there are no Mexicans around, but in times of crisis, which come to all nations as to all men, this independence spells isolation and often helplessness.

All civilized countries will sympathise with President Wilson in his delicate task of handling the highly explosive Mexican problem. It is far more dangerous than some of the bombs that are being left around by the English Suffragettes.

THE HIGHWAYS COMMISSION

Ontario is at last beginning to think seriously about its highways. The appointment by Sir James Whitney of the new Public Roads and Highways Commission, marks a new era in road development throughout the province.

Anyone whose business or pleasure takes them over our country roads will appreciate the importance of such a commission.

Charles A. Magrath, C.E., William A. McLean, C.E., and A. M. Rankin, compose the Commission, and they will investigate and study all matters relating to the construction and maintenance of roads and highways. These three gentlemen are experts on the subject of good roads, and will have at their command large sums of money for the efficient carrying out their recommendations.

EDITORIAL NOTES

The heat wave is still flowing and Ontario seems to be on the crest of it.

The St. Catharines Star Journal in criticising the Review editorial on "Canada's dishonored cheque," says: "the funny part of it all is that Canada refuses to give a check (sic) at all." This all depends upon the matter of spelling. Canada did not check the British naval programme the Star-Journal is quite right there.

Ten tons of cold storage eggs, three years old, valued at $4,000 were released by the Board of Health after several poison tests at Trenton, N.J. It would be as well for the buyer to test them again at arms length, before eating.

H. M. S. N. Zeland has had a rousing reception in Vancouver harbor. This ship was not built by talk but by a dutiful and generous people.

Pte. Hawkins, the young Toronto man who has won the King's Prize has so far netted $2,750 through his achievement.

Someone remarked that it would be a good thing if we could bottle up some of this superfluous heat and distribute it around January and February. Mr. Edison might well consider the idea.

EXCERPTS

BUILDING

We are building, every day,
In a good or evil way,
And the structure, as it goes,
Must our inward self disclose.
Till in every inch and line,
All our hidden faults outshine.

Do you ask what building this?
That can show both pain and bliss
That can be both dark and fair.

Lo, its name is character,
Build it well, whate'er you do,
Build it straight strong and true,
Build it clean and high and broad,
Build it for the eye of God.

— JAMES BUCKHAM.

Great Ideas.

"I know a fellow who has a scheme to graft mosquito eggs on to fish eggs so the fish will always bite," said the boob.

"That's nothing," observed the cheerful idiot. "I know a guy who has a plan to graft house flies on to chickens so each hen will lay 20,000,000 eggs a year."—Cincinnati Enquirer.

Sure of Acquittal.

Magistrate—The case against you looks pretty dark, Mr. Johnson.

Mr. Johnson.—That's all right, jedge I kin prove an albino.—Puck.

"Squaw Men" In Britain.

The Fabian Society of England—of which George Bernard Shaw is the distinguished head—is taking a census of the growing army of "squaw men" in that country—husbands who loaf while their wives labor to support them. The suspicion is that the rapid increase of this type of male creature is largely responsible for the growing violence of militant suffragettism.

Mrs. C. M. Wilson, of the Fabians, who is investigating the matter, has this to say:—

"The object of the Fabian women's group is to study as thoroughly as possible the economic position of women in this country.

"So little is known at present about the number of wage-earning women who support others that we are making special inquiries into the subject.

"I have as yet no definite figures, but I should say that there are many thousands of women in this country who support husbands or other relatives.

"These women are to be found among all classes and in all professions and trades. Some of these wives are skilled workers, and take up their position as bread-winners quite cheerfully.

"It is very difficult to ascertain details of the better class homes where husbands, for some reason or other, are supported by their wives.

"Among poorer people, however—particularly in the district around the East London docks—I know there are hundreds of cases where the wife is the wage-earner of the home.

"The numbers of women who work to support not only husbands but fathers, mothers, sisters, brothers and other relatives, must be amazing!

A Good Rule.

When thou wishest to give thyself delight think of the excellences in those who live with thee—for instance, of the energy of one, the modesty of another, the liberal kindness of a third.—Marcus Aurelius.

THE MARKET

Latest Quotation in Grain, Dairy Products Live Stock, Etc

CHICAGO, July 30.—Big trading and flighty action of prices kept excitement at high pitch today in corn. There was sharp difference of opinion as to a further upturn in the market, showers having been predicted. The close was nervous. 1-4c to 3-8c above last night. Wheat finished at a decline of 1-4c to 1c, oats off 1-8c to 1-4c and provisions varying from unchanged figures to 30c down.

The Liverpool market closed ⅛d higher to ⅛d lower on wheat, and unchanged to ¼d higher on corn. Berlin wheat closed ⅛c lower. Antwerp ⅛c higher, and Budapest ⅛c lower.

CATTLE MARKETS

UNION STOCK YARDS.

TORONTO, July 30—Receipts of live stock at the Union Yards were 98 cars, 1509 cattle, 1385 hogs, 1804 sheep and lambs, and 459 calves.

Butchers

Best butchers, $6.25 to $6.50; good $6 to $6.25; medium, $5 to $5.50; common, $4.50 to $5; cows, $3 to $5; canners, at $2 to $2.75; bulls, $4 to $5.

Stockers and Feeders

Choice feeders, 900 to 1000 lbs., were sold at $5.50 to $5.75; good feeders, 800 to 900 lbs., $5.25 to $5.40; medium feeders, 800 lbs., $4.80 to $5; eastern stockers, $3 to $4.25.

Milkers and Springers

Trade in milkers and springers was about steady. Prices ranged from $40 to $70 each, the bulk of sales being made from $45 to $65.

Veal Calves

Choice veal calves were firm, but common calves were easier. Choice calves sold at $8.50 to $9; good, $7.50 to $8; medium calves $5.75 to $6.50; common, $4.75 to $5.25; inferior eastern calves, $3.50 to $4.75.

Sheep and Lambs

Sheep sold at steady prices, but lambs were 25 to 50 cents per cwt. lower. Light ewes, 100 to 130 lbs., $5 to $5.50; ewes, 140 to 160 lbs., $4 to $5; sheep, 160 lbs up, $3.25 to $4; cull sheep, $2.50 to $3.50; the bulk of the lambs sold at $7 to $8.20 per cwt.; cull lambs, $5 to $5.75.

Hogs

Selects, fed and watered, sold at $10.15 to $10.25, and $10.90, f.o.b. cars.

MONTREAL LIVE STOCK.

MONTREAL, July 30.—At the C. P. R. live stock market, receipts of live stock for the week ended July 23 were 1500 cattle, 1555 sheep and lambs, hogs and 1000 calves. The supplies for sale today amounted to 950 cattle, 1000 sheep and lambs, 1000 hogs and 800 calves.

Owing to the continued hot weather and the fact that this was partly a holiday among the butchers, on account of their annual picnic, trade in cattle was slow and steady. Choice steers were scarce. Good steers sold at $6.25 to $6.50 and lower grades from that down to $4.50 per 100 pounds, while butchers' cows brought from $3 to $4.50, and bulls from $3 to $4 per 100 pounds.

Demand for small meats continued good, lambs bringing $7.25 to $7.50 per 100 pounds. Calves were in good demand, prices ranging from $3 to $8 each, as to size and quality. There was an easier feeling in the market for rough hogs, and prices ruled lower, but, as supplies of selected lots were limited, values were maintained. There was a demand from packers, and sales of the latter were made at $10.75 to $11, and the former at $10 to $10.50 per 100 pounds, weighed off cars.

EAST BUFFALO LIVE STOCK.

EAST BUFFALO, July 30.—Cattle—Receipts, 5001; slow and steady.

Veals—Receipts, 50; slow and steady; $6 to $11.50.

Sheep and lambs — Receipts, 1200; lambs, active, 25c lower; sheep, slow, mixed sheep, 25c lower; lambs, $5.50 to $8; yearlings, $4 to $6.75; wethers, $5.50 to $5.75; ewes, $2.50 to $5; mixed, $5.00 to $5.25.

CHICAGO LIVE STOCK.

CHICAGO, July 30.—Cattle—Receipts, 19,500; market weak. Beeves, $6.90 to $9.10; Texas steers, $6.75 to $7.80; western steers, $6.40 to $7.55; stockers and feeders, $5.30 to $7.80; cows and heifers, $3.50 to $8; calves, $8 to $11.

Hogs—Receipts, 23,000; market opened steady to higher, closed weak; light, $8.35 to $9.40; mixed, $8.35 to $9.35; heavy, $8.25 to $9.15; rough $8.25 to $8.40; pigs, $6 to $9; bulk of sales, $8.70 to $9.10.

Sheep and Lambs—Receipts, 25,000; market steady; native, $4.25 to $5.35; western, $4.35 to $5.40; yearlings, $5.50 to $6.57, lambs, native, $5.50 to $7.50, western, $5 to $7.75.

Will Oppose the Dam.

OTTAWA, July 31.—The Government has retained C. C. McInnes, K.C., of Toronto, to represent it in preparing the case to be submitted to the International Waterways Commission with reference to the projected damming of St. Mary's River at Sault Ste Marie by the Michigan Lake Superior Power Co.

REBELS ACTIVE IN PORTUGAL.

Vast Revolt May Break Out at Any Moment.

PARIS, July 30.—Despatches from Portugal received by way of the Spanish frontier yesterday, indicate that great revolutionary activity prevails in Portugal, and it is reported that a vast movement, planned in Lisbon and Oporto, may break out at any moment. It is reported that serious street fighting occurred Monday night in various places between the troops and the civilians.

The censor in Lisbon refused to allow the cabling of an Associated Press despatch stating that a band of revolutionaries had attempted to rush the barracks of the 16th Infantry Regiment in order to rescue the political prisoners.

Pen, Chisel and Brush.

Sir Arthur Wing Pinero, England's greatest living dramatist, is fifty-eight years old.

To prevent the gradual destruction of paintings due primarily to oxidation of the varnish and colors Carl Mussbeck of Munich has proposed to inclose the canvases of great artists in a case containing nitrogen gas.

Miss Melva Beatrice Wilson, one of America's foremost women sculptors, is said to have entered a convent at Rome. She attained a success in the plastic art which was almost sensational in its meteoric rise.

Paul Pry Police.

The German police have a consuming curiosity about the visitor. They are polite, but the curiosity must be satisfied, and it covers well nigh every point upon which information can be given, says Mrs. Alfred Sidgwick in "Home Life In Germany."

Before you have been in Germany a fortnight the police expect to know all about you. You have to give them your father's Christian and surname and tell them how he earned his living and where he was born; also your mother's Christian and maiden name and where she was born. You must declare your religion and if you are married give your husband's Christian and surname; also where he was born and what he does for a living. If you happen to do anything yourself, though, you need not mention it. They do not expect a woman to be anything further than married or single. But you must say when and where you were last in Germany and how often you have been and why you have come now and what you are doing and how long you propose to stay.

Emergency Gas Pliers.

If at any time you need a pair of gas pliers, perhaps to take off a gas tip that is not working well, and you have none at hand you can always make a pair that will do the work for the moment, although they might not be just the thing for a gas fitter. Take a large pair of scissors, and you will find that where the handles join the blades they usually open out into a sort of oval. By putting a piece of sandpaper or anything rough round the base of the gas burner you can place this open part of the handle of the scissors round it and then press the blades of the scissors together so as to get leverage enough to twist the burner loose. There are many little light jobs that can be done with a pair of pliers made out of a pair of scissors if you are careful to have something between the handle and the object so as to prevent the scissors from slipping off.—New York Sun.

The Best Detective Story of the Last Ten Years

The impenetrable face of the detective gave no insight to his thoughts. He drew a chair close to the expectant couple, shifting his gaze from Fitch to the face of the young woman. Though he gave no sign of it, he read the acute suffering she felt.

"Miss Holcomb," he began, "when were you last in Europe with Mrs. Missioner?"

"A little less than a year and a half ago," came the quick response.

"Was that before or after the East Indian servant entered the employ of Mrs. Missioner?"

"He was engaged after we came back."

"Did you meet Mr. Sands or Mr. Griswold abroad?"

"We met both of them in London and Paris."

"Did Mrs. Missioner have the collarette with her? I mean the one with the Maharanee diamond?"

"She did."

The detective settled back in his chair, his chin in his hands, as if lost in deep thought. The strange pallor of his face, shaded by the waning light, gave him the appearance of a dark clay image. Miss Holcomb looked inquiringly at him, seeking some explanation of his puzzling questions.

"The case is more baffling than ever," he said, in response to her questioning look. "When I began my investigation, I was firmly convinced of your innocence——"

"And now?" interrupted Dr. Fitch.

Britz replied with an equivocal shrug of the shoulders. A moment or two passed before he spoke. "I am seeking the light," he said.

"Do you wish to ask Miss Holcomb any further questions?" Fitch asked. "She is only too anxious to enlighten you."

The detective's eyes narrowed on the young woman.

"There is some information that I want, Miss Holcomb; I believe you can supply it." After brief reflection he asked: "Mr. Sands and Mr. Griswold are frequent visitors at the house of Mrs. Missioner?"

"Both call very frequently," Miss Holcomb replied.

"And their visits are inspired by a feeling that is stronger than friendship?"

Miss Holcomb looked at Fitch as if in doubt what to say.

"Be perfectly frank," he advised.

"I believe both have proposed marriage to her," she informed him.

"And Mrs. Missioner—she prefers which one?"

"I don't know," came the prompt response.

"You mean she has never indicated her preference to you? Come now, surely in a burst of confidence she dropped some hint as to her inclinations?"

It was plain to Britz that Miss Holcomb revolted against violating the intimate confidences of her employer. To reveal the secrets that had come to her through association with the woman who seemingly had turned her back on her now was so inconsistent with Miss Holcomb's entire character that Britz recognized the necessity of urging his question.

"I am not asking this out of any motive of idle curiosity," he said. "It is of vital importance I should be informed of Mrs. Missioner's relations with Mr. Sands and Mr. Griswold, as well as of the opportunity each had for obtaining the diamonds."

"I am sure neither of them would or could have taken them," Miss Holcomb said.

"That may be perfectly true," replied Britz. "I do not say either of them took the diamonds, but I must follow every line of inquiry that reveals itself to me. Now, isn't it a fact, Miss Holcomb, that Griswold was the preferred suitor?"

"I do not think so," she said in a low voice.

"You mean she preferred Sands?"

"Yes."

"What makes you think so?"

"Her general demeanor toword the two men."

"You mean she showed more fondness for Sands?"

Miss Holcomb knitted her brows. Her perplexity made her slow and hesitating of speech.

"I cannot say that," she answered. "Sometimes I thought she cared more for Mr. Griswold, and then again I would feel certain she preferred Mr. Sands. In the main, however, I always believed that Mr. Sands held her affections; while Mr. Griswold simply pleased her with his attentions."

"Possibly Mrs. Missioner didn't know her own mind?" the detective asked.

"Perhaps not," agreed Miss Holcomb.

"Did she ever make any remarks to you that led you to believe she cared more for one than for the other?"

"None that I recall."

"Miss Holcomb, do you know the history of the Maharanee diamond?" he suddenly flered.

A quick spark of memory kindled her mind, and with the first flash she understood the import of his question.

"Mrs. Missioner told me the history of the stone," she said. "I believe there was some scandal connected with its purchase in India. She told me that when her husband obtained it, there was some talk of it having been stolen from a temple and that the provincial native government tried to regain possession of it. Mr. Missioner succeeded, however, in retaining it as part of his collection."

"What opportunity did the Indian servant have of obtaining the necklace?"

"None at all," she answered hopelessly, "unless he broke into the safe, and I believe that was not done."

"Mrs. Missioner informed me that on one occasion, when the necklace was lying on the table, the servant entered the room with a box. You were in the room at the time. Was he close enough to the table to touch the necklace?"

"I remember the incident very well," she replied. "I took the box from him at the door and he turned around and went downstairs. I do not believe he was within ten feet of the table at any time."

"I don't know what to think," Britz said, after some reflection. "Almost as soon as a new clew bobs up, it falls down and I have to begin all over again. I have no more questions to ask to-day."

Fitch accompanied the detective out of the prison, begging vainly for some word of encouragement. Britz answered his questions with monosyllables, as if he feared to commit himself with regard to the outcome of his investigation. Just before parting, however, Britz said:

"Every line that develops in this case, you can rest assured, will be followed to the end. So far, nothing has been discovered that changes the aspect of the case in the slightest degree."

The detective walked to Headquarters and entered the office of the Chief.

"Has Donnelly or Carson reported anything new?" he inquired.

"Nothing," answered the Chief. "And you?"

"Nothing that throws any light on the case."

"Britz," the Chief remarked, as though delivering some weighty conclusion, "I think you're working on the wrong hypothesis. You seem to have decided that Miss Holcomb is innocent. If you will survey the case as it stands, you will have to acknowledge that absolutely everything in it points to her guilt. I do not undertake to say what her motive was in stealing the jewels, unless it was simply the feminine lust for ornaments. I feel certain, also, that she was not alone in the crime. My belief is that she took the necklace out of the safe, turned it over to Dr. Fitch, or some one else, to have the duplicate made, and then returned the false jewels to the safe."

"But where were the paste gems made?" inquired Britz.

"That's for you to find out," snapped the Chief.

"I have personally visited every manufacturer of paste gems in this city and in Philadelphia, Boston, Buffalo and Washington. My men have been to all the places in the smaller cities. Manufacturers in all the other cities of the country have been visited by the local police, and I feel absolutely sure that the duplicates were not made in this country. Logan is on the way to Paris now, and until we hear from him I don't think we are safe in venturing any opinion as to the identity of the thief. I am receiving daily reports of the movements of Sands, Griswold, the butler, and the Indian servant, but they show nothing."

"Why do you think Logan will discover anything? Has the real necklace ever been abroad?"

"Mrs. Missioner had it with her on the other side, but I don't know that it ever left her possession."

The Chief's lips coiled into an amused smile.

"Kind o' looks as if you're on the wrong scent," he baited.

"Wait till we hear from Paris," Britz returned.

"You're 'way off the trail," the Chief persisted. "You're not even following the lines of your own deduction. The other day you said you were convinced the necklace was stolen within the last month. How do you suppose they got it to Paris, had it duplicated, and then had the counterfeit sent back here in four weeks? You don't give them any time for the manufacture of the pastes."

"The crime was not conceived and executed in a day," Britz returned. "It is the work of long thought and careful planning. The duplicates may have been made any time within five years. The substitution was made since the expert saw the necklace fifteen months ago. A man like Ranscome would have detected the paste at a glance. I saw him yesterday and he informed me the stones he saw were genuine."

"Then, following your line of reasoning, we must conclude that the original was out of the possession of Mrs. Missioner without her knowledge long enough to enable the thief to have the duplicate made? And if that is the case, then only one person could have succeeded in the crime. The secretary was the only one who had access to the safe, and she also would have known Mrs. Missioner's plans well enough to enable her to judge the length of time she could withhold the necklace without detection. Of course, the theft would have been discovered at once if Mrs. Missioner wanted to wear the necklace while it was gone."

"The original stones were never stolen from the safe," Britz said in a positive tone.

"Then how was the substitution made?" queried the other.

"I don't know," replied the detective gloomily. "I have yet to discover the time of the substitution."

"It seems to me," said the Chief, "you have still to discover a good many things with regard to this case. As a matter of fact, you're as much at sea as on the day you took charge."

"I have only begun to throw out my lines," Britz declared. "I'll land the fish before I'm through, and it won't be Miss Holcomb."

As the detective left the office, he could not help a feeling of depression at the slow progress of events. As yet, the intricacies of the mystery were vaguely outlined in his mind. He saw them as a floating mist, heavy with possibilities but charged with delusive signs of beckoning trails that he instinctively knew led to nowhere. He was still treading lightly the mazes of the case. One false step might be fatal, and he preferred to remain in a crouching attitude of watchfulness, ready to spring from cover at the proper moment.

Much as he deplored his enforced inactivity, he nevertheless had faith in the final outcome. A quick mental survey of the case convinced him that the first necessity was to find the maker of the paste stones. Whoever made the duplicate Maharanee would surely recall having done so. There were few European firms that could have made the stone. It was doubtful whether any American manufacturer could have turned out a substitute to fool the eyes of Mrs. Missioner, even for a night. It is hard enough to get the compact brilliance of the diamond in a small paste gem; infinitely more difficult is it to manufacture a counterfeit Maharanee. Britz knew that whoever copied the cut and luster of that marvelous stone was an expert of high caliber. No fain shimmer of glass could have avoiled to deceive Mrs. Missioner. The laboratory fire that gleamed from the duplicate was the work of years of experiment, and only in Paris, Britz believed, was the art of manufacturing paste gems sufficiently developed to bring forth a satisfactory duplicate of the Maharanee.

Three weeks at least, must elapse before word would come from Logan. The emissary sent abroad was himself a diamond expert. Before entering the Detective Bureau he had been a foreign agent of the United States Treasury Department. If the duplicate necklace was manufactured abroad, Logan would find the manufacturer without delay. Britz had faith in his man, and he waited impatiently through three weeks of torment for the first cablegram. It came finally, and he opened it with nervous fingers.

"Missioner necklace manufactured from drawings by three firms. Original never in possession of manufacturers."

Britz let the telegram flutter to the floor.

"I knew it!" he burst forth. "They wouldn't have dared to take the original out of the safe without immediately replacing it with the duplicate."

He picked up the message and burst into the Chief's room.

"Read it!" he exclaimed.

The Chief's eyes drank in the words but his brain failed to grasp their underlying meaning.

"I don't see that this proves anything," he remarked.

"It proves everything," volleyed Britz. "It proves that the thief was a clever draughtsman. It proves that he spent weeks sketching the necklace, stone by stone, and it proves, too, that he went to Paris to have the duplicate made."

"It proves all that," agreed the Chief. "But who had the opportunity to see the necklace a sufficient number of times and long enough to make the sketches? Who but Miss Holcomb?"

"I will find someone who had almost as good an opportunity," Britz returned confidently.

"And if you do, what will it mean?" asked the Chief.

"It will mean something to work on," the detective said.

275 IMMIGRANTS CAME HERE THIS SEASON

Since the opening of the immigration season here this spring some 275 immigrants arrived in Peterboro' and have secured employment through the office of the local immigration agent, Mr. Finch Miller. About ninety per cent were men and about eighty per cent of them obtained positions on farms in the surrounding country, while the others remained in the city.

Last year the immigration figures for Canada was about 407,729. This year the figures will probably reach over 500,000.

Most of the men ranged from seventeen to thirty-five years of age. Although a large percentage of them were green at farming, the reports from farmers are very encouraging.

NEWS NOTES FROM FRASERVILLE

Special Correspondence.

Fraserville, July 30.—Word was received here last week of the death of a Methodist minister, a former resident of Fraserville, in the person of Rev. J. E. Robeson, whose demise occurred in Shannonville on Thursday, July 17th inst. Mr. Robeson was in his usual health and was busily engaged in getting settled in his new home, to which he had moved only two weeks ago. About noon he complained of severe pain and a doctor was immediately summoned, who pronounced it a case of acute indigestion and heart failure, and Mr. Robeson passed away at midnight.

Rev. Mr. Robeson was born sixty-seven years ago in the village of Athens, Leeds county, and was engaged in the active ministry of the Methodist church for over forty years.

A memorial service was held in the Methodist church, Shannonville, Monday forenoon, nine of his brother ministers being present. The following ministers spoke in touching terms of Mr. Robeson's sterling traits and christian life:—Revs. J. P. Wilson, of Napanee, J. Clark, S. Depreau, Dr. Osborne, McCollogh, all of Belleville, and Rev. Mr. Howard of Bayside.

The burial took place at Athens on Tuesday, his six sons being pall bearers. The family were all permitted to reach home for the funeral.

He is survived by his widow and six sons, Frank and Simeon, of North Dakota, Rev. Jas. G., of Michigan, Rev. Jno. E., of Illinois, Herbert and Walter of Toronto and four daughters, Mrs. W. A. Kidd and Mrs. J. S. Latimer, of Fraserville, Mrs. Wm. Wasson, of Warsaw, and Mrs. H. C. McIlmoyle, of Toronto. He also is survived by three brothers and one sister. Rev. J. B. Robeson, Hannah, N.D., and S. Robeson of Elgin.

Rev. Mr. Robeson travelled the following circuits:—Beachburg, Renfrew, Riceville, Aultsville, Millford, Bay, Sidney, Warsaw, Salem, Little Britain, Bethany, Fraserville, Greenwood, Norham, Ivanhoe, Enniskillen and Shannonville.

NORWOOD NEWS

Special Correspondence.

NORWOOD, July 30.—Mr J. Stan. Weir, of the Bank of Toronto, has returned home after spending a two weeks' vacation at Stony Lake and Madoc.

Mr. B Sanders, of Toronto spent a couple of days last week visiting at the home of Mr. and Mrs C. J. Searight, Peterborough street.

Mr. Chas. O'Reilly has been appointed the local representative of the Public Library to the Lindsay District Library Association meeting to be held at Uxbridge on Thursday and Friday of this week.

On Friday evening of last week our village band gave an open air concert on the band stand in front of the town hall. Quite a number of the people gathered and enjoyed the music, showing their appreciation by occasionally applauding the efforts of the bandsmen.

At a meeting of Court Norwood, I.O.F., held on Friday evening last Bro. C. J. Blake was appointed Court representative to the Grand Lodge in Ottawa this summer.

Mr L. C. Patrick, of Fort William, a former member of the Union Bank staff here, spent a few days in the village last week with friends.

Rev. O. E. Cragg, of Mark Street Church, Peterborough, conducted the services in the Methodist Church here on Sunday last, both morning and evening.

Commencing on Sunday next the Methodist and Presbyterian congregations will hold union services for a few weeks. Next Sunday services will be held in the Presbyterian Church.

Magistrates Squire and Breault held court here on Tuesday afternoon of this week and heard the evidence against Nathan Chard and Ed. McNutt, charged with being drunk in a public place in a local option municipality. The charge was laid by a Mr. Shoaldise, and the trouble took place on the outskirts of of the village on the Havelock road. Chard and McNutt pleaded not guilty, and several witness were examined. The evidence pointed to the fact that both the defendants were not only drunk but were guilty of using grossly profane language. They were both convicted and fined $20.00 and $9.14 costs, each.

The weather this week has been exceedingly hot, yet this section has been favored with several fine showers of rain which has kept the grain and roots in a very healthy condition. While reports come from some other parts of the country of a serious shortage in crops, Norwood and vicinity has very little to complain of; while the hay was short yet the spring grains as well as the majority of the fall grains are promising a fairly good yield.

Harvesting is progressing rapidly. Rye and fall wheat are ripe, and barley is also ripe. The oats in some places are ripening fast and in driving through the country one is encouraged and delighted with the present outlook.

The growing grain has maintained a very healthy appearance throughout the dry summer and it is thought that though the quantity of straw will not be up to the average, the grain will be at least a good sample and a fairly good yield.

There passed away on Tuesday afternoon one of Asphodel's most highly respected and life-long residents in the person of Mr. John Beavis at his home. Mr. Beavis who had not been enjoying good health for the past year was taken seriously ill about three weeks ago with Bright's Disease and had been steadily sinking till death mercifully released him from his suffering at 3 p.m. on Tuesday of this week. Mr. Beavis was the eldest son of the late Mr. Adam Beavis, and had all his life time resided in Asphodel. He leaves to mourn his loss his wife and six sons and two daughters. The sons are Louis, Herbert, Percy, Milton and Wilbert of Asphodel, and Harold who lives in Seymour. The daughters are Mrs. James Stephenson, of Hastings, and Evelyn, the youngest of the family, at home. The sympathy of the entire community is extended to the bereaved family.

On Monday Mr. John Palmer returned home from Peterborough, where he has been employed for some time.

Some of the Omemeeites who left on the Ste. Anne de Beaupre, Que., excursion last week were: Mr and Mrs. Fred Sandy, Misses A. Ivory and E. Robinson, and ~~Messrs. J. R.~~ Lamb and Charles Ivory.

Mr. T. W. McLean was the guest of his mother at Mount Pleasant last week.

Dr. W. and Mrs. Cook and children, of Sudbury, are holiday guests at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs Sam Grandy, Sturgeon street.

Mr. George Wilson has moved from his residence on Sturgeon street to his father's farm in the suburbs. George will assume the management of the homestead soon and we predict for him a large measure of success.

A very pretty wedding ceremony was celebrated on Wednesday last at the home of Mr. G. McConnell, of the suburbs, the occasion being the marriage of his daughter, Miss Jennie, to Mr. Reuben Bradley, of Dunsford. In the presence of about 40 guests the nuptial knot was tied by the Rev. W. F. Chapman pastor of the Methodist church. The young celebrants were unattended. A very large collection of useful, beautiful and costly presents attested to the popularity and esteem of the bride. After the usual congratulations following the marriage ceremony, the company partook of a sumptuous dejeuner. Both of the young couple are highly respected and have lived practically all their lives in Omemee. They will reside at Dunsford, where Mr. Bradley controls a general store business.

Miss Jessie Allen has returned to her duties again at Orange, N.J.

Mr. Burns has returned home to Chicago.

Vote For a Strike.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 31.—Ninety-six per cent. of the trainmen and conductors, employed on the Pacific division of the Southern Pacific System, have voted to strike unless their differences with the management over the terms of employment, rating and seniority allowed on the company's electric lines can be adjusted. The result of the vote, which stands 3,816 in favor of strike to 187 against, was made public here last night.

NOT A TWINGE OF RHEUMATISM SINCE TAKING RHEUMA

"I suffered from Rheumatism for six years; tried different doctors with no relief. I saw your advertisement and decided to try RHEUMA. I have taken three bottles and am entirely free from the disease. I was so bad I could not sleep nights; now I sleep well, and my kidneys work perfectly."—P. W. Miller, Catawissa, Pa.

"For 14 months I was so badly afflicted with Rheumatism that much of the time I was obliged to use a cane. I used one bottle of RHEUMA and THE CANE IS IN THE CORNER NOW. No one could be happier to be rid of the pain, swollen knees and badly swollen ankles. I certainly believe there is no remedy for the disease like RHEUMA."—Mrs. Daniel S. Knox, Severance, N.Y., Aug. 8, 1912.

Warne Drug Co. guarantees RHEUMA to cure Rheumatism, Gout, Lumbago, Sciatica, Arthritis, Chronic Neuralgia and Kidney disease, or money back—and only 50 cents a bottle.

FANS APPRECIATE BOB STERLING'S GOOD WORK

The splendid work of Bob Sterling the "Iron Man" of the Petes, has brought forth very favorable comment from the local fans.

Last week he was sent in twice against Berlin. He lost the first game, although allowing but four hits, and he won the second contest when only one run was recorded against him, and that tally was the result of an error.

Yesterday at London the big fellow twirled against the Cockneys and despite his four-hit performance, he lost. His team-mates fielded poorly.

Sterling is game to the core, and is always out to win. No matter how his fielders may be playing, he continues to do his best, and you never hear him grouch.

If Bob Sterling should be inclined to feel disheartened, he can rest assured that the fans of Peterborough appreciate him for his consistent and faithful work on the diamond, and also for his irreproachable conduct when not in uniform. Players of his calibre are a credit to the Sporting World, and to the club of which they are a member.

ORDERS GOVERNING SHOOTING AT THE RANGES

Headquarters,
Peterboro, July 31, 13.

Orders by the Officer Commanding 57th Regiment, Peterborough Rangers.

1. The senior officer present at the ranges at any rifle practice is responsible for the conduct of shooting unless another officer has been specially detailed for that duty.

2. No man will be allowed to shoot at the ranges unless he has had previous practice at range shooting, or unless he has been given a certificate from the sergeant instructor of musketry at the miniature ranges.

3. Sergeant Instructor Dunkley will be at the miniature ranges in the armories on Tuesday and Friday evenings at 7.30 to give instruction in rifle practice.

By order.

D. WALKER,
Major-Adjutant.

LIFE INSURANCE

THE pessimist and the prophet of woe have no rightful place in any consideration of the expediency of insuring life. But certain hard facts should be squarely faced by every man of moderate means who has anyone dependent on him. Hundreds of men are yearly rejected for life insurance who would have been accepted had they not delayed their applications until ill health had come upon them. Why do men in good condition take such a long chance of remaining well? It is an impressive fact that out of 8549 holders of policies in a leading life insurance company who died in the past year, only 64 died of old age. The remainder were carried away by disease or accident. Hence the wisdom of insuring early in life. The best years for saving are from 20 to 40, and no man should let that period pass without taking out an insurance policy. For that part of his career an endowment policy, which is likely to mature while he is still living and can secure the proceeds of it himself, is to be preferred.

There will probably always be poor old men. their ranks will be recruited from the successful men of an earlier date, and fortunate is he who has made certain provision by means of endowment insurance in the Sun Life Assurance Company of Canada.

BRITISH GOLF PLAYERS TO COME

New York, N.Y., July 31.—Golf circles here say Muriel Dodd and Gladys Ravenscroft, champion and last year's champion of Great Britain will visit America this year, first competing in the Canadian championships.

FOOTBALL

The following C.G.E. football team are asked to be at the Exhibition Grounds to-night at 7 p.m. sharp to play a practice game with the Caledonias: Evans, Gribb, Hall, Mason, Hosker, Milburn, Wilson, Williams, Moriaty, Grench, Gash, Mellor, Knight.

On Saturday the second game in the semi-final of the Midland League between the Nomads and C.G.E shop will be played at Riverside Park. The game on Saturday was a tie, 3—3, so this game will be hotly contested as both teams are out to win. The winners will play off with Pickering for the League Championship. Mr Arthur Pagett will referee.

All the members of the Caledonian Football Club are asked to be present at the practise to be held in the Exhibition Grounds to-night at 7 o'clock.

NEWS NOTES FROM KEENE

Special Correspondence.

KEENE, July 30.—Mr. Robt Campbell has purchased a new skiff off our boat builder, Mr. R. Brown, and has also purchased a detatchable motor engine and has it attached to his new skiff, his trial trip being very successful. The boat will easily make eight miles an hour.

Mr. John Neish passed away on Thursday of last week at the ripe age of 82, of heart failure. Mr. Neish had not been in the best of health for some time. He leaves to mourn his loss a loving wife, two daughters and one son. The funeral was conducted by Rev. Goodwill on Saturday, at 1.30 o'clock, and was a very large one, showing the respect the people of the community held for him. Interment took place in Pine Grove cemetery. The pall bearers were Messrs James McNeil, John Lang, James Henderson, R. Short, D. McIntyre and Z. Renwick.

Mr. Douglas Simpson of Birdsall's was in the village on Monday.

Mr. John Dooley, of Rochester, is visiting at the home of Mr. Patrick Bolin.

Mr. Hugh McKee and sister, Hazel spent Sunday with Peterborough friends.

Misses Bessie and Nellie Reid returned to their home at Peterborough on Saturday.

Mr. Michael Maher of Rochester who has been visiting his sister Mrs. David Wallis returned home on Monday of last week.

Mr. J. Tucker has a force of men digging the drain and putting in the tile for the draining of the lower cemetery. Mr. Tucker is to be commended for the work he is doing in fixing up and beautifying the cemetery, as a cemetery should be a place of beauty, and taken care of, instead of fallen down tomb stones and hideous weeds, which we believe, will be a thing of the past.

Miss Lillian McFarlane has returned from Buffalo, where she has been taking a course in book-keeping and shorthand, having completed the course. She is spending her holidays at the home of her father, Mr. John McFarlane.

Mr. William Pickel is erecting new wire fence around Pine Grove cemetery, which will make a decided improvement.

On last Wednesday evening the Foresters held their regular monthly meeting.

Mr. and Mrs. L. Burley and little son returned from Rochester, where they had been visiting friends the past week.

Miss Hettie Webb left for her holiday on Friday, for Toronto and other points.

Mr. George McCartney and Marsh Weir, of Bethany, spent Sunday in the village with friends.

Mr and Mrs Archibald of Scotland were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Wood last week.

Mrs Geo. McCartney and little daughter of Bethany, are guests of Mrs. R Skinner.

Oak Lodge, near the Serpent Mound on River Lake, under the management of James Ashburn are accommodating a large number of tourists this summer.

Rev T. W. Goodwill was in Peterboro on Tuesday.

Mr and Mrs. D. Kerr of Chicago Ill., Mrs Baker and daughter of North Baltimore, Ohio, are guests at the home of Mrs. Donald Anderson.

Mrs. Herbert Quinn left for her home at Rochester on Monday after a pleasant two weeks stay at the home of James Quinn, at the Island.

HOME COURSE IN FRUITS AND BERRIES

HOW TO GROW GRAPES.

By GEORGE C. HUSMANN, Pomologist, Bureau of Plant Industry, United States Department of Agriculture.

GRAPES can be successfully grown almost everywhere in this country, results with them depending largely upon the selection of varieties of the species suited to the respective conditions. In ordinary practice grapevines are propagated from seed, from cuttings, by layering or by grafting. For originating new varieties seedlings must, of course, be used. The individual seedlings differ so widely that they are seldom used by the intelligent planter even for grafting stock.

Cuttings for propagation may be prepared at any time after the vines have become dormant. Other things being equal and if they are afterward well cared for, the sooner they are prepared after the vines have become dormant the better. The length of cuttings may vary from eight to twenty inches, depending on the climatic and other conditions of the locality in which they are to be planted. Usually the hotter and drier the climate the longer the cuttings will need to be. They should always be made from young, well matured wood and preferably from medium sized, short jointed wood.

To make cuttings cut close below the lower bud, making the cut somewhat slanting, and leave about an inch of wood above the upper bud or eye.

Propagated by Layers.

All varieties of the vine may be propagated by layers. The rotundifolia vines are nearly always propagated in this manner, but with other species layering is usually resorted to only with varieties which do not root readily from cuttings. In layering choose canes of the last season's growth, preferably those that start near the base of the vine.

Bench grafting is done on benches or tables, usually indoors during winter. Cuttings of resistant varieties that root easily or good, young, rooted plants are usually bench grafted.

The grafting of vines growing in the nursery is called nursery grafting. This form of propagation is usually resorted to with varieties resistant to phylloxera that do not grow readily from cuttings. Rooted cuttings of other varieties are grafted in the nursery and resulting vines planted in the vineyard.

In vineyard grafting the vines growing where they are to remain are grafted.

Selection of Scions.

The selection and proper keeping of the scions for grafting are very important. Medium sized, short jointed, firm, well ripened wood should be selected. Do not allow the scions to dry out, but keep them dormant until used by covering completely with fairly dry sand in a cool, dry cellar.

In all grafting a joining of the inner bark of the stock and scion must be accomplished. This bark is thicker on the stock than on the scion. The union, especially in vineyard grafting, needs to be closely observed when the scions are inserted. In bench grafting scions and stocks of like diameter can be selected, making possible such perfect grafting that the inner barks join at almost every point, allowing their knitting to become easy and complete.

In bench grafting the visible and adventitious buds are cut out of the cuttings used as stocks so as to prevent as much as possible the sprouting of suckers from the stocks after they are planted.

In vineyard grafting many operators a month or so before grafting cut off the stem of the vine an inch or two above where it is to be grafted so that the stock may bleed profusely. Water sprouts that otherwise would appear are thus to a great extent eliminated.

In cleft grafting the vines are cut off at a smooth place near and preferably a little above the surface of the ground unless it is desired to have the grafts establish themselves on their own roots, as it makes the removal of water sprouts and roots starting from the scion much easier and lessens the danger of injuring the scion before it is thoroughly knitted to the stock.

Bench Grafting.

In bench grafting a smooth surface for grafting is selected above a node on the stock. The node keeps the stock from splitting below it during the grafting process. After cutting off the stock, whether a vine or a cutting, split it longitudinally with a knife or shears or, if a heavy vine, with a chisel. In cleft grafting stocks not more than an inch in diameter the shears can be used in making both the horizontal and the longitudinal cuts. To prevent the bruising of the bark in cutting keep the blade of the shears on the side where the scion is to be inserted. To prepare the scion cut with a sharp knife a simple wedge, beginning at or slightly below a bud and making a long sloping cut toward the middle and a similar one on the opposite side. Scions of two eyes are preferable. To insert open the cleft and push the scion in firmly until the bud is just above the upper end of the stock, taking care that the inner barks of stock and scion fit closely. When large vines are grafted it may require a metal wedge to open the cleft. In large vines two scions, one on each side, are frequently used.

Another favorite method with small stocks, especially in bench grafting when the diameter of the stock is the same or very little greater than that of the scion, is the English cleft, split or whip graft.

The treatment given vines during the first years of their growth largely determines the profit and pleasure to be derived from them. If improperly cared for during this period satisfactory returns are not obtained afterward.

Cuttings and Rooted Vines.

If cuttings are planted and the supply is sufficient two in each place increase the chances of getting a full stand. Should both cuttings grow one of them can easily be pulled up without injuring the other. To protect the cuttings from drying out plant them so that the top bud projects only a trifle above the ground.

If rooted vines, either plain or grafted, are used the roots should be cut back to three to four inches, depending on their vigor. Only one cane of the top should be left, and this should be cut back to two or three good buds. If grafts are used all scion roots and all suckers should be carefully removed.

During the first year after planting no pruning or training is usually given, although it is perhaps a good plan with vigorous plants, especially if the season is propitious, to rub off all except the straightest and strongest of the young shoots that start. The following winter the vines should be pruned and staked before they start to grow, the size of the stake used depending on the method of training adopted.

By the third year all vines should have erect, straight stems, with two or more canes growing from the principal part, out of which the head or crown is to be formed and from which the growth of the vine is to be renewed from year to year.

To prune intelligently the age, size and condition of the plant, the location, climate, soil and other features of its environment and the principles governing its life must be considered.

A statement of some of the more important of these life principles follows. The sap flows with greatest force to the outer extremities; the more upright a branch is the more sap flows into it; the sap when abundant and active produces wood; the more abundant the flow of the sap the larger and later the fruit; the ascending sap grows richer the farther it flows; checking the flow of the sap makes the plant bear earlier and produces more and richer fruit. The vine usually bears its fruit on new shoots growing from the wood of the previous year. The time for pruning is in winter, when the vines are dormant. They should not be cut when frozen or while the sap is flowing rapidly. Summer pruning is practiced on the young growth to regulate the quantity of fruit and the shape of the plant.

In pruning one or more of the following objects are usually accomplished. Parts of plants removed, renewed, promoted or retarded; wounded and diseased plants cured; the shapes and habits of plants modified; the size and quantity of the fruit increased or diminished; the quality of the fruit improved; the fruit made to ripen earlier or later; a regular succession of fruit secured, and the spraying, training, cultivation and gathering of the fruit facilitated.

Methods Used in Pruning.

There are various ways in which the objects of pruning are accomplished. For instance, the growth and health of a plant are promoted and the size of the fruit is increased (1) by removing all the diseased parts and suckers, (2) by shortening extended shoots, side shoots and laterals, (3) by putting upright the part whose rapid growth is desired and (4) by removing the fruit buds or fruit. The plant is retarded in growth and made to bear earlier and richer fruit by shortening the leading shoots and leaving the fruit bearing wood and by bending down the branches and ring pruning them. The healing of wounded and diseased plants is promoted by removing the injured parts and dressing the wound. The head of a plant is renewed by cutting off the branches above; the head is made to grow thicker by cutting back the outer branches and to grow thinner by amputating all canes on which there is too much growth.

There are so many species of grapes each having peculiarities of its own and therefore responding most readily to certain cultural methods to which it is best adapted, that the pruning, training and growing of vines, which otherwise may appear quite simple, become complicated operations in which comparatively few people grow expert, and vineyards in which serious mistakes are not made are rare.

A MESSAGE FROM A WOMAN TO WOMEN

"Every Woman Should Take "Fruit-a-tives"

LAKELET, ONT., MAY 17th. 1911

"Kindly publish this letter of mine if you think it will benefit other women who might be afflicted with the diseases I have had in the past, but am now, thanks to "Fruit-a-tives", completely cured of. It is my firm belief that every woman should take "Fruit-a-tives" if she wants to keep herself in good health.

Before taking "Fruit-a-tives", I was constantly troubled with what is commonly known as "Nerves" or severe Nervousness. This Nervousness brought on the most violent attacks of Sick Headache, for which I was constantly taking doctors' medicine without any permanent relief. Constipation was also a source of great trouble to me and for which the Doctors said "I would have to take medicine all my life", but "Fruit-a-tives" banished all these troubles and now I am a well woman"

Mont Royal a Volcano?

The St. Lawrence region is very frequently visited by very remarkable earth tremors, says a recent writer.

I lived in Montreal for five years and during that period I distinctly remember two rather heavy earthquakes which happened during the daytime. We had several in the night, but as I am rather a sound sleeper I did not feel these.

I was attending college in Montreal at the time and was sitting at a desk at approximately six o'clock in the evening when I experienced my first earthquake. The desk started to rock very violently, also the chair in which I was sitting. I do not know what else happened in that particular classroom, as the whole crowd got out in such a hurry we did not have a chance to wait and see. Across the street from the main entrance to the college a chimney fell from a private dwelling and narrowly missed hitting a baby in a baby carriage.

Two other earthquakes happened at about the same time, but I was used to it by this time, and it did not have the same effect. There is an old legend which is told in the region of Montreal to the effect that Mont Royal will some day open up as a full-fledged volcano. I understand that it is of volcanic origin, and if you will examine the top of the mountain very carefully you will see that it has an appearance somewhat similar to the crater of a small volcano, excepting that this mountain is covered with trees and grass.

PROGRESS OF VERMONT MARBLE CO. OPERATIONS

Building is Completed and Cement Floor Was Started To-day Some of the Machinery Ready to be Installed

With its meteor-like growth the building of the Vermont Marble Co. in East City is rapidly nearing completion, and the plant will be in operation by the middle of September.

The building, which is some 220 by 65 feet, is a large frame structure, one storey, raised off the ground, and built on a cement foundation. The cement work of the building was done by Mr. F. Mahood, a local contractor, and the frame work by the company's construction gang.

The main body of the building will comprise the sawing, rubbing and finishing machines, and will be fitted with the latest devices used in the marble business. Work was commenced to-day in putting in the cement floor. Some of the machinery is already on the grounds ready to be installed, while the rest is on the road. One of the features of the new building will be a large electric travelling crane, which will be used in loading and unloading the heavy stone. The plumbing for the building is being installed by F. R. G. McPherson. A siding is also being laid and will be ready for use by the time the plant is in operation. The power will be supplied by the Peterborough Light and Power Company.

On the opening of their plant the firm will employ about thirty men and will increase their staff when they get in working order. Owing to the fact that most of the men will have to be taught the business, the building will be a scientific school for some time.

Already they have a large number of orders booked and are looking forward to a heavy trade before the end of the year.

Mr. T. M. Howard, of Syracuse, will be the new manager and will be a valuable acquisition to Peterborough's factories, and also an asset to East City. The building in its fresh coat of paint makes a fine showing.

BIG CROWD FROM LINDSAY

Steamer Stoney Lake Carried Sons of England Excursionists

SALVATION ARMY

Had Successful Outing Down the River, on the Esturion

The steamer "Stoney Lake" carried a happy crowd of passengers yesterday, when the Sons of England of Lindsay held their excursion to Peterboro and return by rail. So popular was the excursion that many people were turned away from the boat at the Lindsay wharf so that the capacity mark would not be passed.

Just as the steamer emerged from No. 4 lock, she met the "Estusion" carrying a big crowd of Salvation Army excursionists, who had an enjoyable day down the river.

It was quite an interesting sight to see both steamers coming up the lake.

Expensive Evening Gowns

are not matters of every-day purchase, and therefore even the independently wealthy like to take the greatest care of them. Yet sometimes the functions of a single evening will ruin their appearance temporarily. We can remedy this, however, by our system of careful cleaning, and in any case we can dye the garment and make it like a new one.

RETREAT AT MOUNT ST. JOSEPH

Under Direction of Rev. P. A. Mullins S. J. of Chicago

The annual retreat of the Sisters of St. Joseph of this diocese, is now in progress at Mount St. Joseph of this city. The exercises of the Retreat are under the direction of the Rev. P. A. Mullins, S.J. of St. Ignatius University, Chicago.

The Sisters in attendance, numbering about seventy-five, are from the various convents of Sault Ste Marie, North Bay, Lindsay, Cobourg, Douglas and Peterboro. This Retreat will close on August 4th. A second Retreat will be opened on Aug. 6th by the same Reverend Director, and will be attended by a still greater number of Religions. It will close on Aug. 15th with the solemn ceremonies of Reception and Profession.

Owing to the cost of travel, Retreats are being held at the same time in Port Arthur for the members of the various institutions of Port Arthur and Fort William.

THE LIGHT OF THE WORLD

The Y.M.C.A. Has Been Presentep With Painting

The Y.M.C.A. has just received a handsome painting entitled "The Light of the World." It was presented to the local Association by the Rt. Hon. Chas. Booth of London, Eng., and is a masterpiece by Holdman Hunt, a well known English artist. Large number of people have already visited the Y.M.C.A. and are highly pleased with the gift.

PRESENTATION TO MRS. READ

House Girls of Y.W.C.A. Show Their Appreciation

Last evening at the Y.W.C.A. a number of the house girls held an informal reception for Mrs. W. J. Read of the Y.W.C.A. staff. Mrs. Read was presented with a handsome solid leather club bag and an address of appreciation.

Mrs. Read leaves on Friday to take up her new work at the Cottage Hospital in Pembroke.

A successor has not yet been appointed.

"GOING TO THE DEVIL"

Wm. Lavery Jr. Not Travelling the Straight and Narrow Path

"You're going to the devil as fast as you can. What are you going to become anyway? There are twelve convictions against you now. Do you intend keeping up the record?" So said Acting Magistrate Rush to Wm. Lavery Jr. who appeared in police court this morning to answer to the charge of being drunk and disorderly. He was fined $5.75 to be paid forthwith.

After the above fine was levied Lavery had to answer to the charge of trespassing on the C.P.R. property. On this charge he was fined $1.60 to be paid forthwith.

His pal who was also arrested near the C.P.R. station, is already in jail on a fifteen day term.

Lavery has some fourteen convictions of drunk and disorderly and other charges registered against him, although he is under the age of 21 years.

TOLD WHERE HE GOT THE LIQUOR

Blacklister Recalls the Name of Man Who Supplied Him

Arthur Kennedy was re-arraigned before Acting Magistrate H. Rush this morning on the charge of being drunk while on the prohibited list.

Kennedy appeared yesterday, but was remanded to jail for a week on his refusal to tell where he got his liquor. The solitude of Castle Nesbitt awoke his mental powers and he discovered the man who gave him the liquor. Kennedy was fined $10, to be paid in 30 days. He said a man named Robert Strain bought him three bottles of ale.

FUNERAL OF MRS. PERRIN

The funeral of the late Mrs. Joseph Perrin, whose death was brought about by an accident at Cobourg on Sunday, was held yesterday afternoon from the late residence in Bailieboro to the Baptist Cemetery. Rev. Mr. Wickett, of Fraserville, officiating. A very large number of friends were present for the funeral services, and sincere regret was expressed at the passing of Mrs. Perrin who was very highly esteemed throughout the community.

LAUNCH UPSET THEIR CANOE

As the result of a launch colliding with their canoe last night, about eight o'clock Miss Ada Mellville and Maud Mowry, and Mr. Ed. Mowry were precipitated into the cooling waters of the Otonabee, but very fortunately all three reached safety. It was quite an unwelcome experience for the young ladies.

SIDEWALKS TO BE CONSTRUCTED

Board of Works Accept City Engineer's Recommendations.

Acting on the City Engineer's recommendation the Board of Works decided last night that sidewalks on sections of the following streets should be constructed:— Murray, Wolfe, George, [illegible], Hunter, Dalhousie, Rubidge, [illegible], Gladstone Av., King, Dufferin, Hilliard, McDonnel and Monaghan Road.

A BAD CORNER.

The C.P.R. secured certain rights at the corner of Romaine street and Monaghan road, but have failed to carry out their part of the agreements regarding the repair of the corner.

Engineer Parsons asked for instructions and he was requested to take the matter up with the City Solicitor.

MUST GIVE NOTICE.

Those companies using the streets for construction operations, must in the future notify the City Engineer's department, when they wish to proceed with work.

This notice has been overlooked in the past.

Excellent Service to Muskoka Lakes Via Canadian Pacific Ry.

Fast Muskoka Express leaves Toronto 11.50 a.m. daily, except Sunday, carrying parlor car, cafe and first-class coaches, arriving Bala 3.40 p.m., where direct connection is made for all points on the lakes. Improved facilities for passengers at Bala Wharf.

Everyone should endeavor to visit this delightful resort, as the atmospheric conditions offer immunity from this malady.

Full particulars from any C.P.R. agent, or write M. G. Murphy, District Passenger Agent, Toronto.

COUNCIL TO ASK TENDERS

For Paving on Sections of Three Streets

HUNTER ST. FIRST

Other Work Will be Delayed for Short Time

At the Council meeting on Monday night, the City Engineer will submit estimates for the proposed street paving and Council will authorize the advertising for tenders.

It is generally understood that Hunter street will receive first attention in the matter of paving. Work on George street and Charlotte street will be held back for probably a month, as the Street Railway Co. must construct a new road-bed on the sections of the streets to be paved. The rails have been ordered but the delay will be in the shipment.

As the paving proceeds the sidewalk curbs will be extended in conformity. This extension will provide for the 16 in. iron bases to be placed on the new hydro poles.

DR. WALKER AT NATIONAL HOTEL

Dr. Walker, the well known expert specialist, of Toronto, is now at the National Hotel, Peterborough, where he may be consulted daily until Saturday, Aug. 2nd, inclusive.

FATAL STROKE OF PARALYSIS

Sudden Death of Mr. Henry Bacon on Wescott Street

A very sudden and sad death occurred this morning, when Mr. Henry C. Bacon, of Wescott street, was found dead in bed. Death was attributed to a paralytic stroke. The deceased was 69 years of age and though born in Montreal, had spent the greater portion of his life in this city. He is survived by one sister, Mrs. L. Wilkins, of Detroit, and two sons and four daughters.

PERSONAL

Miss Leah Johnston visited friends in Omemee yesterday.

Mr. Stanley Love of Toronto is spending a few days in the city.

Mr. Harry Long of Edmonton, a former Peterboro resident, is in the city renewing old acquaintance.

Mr. J. T. C. Lang has returned from Bailieboro, where he attended the funeral of his sister, the late Mrs. Perrin.

Miss Bertha Record of 417 Rogers street left this morning for Toronto to attend the marriage of her cousin, Miss May Foord, which takes place this evening at seven o'clock.

Mr. and Mrs. Mark Sparkhall, of Langley avenue, Toronto, announce the engagement of their daughter, Mabel, to Dr. A. W. Macpherson, of Peterborough, the marriage to take place the latter part of August.

On Tuesday evening a masquerade dance was given at Chemong Park by Miss Robena Cummings. The patronesses were Mrs. W. H. Bradburn and Mrs. S. Elliott. A number of friends from the city joined the guests from the Park, and the evening was pleasantly spent. The pavilion was decorated with lanterns and flags and Mr. Palon, of Toronto, supplied the music.

Is Recovering

Mr. Joseph Daignault has so far recovered from injuries received at Toronto that he is able to visit in this city, and his many friends are congratulating him on his recovery.

Off to Camp

The "Hungry Nine" leave to-morrow for their annual camp down the river. The party includes Messrs. Gilgour, Mahoney, Wolfe, Bain, Grady, Allison and O'Brien.

Chemong Dance

The Chemong Park Regatta Club will hold their mid-week dance to-night in the Chemong pavilion. Mr. Asa Huycke will supply the music.

Funeral on Saturday

The funeral of the late Mrs. Robt. Scott of Cavan will take place on Saturday afternoon from her late residence to [illegible] cemetery.

Her death was the first break in the Larmer family.

LAID AT REST

The funeral of the late John Belcher took place yesterday afternoon from his late residence to the Little Lake Cemetery. Rev. R. B. Grobb held service at the house and also officiated at the grave. The pall-bearers were Messrs. R. Dobie, J. H. Burnham M.P., G. C. Wainright, G. Wood, W. Langford and G. K. Rackham. There were many beautiful floral tributes and relatives from outside points were present.

HON. E. D. SMITH WILL GRACE UPPER CHAMBER

He Is One of the Best Advised Exponents of the Niagara Fruit Growing Industry and Has Built Up Large Interests There—Three Generations Have Lived In the Old Township Where He Now Resides.

Hon. Senator E. D. Smith, one of the new appointees to the upper chamber by the Borden Government, is one of the best known and most important fruit growers in the Grimsby district of this province, and besides controlling extensive fruit farms has also large canning interests in the province.

Senator Smith represented Wentworth in the House of Commons from 1900 to 1908. Being one of the largest fruit growers, packers and nurserymen in Canada, he has made a very special study of this business and when any matter pertaining to that trade arose in the House of Commons he always displayed a comprehensive knowledge of the subject and was a fluent and able speaker. Owing to the pressure of business interests, he did not endeavor to hold the constituency after 1908, as he found business and politics too great a strain upon his health, so he practically gave up the game of holding a seat in the popular chamber. However, in the last election he took an active part in the organization of the fruit growers of Canada against the reciprocity pact and succeeded so well that all the fruit growing districts were carried by the Conservatives. He has 800 acres in the Niagara district devoted to the growing of fruit and nursery stock.

SENATOR E. D. SMITH.

Besides he is the largest buyer and shipper of fruit in Canada and he has been in this business for 25 years. Some eight years ago he established factories for the manufacture of pure food products and he has built up in this short period the largest business of this kind in the Dominion. He is also interested in two of the biggest canning factories in the country.

Senator Smith was born near where ber 8, 18—, in the township where he now lives, his father, grandfather and great-grandfather having resided in the same place. The last was a United Empire Loyalist and one of the pioneer settlers of the district, locating there in 1774. On his mother's side Senator Smith also comes from United Empire stock, his mother, a Miss McGee, having come from New Brunswick, her father being the grandson of a United Empire Loyalist, who settled in New Brunswick, obtaining a large grant of land there from the crown for his service during the revolutionary war.

A HOT TIME ON ELM STREET

Is Continued at Police Court With $5 Fine

A grand old family squabble between two women residing on Elm Street was aired in police court this morning. Mrs. Lawrence the defendant was fined $5, after which Magistrate Dumble strongly advised them all to go home and cease talking about each other. The case caused the attendance of six women and three babies. A lively scene was presented when Mrs. Lawrence denounced her neighbor in loud terms.

NIGHT-WATCHMAN SAW REFLECTION AND FIREMEN PREVENTED FIRE LOSS

Thanks to the eagle eye of Night-watchman E. Finnie, one business section of the city is still doing business to-day.

Shortly after one o'clock this morning a fire originated from some unknown cause among the empty boxes at the rear of Peter De Carlonis fruit store, 206 Charlotte-st. Despite the fact that a policeman passes that place on his beat and the fire hall is only a block away, no one noticed the blaze. Mr. Finnie was on the south end of Water street and seeing the reflection phoned the firemen from the National hotel.

The firemen responded and in a short while had the fire under control. There was very little damage.

This morning the firemen answered a call in east city, which proved to be a chimney fire at the residence of Mr F. Cook, Cricket Place. There was no damage.

GUAGE READINGS TO DECIDE CLAIMS MADE AGAINST GOVERNMENT

Mr. J. H. Burnham, the local member, received a letter this morning from Hon. F. Cochrane, Minister of Railways and Canals, which will be of interest to all those having claims against the government. In connection with the claim of Mr. Joseph Clark, of South Monaghan, the minister says that it depends upon the reading of the guage at Hastings. This it will be seen, determines all similar claims.

If the guage at the dam shows that the water has been raised since the last settlement of water levels then it follows from the minister's statement that he will proceed with the new difficulties as indicated above.

This letter appears to Mr. Burnham to be worth all the trouble that he has had with the department regarding the claims, since at last a true basis of the settlement has been arrived at by the minister.

SHEARER BROTHERS ARE COMMITTED TO TRIAL ON SHOP BREAKING CHARGE

Till in Manleys' Grocery Store Rifled and Money and Tobacco Taken—Edward Shearer Tells Dectective of How They Hid the Money in Attic and Tobacco in the Cellar

Joseph Shearer and Edward Shearer, two local youths, appeared before Magistrate Dumble this morning on the charge of stealing a quantity of goods and cash from the store of David Manley at the corner of Braidwood Ave. and Lock St. Both prisoners elected to be tried by jury. Crown Attorney Wood conducted the preliminary hearing, and they were committed for trial. A younger brother, a juvenile is also mixed up in the case.

David Manley said he locked up his store that night and everything was alright, some [illegible] in change was left in the till. On arriving at the store in the morning, and in making change for a customer, he first missed the money. On investigation he found some cigarettes and papers, and tobacco amounting in value to about $5. A number of stamps were also taken. Witness identified the goods in court. A large number of the packages of tobacco were broken. Witness saw the boys the next morning. "Joe Shearer came over and asked me about this affair of somebody breaking into the store," said witness. Joseph Shearer told me that I was blaming him for breaking into the store. I told him that I hadn't blamed anybody. After Shearer went out I reported the matter to the police."

Detective Newhall in the box swore that he visited the store yesterday afternoon and found that the till had been pried open.

Yesterday evening while investigating the case, witness said he noticed the two prisoners arranging some money matters. Edward, the youngest, went and got a boat and paid for it with twelve five cent pieces. He arrested Joseph Shearer on Lock street and found two nickels in his vest pocket. One of the nickels had a mark and was identified by Manley. He also found cigarettes on the prisoner and cigarette papers all answering to the description of those taken from the store. On searching Edward he found cigarettes and one five cent piece.

After warning them in the usual way at the police station Edward admitted that they opened the door with a key and rifled the store after forcing open the till. They took what money was in the till and then filled their pockets with tobacco and cigarettes. On arriving at home they went down cellar and buried the cigarettes and tobacco in the floor. They then tied up the $1.55 in coppers in a handkerchief and hid them in the attic.

Detective Newhall went to the house and found the articles.

A bartender said that he knew Jos. Shearer and that yesterday he gave him $1 bill for 20 five cent pieces.

UPWARD JUMP IN PRICE OF MILK

The Havelock milk dealers have decided to raise the price of milk, and commencing to-day, those paying cash will receive the indispensable fluid for 7 cents per quart, while credit customers will be charged 9 cents.

NO CHANGE HERE

The Milk Vendors' Association held a meeting yesterday and President Hunter stated to The Review to-day that the meeting was simply for the purpose of settling accounts of their recent pic-nic and that there will be no raise in the price of milk for the present season

Workers of P.F.F.

The Protestant Benevolent Federation Workers are asked to meet in the Orange Hall to-morrow evening to meet N. A. Howard Moore of Toronto.

Women have more sense than men. Women cry at weddings, but the men grin.

Had Good Time

St. Luke's Women's Auxiliary excursion to Gore's Landing, yesterday afternoon, per steamer "Stoney Lake" was largely attended. The excursionists report a most enjoyable outing.

---

Canada's trade increased in 1911-12 over 1910-11 amounted to fourteen per cent., the highest on record

CHILDREN MUST NOT PLAY ON OR NEAR TRACKS

Special Officer Weller, of the C.P.R. has received numerous complaints regarding small children playing on the railway tracks. Unless the parents, living in the neighborhood of the tracks make their children discontinue the habit, some one will have to pay the penalty by a heavy fine. The children are also liable to injury.

FINE WEATHER TO-MORROW AFTERNOON

As is generally well known the Printers have a "stand in" with the Clerk of the Weather, as ideal weather conditions always attend the date of their annual pic-nic. A day or so ago "Old Probs," as he is familiarly known, of Toronto, was notified of the pic-nic to be held on Saturday afternoon, and requested to do his best to supply good weather. That the Printers still stand in his good graces is shown by the following telegram received this afternoon:

"Moderate winds, fine, pleasant weather are indicated for your picnic on Saturday afternoon.
(Signed) "R. F. STUPART"

FINES OF $20

Three young men from this city who were intoxicated at Chemong Park on the night of July 24th, and who pleaded guilty, were each fined $20 and costs by Magistrate Edmison this afternoon. Chemong Park is local option territory.

GAIN IN THE CUSTOMS FOR JULY

The Custom returns for the past month show an increase of $7,267.18. The comparison is as follows:

| | |
|---|---|
| July, 1913 | $42,783.93 |
| July, 1912 | 35,516.75 |
| Increase | $ 7,267.18 |

THE TWO NEW PUBLIC SCHOOLS

Lack of Material is Experienced by the Contractors

Ald. W. J. Johnston has practically finished his contract to build the new public school in East City.

Inability to secure material is holding back the new school in the west ward, but it is hoped that the building will be ready for occupancy by the beginning of the fall term as it is this school that is needed the more.

A NEW TYPE OF FREIGHT CAR

Less Time Will be Taken up in Unloading

A new feature in hopper box cars will in the future play a prominent part in the equipment of the C.P.R. Two hundred have already been ordered. The hopper or chute is in the rear of the car and when shut forms part of the car floor. This car can be unloaded in about one-third the time it would take to unload the old car.

MITCHELL IS THE CANDIDATE

Canadian Press Despatch.

New York, Aug. 1.—John Purroy Mitchell, recently appointed collector of customs here by President Wilson, was selected early this morning as the fusion candidate for Mayor to represent the republicans progressives and independents. The Tammany hall candidate has not yet been selected but it is understood that Mayor Gaynor is the candidate for another term.

GO ON STRIKE

Dock Laborers Hurled Into Ore Pockets to Their Death.

Canadian Press Despatch.

Duluth, Aug. 1.—At the Allouez Ore docks last night a moving ore train ran into a standing train throwing a large number of dock laborers into the ore pockets and piling ore on the top of them.

Three were killed, two fatally injured and four badly hurt and twenty are missing.

Dock hands are indignant over the carelessness which caused the accident and immediately men to the number of two hundred and fifty went out on strike.

CENTRAL PRESS AGENCY HAS FIRE

Toronto, Aug. 1st.—Fire which broke out in the building of the Central Press Agency, last night, caused damage of $30,000 and imperiled the lives of several employes.

MAN LOST IN THE BUSH

Lived Sixteen Days on Berries—Terrible Experience

Blind River, August 1.—Lost for sixteen days in the bush, during which time he lived entirely on berries, a man who gave his name as John Black, was found in a deserted hut by a young Frenchman, who happened upon the deserted camp while out on a paddling excursion. Black, when found, was in a terrible condition. His only clothing consisted of a pair of old overalls, held together by pieces of wire. His body was a mass of sores, the result of scratches sustained while groping through the underbrush, and mosquito stings. His feet were badly lacerated, and he was in a terribly emaciated condition. He was hurried to the hospital here, and it is thought he will recover.

Black was working in Moore & Macdonald's lumber camp before he lost his way in the bush. At that time he weighed 190 pounds. He is now 50 pounds lighter as a result of his terrible experience. Black says that he could hear the trains going through the district, but found it impossible to get out of the maze of the bush.

STATMENTS WERE NOT CORRECT

Moose Jaw Council Condemns Local Paper for Article on City's Finances

Canadian Press Despatch.

MOOSE JAW, Sask., July 31 — The City Council has passed a resolution unanimously condemning a local paper, The Evening Times, for its front page editorial on the financial conditions of the city.

In part, the resolution reads as follows: "That this Council desires to place on record its strong disapproval of the article published recently, owing to its gross misstatements of local conditions, wherein the credit of the city and its business is impugned, and that a copy of this resolution be forwarded to the Board of Trade with the request that support be given this motion with a view to restoring confidence in the city which has been seriously impaired by the publication aforesaid."

MOOSE JAW, SASK., July 29 — Mayor Pascoe emphatically denies the report published in a local paper announcing that the city's bankers have refused to accept cheques drawn by the city. "Any inconvenience that has been experienced in connection with the city's financial arrangements has been caused by our inability to dispose of the city's debentures," said the Mayor.

The Daily Review.

DEVELOPMENT OF CANADIAN INDUSTRIES

The Globe of last Saturday, contained a very valuable editorial on the subject of Canadian investments. It deplored the excessive booming of real estate both in the East and in the West, and went on to say that Canada's progress depends, not upon real estate but upon the development of its industries, and especially its mineral resources.

Apart from the question of Free trade and protection, upon which some will differ widely from the Globe, it is time the attention of investors were directed to the rich and undeveloped fields of metals and minerals. "Canada has some of the greatest coal deposits in the world. Canadians own inexhaustible iron ore bodies off the Newfoundland coast. In Ontario there are large rich ore ranges, similar to the famous Mesaba range of the United States Steel Trust."

This subject is especially important to Eastern Ontario, where there are vast stretches of wild rocky country unfit for cultivation, but which are, nevertheless, rich in mineral of all kinds.

There have been many amateurist attempts to work these areas for the gold they contain, but the reason for their failure is that they were worked for gold alone and the metal was not in sufficient quantities to pay for the mining of it.

Gold mines are not a reliable and permanent investment, in Ontario at least. But these areas referred to, contain mineral far more valuable and useful than gold, and in working these mines for this mineral, the gold can be won along with it, and so increase the profit and enable the mine owner to place his mineral upon the market at a low price.

At the present time in Hastings County, an American firm is making big profits out of a sulphur mine, and a large village has grown up around it within the space of a very few years, where there were but poor farms before.

Within a few miles of this village there is an area containing the largest arsenical deposits in the north of the continent. In fact the whole of Hastings County is one big mining proposition that ought to be looked into by those who are interested in the industrial development of Eastern Ontario.

The city of Peterborough is so situated that it would be bound to profit enormously by such a development. But the subject is so comprehensive and important that it is impossible to do more than refer to it in one article; there are other phases of it which may be dealt with at some other time.

THE NAVY WRANGLE

The navy controversy is an interminable wrangle for the simple reason that the papers of both sides and, of course, particularly of the Liberal side, are forever shifting their premises.

The Toronto Star, for instance, has now jumped upon another of the thousand islands of refuge and tells us that the reason why the Naval Aid Bill was rejected was because the Liberal party did not know what the British Government were going to do with the $35,000,000.

It asks, in effect, "why did not Mr. Churchill explain his Imperial squadron idea before?"

Mr. Churchill may have been remiss on this point, but the probabilities are that the Imperial Squadron idea was evolved on the strength of Canada fulfilling its offer of three Dreadnoughts.

Every common sense Canadian regarded the thirty-five million as a Colonial subsidy to the British Navy, a filial contribution or acknowledgment, and it was made as plain as could be that the three ships might be regarded as the nucleus of some kind of Canadian sea power.

It is true Mr. Borden did not particularly specify as to what the British Government was to do with each dollar of the thirty-five million, no more than the Star editorial writer if he were lending the Review thirty-five cents would say, "now don't go and get drunk on it."

EDITORIAL NOTES

The Daily Chronicle of Montreal asks the question, "When is a man drunk?" and answers it by saying that "a man is drunk, more or less, when he has been drinking."

The Hamilton Herald has been asking questions of its readers, from which one might infer that those readers were either ill-informed or were hard to convince. Its interrogations are as follows:

"Do you know that Canadian lumber sells for more in Hamilton than in London, England? Do you know that you can buy Canadian fruit and meat in England for less than they cost here?"

The Herald might have continued asking questions and thus answered itself, or the wages question for instance.

The "sleep strike" is what might in slang phrase be termed "the limit." When will the British Government cease to treat these benighted creatures as sane?

Berry picking is at present in full swing. But the man who had to subsist on berries for sixteen days in the bush near Blind river must have been "fed-up" with them.

The Methodist Church is nothing if it is not methodical. It has already started in the "Movies," now it is sending out builders to its mission fields in China, with the object of erecting modern churches in that land of strange buildings.

Mrs. Mable Deschene, of Toronto, is a cool and sensible little woman. She was entering her bedroom when she saw a man ransacking the drawers of her bureau. She locked him in and 'phoned for the police.

EXCERPTS

BEECHER GIVING A NOTICE.

Mr. Beecher had a poor verbal memory. On one occasion he gave a notice in his church thus: "In addition to the notices just read I desire to say that I shall be absent next Sabbath, and that this pulpit will be occupied by —ah—by—ah—the—Rev. (he became more flushed and confused). I will not be here next Sabbath, and, as I was trying to say, the preacher will be—ah—why, I know him—you all know him—why he married my daughter! O, I know—'Sam' will preach next Sabbath. Let us praise God by singing the—th hymn." He had no difficulty in remembering the family name, "Sam," but Rev. Samuel Scoville was too much for him.—British Weekly.

STRIKING THE RIGHT NOTE.

Some of us have rather amusing recollections of certain attempts at congregational singing when the leader struck the wrong pitch. It may have been too high, and if so the tune rose higher and higher until with one indescribable final squeak it broke off short. Or it may be the tune was pitched too low, and the congregation followed valiantly enough until there was nothing left but a low, half audible growl—and a lot of giggles.—Christian Guardian.

"THEY CAME."

"I can't for the life of me see what brings those people to Canada, anyway?"

"Oh, you can't, eh! Let me ask you this. What brought your father, or his father, or your grandfather's father?"

"Oh! they—came—"

"So, that's just what brings 'those people,' they—came."—D. Dickson in Christian Guardian.

Worst of the Penalty.

"You are sentenced to a year's imprisonment at Atlanta," said the judge.

The prisoner sank back into a chair.

"But the reduction of time will be considered."

"I have figured that out. I don't object to the visit. But I dislike to have to travel so much in warm weather."—Kansas City Journal.

Awful End.

"What became of that Russian count who insulted you?"

"He choked to death."

"How did that happen?"

"I made him swallow his words."—New York Mail.

The Cost.

Guest—That's a beautiful rug. May I ask how much it cost you?

Host—Five hundred dollars—a hundred and fifty for it and the rest for furniture to match.—Boston Transcript.

Special Correspondence.

Elva McIntyre of Peterboro is visiting at the home of her grandfather, Mr. Thomas Howson.

Miss Mabel McCann left last Tuesday for Spokane, Wash.

Mrs. J. Souscie of Peterboro is visiting friends in the vicinity.

Miss Ruth Hendren of Norwood is the guest of Misses Ferne and Belle Howson.

Miss Jennie Clancy of Guilbert Springs, Sask. is visiting friends in and around the village.

Rev. Ross and Mrs. Ross of Pontypool, visited their son, Dr. Ross, a few days last week.

Miss Katie Skinner spent the week end with Miss Bessie Reid at Peterboro.

Mr. John Kempt was in Peterboro Tuesday on business.

Miss Nellie Quinn of Rochester is visiting her sister, Miss Winnie Quinn at the Island.

While riding horse-back last Monday, Mr. Wm. Kempt met with what might have been a serious accident. The animal became frightened at a basket and ran away, throwing Mr. Kempt and giving him some very bad bruises about the head and face. We are pleased to report his injuries not more serious.

Mrs. John Brough and children, and sister, Miss Gertrude Roache, of Bailieboro are visiting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Patrick Roache.

"ISN'T MY DADDY HERE?"

Is First Question of Peter Scott, Dead Hero's Little Son.

A chubby little boy in a light blue sailor suit stood on the bridge of a squat black ship that crept up the channel to the Cardiff Docks a few days ago.

The boy was Master Peter Scott and the ungainly little ship was the Terra Nova, home again after that long and tragic voyage to the frozen south.

As the ship drew near the docks where the quaysides were black with people waiting to greet her, little Peter vigorously waved a white handkerchief at the passing vessels and laughed merrily.

But his was the only laugh heard.

For the shadow of the tragedy of Captain Scott and his noble comrades was present. It seemed everywhere—in the leaden clouds overhead, in the black-garbed figure of Lady Scott on the bridge, showing up mournfully against the brilliant blue suit of her fatherless son, in the absence of bunting among the ships of the harbor.

The Terra Nova arrived at Cardiff Docks shortly before one o'clock. For hours before sightseers crowded every vantage point.

Peter, who had been chatting vivaciously to everybody and anybody in the tug, was first aboard the ship, being lifted to the deck by a burly sailor.

For a moment Peter gazed around the deck, then he asked wonderingly, "Isn't my daddy here?"

The burly sailor turned away and his eyes filled with tears. Commander Evans came briskly forward, and with a cheery, "Hullo, old fellow, how are you?" saved the situation.

Those who had expected to see Lady Scott land with little Peter were disappointed. She had slipped quietly away from the Terra Nova in a tug and landed at a deserted part of the quay.

Tense, Mood and Gender.

A somewhat angular, severe looking spinster was standing on the station platform outside a mail coach, inspecting, with undisguised curiosity, the ingenious net arrangement which is able to sweep in mail bags while the train is in swift motion.

"Is she working all right?" asked one of the officials.

"Aye, aye, Bill," replied his mate, when suddenly the lady touched him on the shoulder.

"Why do you call it 'she?'" she inquired, as usual athirst for information.

"Because, madam, it's a mail catcher," replied the courteous official.

And the sniff of the angular spinster almost drowned the shrill whistle of the engine, then preparing to move on.—London Answers.

CARNIVAL OF WATER SPORTS

Even with the hot weather, these are happy days for the younger members of the Y.M.C.A. Every day brings forth a new feature of the work. Under the supervision of Mr. Galley, the Boys' Secretary, a regular carnival of water sports are run off each afternoon at three o'clock. These sports include swimming races, and numerous other events.

A beginners' class is also being held, and any boy who wishes to learn to swim may do so free of charge by going up to the "Y," where he will be taught by Mr. Galley.

We require higher tasks because we do not recognize the height of those we have. Trying to be kind and honest seems an affair too simple and too inconsequential for gentlemen of our heroic mould.—Stevenson.

Save the Babies.

INFANT MORTALITY is something frightful. We can hardly realize that of all the children born in civilized countries, twentytwo per cent., or nearly one-quarter, die before they reach one year; thirtyseven per cent., or more than one-third, before they are five, and one-half before they are fifteen!

We do not hesitate to say that a timely use of Castoria would save a majority of these precious lives. Neither do we hesitate to say that many of these infantile deaths are occasioned by the use of narcotic preparations. Drops, tinctures and soothing syrups sold for children's complaints contain more or less opium, or morphine. They are, in considerable quantities, deadly poisons. In any quantity they stupefy, retard circulation and lead to congestions, sickness, death. Castoria operates exactly the reverse, but you must see that it bears the signature of Chas. H. Fletcher. Castoria causes the blood to circulate properly, opens the pores of the skin and allays fever.

Letters from Prominent Physicians addressed to Chas. H. Fletcher.

Dr. A. F. Peeler, of St. Louis, Mo., says: "I have prescribed your Castoria in many cases and have always found it an efficient and speedy remedy."

Dr. Frederick D. Rogers, of Chicago, Ill., says: I have found Fletcher's Castoria very useful in the treatment of children's complaints.

Dr. William C. Bloomer, of Cleveland, Ohio, says: In my practice I am glad to recommend your Castoria, knowing it is perfectly harmless and always satisfactory.

Dr. E. Down, of Philadelphia, Pa., says: "I have prescribed your Castoria in my practice for many years with great satisfaction to myself and benefit to my patients."

Dr. Edward Parrish, of Brooklyn, N. Y., says: "I have used your Castoria in my own household with good results, and have advised several patients to use it for its mild laxative effect and freedom from harm."

Dr. J. B. Elliott, of New York City, says: "Having during the past six years prescribed your Castoria for infantile stomach disorders, I most heartily commend its use. The formula contains nothing deleterious to the most delicate of children."

Dr. C. G. Sprague, of Omaha, Neb., says: "Your Castoria is an ideal medicine for children, and I frequently prescribe it. While I do not advocate the indiscriminate use of proprietary medicines, yet Castoria is an exception for conditions which arise in the care of children."

Dr. J. A. Parker, of Kansas City, Mo., says: "Your Castoria holds the esteem of the medical profession in a manner held by no other proprietary preparation. It is a sure and reliable medicine for infants and children. In fact, it is the universal household remedy for infantile ailments."

Dr. H. F. Merrill, of Augusta, Me., says: "Castoria is one of the very finest and most remarkable remedies for infants and children. In my opinion your Castoria has saved thousands from an early grave. I can furnish hundreds of testimonials from this locality as to its efficiency and merits."

The Best Detective Story of the Last Ten Years

The next twenty-four hours Britz spent in the quiet of his home, his mind focused on the problem before him, trying to map out his line of procedure. Plan after plan he discarded as worthless. He could have struck out blindly in the hope of stumbling on a trail, but that was not Britz's method. Crime mysteries were to him scientific problems to be solved by scientific means. Step by step he went over the ground already covered, and then swept the outlook with the keen searchlight of his mind.

By a process of elimination he tried to sift the real thief from the group of suspects on whom his mental efforts were concentrated. He was unable to drag forth the culprit. Then he sought to discern the motive for the crime in the action of each possible criminal, but he could come to no satisfactory conclusion.

"More information, more information is needed before the real work can begin!" he murmured.

In his preoccupation he did not observe the door open and the servant show in a subordinate from Headquarters. Not until the visitor spoke did he become aware of his presence.

"Two cablegrams for you, sir," the subordinate said.

The first cablegram aroused no emotions in the detective.

"Have obtained original drawings. Will sail to-morrow with them," the message from Logan read.

He opened the second envelope and read the contents half a dozen times, as if to stamp them indelibly on his mind.

"Drawings for duplicates taken to manufacturer by young woman. Gave name of Ellinor Holcomb."

Britz dismissed the visitor, left the house, and hastened to the office of Dr. Fitch. Taking the important cablegram from his pocket, he handed it to the physician. The doctor's eyes lingered on each word. His face paled, his eyes bulged forward, a violent tremor ran up and down his frame.

"This is awful!" he groaned.

"It's great news for you and Miss Holcomb," the detective smiled.

Fitch eyed him in perplexity. The detective met his inquiring gaze steadily, and, slowly folding the cablegram, he said:

"It proves beyond question she had no part in the crime."

"How?" Fitch demanded eagerly.

"If Miss Holcomb had been clever enough to plan the theft, she'd have known better than to go about Paris ordering the duplicates. Also, if she had taken the diamonds, she'd never have permitted one of them to remain in her room in Mrs. Missioner's house. No, whoever stole those gems deliberately tried to throw suspicion on her."

"But who could have conceived such a dastardly crime?" Fitch blurted, a wave of anger sweeping his frame.

"Whoever it was," Britz returned, "either was actuated by enmity toward the young woman, or knew enough about the Missioner household to realize that suspicion would naturally fall on her, and therefore he decided to use her as a cloak to hide his own identity. However, I now have something to work on, something that will produce quick results. Dr. Fitch, you may tell Miss Holcomb that in my calculations she is entirely eliminated from participation in the crime. You may inform her also that the hunt for the thief has begun."

Before the physician recovered from the pleasant shock of the detective's words, Britz was hurrying down the steps.

CHAPTER X.
Dorothy March Talks

Matinee girls in the Forrest Theatre differ from their sisters of other New York playhouses in that they are far more serious than anybody in the evening audiences. Caramels, marshmallows, chocolate creams, are forbidden by the unwritten law of their cult. The utmost nourishment one of them can allow herself is a salted almond nibbled surreptitiously between decorous little outbursts of kid gloved applause. It is not the sort of gathering in which one would expect to find the busiest sleuth of the headquarters staff, especially with a great diamond mystery on his hands. Yet on one of those warm January afternoons that make the metropolis wonder if it is being metamorphosed into a winter resort, one of the most interested auditors in the select little theatre was Detective-Lieutenant Britz, of Manning's staff.

On the surface, that is to say. In reality, he was not listening to a word of the Thespian culture that trickled over the footlights. But if his ears were unoccupied, not so his eyes. His glance circled the auditorium like a ramrod swung on a swivel, resting on the stage at long intervals in a perfunctory way. Manning could have told in a moment that his alert lieutenant was not at all interested in the unfolding of the attenuated plot on the boards; that Britz was looking for somebody.

Britz found the somebody he sought when his gaze fell on a slim little figure in the trimmest of dove-colored gowns, sitting in the fifth row off the centre aisle. Instantly his last pretense of attention to the play vanished. Keeping his eyes on the gray curves of the girl in the fifth row, he quitted his post at one side of the house and walked slowly to the main exit, whence he watched her until the curtain fell on the first act. Meanwhile, he scribbled on a card, slipped a liberal tip into the receptive hand of an usher, and indicated the object of his interest. When the curtain fell on the first act, the usher hurried down the aisle, and presented the card to the girl in gray.

"If Miss March," read the young woman, "will spare a few minutes to Britz, of Headquarters, she will confer a favor and serve her friend, Mrs. Missioner."

Dorothy gathered her wrap, glasses and programme quickly, and followed the usher to the back of the theatre. The youth led her to the famous detective, whom, though she had heard of him through Doris Missioner, she beheld for the first time. She had expected to see a man whose cleverness was writ large on his exterior; she was disappointed by the almost commonplace appearance of the man who faced her. But she acknowledged his self-introduction with the sweetness inseparable from her mignon features and, at his request, strolled with him to a corner of the lobby, where they seated themselves on softly tinted bent-wood chairs.

"You wished to see me?" inquired Dorothy. It was a banal question, and a flush tinged her cheeks as she realized its superfluousness could not escape the greatest detective in New York. But Britz seemed not to notice it, and the simple directness of his manner put the girl at her ease.

"I took the liberty, Miss March," he said pleasantly, "because I saw you across the orchestra, and I need a short course in social knowledge." His smile robbed the reply of flippancy.

"Fancy!" said Dorothy. She was so utterly at sea as to the detective's purpose she could think of nothing else to say save, "I fear you have sought a poor teacher."

"Well, I don't know, now," Britz returned, looking at her with respectful admiration. "You see, you're a society girl, and I know nothing of society, and there's something I want to know—something I ought to know."

"If there's anything I can tell you, Mr. Britz, I'll be glad to do so," Dorothy volunteered. "Especially if it will help you to find Mrs. Missioner's diamonds."

"I'm not sure it will," said Britz. "It may, however, save me from seeking them in the wrong place. You seemed to enjoy the play, Miss March."

This shift of subjects was so abrupt that if Dorothy's breath had not already been coming in catches, she might have gasped. It was evident detectives were more original than society men. She wondered absently if the type was worth studying.

"Why, yes," her hesitating answer came. "I believe it's considered one of the best hits of the season. Very elevating, you know, and—well, different."

"Modern, Miss March?"

"It has two periods. The first deals with the life of to-day, the second harks back to the early Victorian period, with, I understand, an abrupt return to the present."

She was chatting quite easily with the detective now. Had she been reared in Mulberry Street instead of on Murray Hill, she could not have felt more natural.

"Now, this society subject—by the way, Miss March," Britz switched again, "is there as much difference between social life then and now?"

"Oh, a great deal, I should say." Her eyes twinkled. "Of course I cannot speak with authority—from personal observation."

"I wouldn't ask you to tell me anything about Ward McAllister from personal observation, Miss March," said the sleuth. His gallantry on occasion was the wonder of the Central Office.

Dorothy looked alarmed. Could it be great detectives wasted time on compliments, too? But a side glance at the detective's serious expression reassured her. It was manifest even to a debutante he had no idea of making an impression along that line. She laughed frankly and looked at him again in the friendliest way.

"I know you don't want to ask me about anything so recent as the Spanish War," she said, "now, do you?"

"Candidly, I don't," he rejoined. "To tell you the plain truth, I don't know exactly what I wish to ask nor how to ask it, but I have an idea you can help me, and I'm sure you will for Mrs. Missioner's sake."

"And Miss Holcomb's?" asked the girl eagerly. "She, too, you know, is a dear friend of mine."

"And Miss Holcomb's," answered the Headquarters man warmly. "Let me say, too, my dear young lady, as one old enough to be your—your——"

"Don't say my brother, Mr. Britz," interposed Dorothy mischievously. "I—I—well, I don't really see how I can be a sister to anybody else." She felt impelled to treat this strangely natural man naturally—she, who despite her inexperience, could freeze presumption with a glance, felt that way. It was a tribute to his adaptability.

Britz laughed.

"Miss March," he said with more heartiness in his tone than had colored it in many a day, "if I were not so busy, it would be a delight to be an elder brother to you. But I guess you're not interested in my impulses, and we were talking of the play."

"Oh, yes, 'the play's the thing.'"

Ornaments Last Longest.

Ornaments last longer than anything else that man makes. There are brooches and necklaces in museums more than 40 centuries old. Monuments, perhaps, stand second, and houses third. The life of furniture is shorter still. There is very little furniture in England which dates beyond the year 1500. Pictures last longer than furniture, and there are paintings still in fair condition which have weathered six centuries of life.

PARCEL POST INAUGURATED BY BLACKLISTER'S STORY

He Told the Court That Friend in Hastings Sent Him Whiskey and He Got it at the Post Office

Robert S. Irwin, a blacklister, appeared before Magistrate Dumble this morning, on the charge of being drunk while on the blacklist. He pleaded guilty to the charge of being drunk, but refused to divulge where he got his liquor.

When questioned by the Chief, he claimed he was feeling rather poorly for the past few weeks and that he sent to Hastings for his liquor. The whiskey arrived yesterday and he drank too much. Witness said he had a conversation with Thomas Moore, a resident of Hastings, and as a result Moore sent the whiskey from Hastings through the post office. He remembered seeing Chief Thompson coming from the ball grounds. He was sober at the time.

"What became of the bottle?" asked the Chief.

Witness gave several vivid descriptions of what he did with the big bottle. The result of the evidence was that Chief Thompson fell back on the old reliable, to wit, "the solitude of Castle Nesbitt for a week."

TRIP TO GORE'S LANDING WAS EYE-OPENER FOR THE PEOPLE OF ST. GEORGE'S CHURCH

The first annual excursion for St. George's Sunday School was held per steamer Geneva, to Gore's Landing on Wednesday, when a large gathering of children and their parents had an enjoyable outing. It was the first glimpse of Otonabee River scenery for many of the excursionists and they were delighted. Capt. Harris and his officers did their utmost to help the passengers enjoy themselves. The prize winners were as follows:

Girls, 6 and under—Barbara Bouguord, Hilda Evans, Martha Fewtell.

Girls, 8 and under—Ella Smith, Lillian Leagurf, Florence McLeod.

Girls, 10 and under—Mary Leasurf, Lucy, Simmons, Marjorie Evans.

Girls, 12 and under — Dorothy Stanfield, Ellen Holyman, M. Miller.

Boys, 8 and under—Eddie Simmons, Douglas Simmons, Douglas Darke.

Boys, 10 and under—Frank Bouguord, Ralph Holyman, Willie Bayes.

Boys, 12 and under—Cleaton Wilson, Reggie Phipps.

Married Ladies Race—Mrs. Geo Robinson.

Single Ladies Race—Miss Nellie Wilson.

Men's Race—Albert Pitchford, W. Packford.

The prizes were presented by Mrs. John Holmes.

IN AID OF THE PUBLIC HEALTH

The great questions of municipal house cleaning, clean streets, pure water, sanitary houses in which to live, clean milk, honest foods, thrust themselves upon the notice of women as matters vitally affecting her happiness and the life and health of her children.

Community health is purchasable. Adequate spending of money will produce conditions that result in public health. In proof of this, the example of the Panama is cited. Without sanitation there would be no Panama Canal, and what has been done at Panama can be done anywhere by intelligent but firm control. Yet Canadian cities spend comparatively little for public health. They ought to spend much more, and they will do so when it becomes generally realized that public health, priceless as it is as a possession, can be bought.

A fly has natural enemies; the most persistent and most effective should be man. — Ohio Board of Health Bulletin

Bargees To Stop Swearing.

"To swear like a bargee" is a synonym in England for the limit in cursing. Sixty-seven bargemen who navigate the waterway connecting Sittingbourne with the River Medway mean to remove this reproach and have formed themselves into a brotherhood for this purpose. They are pledged to say prayers every day, to attend Divine service once every Sunday, and to "endeavor" not to swear.

The bargemen say they can fulfill the first two promises with comparative ease, but will not venture beyond "endeavor" in regard to the third one. One of them said: "It will take a bit of getting used to it, like changing your language all of a sudden. Still, we are trying, but some of the boys hardly dare to open their mouths."

How Irish Lace Originated.

Irish lace originated from the failure of the potato crop that caused the famine of 1846. The abbess of a convent in County Cork, looking about for some lucrative employment to help the half-starved children who attended her schools, unravelled thread by thread a scrap of point de Milan, and finally mastered the complicated details. She then selected the girls who were quickest of needlework, and taught them what she had painfully learned. The new industry prospered, and one of the pupils, in a pardonable "bull," declared that "if it had not been for the famine we would all have been starved."

"They call women extravagant yet when they cut petticoats out of the laundry bills some people start a crusade."

SEVERN DISTRICT OF TRENT CANAL

Tenders Are Called for Work in That Division

Tenders are being asked for construction work at the Severn division of the Trent Canal. All indications point to the determination of the Government to complete the canal in the earliest possible time. Dredging operations are now in progress on the Otonabee river and other points.

Excellent Service to Muskoka Lakes Via Canadian Pacific Ry.

Fast Muskoka Express leaves Toronto 11.50 a.m. daily, except Sunday, carrying parlor car, cafe and first-class coaches, arriving Bala 3.40 p.m., where direct connection is made for all points on the lakes. Improved facilities for passengers at Bala Wharf.

Everyone should endeavor to visit this delightful resort, as the atmospheric conditions offer immunity from this malady.

Beauty of contour is the key of the successful "1913" costume.

More than ever before a proper corset is necessary. The great success of the D. & A. and the La Diva styles has kept the great Dominion Corset Co's model factory in Quebec, with its thousand skilful corsetières busy early and late producing the corsets which will bring style, comfort and support to many women in Canada.

Corset bargains

It is not only their style and comfort which make D. & A. and La Diva corsets popular. Compare them with any imported corsets of similar model.

The quality of the imported corset will be no better but the price will be $1.00 to $3.00 higher.

By actual count more than half of the best dressed women in Canada wear D. & A. or La Diva Corsets. There is a model for every figure. Our catalogue sent free on request, will help you choose the best for yours.

PETES SCORED SIXTEEN RUNS OFF TWO RED SOX HEAVERS

While Tracey Held the Visitors Safe at All Times, J. Ira Comes to Town

Ladies and Gentlemen—

On this festive afternoon,

I greet you—J. Ira Davis.

It must have been that. Nothing short of J. Ira himself, and his volley of jokes—see Chase's Almanac, 1802—could have brought such happenings about.

The half-holiday crowd had a big programme, as the Petes slaughtered the Brants to the tune of 16-0. With Ken Tracey twirling, the visitors got as far as second base on two occasions only.

Joe Lill started to hurl but gave way to Claremont in the third. The former Senator had, in two innings passed eight men—three in the first and five in the second—and had forced in two of the six runs made by the Petes, who slipped in a brace of singles and a sacrifice fly.

Claremont went along fairly well for four innings, holding the locals to three runs, but in the seventh, he was hit hard, and five hits, and a homer by Fox, and two errors made six more counters for the homesters. The sixteenth came in the eighth.

Amidst the several comedy scenes of the day, was a hit by McNeal, who for a change, batted on the western side of the plate. Iver's fumble western of the plate. Iver's fumble allowed him the second bag, and he took third on an infield out. Watching his chance he caught the battery napping and was almost home before the pitcher returned the ball. Coose, however, muffed the throw and allowed Minnie to score.

Lamond for the visitors had a big day in left field, when he accepted no less than eight chances, which is some going for a left garden. Wagner, at second, pulled down a couple of line drives; Brant, as usual cut down hits by snappy fielding and Joe Byrne, although handicapped by a sore hand, never performed to more advantage at the difficult corner.

Favorite at Court.

Lord Granard is one of the few Irish peers who support Ireland's demand for Home Rule, and his name has been put forward as a probable Viceroy after the Home Rule Bill has been placed on the statute book.

Born in Dublin thirty-nine years ago, he is the seventh earl. He received his education at Beaumont and the Oratory School, and succeeded his father in 1889. For a time he served in the Scots Guards, and was A.D.C. to Earl Cadogan in Ireland. He has always been a favorite at Court, and was Lord-in-Waiting to King Edward VII., and Master of the Horse. Though he is an Irish earl, and owns 20,000 acres in that country, he is also connected with England and Scotland. He is entitled to sit in the House of Lords as Baron Granard of the United Kingdom, the title being conferred on his grandfather, an enthusiastic Liberal, by the Government of 1800. This earl was one of the peers who signed the protest against the Act of Union.

FAMOUS CASE RECALLED.

Tichborne Claimant's Daughter Arrested In London.

By the arrest the other day in London of a woman calling herself Theresa Mary Agnes Doughty-Tichborne, on a charge of threatening to kill the young birds of Sir Joseph Tichborne, Bart., another strange chapter is added to the history of the Tichborne family. It was Sir Joseph Tichborne's father (while still a minor) whom the Claimant sought to displace in the famous litigation. Sir James Tichborne had two sons and led an unhappy married life. Roger, the elder son, resigned his commission in the 6th Dragoon Guards, and went a-roving. In 1853 he left Rio de Janeiro for home in a ship called the Bella. That vessel never reached port, only some wreckage being found. Roger's mother refused to believe that her son was lost, and advertised in the Australian papers for news of him. Her husband was dead, and her second son, James, was dead, too. His posthumous son, Henry, was, therefore, heir to the baronetcy, and the revenues of £24,000 a year. The Dowager Lady Tichborne's advertisement resulted in the appearance of the famous Claimant, whom she at once identified as her long-lost son, and allowed him out of her fortune £1,000 a year until her death. The family solicitor, seven tenants, and 16 servants of the Tichborne family identified the stranger from Australia as Sir Roger Tichborne, and evidence to the same effect was given by six magistrates, one general, three colonels, three captains, and 33 non-commissioned officers and men of his old regiment, the Carabineers. In 1871 the Claimant commenced his action in Chancery for the recovery of the estates, which lasted 103 days, and failed in March, 1872. It convulsed society. There were two parties—the supporters and opponents of "Sir Roger," and Parliamentary elections were fought on it. The Claimant was arrested for perjury, and, released on bail, went on tour, where he was welcomed by enthusiastic crowds. In April, 1873, the criminal trial began, with Mr. Hawkins, Q.C. (afterwards Lord Brampton), as the prosecuting counsel, and Dr. Kenealy, Q.C., as the defending counsel. The trial was unparalleled for its bitterness, and Dr. Kenealy was so violent in his attacks on the judges that he was disbarred. The Claimant was convicted, and sentenced to 14 years penal servitude. The theory of the prosecution was that the Claimant was really Arthur Orton, son of George Orton, a butcher at Wapping, who emigrated to Chili, and then to Australia. Mr. Maurice Edward Kenealy, son of the Claimant's famous counsel, has recently published a book, which seeks to prove that the Claimant was not Orton; but in 1896 the Claimant himself published a full confession in which he stated that he was Arthur Orton, and gave details of his parentage and his marriage in New South Wales. Within a few weeks he withdrew this confession. Before his death in 1898 he resumed the name of Sir Roger Tichborne, and stated that he only made the confession because he had no other means of raising money.

"Queer how it takes a whole year to save up enough for a two weeks' vacation, and then you are often six or seven days short."

SCHOOL GARDENS.

Ontario Is Making Rapid Strides In This Direction.

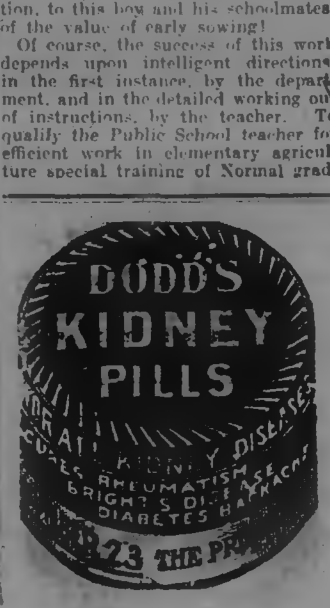
The school garden movement is making encouraging progress in Ontario. During 1912, two hundred and fifty schools shared in the distribution of material, which consisted of collections of forest tree seedlings from the Norfolk forestry farm; packets of barley, alfalfa, lettuce, onion seed, flax, and other seeds for experimental plots, all of which was sent out free. Material for which a charge was made consisted of flower and vegetable seeds for the school garden or the child's home garden, tulip bulbs for fall planting, vines for decorating the school or covering outbuildings, shrubbery for planting on the school grounds. The schools sharing in the work are mostly in Western Ontario, but some schools in the newer parts of the province have joined in the work.

During 1913, seed will be supplied free on the understanding that it is to be used strictly for educational purposes. School progress clubs will be promoted and other plans developed for further extension of the school garden idea. And the spread of this system should result in making the rural school a place with beautiful surroundings, a cradle of scientific agriculture, and a practical training ground for making raw schoolboys into skilled farmers.

A sample record of an experiment in the sowing of barley, made by a pupil in Waterloo County, shows the following net results: Four sowings were made, May 10th, 23rd, 31st, and June 12th; seeds germinated (in order) May 20th, 29th, June 6th, June 16th; estimated yield per acre (in order of sowing) 25 bushels, 20 bushels, 15 bushels, 10 bushels; quality of seed, good, fair, fair, small. Surely this will prove a practical demonstration, to this boy and his schoolmates, of the value of early sowing!

Of course, the success of this work depends upon intelligent directions, in the first instance, by the department, and in the detailed working out of instructions, by the teacher. To qualify the Public School teacher for efficient work in elementary agriculture special training of Normal graduates is given in connection with the Agricultural College; summer school sessions are also held and winter reading courses outlined. Special certificates in Elementary Agriculture and Horticulture are issued to teachers passing the requisite examinations.

One of the great obstacles to the successful teaching of agriculture in the rural school is the large number of classes and the wide curriculum to be handled, in so many schools, by a single teacher. The consolidation plan now so successfully operated in Manitoba, would give, in place of four or five of the present smaller schools, one large school located centrally, and with arrangements for the conveyance of children to the school. The facilities for conducting school gardens would be much better under this system.



When the system gets "all run down" build it up with

GOLD WATCH FOR MISS EMBERSON WHO OBTAINED HIGHEST NUMBER OF MARKS

Presentation to Successful Candidate at Bensford Last Night by Mr. J. H. Burnham M. P. Who Also Made an Address to Large Audience

At Bensfort last night Mr. J. H. Burnham, M.P., presented Miss Emberson with a gold watch, in recognition of her success in attaining the highest number of marks in the entrance examinations for South Monaghan.

Mr. G. C. Wainwright accompanied Mr Burnham and they were greeted by a very large audience. Reeve Waterman presided, and the program, besides Mr. Burnham's address, included speeches by Reeve Waterman and Mr. Wainwright, several choruses and two solos.

THE ADDRESS.

After congratulating the meeting on the large attendance which showed the interest of the people in education, Mr. Burnham went on to say that during the brief space of a man's occupancy of a public position it is manifestly one of his many duties to do all he can to help in the education of the rising generation. Therefore he decided last year to give a gold watch for entrance pupils from the city and the same for the country. He found, however, that outlying rural schools stood very little chance to win the prize and as they were the ones he desired chiefly to reach it became necessary to give a watch for each township. He knew of nothing, he said, quite so pleasant as travelling about on this errand and hoped the custom would not readily die out. It already showed signs of proving beneficial and according to The Globe of July 16th, it is absolutely necessary for the people to bestir themselves with regard to their schools. The Globe, in its leading editorial of that date, issued the following warning under the significant heading of "The Weakness of the Public School": "At a recent high school entrance examination in Toronto the candidates from the Roman Catholic Separate Schools secured a considerably higher percentage of marks than candidates from the Public Schools obtained. This is not the first time such an incident has occurred * * Toronto is not the only city in which this has taken place this year, however, and it may not be amiss for the public inspectors, principals and 4th class teachers of Toronto to look carefully into the educational situation to ascertain whether they are working at any removable disadvantage. * * " Surely such a warning as this ought to set the people and their representatives thinking hard. Just so soon as the public schools lose their pre-eminence the best pupils of all persuasions will desert them and go to the separate schools and that will very soon mean that, having proved a failure, the people will lose the control of popular education and it will necessarily be placed in the hands of those who succeed in giving the best education and the defeat of the public school will mean the defeat of a vast number of other things. The people need, therefore, a distinct and an immediate revival of their interest in their schools if what The Globe says is true and we have no reason to doubt it. The Globe's warning in this respect was to him the greatest shock received for some time. Separate schools have been wonderfully improved of late years and the argument in favor of public schools as the argument for anything else rests on their equality or superiority and when the public school ceases to be the equal of its rivals its day will pass. It may become a school for those who can do no better, but not a school for those who start life under more favorable auspices. We cannot suffer this degradation of any branch of public service, exclaimed the speaker. We must wake up, trustees, people and teachers alike. The most valuable of all our popular assets is our public school. The best educated, the best trained boys and girls get the best positions everywhere. We all know and many of us have had an unfortunate occasion to feel that our capabilities have been almost destroyed through lack of opportunities. The very minute the graduates of our public schools cease to command the leading positions in all walks of life the people will see these positions passing into the hands of those trained elsewhere. Canada will pass into the power and control of those best equipped for the work of governing. When I was a lad, the great event of the year was the exhibition or prize day. It stood for all that was best and most inspiring in the life of the pupil. We must all try to revive that sort of thing. We must bend our energies to the acquirement of knowledge and of well trained minds if we are to preserve our freedom and our happiness. Education is open to all or should be, and should be regarded as the greatest prize a child can look forward to and amid the clash of politics or the threats of war we should not forget that there is something vastly superior to both and that it is the foundation of our strength and liberty.

Expensive Evening Gowns

are not matters of every-day purchase, and therefore even the independently wealthy like to take the greatest care of them. Yet sometimes the functions of a single evening will ruin their appearance temporarily. We can remedy this, however, by our system of careful cleaning, and in any case we can dye the garment and make it like a new one.

HE SUPPLIED BLACKLISTER

Fine of $25 for Robt. Strain ---Must Pay in 20 Days

Robert Strain, a local man appeared in court this morning, on the charge of supplying liquor to a blacklister. He pleaded guilty to the charge. Magistrate Dumble imposed the penalty of a $25 fine, to be paid in 20 days.

Not only was Strain fined, but Chief Thompson was of the opinion that he would be better if he were placed on the blacklist. Strain was added to the Indians.

Two Deported

Mr. and Mrs. Currington left this morning for England, in charge of Deportation Officer Devlin. The couple are being deported to England owing to the ill-health of the man.

YOUNGER SCHOLARS HAD PICNIC

Primary Department of All Saints' Sunday School at Jackson Park

THE PRIZE WINNERS

Yesterday afternoon the primary department of All Saints Sunday school held their annual pic-nic to Jackson Park. It was in every way a decided success.

The little ones, with their parents and friends numbered about one hundred. During the afternoon a short programme of sports was run off.

Tea was served about six o'clock and an hour later busses called at the park and took the little folks for a delightful drive around the city. Judging from the merry peals of laughter and the bright little faces of the children this proved to be a most enjoyable part of the program.

The following is the list of prize-winners:

Girls, 4 years and under—Olive Rome, Daisy James, Elsie Pirety.

Boys, 4 years and under — Fred. Land, Stanley Jones, Roy Rome.

Girls, 5 and 6 years — Connie Downs, Dorothy Warboy Beatrice Binks.

Boys, 5 and 6 years Jackie Adams, Clifford Turnbull, H. Ebbs.

Boys, 7 years and over— Primary class only— Albert Warner, Arthur Downs, Harold Franks.

Girls' Consolation Race— Marjorie Warboy, Olive James.

WESTERN CANADA'S BUMPER WHEAT CROP

Thousands of Men Required--- This Year's Harvest Promises to be the Largest in the History of Canada

According to present indications the wheat crop of 1913 will be the greatest ever harvested in Manitoba, Saskatchewan or Alberta, thus requiring the farm laborers of the East to assist in harvesting the world's bread basket.

The Governments of the respective Provinces state that many thousand men will be required for this year's harvest. These will have to be principally recruited from Ontario, and the prosperity of Canada depends on securing labor promptly. The Canadian Pacific, on which Company will fall practically the entire task of transporting the men to the West, is already making special arrangements for this year. Excursions from points in Ontario to Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta will be run and special trains operated, making the trip in about thirty-six hours and avoiding any change of cars or transfers. This will be a day shorter than any other route. Dates, rates and conditions will be announced in a few days. eod

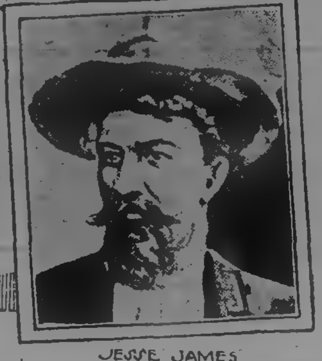
FRANK JAMES



JESSE JAMES

The lives of Jesse and Frank James, those notorious outlaws, read like some five cent thriller. Jesse James was killed by members of his own band and Frank is now at the point of death.

Their father was Robert James, a Baptist preacher, who was persecuted by his Union neighbors during the civil war because his sympathies were with the South. In order to get revenge Jesse and Frank joined the guerrillas and they soon earned a name for reckless daring.

In 1866 Jesse was outlawed and with his brother attained a world wide notoriety by the crimes they committed, by their romantic adventures, and their almost invariable success. A reward of $10,000 was offered for the capture of Jesse and, tempted by the bribe, two of his band killed him. A short time after Jesse's death Frank gave himself up. Now Frank is dying and the history of the "James boys" will soon be ended.

BROTHER OF EAST CITY LADY MURDERED

Mrs. Edward Wicker, of James street, East City, has been informed of the death at Verigin Sask., of her brother, Harry E. Whelbam, who was shot and beaten to death on Wednesday.

Jas. L. Wallers, a general merchant of the town, is charged with the murder. There had been a quarrel.

The late H. E. Whelbam was a realty broker and insurance agent.

Several doctors, after working over Whelbam at his home, decided to send him to Winnipeg, 300 miles away. He was immediately despatched in an auto to Kamsack on the the Canadian Northern line. Shortly after his arrival there, Sir Donald pulled in in his private car. Hearing of the case, he insisted that his car be used to take him at the greatest possible speed for treatment in a Winnipeg hospital. No time was lost either in starting or on the road. The special train made an average of 59 miles an hour. But the gallant effort to save a life proved in vain, the murdered man dying within an hour of the time he would have been in the hospital.

WEDDED IN AUTOMOBILE

Son of Hon. Clifton Sifton Married to Pretty American

NEW YORK, Aug. 2.—After the marriage ceremony in an automobile drawn up at the curb in Springfield Ave., Millburn, N. J., Winfield B. Sifton, lawyer, military man, and crack rider of Ottawa, and his bride, who was Miss Jean Donaldson, formerly wife of John S. Kawan, are in a hotel in New York, preparing to start on their honeymoon journey.

The wedding service in an automobile, which was performed by the Rev. William Siebert, pastor of the German Evangelical Church of Newark, was the culmination of a romance that began at the recent International Horse Show in London, where Mr. Sifton shone as captain of the Canadian military team.

The young people met in the horse show promenade, where the dashing Canadian, a fine figure in his regimentals, immediately fell in love with the pretty American girl. Two weeks ago she left her mother in England, came to New York, met Sifton, and the automobile wedding was the result.

The bride is a daughter of the late Andrew Donaldson, formerly vice-president of the Erie Railroad. She is twenty years old. The bridegroom is the second son of the Hon. Clifford Sifton, chairman of the Dominion Commission for Conservation, formerly Minister of the Interior under Premier Laurier, and reputed to be a multi-millionaire. Winfield Sifton gave his age as twenty-three.

YOUNG FARMER MAKING GOOD IN THE WEST

Sends Sample of Grain by Mr. Joseph Sucee

Mr. Joseph Sucee, a well known local man, returned yesterday from an extended trip through the Northwest. Mr. Sucee states that some places the crops are very good, while in other places they are thin.

Mr. Sucee brings with him a sample of grain sent to the Review from Mr. Robert Yates who is working a homestead in Central Saskatchewan. Mr. Yates is a young Englishman, and is of the kind that always "makes good." He left Bridgenorth to take up a homestead in April, 1912, and expects to have it under cultivation in a short time. The sample of grain he sends is from the first breaking. It was planted on the 1st of May, and pulled on the 25th of July. In about two more weeks it would have matured. The grain measures 4 feet 4 inches in length, and the heads are six inches long.

MOSQUITO THE CAUSE OF AN AUTO WRECK

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J., Aug. 2—While guiding his automobile around a curve on a road near McKee City, N.J., to-day, a mosquito bit A. K. Siler, of Narberth, Pa., on the neck. Instinctively Siler raised his hand to "swat" the pest and at the same instant the front wheels of the car struck a rut, the car bounding into a tree, overturning, and pinning the entire party of five beneath it. Mrs. Adelaide Speck, of Philadelphia, and Siler's 7-year old daughter were seriously injured. The others escaped with bruises.

Mr A. K. Harris, of this city, who with his two sons, was riding over the same road, discovered the accident, and, after extricating the injured persons, placed them in his automobile, and made a record run to a hospital here.

EVIDENCE WAS NOT SUBMITTED

Magistrate Advised Settlement out of Court

No evidence was taken in a case brought to Police Court this morning by Matthew Mellmoyle, who laid information against his wife, charging her with stealing household goods from his home.

R. Ruddy, K.C., for the defendant, and G. N. Gordon for the complainant, had a long, wordy battle and Magistrate Dumble said it would be better to settle the case out of court.

Trade Experts Turn Thieves.

There is a gang of expert thieves at present at work in London—men who are thoroughly acquainted with the gold, silver, and fur trades, who are planning and carrying out "highly-specialized" burglaries with distinct success. Recently $10,000 worth of furs were stolen from a city warehouse, and it was found that the burglars had only taken away the most costly skins, which had not been made up, and which it would be impossible to identify. And from further burglaries which have occurred it is evident that receivers have in their employment men who turn their trade knowledge to nefarious uses. Furthermore, they are planning and carrying out raids in conjunction with criminals from the other side of the Atlantic.
